Ottawa, June 25.—The subsidies for the steamship service with New Zealand which has been carried on for the past two years by the Alley Seamship Line, with an annual subsidy of $100,000, each Dominion contributing $50,000, have been discontinued. About ninety per cent. of Canada's trade goes via New York, and the balance from British Columbia can be handled via San Francisco. The service last year cost the Government about one dollar in subsidy for every seven dollars' worth of freight carried.

Fined for Adulterating Milk.

Brockville, June 25.—F. H. Brenton, the official prosecutor for the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, prosecuted a patron of a cheese factory in the Napanee District for adulterating his milk. The offender was fined $60 and costs on two charges.

BITTERLY DENOUNCES THE PROFESSIONAL WOMAN

Toronto, June 25.—Denouncing in direct and bitter words the "professional woman," and declaring that all the good she did in the world could not counterbalance the fact that she left no children at death, Miss Edith A. Barnett, of England, caused a sensation yesterday morning at the meeting devoted to "Professions and Careers for Women," the particular paper of Miss Barnett's discussion being "The Moral, Educational and Social Effects of Woman's Entrance into Professional Careers".

"The woman's sphere is the home. She need not necessarily remain in ignorance there, but the idea should be to leave men's work for men to do.

"It has come to be so in England now that a man who would be horrified at the idea of becoming a footman, a hair-dresser or tailor (my dear fellow, I shouldn't be eligible at the club, don't you know), doesn't mind in the least if his sisters or cousins become nurse ladies or maids. The reason is simple. He would rather see them earning than be compelled to contribute to their support

Miss Barnett deplored the materialistic tendencies. Children were almost driven by parents to publicity driven to the stage to dance, or sing, or play, not because of any love of art, but for the love of money or applause.

It used to be that the girls were provided incomes by their fathers. Now, they could go to earn their livings in occupations on a par with errand boys.

The beginning of the professional career for women said Miss Barnett, very often lay in the craving for smart clothing whether paid for or not.

"It is better to be a good homemaker than a professional light," emphasized Miss Barnett. "The professional women of England have most certainly failed to prove the worth of their theory."

Dr. Rosalie Morton, United States, fought Miss Barnett's argument at every ditch.

Women in medicine had succeeded in establishing a peculiar and legitimate place for themselves. In the treating of nervous and other troubles their efficiency needed no additional proof. Other speakers from the United States defended the professional woman in law and other professions.

SIXTEEN BURIED UNDER GRAIN

Montreal, June 25.—Sixteen coal trimmers were buried for four hours under 30,000 bushels of wheat in the hold of the Lake Manitoba Wednesday night and barely escaped with their lives. They were only saved by the anxiety of a boarding-house keeper, who sent to the ship to ask when his gang was going to eat. Steam shovels were put at work and the men were found crowded together below a pipe leading to the outer air. They were all safe, but weak from the terrible heat.

PULLED MAN AFTER HIM

London, June 25.—James Allgrove, a laborer employed on the Murray Shoe Co.'s new building, fell off the scaffolding yesterday afternoon and in falling he pulled down with him another man, George Moore, the distance to the ground being thirty feet. They landed on the G.T.R. track which runs close to the building. Allgrove got off comparatively well, while Moore had his right arm and leg broken, his mouth and head badly cut, and he also sustained serious internal injuries.

MURDERER KILLED WHILE HE WAS RESISTING ARREST

Special to the Review.

St. Michaels, Mo. June 25—Emmett Roberts, slayer of beautiful and talented Edith May Thompson Woodill, adopted daughter of Chas. Thompson ward of former secretary of the Treasury, Lyman Gage, and wife of Gilbert Woodill, a wealthy auto manufacturer of Los Angeles whose nude mutilated and weighted down body was dragged from the river here on Wednesday afternoon was shot to death by a sheriff's posse, while resisting arrest on the wharf at McDaniel's, Talbot County, Mo, this morning.

SAW ATTORNEY-GENERAL WITH REGARD TO GYPSIES

While in Toronto yesterday in connection with the meeting of the municipalities to look into the claims of the firm claiming royalties on the septic tanks in use in different parts of the province City Solicitor Hall and Ald Phelan, accompanied by Mr. R. E. Bradburn, MPP, waited on the Attorney General in regard to deportation of the gypsies under arrest here. The department is taking an active interest in the affair and the total situation was thoroughly explained to the Attorney General by the Peterborough gentlemen. The Provincial Government has taken up the matter with the Dominion Government in regard to having the gypsies deported.

WHAT'S THE USE OF WATERING CENTRAL STREETS? ASKS "DUSTY"

I saw by the Review of a couple of evenings ago that the Board of Works have decided to have the streets watered in the central portion of the city. I also saw in the account of the meeting that Ald. Morgan suggested that the residential streets be watered.

What in the world is the idea of having the principal thoroughfares watered when it is certainly a more sane move to supply the residential streets with water. That is the place to keep the dust down and that's what the people wanted when they agitated for Sunday street watering that they might be able to sit on their lawns and verandahs without having their clothes covered with dust and their comfort destroyed.

The idea of watering the "central" streets seems to me a particularly dubby one.

Yours truly,
DUSTY.

GORGEOUS SPECTACLE

Montreal Parade--St. Jean Baptiste Celebrations

Montreal, June 25.—Passing through the closely-packed streets, accompanied by bands and representatives of almost every society in Montreal, the big St. Jean Baptiste Day parade was watched by nearly fifty thousand people along the different streets of the city. The parade, which was of almost unparalleled length and magnificence, took an hour and a half to pass a given point, and was invested with the pomp and solemnity which French Canada lends to its greatest public feast day.

A succession of artisan societies and lodges, intermingled with bands of gorgeous horsemen with the scarlet, green or gold cape, and the hat with regal ostrich plumes, preceded by a number of cars, showed artisans at work. An allegorical car with the Chevalier De Laval seated upon an upturned canoe, surrounded by a body of snowshoers, singing their club song, followed by the representation of the early days in Canada with the cottage of the settler, the primitive log cabin and old spinning wheel. Warriors of old Ponce De Leon's days followed. Representations of the priests' teaching the Indians with Souart, the first schoolmaster in Canada, were well received.

Mrs. Matthews was with her husband and daughter and two nephews and two nieces on a trip to the Berkshires. All were thrown out, when control of the car was lost and ran at a mile a minute speed when descending Delevan Hill, the machine turning completely over when a tire burst. Mrs. Matthews was thrown against a tree

MISS JANE ADDAMS TELLS OF CHICAGO SLUM WORK

Famous Chief of Hull House Tells Delegates to Women's Congress at Toronto of Her Experiences Among the Foreigners of a Big City.

Toronto, June 25.—Toronto undoubtedly appreciated the presence of one of the great women of the world at the meeting of the International Congress in convocation hall last night, when Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, rose to address the largest audience the congress so far has attracted.

There were but a few men present, but the applause from the ladies made up in duration what it lacked in masculine vigor.

Miss Harriett Marion Maclean, professor in Delphic College, Philadelphia, had already spoken on social conditions among working women and remarked upon the difficulty of preceding one who knew more of the subject than anyone else in the world.

It was her easy mastery of the question that lent absorbing interest to Miss Addams' address. A real Deborah with the tenderness of a Dorcas, she has lived the life and knows the doctrine.

She wondered why the subject of the settlements had been thrust into the middle of a program of music and literature, but undertook to do the best she could in such untoward company, but before she ended it was felt that the music and the literature were not so far amiss. The settlement idea, started in London 25 years ago, consists of having a group of educated persons live in an industrial neighborhood, bringing into it from without all they can of civic valor.

Hull House sits in a locality where 22 nationalities may be found touching elbows, and it is the aim of the settlement to interpret these people to the rest of the city and to each other. Great care has to be taken that the children do not contract a superficial Americanism and learn to despise their parents.

It was one of the beautiful points of the address, Miss Addams' illustration of the consistent efforts made to reveal the parents to their own children. They have established a labor museum, where Italian and Greek and Assyrian and Irish and Dutch and all the other men and women place examples of the handicrafts of their own peasant days. Those who can weave or spin, and dye, the workers in pottery, wood, metal, show something of the charm of their native background, in which the life of American cities is so sadly lacking.

Lieut.-Governor Gibson presided and the Countess of Grey, the Countess of Aberdeen, Lady Edgar and many other distinguished ladies sat on the platform. Dr. Albert Ham with the St. James' Church choir contributed a number of examples of English Church music at the opening of the meeting.

Lady Edgar, president of the Canadian National Council, was in the chair, and on the platform with her were Countess Grey; Her Excellency, Lady Aberdeen, president of the International Council; Mrs. J. M. Gibson and Lady Sibyl Grey.

Countess Grey, as honorary president of the Canadian Council, in welcoming the delegates to Canada, spoke in part as follows:

"You come at a time when the greatness of our Canadian destiny is assured to us, and yet at a time when the lines of our national development are not so stereotyped as to prevent our adoption of the best methods of social organization, as may be suggested by the experience of other countries."

Lady Aberdeen also spoke briefly in appreciation of the hospitality of the Canadian people and ended by welcoming the congress to the "feast of fat things."

Nine sections of the congress met in various parts of the university buildings morning and afternoon.

DIED UNNOTICED BY WIFE'S SIDE

Saratoga, N.Y., June 25.—While riding in his automobile, William Berney, an artist of New York City, was stricken with cerebral apoplexy and died before his wife, who was at his side, noticed that he was ill. Not until the machine suddenly swerved from the road did Mrs. Berney realise that her husband, who was acting as chauffeur, was dead. She jumped in time to save herself from injury and the machine topple over in a ditch and was wrecked.

Happy Quebec.

Montreal, June 25.—La Presse yesterday evening, discussing the position of the French people, says: "It is our joy to belong to two supremeties, that of the church, which is the kingdom of ideas, and that of Great Britain, which is the kingdom of good sense and of liberty."

TO REACH THE WEST CHURCHES

London, June 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—An informal conference was held at the offices of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel to consider a movement for advising and helping those churchmen who emigrate to Canada. The trend of discussion pointed to the necessity of the Canadian church appointing a central secretary, whose business will be to advise churchmen where to settle where they will be in touch with the ministration of the church. A representation to this effect will be made to the primate of all Canada.

There is a general feeling that Archbishop Lloyd, who really inspired the conference, should head the scheme.

"Is there anything special to note?" he was asked.

"No, I can't say that there is. It rains one day and is sunshiny the next, and the result is just right. You may say that providence is doing the best possible for the crops."

U.S. Loses Millions In Revenue.

Washington, June 25.—Declaring that the American Tobacco Co. had been the recipient of twenty-one millions of dollars which otherwise would have gone into the national treasury, because of the failure of the Government to require a change in the size of tobacco packages when the war revenue law was repealed, Senator Beveridge yesterday spoke at length in support of his amendment correcting this omission.

C.N.R. Comes In Useful.

Lee Chu was last seen eight days ago in an automobile.

BRITAIN PREPARED

"An open letter 'from the German Michel to John Bull' presents 'the German Naval Case' in the Contemporary Review. If, says the writer, Germany is to have a navy at all it must be a strong navy, for a weak fleet is simply a hostage in the hands of a powerful enemy.

"An English pacific, Gladstonian, free trading, relying upon voluntary service for her armed forces—such an England may have as large a fleet as she pleases without exciting any alarm. But an England that is aggressive protectionist, armed to the teeth by conscription, is another proposition altogether. Against the latter England we must, in self-defence, push on our naval defensive forces with the utmost rapidity."

Here we have the Anglo-German relation in a paragraph. Of Britain, unprepared, Germany is not the least bit afraid. But of Britain prepared and ready to break anew into the "world's alarms," Germany is avowedly afraid. Does this mean that it is better to go easy in the way of armaments in Britain, and in the way of tariffs, and that it is better to be unaggressive, slow to move, not more than a match for the Boers, the prey of nations armed with a tariff? Which way does the decadence of a nation lie?

MR. BORDEN MEANT IT

From the Hamilton Spectator

During the last campaign R. L. Borden declared many times that he would rather remain in opposition than win power by means that were not honest. Either he meant what he said or he was, to use a sporting expression, four-flushing. We believe he meant what he said, and those followers of his who conducted elections in any other way were not strengthening their leader's cause, no matter how much closer they were bringing him to power. It is idle to assert that none of the threatened protests against Conservative members was with good cause, as it would be equally idle to assert the same for the Reformers. On both sides there were men who conducted their elections in an immoral manner. The sawing-off of their cases by central committees did damage to the cause of decent politics in Canada. If it was done with the sanction of the party leaders so much the worse. As political parties, Reform and Conservative, so long as this sort of thing is tolerated by our leaders we might better cease prating of virtues which we do not possess nor even seek after. The hypocrisy of our claims is so apparent that no one can be deceived, and all we can hope to gain by it is the disgust and contempt of an ever increasing number of electors who are finding their way out of the political camps and into the ranks of the independent voters.

LAURIER AND THE ORANGEMEN

From the Sentinel.

The Globe denies the accuracy of a statement by The News that "Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to power in 1896 with the aid of the Orange Association." It is difficult for us to understand how any responsible newspaper like the Globe could be led into taking a position so absolutely at variance with the facts.

One statement which The Globe sets up to support its denial of the article in The News is that Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the Grand Sovereign of the Orange Order was responsible for introducing the Remedial Bill. It is quite true that the remedial policy of the Conservative Government of that time was the work of Sir Mackenzie Bowell. But it is not true that he was Grand Sovereign of the Orange Order at that time. His official connection with the Orange Association dated from many years before. Besides his policy was opposed by leading Orangemen in every part of the Dominion.

What strikes us as being somewhat strange and unfair is that although a column is taken to deal with the question the name of the late Hon N. Clarke Wallace is not mentioned. Surely The Globe has not forgotten that Hon N. Clarke Wallace was the Grand Sovereign of the Order in 1896, as he had been for ten years before. Nor could the Globe bring his name into it without admitting that he fought side by side with the Liberal candidates. He gave up a salary of $5000 a year, rather than forsake his principles. He lent his best endeavors to line up the members of the Orange Association in favor of the Laurier Government in almost every constituency in the country.

We need only refer to one riding which stood out in a sensational way during that memorable contest, to establish our contention that the Orange Association did co-operate with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and materially assist in returning him to power. The constituency of East Toronto contains a larger proportion of Orangemen than any county in Canada, and they are as ardently Conservative as members of the Order anywhere. Yet they deserted the party candidate, Mr. Emerson Coatsworth and went to the polls along with their Liberal neighbors to elect Mr. John Ross Robertson, a man who was pledged to the hilt to oppose the Tupper Government policy.

This is only one of many cases in the Dominion that might be quoted in support of the statement that "Sir Wilfrid Laurier came into power in 1896 with the aid of the Orange Association."

The Globe falls into another misstatement when it says that "Ontario for whose predilections Sir Wilfrid Laurier had risked his popularity in his native Province gave a majority against him." The fact is that in the parliament which expired by effluxion of time in 1896 there were 34 Liberals, 54 Conservatives and 2 Independents. After the following election which took place within a few months, Ontario sent 48 supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier against 34 which he had in the previous House, and 43 Conservatives instead of 54. Sir Wilfrid's majority was increased afterwards as a result of bye-elections. But the result of the voting in the general election of 1896, was to give the Liberal party a majority of 5 as against a minority of 20 in the previous parliament.

If these figures do not prove that Ontario supported 1896, they have no significance whatever. As this Province is the backbone of the Orange Association and the Order was roused in every constituency against the policy of Sir Charles Tupper, it is only a fair inference that the result achieved was due very largely—if not entirely—to the activity of the members of the Order in support of the man who promised to protect the educational rights of the Province of Manitoba.

IMPERIAL OR INDEPENDENT?

Hon. Mr. Brodeur offers the South American States as examples which would lead Canada into having a navy of its own. They are smaller than we are, he says, and yet they have their own navies. He might have added that they also have their own flags. The cases are not at all alike. Canada is a member of a vast Imperial Federation. The South American Republics are absolutely independent States. They must have their own navies or have none. We, on the contrary, have enjoyed naval protection for generations without having had a solitary battleship of our own.—The Montreal Star.

The establishment of an independent navy has and can have but one ultimate aim, viz., independent management and possibly independent aims. The London Daily Telegraph analysed all this perfectly. The Colonial Navy idea was to it, no good. As an ally or unit of the British navy it was manifestly useless, if not embarrassing. In the face of it all, and with a promptness that inspires suspicion, Mr. Brodeur, the hero of a hundred scandals or failures of administration, whichever suits him best, now comes forward as the announcer of a naval policy for Canada, which can never be of use, but can be of killing expense. The policy of a Canadian contribution in ships for an Imperial Navy or of money for a new transatlantic edition of Mrs. Jarley's wax works—which shall it be? By all means let it be a Dreadnought, or two Dreadnoughts, at any rate something immediately and permanently useful, not a badge of independence.

EDITORIAL NOTES

That Hon. W. L. M. King is to be the successor of Sir Wilfrid is one of those fake-reports that are worked upon a confiding country at regular intervals.

What better work could be expected of the Department of Justice in the Blythe case? Mr. Aylesworth is a faddist. Hysterical humanism seems to be one of his fads, and waterless canals another.

Wouldn't the American press raise "Cain" if this had occurred in Germany?

La Presse, the chief organ of the Liberal party, in Quebec, addressed one of its fiercest articles recently to the electors of a ward in Montreal demanding that, although in a great majority, they should "unite to crush" Ald. Carter, the sole English-speaking alderman of the division. La Presse is "carrying on" more like a madman than anything else in its determination to support Sir Wilfrid, fairly or otherwise. It hurls about anathemas and accusations like bombs.

"I am intimately acquainted with a young man who has spent the past two years in Alberta. He informs me that a large percentage of the Catholic young unmarried men from Ontario, who are now residents of western towns, neglect their religious duties. The reason he gives for this is that the spirit of the country is such as to induce one to break from all restraint and that there is nothing to attract the young man to attend church, the sermon being too often in a language he does not understand, and ceremonies so different from what he was accustomed to at home. The immediate result is that unless he is well instructed in his religion and firmly grounded in his faith, he will cease to hear Mass on Sunday and will neglect to make his Easter duty. The ultimate result will be that he will lose his faith and that his children will be lost to the Church.

"It is all very well to pride ourselves upon the constancy with which our ancestors adhered to the faith, "to warm ourselves" as you have put it, "at the firesides of our forefathers." But it is a fact which we might as well admit, that the Irish, like any other nationality, are liable to lose the faith unless they are instructed and nourished by the sacraments."—Extract from letter of Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan in the Register.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

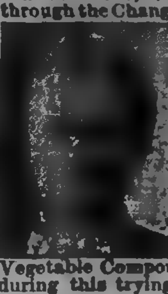
During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay



Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

JOHN R. HEGEMAN, PRESIDENT.

GREAT REDUCTION OF EXPENSES---INCREASED BENEFITS---LOWER RATES

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT

In January, 1907, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company largely increased the benefits in its Industrial policies by reason of a heavy reduction in expenses and improvement in mortality experience.

During the past three years the Company has steadily reduced its expenses, so that it is enabled to make a further increase in benefits. Industrial insurance policies have a unit of weekly premium—three cents, five cents and multiples thereof—and the amount of insurance varies with the age.

All Industrial Life policies (premiums cease after age 74), Endowment policies at age 80 and Adult Twenty-year Endowment according to a new table of benefits adopted for policies issued after July 1, 1909. In other words not only does the Company issue a new table for policies hereafter issued, but it makes the increase retroactive since the present form of Limited Payment and Endowment at age 80 policies were adopted.

Upon the OLD INDUSTRIAL POLICIES the Company is paying out TWO AND A HALF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN BONUSES THIS YEAR, bringing up the total Bonuses and Concessions upon Industrial policies to EIGHTEEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN SIXTEEN YEARS. This is OVER AND ABOVE ANY AND ALL OBLIGATIONS expressed or implied in the policies.

The Metropolitan in its Industrial Department has the lowest Ratio of Expense of all Industrial Insurance Companies in the world which pay immediate benefits. In FIVE YEARS its

Ratio of Expense to Premium Income has been Reduced

8 per cent., representing an

Annual Saving of Three and a Half Million Dollars

The new Convertible policy issued by the Company is a novel form of insurance which becomes fully paid-up life insurance in a few years and is then automatically converted into endowment insurance, the maturity of which is periodically shortened as payment of premiums continues.

The Company is abreast of the public demand for combination of term insurance and annuities, and serves the public better than any other agency.

INDUSTRIAL POLICIES IN FORCE: NEARLY 9,500,000, INSURING NEARLY $1,500,000,000.

ORDINARY DEPARTMENT

The Company has reduced expenses six per cent. in this department in the last FIVE years—representing an ANNUAL SAVING OF OVER A MILLION AND A QUARTER OF DOLLARS IN THE ORDINARY DEPARTMENT.

The Company issues policies in the Ordinary Department in amounts from $500 to $1,000,000 upon all approved plans at the lowest rates. IN 1908 IT WROTE MORE PAID FOR BUSINESS IN ITS ORDINARY OLD LINE INSURANCE (exclusive of Industrial), in the United States and Canada, THAN ANY OTHER COMPANY.

All of its policies in the Ordinary as well as the Industrial Department are written on the non-participating plan. The Metropolitan pays its dividends at the start—that is to say, it cuts down the premiums. It believes the plain, common sense men who make up the bulk of policy-holders look for a plain business contract. By plain business contracts we mean those which tell their whole story upon their face; which leave nothing to the imagination, borrow nothing from hope, require definite conditions and make definite promises in dollars and cents.

In both Departments combined the Company has, in each of the past fifteen years, written more paid for Insurance than any other company in the world.

The Company upon its Total Business has in the Last Ten Years Reduced its Ratio of Expenses to Premium Income Fifteen Per Cent.

TWO NEWSPAPER MEN WERE GIVEN A SEVERE SHOCK

The valuable services of a couple of newspapermen came pretty nearly being lost to the city last night. The two scribes in the case scraped up enough money between them to hire a canoe for the evening and were enjoying a refreshing paddle to almost the same extent that the mosquitoes were enjoying them.

Suddenly a launch puffed out from the shore at Crawford's Grove and after making an eagle-like swoop shot down the stream like an "empire limited."

The news boys noticed the launch was heading straight for them and yelled lustily at the approaching party. In the confusion however the motor boat came at the canoe midships. The paddler in the rear threw his paddle in the bottom of the boat and intercepted the collision by putting out both hands and meeting the launch in that manner. The impact gave the canoe a slight twirl around and the launch rushed by and continued its course down the river.

The excitement had the pencil artists breathing so loudly and rapidly that the canoe might have been easily mistaken for a diminutive gasoline boat crawling up the stream.

It wasn't so realistic however that they were interfered with for not carrying any lights.

Y.M.C.A. CAMP PROMISES TO BE THE BEST THIS YEAR IN HISTORY OF ASSOCIATION

Now is the time when the boy is longing to get away from the heat of the city, after the examinations are over. We see large numbers of boys going off to the woods, or sitting at the side of the river, enjoying the cool breezes and getting next to nature.

Without a doubt, a few weeks of a growing boys' time spent as near the wild and nature as possible, affords not only a recreation, but a basis for healthful growth that places a boy far in advance of the one who in the same class does not have the same opportunity to live with nature. The boy who is not endowed with animal spirits is lacking in the first requisite for a perfect young manhood, he needs physical development. In the camp he is free to receive from Nature the benefits she delights to give. Let him dress in an athletic suit, minus shoes if he wishes, and give his skin a chance to breath the fresh air. You may call him an Indian if you wish but let him gain the health and the strength that only a free outdoor life can give. It is well to encourage athletic field games that develop self control, but give him an opportunity to tramp through the woods looking for something. Give him a definite aim, whether a rock, or plant or Indian relic, it little matters, but on his return to camp he will be physically tired and very hungry, and possessed with the consciousness that he has learned something. The period for sleep should be longer. A healthy boy physically weary and not mentally fagged, will, like the farmer boy, fall asleep at taps or before and sleep till reveille is sounded in the morning. For evening entertainment in the camp there is concerts, camp fires, marshmellow roasts, mock trials and numerous other things.

In no station in life can a man come into closer touch with a boy than out in the open, away from the restrictions and formalities of city life. He can there help the boy to get along with his fellows, to adjust himself to circumstances, and to know that his life may be a factor for good in the world.

This year the Y.M.C.A. Boy's Camp promises to be the best in the history of the association. The camp will be held at Sandy Point, Clear Lake, from July 19th to 31st. Sandy Point has a safe, sandy beach for swimming and miles of water for boating and fishing. It has a good field for baseball and other sports and is without a doubt the best spot on the lakes for a boys' camp. The camp is for boys who are members of the Y.M.C.A. and who are 12 years old or over.

The boys will be under the constant supervision of the officers of the association assisted by young men of character and ability who are interested in the development of a manly character among boys.

The purpose is to give a boy a happy healthy vacation and an outdoor life brim full of fun and sport, under the most wholesome influences and surroundings.

The cook house, which is a very important feature in any camp, will be well looked after. A competent cook will be in charge, and an abundant supply of good wholesome food will be supplied three times a day. We know the eating capacity of a boy in camp, especially after a long tramp or a good swim, and we will have everything that a boy likes to eat.

The party will leave the Wolfe st. wharf on Monday morning at 7.30 and go by steamer over the Lift Lock and arrive at Sandy Point about 11 a.m., when the boys will put up their tents and make everything ready for a long stay under canvas.

Any boy who wants to go to camp can get all necessary information from Mr. G. T. Evans, Boys' Secretary, and as all applications must be in by Saturday, July 3rd. Boys would do well to come in as soon as possible.

OLD TIMERS ON THE OLD CIGARS

New York, June 24.—Speaking of things that have fallen from their once high estate,' said Mr. Coffington, "you take now for instance, cigar bands. I am a man somewhat advanced in years if not in wisdom and I can remember a time when a band on a cigar was the sign of quality, when only fine cigars were thus adorned," says the Washington Post.

"That was in the days before the war—no, not the Revolutionary war nor the War of 1812, nor the Mexican War, but just the civil war, a matter of something less than fifty years ago. In those days you could buy a very fair sort of Havana cigar for six cents and a very good Havana for ten and when among imported cigars you got up to fifteen cents and over you were getting up among the choice smoke.

"Likewise in those days a standard price for a domestic cigar was three cents as five cents is now, and when you rose to a five cent cigar—why, that was then what a ten center is at the present time.

"Those were the days when a band on a cigar meant something when it was truly a sign of rank a decoration of real significance, a mark of high quality for in those days bands were placed only on imported cigars, and even among these only on those of specially fine quality produced by makers of repute perhaps of world wide fame, who, putting their names on these cigars thus stood back of them with all their reputation.

"Cigars those were of which their makers were proud—cigars that those able to afford them smoked with pride the aristocrats among cigars and nobody then questioned their aristocracy. True even in those days manufacturers of three cent cabbagerias might have put bands on their cigars too if they had wanted to, but they didn't; they forebore, perhaps, out of a traditional respect for aristocrats, perhaps out of their admiration for these choice high products of their own profession.

"But things are somewhat different in these days. Lorenzo—these days of a fierce democracy, when traditions are cast to the winds in many ways, when we would put cigar bands around stogies if we wanted to.

"Indeed for years now we have been putting bands around all sorts of cigars, so that this mark has now no longer its old time significance. Once it meant a rare cigar, a cigar to be cherished, to be smoked deliberately and in peace and comfort indoors out of the wind where it could be most enjoyed and where it could yield its fullest measure of satisfaction. Now you meet myriads of men rushing along the street smoking cigars with bands on, biting and chewing and puffing on banded cigars."

EXTRACTS FROM SPEECHES AT GREAT PRESS CONFERENCE

Mr. Cunningham, of the "Melbourne Argus," said: Mr. Balfour, Lord Roberts and Gentlemen—I am anxious to put a few views before you as representing what I think is the opinion of Australia on some of the questions which have been raised. In doing so I wish to say that, of course, it is not expected that we shall all have the same opinion on all questions, but as journalists we rather rejoice in differences of opinion, and I am here to express somewhat different opinions from those which you have had, and I beg you to understand they are offered in sincerity, with a view of arriving at a better understanding of this very important question which we are called upon to discuss. In the first place, I should like to refer to the remarks made yesterday by my good old friend, Mr. Ward, of Sydney, with which to a large extent I agree, though I rather think he somewhat subordinated what I would call the Australian national feeling too much to the larger idea of imperial defence. (Hear, hear.) My idea, sir, is that those two systems of defence are the natural and inevitable complement of each other, that it is utterly impossible for us to induce our people to realize that the whole of their energies and their thoughts in the matter of naval supremacy must be directed to the maintenance of the Imperial Navy, and no other course. We want to stimulate our people, but they have lived for many, many years in a very remote part of the world, and have been working out their destinies in their own way, pursuing the activities of their industries far removed from the large populations of the world, and naturally, in those circumstances, forced in upon themselves as they are, they become introspective. And we want to induce them to take a broader, national and imperial view of their responsibilities, obligations, and privileges; and I think we can best begin by inducing them, first, to take an interest in their own home defence. If we can get them to realize and appreciate the need for a local navy, it may prove a stepping-stone for them to think of an imperial Navy. (Cheers.) Necessarily, it will take a considerable time, but if we succeed, even in that we will effect a great service, I think, to imperial unity and to the solidarity of the Empire, which we all love. Mr. Ward, Sir, said that he felt that Australia had been treated with over-indulgence in some particulars by the Empire. May I beg leave to differ entirely from that view. I think over-indulgence, or indulgence without the word over, is the wrong word to use. It smacks of colonialism, and colonialism, so far as I feel, is dead, and dead for all time. (Hear, hear.) Similarly, another gentleman spoke of the different parts of the Empire as being an alliance of nations. That word, I venture to take leave to object to also. What we want, Sir, is something in the form of an affiliation, not an alliance. We want to establish the relationship between father and son, between brother and brother—(hear, hear)—and if we manage to secure that I think we shall have done a great work. (Cheers.) The problem we have to begin with in Australia is to defend our own country, because, Sir, a country not defending is not worth living in. (Hear, hear.) As an American humorist has put it, "You will never get a man to sacrifice his life in defending a boarding-house." (Laughter.) And we want to be able to show our people and lead them to feel and realise, be it ever so small, that they must make a beginning. They may make mistakes, but everything would be made all right in the end. The great thing is to have a main object in view, and if we can get the people to make up their minds to have it, nothing will prevent them from having it. There is no power to prevent them that I know of. They must be taught to see that the nucleus must be in conformity to the needs of Imperial strategy, and thus they will develop their ideas along wider lines. With what Mr. Balfour and Mr. Haldane have said today every one of us, of course, agrees. You are not going to maintain an empire on a defensive policy only. You must be in a position to attack and to follow the enemy, if need be, to the remotest parts of the world. We have not been treated with over-indulgence but we have been rather mean. Our taxation for defence, I believe, works out at 15d.; yours in Great Britain is 15s. It is, therefore, about time that the son came to the rescue and gave a little bit of relief to the old man who is doing too much to maintain the Empire. A sentiment of that kind is beginning to permeate the people of Australia, and it found expression in that wave of enthusiasm which passed over Australia and New Zealand the other day when the offer of the Dreadnoughts was made.—Cheers. And I think the spirit was not thoroughly understood by the journalists and may I say with deference, by some of the public men of Great Britain, for we found that cablegrams were sent back of utterances by journalists and statesmen that that was not the right way to go about it. When a boy wants to give his father a present of a pipe, what is the use of someone saying he should give him a pair of socks—Laughter and cheers. That was our attitude with reference to the offer of the Dreadnoughts and I am delighted to find that not only has the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia carried out the wishes of the people, but the Imperial Government has most cordially accepted the expression of those wishes. That puts us on a good footing at once.—Hear, hear. The question of universal training for military purposes is a broad and complex one and as to what is the best thing for the British Isles with reference to her military system it would be presumptuous of me to express an opinion. But what I do wish to say is that it by no means the settled policy of Australia, and certainly not of Canada, nor for that matter of the great contiguous country, the United States, where I believe it has never been attempted. In these large countries it involved immense problems, and I question the wisdom of trying to force a policy of that sort upon any people until they are absolutely prepared to accept it. And if we did so, I venture to think we might be making a great mistake. At the same time, what is good for one country is necessarily not good for another. I have expressed these views solely from a feeling of duty in the matter.

COY CREATURE CAPTURES CROOK

New York Burglar Picks Young Ladie's Seminary For Soft thing—Ex "Cowgirl" Grabs Him by the Neck and Throws Him Down Stairs

New York, June 22.—Laboring under the delusion that an institution devoted to the education of young women would be easy picking for one of his trade, a careless burglar injected himself into the Washington Heights School of Music and Dramatic Art at 549 West 159 street early yesterday morning and was soundly thrashed, thrown down a few flights of stairs and hurled painfully into the circumambient by one of the coy young creatures who reside there.

The mistake the intruder made was in not finding out that one of the star Delsarteans in the institution, Miss Nell Herman, had spent three years on a ranch in Oklahoma, where she punched cows, busted horses and acquired a muscular development that would enable her to box with one of our lightweights. It was also the unhappy fate of the ill starred burglar that he chose her room for his operations. A sudden gleam from a lantern awakened her, but she made no noise and lay still.

Her room is on the top floor of the house and she knew that an outcry would arouse Miss Irene Cromwell, the preceptress, and the seven other young women who live there, and that was not in her scheme of things. She breathed softly and peacefully until the stranger had become engrossed in the contents of her bureau drawer. Then she leaped upon him and all sorts of athletic exercises followed.

Miss Herman is an expert basketball player and she used her skill in that connection to toss the burglar about the place with the utmost insouciance. He was a stockily built fellow, but he was taken by surprise. Finally on one of the rebounds she landed him a short arm jab which made his teeth rattle, and forcing him through the open doorway tried to throw him downstairs.

By that time the burglar had recovered his second wind sufficiently to hold on to her, and when the trip started she went with him to the next landing. Apart from a jarring sensation she was unhurt, and getting to her feet first she planted a stiff left on the burglar's chin. He was so much surprised by this sort of thing that he lost his nerve and let her toss him down the remaining flight of stairs to the ground floor.

Miss Herman was in quick pursuit, but when she got there he was just picking himself up and fleeing up the street. As Miss Herman hadn't stopped to put on her peach basket hat or other things, she decided to let him go and started back to bed. On her way she found $30, which he had stolen and dropped in the scuffle, but later she discovered that he had made away with a gold watch.

Meantime the other young women had piled their chiffoniers and chairs against their doors, and were screaming lustily while Miss Cromwell, also behind lock and key, was trying to rouse a suddenly elusive janitor through a speaking tube. But Miss Herman just laughed and cuddled up under her blankets. She is a daughter of Dr. E. J. Herman, of Lebanon, Pa., who went to Europe with his wife last week.

WEDDING BELLS

DUMBLE—STEWART

The marriage of Miss Mary Stewart, daughter of the late Robert Stewart, of St. Mary's, to Mr. Clarence A. Dumble, son of D. W. Dumble, K.C., of Peterborough, took place very quietly yesterday at Westminster church, Winnipeg, in the presence of a few intimate friends. Rev. Dr. McKinnon performed the ceremony. The bride, who was unattended, looked charming in her going-away dress of navy blue panama, with amethyst hat. On their return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Dumble will reside in Langside street, Winnipeg.—Toronto News.

McILMOYL—EDMINSON

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William Edminson, of Bridgenorth, when her youngest daughter, Lillie, was united in holy bonds of matrimony, to Mr. Frank McIlmoyl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McIlmoyl, Selwyn.

The ceremony was performed at 6.30 o'clock by the Rev. Mr. Bonner, of Gilmour Memorial church, in the drawing room, which was tastefully decorated with ferns and orange blossoms.

The bride looked charming in a gown of white glory cloth, which was beautifully made and trimmed with Irish hand-made lace and insertion, and being attended by her niece, who was also tastefully dressed in white organdie trimmed with lace and insertion, while Mr. Almond Galvin, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Simeon, cousin of the bride. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast. A large number of beautiful presents were received by the bride, evidencing the high esteem in which she is held by her many friends. The bride's going-away suit was of blue cloth with hat to match. The remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent in games and music, after which the bride and groom left for their future home in Selwyn.

WANTS LIGHTS ON THE BUOYS

At Yankee Bonnett Unless Stones Can be Removed

A pleasure navigator was to see the Review to-day and suggested the placing of lights on the buoys at Yankee Bonnet.

"This is the most dangerous part of the river," he stated, "and unless the stones can be removed the Government as protection of the people using the river should place lights on the buoys at this point."

LETTER FROM MAYOR OF TRAILL, B.C., AN OLD OTONABEE BOY

Mr. G. F. Weir, Nephew of Mr. John Graham Weir, Writes Interestingly of the West—Vancouver the City of the Future.

Mr. George F. Weir was born in Otonabee. His father, James Weir, was a brother of Francis and Graham Weir. At the age of twenty he went to Manitoba, then to British Columbia, where he engaged in the mining business sixteen years ago and he has succeeded remarkably well.

"We arrived in here at 3.30 p. m. yesterday. It is just three years since I was here before and I can assure you that there are some great changes since that time. They are putting up some great buildings, steel and concrete, from ten to eighteen stories high. Property that could have been bought three years ago when I was here before, for ten to twenty dollars per foot frontage is being sold now for from six to twelve hundred dollars per foot and in some cases as high as two thousand per foot. This will give you some idea about the city; the population is about one hundred thousand and three years ago it was only about fifty or sixty thousand.

Well, first I will tell you what I am here for. First as a delegate to the Grand Encampment of Patriarchs as a Past Chief, of which I have had the honor of passing through the chair. We meet to-morrow morning, next as a member of and a delegate to the I.O.O.F. Grand Lodge of B.C., and next as delegate and member of the Masonic Grand Lodge of B.C. So you see I am a Past Master in the Masons, a Past Chief Patriarch, and Grand in the I.O.O.F., and being the Mayor of Trail and knowing a lot of people in Vancouver I am having the time of my life. So if my letter is not very long I know that you will forgive me.

We are all well at home or at least they were when I left and I know that they are now, or I would have a telephone from them. You see, being mayor of our city I have a telephone pass and it don't cost me anything for long distant telephoning. Just to think, I am in Vancouver this morning and my family in Trail and in two minutes I can speak with any one member of my family. Well my dear uncle and aunt, I can't think of anything to write, what with people I am meeting I have just had the honor of a call from Mayor Douglas of this city, and been put up at his club, and I have more invitations out to dinner with friends than I could accept if I stayed here for a month. Most likely I will be here until a week from today, then I will go down to Seattle fair for a day or two and then back to Vancouver and from there home again. You must not forget that we are expecting and building on your paying us that long promised visit this summer and don't leave it off until it is too late, so that you may see the beauty of our glorious country and don't think that I will not have the time to go around with you to show you some of it at least, as I told our company that I would not consider this my holiday complete, as I have not had one for three years and that I would expect another one later on when my friends from the east arrived. I will have to close for this time and, I am ashamed to think I have been so long in answering your most kind letter. * * *

Yours as ever,
G. F. WEIR.

LITTLE GIRL'S VISIT DELAYED; FRIENDS AFRAID OF SMALLPOX

The good people of the county are very much afraid of a smallpox epidemic. A couple of days ago a little girl left, on invitation, to spend a short vacation with friends in Selwyn. She sent them word to meet her at Lakefield, but when the train got there word had been forwarded her not to pay the proposed visit. Her friends at Selwyn in the meantime grew fearful for fear the visitor might be the means of introducing smallpox into the household.

The little girl tried to get her dinner at a relative's in Lakefield, but the family was also afraid of smallpox and refused her admission. She succeeded in getting a meal in Lakefield, however, before returning home on the afternoon train.

The above goes to show that the people in the surrounding country have an excessively exaggerated idea of the seriousness of the local smallpox situation. There are only a few cases here of the mildest type, and they are all under control.

PUTTING PARK IN GOOD SHAPE

Everything Being Put in First Class Order for the T. A. S. Picnic on Dominion Day

Mr. P. Kane and a number of other men went down to the T.A.S. Park yesterday to put the grounds in first-class order for the big day, which is billed to take place there on Dominion Day. Benches and seats for the accommodation of ladies are being made; the dancing pavilion is being put in good shape, and the grounds where the sports will take place are being levelled and the grass cut. There is lots of work to be done yet, and anyone wishing to take a holiday to-morrow afternoon can join the bunch at the Wolfe street wharf at one o'clock.

CHINESE MEN AND WHITE WOMEN

New York, June 25—"There are more women missionaries degraded by Chinese men than there are Chinese converted," said Miss Helen Clark, for 17 years director of the Helen F. Clark mission on Worth St.;

"White women must leave the lives of Chinese men alone. For 17 years I have urged the folly of white women endeavoring to Christianise Chinese men. All about me I have seen the ruin and wrecked homes.

"I believed from the beginning that it was impossible for white women to properly influence Chinese men.

"It is the attraction of sex that predominates in both cases, not that of religion. Despite all that is in the papers the public does not see the other side—the Chinese side. The pictures that I have seen are of young, vain, frivolus white women deliberately flirting with and leading on their Chinese pupils.

"But there is one big truth that I was sure of when I first took up the work and of which years have made me positive beyond argument; the white woman can never Christianize the Chinese man. If she tries it, it will be the west that is converted to the east not the east converted to the west."

THE HONEYMOON

The honeymoon has no definite duration, but is longer and shorter, according as the temper of the high contracting parties determines, or their relatives, or the weather, or the mode, or the comparative cost of travelling and staying at home. Briefly, it is that interval during which the man, going out in the morning, remembers his kiss and forgets his overshoes, as distinguished from the inter val during which he remembers his overshoes and forgets his kiss.—Brooklyn Life.

LOUIS MENDEL RETURNS FROM HIS OLD HOME IN GERMANY

An Interesting Interview—References to the German Police, the Condition of the Workingman and the Panic in England—Peterboro' a Clean Town.

Mr. Louis Mendel, the well known photographic artist has just returned from his old home at Tilsit, Eastern Prussia. The peace of Tilsit, which left Napoleon master of Europe is remembered by all students of that era. The room in which the peace was signed is still intact and the "lament" scratched upon the window pane by the Queen of Prussia still testifies to the overwhelming character of the times. Mr. Mendel says that taxes in Germany are really lighter than in Canada and the lot of the workingman better. The eight-hour day prevails there. The universal national insurance system not only provides for the people against poverty. It provides an immense surplus for national purposes as well. Germany is prosperous and happy. What we hear of the military and police is only what might be if the system were not so perfect. As it is the reasonable liberty of the subject is protected everywhere without show and without failure: It is law, order and peace. But everywhere, preparedness. The Kaiser is not what he once was. Although highly esteemed the late "talk" angered the Germans and reduced his authority. Intoxication as it is in England is practically unknown. The British "panic' is a matter of wonderment to Germans although it is put down, Mr. Mendel says, to the need of "conscription" and a consequent desire to arouse the British public. He was in England for a short time and found the country looking prettier than any country he had seen. Peterborough however, was as clean a place as he had found anywhere.

ACCIDENTS ARE LIKELY

Serious Danger of Launches and Canoes Colliding on the River

There is likely to be some drowning fatality on the river one of these nights. On these warm evenings the river is fairly alive with launches and canoes, and there is great danger of collisions between the launches and the smaller craft.

A great deal of the difficulty is due to the fact that the steersmen in many of the launches are unfamiliar with the channel. Some will take one side of a buoy, and some will take the other, and it all results in the greatest confusion, and the paddlers are kept busy dodging. When an accident looks probable the launchmen should immediately shut off the power.

The case was enlarged until Wednesday, June 30th.

FAST DRIVING.

Another young man was fined $2.00 and costs, amounting to $5.75, by Magistrate Dumble this morning. He was accused of driving a horse and buggy in such fast time that the citizens near the corner of George and Hunter street had narrow escapes from being run over last night. There was evidence to the effect that he was intoxicated. According to his story the trouble was caused by the horse becoming frightened at the street cars. The vehicle in which he was driving was an old one, and made considerable noise, which was not conducive to quieting the animal. The fine was paid.

STOLE ONIONS

Two small boys took a liking to a citizen's onion patch and proceeded to take a considerable quantity without asking permission. They were seen in Stewart street with some of the onions inside their coats, and when asked their names did not give the correct ones.

To Magistrate Dumble this morning both said that they would not break into any more gardens, and on this promise were allowed to go, after being warned as to what they might expect if they ever appeared in court again on the same charge.

The proprietor of the Hotel Normandy, Clinton, was fined $24.50 for selling liquor to a minor.

UNEXPECTED BENEFITS

More Voluntary Concessions to Thousands of Policy-Holders by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

A remarkable spirit of liberality toward its policy-holders is again the striking feature of the periodical statement or report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, a summary of which is published this week.

The attitude of this great financial organization toward the millions of individuals who have relations with it invites comment, and affords some grounds for interesting comparisons.

Broadly speaking, the inducements offered by responsible life insurance companies to insurable persons are of two kinds. One consists in a proposition to carry a definite amount of "straight" insurance at low cost; the other offers innumerable plans by which in return for excessive premium payments the person insured is to "participate" in the earnings of the company, receiving benefits that are not definitely stated in the policy itself. The Metropolitan Life sells "straight" insurance only; that is, it promises to pay at death, or at the expiration of your policy, a fixed sum plainly written in the contract.

But at this point the Metropolitan Life chooses to temper hard-and-fast business methods by injecting a little "soul" into its after relations with the man who holds its policy. Ordinarily the resulting gains would be considered a legitimate reward of enterprise under capable management, in which the policy-holders have no interest; but this particular insurance company chooses to share its prosperity with them by paying bonuses and increasing benefits.

The company in ten years has reduced the rate of expense to premium income on its business in all departments 15 per cent. In the Industrial Department alone the reduction accomplished in the past five years amounts to 6 per cent.—this last item representing a total of three and a half million dollars.

These great gains are being used to increase the benefits 10 per cent on all policies in force since January 1st, 1907.

As to policies dated previous to January 1, 1907, a bonus of 8 per cent. of the premiums is given for a year on all policies over five years old, and increased benefits are allowed on policies of long standing which become death claims.

To sum up these benefits—not promised to policy-holders nor expected by them—it is shown that during the past sixteen years the concessions and bonuses in the Industrial Department alone are equivalent to a gift outright of eighteen millions of dollars.

TWO FAST GAMES FOR THE FANS TO-MORROW

Two fast games for the fans tomorrow. Two games which mean considerable to the senior league teams will be played at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon. The T.A.S. and Park street A.C. will come together in the first contest at two o'clock and will finish up the first round of the league. The south-enders are going right after the game and have strengthened their line up accordingly. There will be two new faces on the team as Jack Pilling will look after the first cushion and Bill Wareham will work at second.

The Baptists will have their new uniforms and are confident of taking the measure of Ab Quinlan's bunch. The abstainers will have their regular lineup and are not worrying much as to the outcome. The players have been practicing hard this week at Boswell's field and with their exhibition game with the West Ends the other night ought to be in good shape. The contest should be a struggle from start to finish and will be well worth witnessing. The managers will pick their teams from the following players:

The Strathconas and West Ends will play the first game in the second round at 3.30. As the Straths have lost three games already, it is up to them to win to-morrow. It is reported that the Gypsey Queen told the manager's fortune one night this week and in answer to the question, who would win the game to-morrow? she stated positively that the West Ends would lose by a small margin. Anyway the Straths have strengthened up this week and will be represented by a strong team. Jack Oldham's nine will not be changed at all and the same team that took the heart out of the P.A.C. last Saturday will endeavor to perform the same feat against the tailenders to-morrow. There should be a big crowd of fans on hand as the article of ball being played in this league is worthy of support.

The teams will be:

West Ends—Kirn and Carton, battery; infielders, King, Halpin, Minorgan and Dobson; outfielders, Craig, Rose, Fallon, Gibson.

Strathconas — Graham, Ferguson, Hickey, Mahoney and Wilson, battery; Heaslip, Weatherstone, McMillan, Kendrey and Craig, infielders; Shaw, Guerin, Welthaufer and Curtis, outfielders.

DEAF AND DUMB PUGILIST SPOKE AFTER BLOW ON JAW

A good stiff jolt on the ear as a cure for deafness and dumbness is pugilism's contribution to surgery. The discoverer of this method of restoration of speech is Winfield Decker, of Baltimore, hitherto known by the now discarded name of "Dummy" Decker, a local pugilist, whose aspirations to become the lightweight champion of the south now seem on the eve of accomplishment.

"Dummy" Decker has been in the prize ring for nearly a year and a half. In 1894, when seven years of age, he was ill of scarlet fever. He hovered between life and death for some time, and when he did eventually pull through with his life his hearing and speech were gone. Many specialists were consulted, but all declared that nothing could be done for the little fellow, who was doomed to be deaf and dumb for the rest of his life.

"Dummy" Decker was sent to the school for the deaf and dumb at Frederick, Md. On his return to Baltimore, eight years later, he found employment in a shirt factory. Here he met Benny Riley, a local pugilist of some note, and the two became fast friends. He went to the various boxing contests with Riley and finally decided to try his luck within the squared circle. He made good and within a comparatively short time found himself one of the best boxers in the city.

The one contest which will always remain fresh in Decker's memory took place several weeks ago. His opponent was Young Mack of Chester, Pa. From the date of his childhood illness Decker had never heard or spoken a word. In the third round of the fight Mack swung a hard right to the ear. Deck stood as if dazed and hardly seemed to realise that he was boxing.

"When Mack landed that blow," he said to-day, "It felt as though something had cracked in my head, and it felt as big as a balloon. As I went to my corner there was a noise like the buzzing of a saw in my ear; I did not know what it was at first, and then realised that it was the murmuring of the voices of the spectators. One of my seconds asked me in the deaf and dumb language what was the trouble and I thought that he would throw a fit when I spoke out and answered 'My ear!'"

Won from Young Mack, 15 rounds.
Draw from Battling Kelly, 15 rounds.
Won from "Kid" Gilbert, 15 rounds.
Won from Battling Kelly, 15 rounds.
Draw from "Kid" Feager, 15 rounds.
Draw from Tommy Lowe, 15 rounds.
Draw from "Soldier" Burns, 15 rounds.

THE BRITTANIAS MAY BE GROUPED WITH PETERBORO'

Montreal, June 23—It now seems assured that the Britannia Rugby Club will be reorganized for the coming season. A meeting was held by some of the enthusiasts on Saturday evening at the M.A.A.A. and adjourned until Wednesday next.

Donald Ross, the ex-Westmount Rugby player, who figured in a Montreal uniform last season, is one of the moving spirits in the reorganization of the club, and has already obtained the promises of many prominent players in Montreal, among them being many old Montreal and Westmount players, and members of last year's Grand Trunk team.

Ernie Russell, the well-known hockey player, is one of those who has promised to play, and he will likely figure on the half-back line with Jimmie Ross or A. Brophy, of Westmount, and Harry Willis, of last year's Montreal fourteen.

The club may make application to the O.R.F.U. to place a team in the Peterborough, Kingston, T.A.C. group, though this will not be decided on till much later, when the affairs of the organization are got well under way.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

ERRORS

An error shall be given in the sixth column for each misplay, which prolongs the time a that of the batsman or allows a base runner to make one or more bases when perfect play would have insured his being put out. But a base on balls, a base awarded to a batsman by being struck by a pitched ball, an illegal pitch, a balk, a passed ball or a wild pitch unless such passed balls or wild pitch be on the third strike and allow the batter to reach first base shall not be included in the sixth column. In case of a wild pitch or passed ball, allowing the batter to reach first base, the pitcher or the catcher as the case may be, shall be charged with an error.

The following players will represent the YMCA. in the Intermediate game with the Park Nines at the Oval tomorrow afternoon.

Both senior city league games should be well patronized tomorrow. The contests are sure to be fast and interesting.

Two games will be played in the intermediate league tomorrow afternoon at the Oval. The YMCA. team play the Park Nines at 2 o'clock and the Rovers and T.A.S. are billed to play the second game.

With Doc Newton, the Leafs' new left handed flinger in the box, Toronto beat Montreal 6-0 yesterday. The Royals only got one hit, it being a single in the ninth.

The Senior City League games will be played at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon as usual. The managers of the teams are not satisfied with the manner in which the gate receipts are divided, claiming that the park people are asking too much. The matter has not been decided as yet, but the fans are assured that both contests will be played there tomorrow afternoon.

LAWN BOWLING

Probably two of the best games yet played this season in the local greens were played last evening in the Frost trophy series, and particularly the game between Skips McIlroy and Pratt, the game not being won or lost till the last bowl was played.

Following are the scores for games played last evening.

Skip R. M. Waddell (Sub) 17; Skip D. H. Kerneghan 14.

The tennis courts are getting in good shape and a big bunch of the members were out yesterday for a game. There was something doing all day.

THE CHAMPION AND KAUFFMAN

The Black's Next Battle Will be With the Giant Heavyweight

New York, June 24—Jack Johnston and Al Kaufmann will fight a forty-five round contest next September if the promoter who can handle the affair overbids the man with the 20-round limit. Johnston decided upon that yesterday afternoon and when he met Charley Harvey last night almost knocked the "human megaphone" off the chair with the news. "Yes," said the champion leaning back and fanning himself "I'll give Mr. Kaufmann and Billy Delaney exactly what they asked for. I thought for a while that the twenty round go would draw but after talking it over with prominent New York sports I see that we can draw double the amount with a longer bout and make the affair twice as interesting from a betting viewpoint. There are a lot of people who don't give him a chance with me in a 20-round bout, but they think that in 45 he might tire me out and wear me down so that I would be easy for the knock-out. They think that way and of course, I think the other, but we can draw double for 45 rounds and they can make it 90 if they want to.

"I will be in Chicago on Monday and will forward my $2500 forfeit to the New York Journal office. Mr. Harvey, who represents Kaufmann, here in the east has posted his and Mr. Little, my manager, will have mine in New York in time or we will sue the telegraph companies. I have concluded all my bouts around here for the summer on account of the heat. If the best actors can not act in the summer I can't fight. I know that I could not show the sports my best work and I don't want a repetition of the O'Brien affair in Philadelphia as I was not in shape that night and I got myself in a bad bit. The next time I enter the ring to fight you can bet that I will be in shape and I won't let my opponent go the route if there is a chance."

RUNNING

"No matter what comes or goes, this race with Tom Longboat at Hanlan's Point Saturday night is my last 20-mile race until after my Western campaign, which will last until fall," remarked Alfred Shrubb last night. "Svanberg and all the rest who want to run me at 20 miles will have to wait. I am running Longboat 20 miles Saturday, because it is part of my contract with him. I'll beat him, too, and in good time, but I don't like anything further than 15 miles. My sore leg is strong again and my friends need not feel afraid of my not lasting the distance."

The Woman In the Alcove

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,
Author of "The Millionaire Baby," "The Filigree Ball," "The House in the Mist," "The Amethyst Box," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY.

The next enlightened me. With a total ignorance of my presence, due probably to his great excitement, Mr. Grey turned on his companion the moment he had closed the door and, seizing him by the collar, cried:

"Fairbrother, you villain, why have you called on your wife like this? Are you murderer as well as thief?"

Fairbrother! This man? Then who was he who was being nursed back to life on the mountains beyond Santa Fe? Sears? Anything seemed possible in that moment.

Meanwhile, dropping his hand from the other's throat as suddenly as he had seized it, Mr. Grey caught up the stiletto from the table where he had flung it, crying, "Do you recognize this?"

Ah, then I saw guilt!

In a silence worse than any cry this so called husband of the murdered woman, the man on whom no suspicion had fallen, the man whom all had thought a thousand miles away at the time of the deed, stared at the weapon thrust under his eyes, while over his face passed all those expressions of fear, abhorrence and detected guilt which, fool that I was, I had expected to see reflected in response to the same test in Mr. Grey's equable countenance.

The surprise and wonder of it held me chained to the spot. I was in a state of stupefaction, so that I scarcely noted the broken fragments at my feet. But the intruder noticed them. Wrenching his gaze from the stiletto which Mr. Grey continued to hold out, he pointed to the broken cup and saucer, muttering:

"That is what startled me into this betrayal—the noise of breaking china. I cannot bear it since"—

He stopped, bit his lip and looked around him with an air of sudden bravado.

"Since you dropped the cups at your wife's feet in Mr. Ramsdell's alcove," finished Mr. Grey with admirable self possession.

"I see that explanations from myself are not in order," was the grim retort, launched with the bitterest sarcasm. Then as the full weight of his position crushed in on him his face assumed an aspect startling to my unaccustomed eyes, and thrusting his hand into his pocket he drew forth a small box which he placed in Mr. Grey's hands.

"The Great Mogul," he declared simply.

It was the first time I had heard this diamond so named.

Without a word that gentleman opened the box, took one look at the contents, assumed a satisfied air and carefully deposited the recovered gem in his own pocket. As his eyes returned to the man before him all the passion of the latter burst forth.

"It was not for that I killed her!" cried he. "It was because she defied me and flaunted her disobedience in my very face. I would do it again, yet"—

Here his voice broke and it was in a different tone and with a total change of manner he added: "You stand appalled at my depravity. You have not lived my life." Then quickly and with a touch of sullenness: "You suspected me because of the stiletto. It was a mistake, using that stiletto. Otherwise the plan was good. I doubt if you know how I found my way into the alcove, possibly under your very eyes; certainly under the eyes of many who knew me."

"I do not. It is enough that you entered it; that you confess your guilt."

Here Mr. Grey stretched his hand toward the electric button.

"No, it is not enough." The tone was fierce, authoritative. "Do not ring the bell—not yet. I have a fancy to tell you how I managed that little affair."

Glancing about he caught up from a nearby table a small brass tray. Emptying it of its contents, he turned on us with drawn down features and an obsequious air so opposed to his natural manner that it was as if another man stood before us.

Wellgood!

The room turned with me. It was he, then, the great financier, the multimillionaire, the husband of the magnificent Grizel, who had entered Mr. Ramsdell's house as a waiter!

Mr. Grey did not show surprise, but he made a gesture, when instantly the tray was thrown aside, and the man resumed his ordinary aspect.

"I see you understand me," he cried. "I, who have played host at many a ball, passed myself off that night as one of the waiters. I came and went, and no one noticed me. It is such a natural sight to see a waiter passing that my going in and out of the alcove did not attract the least attention. I never look at waiters when I attend balls. I never look higher than their trays. No one looked at me higher than my tray. I held the stiletto under the tray, and when I struck her she threw up her hands, and they hit the tray, and the cups fell. I have never been able to bear the sound of breaking china since. I loved her"—

A gasp, and he recovered himself.

"That is neither here nor there," he muttered. "You summoned me under threat to present myself at your door today. I have done so. I meant to restore you your diamond simply. It has become worthless to me. But fate exacted more. Surprise forced my secret from me. That young lady with her damnable awkwardness has put my head in a noose, but do not think to hold it there. I did not risk this interview without precautions, I assure you, and when I leave this hotel it will be as a free man."

With one of his rapid changes, wonderful and inexplicable to me at the moment, he turned toward me, with a bow, saying courteously enough:

"We will excuse the young lady."

The moment was critical. Mr. Grey stood directly in the line of fire, and the audacious man who thus held him at his mercy was scarcely a foot from the door leading into the hall. Marking the desperation of his look and the steadiness of his finger on the trigger, I expected to see Mr. Grey recoil and the man escape. But Mr. Grey held his own, though he made no move and did not venture to speak. Nerved by his courage, I summoned up all my own. This man must not escape nor must Mr. Grey suffer. The pistol directed against him must be diverted to myself. Such amends were due one whose good name I had so deeply if secretly insulted. I had but to scream, to call out for the inspector, but a remembrance of the necessity we were now under of preserving our secret, of keeping from Mr. Grey the fact that he had been under surveillance, was even at that moment surrounded by the police, deterred me, and I threw myself toward the bell instead, crying out that I would raise the house if he moved, and laid my finger on the button.

The pistol swerved my way. The face above it smiled. I watched that smile. Before it broadened to its full extent, I pressed the button.

Fairbrother stared, dropped his pistol and burst forth with these two words:

"Brave girl!"

The tone I can never convey.

Then he made for the door.

As he laid his hand on the knob, he called back:

"I have been in worse straits than this!"

But he never had. When he opened the door, he found himself face to face with the inspector.

CHAPTER XXIII.

LATER, it was all explained. Mr. Grey, looking like another man, came into the room where I was endeavoring to soothe his startled daughter and devour in secret my own joy. Taking the sweet girl in his arms he said, with a calm ignoring of my presence, at which I secretly smiled:

"This is the happiest moment of my existence, Helen. I feel as if I had recovered you from the brink of the grave."

"Me? Why, I have never been so ill as that."

"I know, but I have felt as if you were doomed ever since I heard or thought I heard in this city, and under no ordinary circumstances, the peculiar cry which haunts our house on the eve of any great misfortune. I shall not apologize for my fears. You know that I have good cause for them, but today, only today, I have heard from the lips of the most arrant knave I have ever known that this cry sprang from himself with intent to deceive me. He knew my weakness, knew the cry. He was in Darlington Manor when Cecilia died and, wishing to startle me into dropping something which I held, made use of his ventriloquial powers (he had been a mountebank once, poor wretch!) and with such effect that I have not been a happy man since in spite of your daily improvement and continued promise of recovery. But I am happy now, relieved and joyful, and this miserable being—would you like to hear his story? Are you strong enough for anything so tragic? He is a thief and a murderer, but he has feelings, and his life has been a curious one and strangely interwoven with ours. Do you care to hear about it? He is the man who stole our diamond."

My patient uttered a little cry.

"Oh, tell me," she entreated, excited, but not unhealthfully, while I was in an anguish of curiosity I could with difficulty conceal.

Mr. Grey turned with courtesy to me and asked if a few family details would bore me. I smiled and assured him to the contrary, at which he settled himself in the chair he liked best and began a tale which I well permit myself to present to you complete and from other points of view than his own.

Some five years before one of the great diamonds of the world was offered for sale in an eastern market. Mr. Grey, who stopped at no expense in the gratification of his taste in this direction, immediately sent his agent to Egypt to examine the stone. If the agent discovered it to be all that was claimed for it and within the reach of a wealthy commoner's purse, he was to buy it. Upon inspection it was found to be all that was claimed, with one exception. In the center of one of the facets was a flaw, but as this was considered to mark the diamond and rather add to than detract from its value as a traditional stone with many historical associations it was finally purchased by Mr. Grey and placed among his treasures in his manor house in Kent. Never a suspicious man, he took delight in exhibiting this acquisition to such of his friends and acquaintances as were likely to feel any interest in it, and it was not an uncommon thing for him to allow it to pass from hand to hand while he pottered over his other treasures and displayed this and that to such as had no eyes for the diamond.

It was after one such occasion that he found on taking the stone in his hand to replace it in the safe he had had built for it in one of his cabinets that it did not strike his eye with its usual force and brilliancy, and on examining it closely he discovered the absence of the telltale flaw. Struck with dismay, he submitted it to a still more rigid inspection, when he found that what he held was not even a diamond, but a worthless bit of glass, which had been substituted by some cunning knave for his invaluable gem.

For the moment his humiliation almost equaled his sense of loss. He had been so often warned of the danger he ran in letting so priceless an object pass around under all eyes but his own. His wife and friends had prophesied some such loss as this not once, but many times, and he had always laughed at their fears, saying that he knew his friends and there was not a scamp among them. But now he saw it proved that even the intuition of a man well versed in human nature is not always infallible, and, ashamed of his past laxness and more ashamed yet of the doubts which this experience called up in regard to all his friends, he shut up the false stone with his usual care and buried his loss in his own bosom till he could sift his impressions and recall with some degree of probability the circumstances under which this exchange could have been made.

It had not been made that evening. Of this he was positive. The only persons present on this occasion were friends of such standing and repute that suspicion in their regard was simply monstrous. When and to whom, then, had he shown the diamond last? Alas, it had been a long month since he had shown the jewel. Cecilia, his youngest daughter, had died in the interim; therefore his mind had not been on jewels. A month!—time for his precious diamond to have been carried back to the east! Time for it to have been recut! Surely it was lost to him forever, unless he could immediately locate the person who had robbed him of it.

But this promised difficulties. He could not remember just what persons he had entertained on that especial day in his little hall of cabinets, and, when he did succeed in getting a list of them from his butler, he was by no means sure that it included the full number of his guests. His own memory was execrable, and, in short, he had but few facts to offer to the discreet agent sent up from Scotland Yard one morning to hear his complaint and act secretly in his interests. He could give him carte blanche to carry on his inquiries in the diamond market, but little else. And while this seemed to satisfy the agent, it did not lead to any gratifying result to himself, and he had thoroughly made up his mind to swallow his loss and say nothing about it, when one day a young cousin of his living in great style in an adjoining county informed him that in some mysterious way he had lost from his collection of arms a unique and highly prized stiletto of Italian workmanship.

Startled by this coincidence, Mr. Grey ventured upon a question or two which led to his cousin's confiding to him the fact that this article had disappeared after a large supper given by him to a number of friends and gentlemen from London. This piece of knowledge, still further coinciding with his own experience, caused Mr. Grey to ask for a list of his guests in the hope of finding among them one who had been in his own house.

His cousin, quite unconscious of the motives underlying this request, hastened to write out this list, and together they pored over the names, crossing out such as were absolutely above suspicion. When they had reached the end of the list, but two names remained uncrossed. One was that of a rattle pated youth who had come in the wake of a highly reputed connection of theirs and the other that of an American tourist who gave all the evidences of great wealth and had presented letters to leading men in London which had insured him attentions not usually accorded to foreigners. This man's name was Fairbrother, and the moment Mr. Grey heard it he recalled the fact that an American with a peculiar name, but with a reputation for wealth, had been among his guests on the suspected evening.

Two sportsmen near Mitchell's Bay killed a spotted snake over seven feet long, which was devouring their lunch.

Reports from the Census Bureau show an increase in the population of the prairie provinces from 800,000 in 1906, to 1,190,000 in 1909.

EXPECT TO DO QUICK WORK IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE WATERWORKS DAM

Mr. A. G. Morrison, of the Bishop Construction Company, of Montreal, is here in connection with the work of constructing the new waterworks dam. Mr. Morrison called at the Review to-day and said the prospects for an early completion of the dam are excellent.

At present the coffer dam is being put in and about 20 men are engaged in the work. Seventy-five will be at work in the course of two weeks and the dam will be in shape for the installation of the machinery by Christmas.

Mr. Morrison stated that in about a month 150 men would be employed.

MORE PRAYER NEED OF THE CHURCH, SAYS DR. GOFORTH

The attendance at the special services being held in St. Paul's church by Rev. J. Goforth, of China, was decidedly better last night than it has been so far. The message was a most heart-searching one. It would be difficult to give any adequate idea of the address unless it were reported word for word. And even then there would be lacking the personality of the speaker, the intense earnestness of manner and the accent of the voice that often gives added meaning to a word. He spoke last night on prayer and illustrated his remarks by a number of incidents taken from his experience in the great revival in China. He mentioned nine things which we must leave and practice in the school of prayer, reverence, confession, restitution, forgiveness, thanksgiving, unity, faith, submission, petition. Under each of these words he spoke truths of deep spiritual significance. Particularly applicable, even to Peterborough, and church conditions here, were his words on the need of a forgiving spirit if we would pray the prayer of faith, indeed if we would be heard of God at all. God will not hear us if we hate one another, if we do not forgive those who may have injured us, and if we are not reconciled to our brother. How can God bless a church where there are envyings and strife among its members, and where there are jealousies and hatred. A true mark of belonging to Christ at all is that we shall exercise the forgiving spirit of Christ. The petition of the Lord's Prayer which deals with forgiveness, makes it quite clear that God cannot and will not forgive us unless we forgive others. This is what hinders prayer—an unforgiving spirit, and if we would see God's power in our midst, hasten to be reconciled to our enemy, and be ready to forgive the greatest injustices that may be done us.

It is the same with restitution. The law of Christ demands not only that the man who stole steals no more, but that he restores that which he unjustly took. Numerous instances were given where men, in the recent revival in China, were convicted of sin, and immediately sought those whom they had defrauded and not only restored all, but restored with interest. The confession of such sin and the restitution which followed was always followed by an outpouring of God's Spirit, and many conversions. So will it be here. Let God's people be just; let them confess their sin and get right with God, and the unsaved world will soon see that there is something in Christianity.

WHO KNOWS ABOUT AN ELGIN WOODYAT?

Review Has Inquiry Concerning Him from Cincinnati Post—Killed in That City and Had Letter From Peterborough on Him at Time.

The Review is in receipt of a special despatch from the Cincinnati Post, in which information is sought concerning Elgin Woodyat, who was killed in Cincinnati yesterday in a collision between a street car and a delivery wagon, which Woodyat was driving. A letter was found on him dated Peterborough, but the name of the writer was stained and indistinguishable. Enquiries directed to Peterborough, N.H., failed to elicit any information concerning the dead man, who had only been in Cincinnati three days before he was killed, and the day of the fatality was his first one in the employment of the firm for which he was working.

The boarding house mistress did not know where Woodyat came from before he reached Cincinnati.

Inquiries were made at several sources to-day, but no information about Woodyat could be learned.

Anyone knowing that would help to identify the victim of the accident is requested to communicate with the Review.

ONE MONTH IN GAOL AT HARD LABOR FOR ALBERT CRAIG

Jury Returned a Verdict of Common Assault, With a Recommendation to Mercy—Chapman Acquitted.

Albert Craig was sentenced to serve one month in gaol at hard labor by His Honor Judge O'Connell yesterday after the jury had returned a verdict of common assault against the accused. To the verdict was attached a strong recommendation to mercy.

A verdict of not guilty was returned in regards to Harry Chapman, and he was acquitted.

The case of the two men who were charged with an assault on Deputy Fire Chief Grange at the fire station occupied the entire day. The evidence which was similar to that at the trial in the police court was all in shortly after noon and was followed by the addresses to the jury by Mr. F. D. Kerr, the accuseds' counsel, County Crown Attorney Wood, and His Honor Judge O'Connell, which took up the greater part of the afternoon.

ANTAGONISTIC PERSONS RAISE LATE HOUR ROW

There was quite a lively time on Aylmer street last night just around the corner from Hunter. Two women and a man took part in a loud argument and the language used was hardly orthodox.

It appears that the older woman had made some uncomplimentary reference to the younger one and the latter's husband was championing her cause in a most aggressive manner. Quite a number of people heard the row and were curious spectators from a convenient distance. So loud grew the disturbance that it was thought an officer of the law would be a timely arbitrator. The disturbance ceased however after about half an hour's wrangling much to the relief of the neighborhood.

THE MUNICIPALITIES WILL INTERVIEW GOVERNMENT

The municipalities from which the Cameron Septic Tank Co. of Chicago, is claiming royalties, met in Toronto yesterday. City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall and Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, were present in the interests of this city.

The principal business of the municipalities represented was the election of officers. Mayor Sears, of London, was chosen chairman, and W. D. Chapman, C.E., was appointed secretary.

The meeting adjourned till a date to be announced later, when the Government will be interviewed concerning the matter.

A.Y.P.A. OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH HELD ENJOYABLE LAWN SOCIAL

The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's church held a very successful lawn social last evening on the beautiful grounds of the church. The attendance was large and all spent an enjoyable evening. The grounds were well lighted and the music by the Grand Opera House orchestra under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, was very much appreciated as was also the selections by the members of the church choir. The refreshment booth at which was supplied delicacies suitable for the occasion, was well patronized.

The flower and Japanese tea stands were also popular with those present and as a result of the social the young people have a considerable amount of money which will help to furnish the upper room of the new vestry to be used by the lady members of the choir.

TWO MORE GYPSIES ON BAIL; WIVES WANT THEIR HUSBANDS ALLOWED OUT AS WELL

A youth who is not in the best of health and also a brother of the gypsy chief have been allowed on bail. This has given some of the other applicants who don't like Castle Nesbitt during hot weather some encouragement and they are clamoring loudly for their freedom under bond.

Some of the women have been up to the gaol and want their better halves liberated. The fact that two more men were allowed their liberty on bail has given them an excuse to do so. As far as can be learned however it is not likely that any of the others confined will be allowed to leave the gaol before definite steps concerning what will be done have been decided upon.

GARDEN PARTY WAS SUCCESS

The garden party held last night under the auspices of the Springville Presbyterian church was a great success. The receipts were gratifying and a pleasant time was spent.

Speeches were made by Mr. Gomm, of Pontypool, and Messrs. J. S. Ferguson, J. R. Stratton and E. L. Goodwill of Peterborough. Splendid music was supplied by the 57th Regimental Band.

Pretty Improvements Made by Pupils of St. Peter's School

The windows and lawns of St. Peter's school have in the past months been very prettily decorated by the pupils of the school. On each of the windows large green window boxes, in which blooming geraniums, heliotrope, foliage plants, and mignonette have been systematically arranged, and have been placed, and six flower beds have been laid out and planted. The work was done under the supervision of the caretaker and teachers and the effect is noticeably pretty.

FARMERS HELD ANNUAL OUTING

Large Number Went Down to Jubilee Point Yesterday—The Most Successful Excursion Yet Held

The annual farmers' excursion down the river was held yesterday, and a big crowd was on board the steamer Otonabee, which left the Wolfe street wharf early in the morning. On board the steamer was an orchestra, which furnished music for dancing, both going and coming home. The trip was greatly enjoyed and Jubilee Point was reached with all in good spirits. At this favorite resort the day was spent most pleasantly. There was dancing in the pavilion and several fine speeches were made by Mr. W. L. Smith, editor of the Farmers' Sun, Mr. Locke Wilson, provincial superintendent of agricultural fairs, Warden R. N. Scott and others. The addresses were all listened to with interest. In the evening the crowd re-embarked and started for home feeling that this had been the most successful excursion the farmers have yet held.

WIRELESS IS FAVORED BY IMPERIAL PRESS COMMITTEE

Report of Committee That Government Link up With Overseas Dominions by Marconi System is Adopted, and Deputation Will Wait on Premier.

London, June 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Imperial Press Conference met yesterday to consider the report of the committee on cable rates, Hon. H. L. W. Lawson presiding.

The chairman submitted the committee's recommendations, which urged the Governments of the Empire to increase the means and reduce the cost of imperial electric communications, and asking Premier Asquith to receive a deputation; it also emphasized the necessity of linking up the different parts of the Empire with wireless services.

One positive result, said Mr. Lawson, had been reached. Mr. Baxendale, on behalf of the Pacific Cable Board, had stated that the board would unconditionally reduce their rates on press messages by half. The New Zealand Government would do the same regarding terminal charges. It is believed the Australian Government will do the same.

It was resolved that the committee, with the addition of Lord Northcliffe, Mr. Dafoe of Winnipeg, Mr. Spencer of The Westminster Gazette, Mr. Donald of The Chronicle, and others, should wait upon Mr. Asquith.

Moberley Bell pointed out that the concession by the Pacific board reduced the press rate from one shilling to 9 1-2d. Mr. Bell added that the Canadian authorities would also be asked by the board to reduce their charges.

P. D. Ross, Ottawa, reintroduced his resolution favoring state-owned electric connection between Canada and Britain, and remarked that in view of wireless telegraphy, he would be making a great mistake if he used the words "state-owned cable."

Signor Marconi had informed the committee that morning that by August next he would be able to give a service of 15,000 words daily at half the cable rates. It was state-owned communication, however, which would ensure a reduction in rates. The rates were kept high by combines. The representative of the Anglo-American Co. had informed Moberley Bell that his company was willing to reduce the present rates by half, but could not because of arrangements with other companies.

Signor Marconi thought it would be injudicious for Governments to enter into a scheme of state-owned cables without first investigating the merits of wireless communication. The cost of equipping two stations for communication over a distance already tested of 3,000 miles, would be $500,000. The speed transmission at present is 25 words a minute, but by duplexing he hoped to make it fifty (applause) if service increased. His company would be prepared to reduce the cost of press messages to twopence a word.

Messrs. Kiffin, Thomas and Cunningham opposed the resolution, but it later carried unanimously.

J. S. Brierly said the reduction announced by the Pacific board was the strongest argument in favor of the Ross resolution. They could not look for reduction across the Atlantic under present circumstances. How long would it be tolerable for Canadians to pay fivepence across the Atlantic, while Australians were paying twopence across the Pacific.

Maitland Park proposed a resolution in favor of state-owned electric communication with South Africa, and said the Union Government would certainly give a subsidy for this purpose.

Sir Hugh Graham moved a resolution concerning emigration, and said there was not a question of greater importance than the maintenance of British sentiment in Canada. The majority of the population of Canada was now overwhelmingly British, but foreign immigration was seriously threatening that majority. A serious effort would be made in Canada to commemorate the conference by organizing an association of leading journalists and public-spirited citizens to strengthen and stimulate existing organizations in order that desirable emigrants may receive the utmost encouragement. He moved a resolution to the effect that the press should co-operate in the wise direction of emigration.

The chairman and J. A. Macdonald (Toronto) gave the proposition the heartiest sympathy and Mr. Nicholls (Winnipeg) declared that foreign immigrants in Western Canada, as citizens was absolutely all right.

Fully Justifies Its Existence.

London, June 26.—The Daily Graphic says that the press conference has achieved something substantial by persuading the Pacific Cable Board to reduce rates. If this example is followed by the other cable companies the conference will have fully justified its all too ephemeral existence.

Wasn't King's Weather.

London, June 26.—The official celebration of the birthday of King Edward, that took place yesterday, was robbed of most of its spectacular features by the inclement weather. # TO REPRESS THE TRAFFIC

Women's Congress Discusses White Slavery Behind Closed Doors

Toronto, June 26.—Lady Aberdeen presided at the meeting of the International Council of Women in Convocation Hall last night. It was devoted to the question of "White Slave Traffic" and the reporters were excluded from the hall.

A paper by Lady Bunting of London, dealing with the progress of the movement for the suppression of the traffic in women in all countries was read.

A resolution was moved by Miss Pappenheim, second by Miss Sadie American, and passed unanimously, urging all national councils of women to study repressive measures now in force and to work for such reform, as will bring about its entire suppression.

The key note of the discussion was the recommendation that the International Council urge the necessity of steamship companies being compelled to land their immigrants like human beings and not like cattle.

It was moved by Mrs. Dobson, "That every possible means be taken to prevent men, women and children from appearing on the stage in improper attire."

Suggestions were made to boycott the performances where immodesty obtains, but Germany said many in high society would be boycotted if in efficient attire were considered a provocation.

The nine sections of congress met twice yesterday, many subjects on varied topics being treated by the most prominent of the delegates.

THE DUTY ON WOOD PULP

Washington, June 26.—The retaliatory provisions of the wood pulp and print paper paragraphs of the tariff bill being referred to by Senator Clapp yesterday, Mr. Aldrich indicated that the finance committee still had that matter under consideration and hoped to report a substitute that would prove satisfactory to all interests concerned.

This statement was in response to the claims of the Minnesota Senator, that by the proposed retaliation against Canada, in case that country provide an export tax, the United States would punish its own people by adding a still greater duty.

CUTTING DOWN THE I.C.R. STAFFS

Ottawa, June 26.—M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways, in discussing the reductions on the I.C.R. staffs, explained that the reductions are due entirely to the policy of concentration in the doing of repairs and general shop work decided upon by the I.C.R. and which is made possible by the construction of larger shops at Moncton.

About three hundred men will be dispensed with. By substituting payments by checks instead of the pay car, $20,000 a year will be saved.

Italians for Canada.

Rome, June 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The board of emigration discussed the request of a British company for authorization to transport Italian emigrants to Canada. The board expressed the opinion that the proposal would be advantageous to Italian emigration, but left it to the emigration commissions to consider whether all the necessary conditions existed for the organization of such service. The board rejected the proposal for establishing an Italian colony in Florida.

Will Go to The Hague.

Ottawa, June 26.—The Canadian Government will advise the British Government that the question of jurisdiction over Hecate Straits, off the coast of British Columbia, be referred to The Hague tribunal.

BLEW UP THE HOUSE

Ottawa, June 26.—In the County Police Court yesterday afternoon Geo. Deltour and Victor Lacasse were committed for trial on the charge of dynamiting, with intent to murder, the dwelling of Moise Laporte, on the Montreal road, just outside the city limits, two weeks ago, in which at the time eleven people were asleep. The house was practically destroyed by an explosion of dynamite, but the inmates all escaped. At the trial yesterday Victor Deltour turned King's evidence. He declared that Victor Lacasse, who lives near the scene of the outrage, had admitted to him that he had wrecked the house, and had warned him to say nothing about it.

"PRAY! AND AGAIN I SAY UNTO YOU PRAY": REV. J. GOFORTH

These words were the key note of the two powerful addresses which were given by Rev J. Goforth yesterday in St. Paul's church. He pointed out in the evening service that this is the condition of all success in work for God, and this the secret of all revival. Prayer is more important than preaching. It is only as ministers pray and are supported by the prayers of their people that they preach with power. "If your minister does not preach with power blame yourselves," he said. "If you pray your preacher will preach better. But you cannot pray if you are not right with God. If there be any known sin in life it must be got rid of, cost what it may. You must pray in the name of Jesus, and according to the word of God, and you must realize in your hearts the preciousness of the blessings you seek. You must take time to pray—make time. First things must be put first. The men that moved the world spent much time in prayer. Luther said the more he had to do the longer time he spent in prayer. Queen Mary feared John Knox's prayers more than a regiment of dragoons. It was said St. James spent so much time in prayer that his knees became calloused. If a specialist were to examine your knees would he find evidence of much time spent in prayer? You must pray, unto an agony. It was thus the Son of God prayed. When Zion travailed she brought forth children. To save immortal souls it must cost something. Judging by the attendance at these meetings the Christians of Peterborough are not willing to pay the price. You have been unwilling to endure the slight inconvenience of a little heat. This weather is cool compared with the heat under which your missionaries labor in China. Don't blame God if your friends go to hell. Blame yourselves. God has given you the work of saving them. He does not desire their destruction. He longs to save. But He only saves through the blood of others. Are you willing to give your life's blood? Some of you are unwilling to give a drop of sweat, much less a drop of blood. It was said of Christ, 'He saved others, Himself He cannot save.' Nor can you. You cannot save yourselves and save others. Are you willing to pay the price in service, in prayer, in blood-red, agonizing effort to save? If so, the revival is already at your door."

SOCIETY WOMAN WAS MURDERED

Murderer of Baltimore Beauty is Killed by Police

Baltimore, Md., June 26.—The body of a woman, weighted with an iron kettle filled with bricks, that drifted ashore on Broad Creek, Talbot County, Wednesday, it developed was that of Mrs. Gilbert Woodill, a beautiful and accomplished young woman, of well-established social position in Maryland and California, and a ward of Lyman J. Gage, formerly secretary of the treasury.

A man who gave the name of Emmit E. Roberts, a newspaper man and special writer, was shot and killed early yesterday in resisting arrest. He was charged with the murder.

It is now believed he was "Lame Bob" Eastman, a Wall street broker, who failed last year with $200,000 liabilities.

Mrs. Woodill was about twenty years old and was noted among a large circle of acquaintances on the eastern shore for her charming manner and brilliant accomplishments. According to stories she had told friends, she had never been told who her father was. She was adopted at the age of three. At fifteen she was sent to Paris to study music by Mr. Gage. At sixteen she was secretly married to a Boston osteopath, whom she soon divorced, and thirty days later married Gilbert Woodill of Los Angeles, Cal.

Roberts or Eastman, was shot to death on the river, his motor boat having been pursued by a sheriff's posse. He opened fire when called on to surrender, and fell under the police fusilade. A bottle of poison and several letters were found in his pockets. One letter, addressed to Minnie Brandome, a New York actress, intimated that he would suicide and asked her to take charge of the body. It added that he had been out in a boat with four men and two women, that all had been drunk except himself and one girl and that one of the women struck another over the head with a wine bottle and killed her.

GEORGE STREET LAWN SOCIAL

An enjoyable evening is promised at the lawn social on Tuesday evening at the George street Methodist church under the auspices of the choir. An orchestra will provide music.

WAS DROWNED WHILE FLEEING

Whisky Trader at Superior Junction Loses Life—Partner is Fined.

Port Arthur, June 26.—Death by drowning overtook Mat. Neilson, a whisky trader, who has been operating in the N. T. camps near Superior Junction. He had been associated in the illicit trade with a former railroader named J. Spence. It was Spence who purchased the liquor with which they started business. He secured a five-gallon keg, and two cases of whisky at Kenora, and brought them all the way to Superior Junction by canoe, surmounting great difficulties in doing so. At the Junction Neilson joined him, and they opened up a blind pig on the outskirts of the town. Business was brisk indeed, for a time, and they readily disposed of half of their supply, before a Dominion constable interrupted their operations by a visit to the district. They heard of his coming, and decided to leave for a new field. The remainder of the whisky was placed in the canoe and they started down the river, but shortly afterwards the canoe capsized, and Neilson went down to rise no more in 135 feet of water. Spence saved himself by clinging to the canoe, but afterwards he was arrested by the constable on the charge of illicit trading in liquor, and brought in here. All the proceeds of their business had gone down with Neilson, who was the treasurer of the partnership, but when Spence was arraigned before Commissioner Quibell he was fined $100, with the option of six months in jail.

GYPSY EASY WINNER IN TILT AT CAMP LAST NIGHT

Last night at the gypsy camp in the south end of the city some excitement was provided for a few minutes when one of the male members of the party became infuriated at the familiar actions of a young man towards one of the dark skinned ladies. He used vociferous language, addressing the offender in his native patois, but, while the latter could not understand a word spoken, he assumed that the gypsy's attitude was antagonistic and proceeded to look for trouble, which he was accommodated with to the full measure.

Mr. Gypsy started after him like Stanley Ketchel intends to go after Jack Johnson, and if Ketchel handles Johnson as easily as the gypsy man did the interferer, the title will be reclaimed for the white race. The youth was given a severe drubbing, which included a highly colored optic, and though there were several spectators on hand, they declined to take a hand in stopping the struggle, which was ended by the local scrapper beating a blinking retreat.

MRS. GOULD HAS BEEN SET FREE

New York, June 26.—After a trial which lasted nearly three weeks, Katherine Clemmons Gould obtained a legal separation from her husband, Howard Gould, third son of the late Jay Gould, by a decision of Justice Dowling in the Supreme Court yesterday. With the exception of alimony her victory was complete, but in this phase of the case the court decided that, $36,000 a year was sufficient, though in her suit Mrs. Gould asked for $250,000. She has been receiving $25,000 a year from Mr. Gould.

It was in the vindication of a charge of intoxication and her alleged relation with Austin Farnum, the actor, that Mrs. Gould scored most strongly. The court held that the alleged "intoxication" may have been due to excitement. As to Farnum, it was held that her association with him came after Mr. and Mrs. Gould separated, and that the husband apparently made no objection.

A CRIMINAL OR A COWARD

Winnipeg, June 26.—Two and a half years in Stony Mountain Penitentiary is the sentence which Chief Justice Howell handed out yesterday morning to John Marston Boyd, negro and professional gambler, who came up from the States some time ago and was convicted of shooting another negro. Boyd felt he had been swindled at cards.

The chief justice remarked that he intended to stop the practice of carrying revolvers in Canada. Anyone carrying a weapon was either a criminal or a coward.

JOHN KERR DROWNED

Strathroy, June 26.—John Kerr, a G.T.R. section hand, about twenty-seven years of age, was drowned here yesterday. Kerr, with another employe named Richardson, had just finished lunch, and went in near the railway bridge where they were working. The two had not been in the water long when Richardson thought something was wrong, and waved to the rest of the gang on the bridge. In the meantime Kerr had gone down. An alarm was at once given, and in a short time a great crowd had gathered and several volunteered to dive for the body. Fully an hour elapsed before the body was recovered.

Among the Canadians summoned to His Majesty's court are Hon. Frank and Mrs. Oliver and their two daughters.

Several R.M.C. cadets at Kingston clashed with the police Thursday night and two were under arrest for a short time.

The cash deposits of Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey in the Imperial Bank of Germany, amount to 5,000,000 Turkish pounds, approximately $21,500,000.

Tom Lewis, who figured prominently in the London election bribery cases, has been refused a bartender's license by the London commissioners, and must leave the hotel within a week.

WILHELMINA TO VISIT ENGLAND

London, June 26.—Definite arrangements have now been made for a state visit of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and her consort to England.

According to the official program, they are to embark on Dec. 6 at Rotterdam on board King Edward's steam yacht and to be escorted across the channel by Dutch and British warships. They will land at Dover, where they will be welcomed by the Prince, and probably also by the Princess, of Wales, and will be received in London, at the railroad terminus, by the King and Queen, with whom they will proceed to Buckingham Palace.

The Dowager Czarina and the King and Queen of Norway are expected to be at Windsor at the same time.

TO RENEW THE OLD AGREEMENT

Ottawa, June 26.—The board of conciliation and investigation under the Lemieux Act, appointed to investigate the disputes between the various coal operators in Alberta and Eastern British Columbia and its employes, has ended in majority and minority reports to the Department.

The minority report is made by Colin MacLeod, who represented the operators. The report of the board, signed by the chairman, Rev. Hugh Grant of Fernie and H. Sherman, representing the employes, recommends a general agreement based on the old agreement, to date from April, 1909, to March, 1911.

BOUND TO MAKE SURE OF DEATH

Toronto, June 26.—To make doubly sure that he would end all, Donald C. Macdonald, who at one time was in the butcher business on West Queen street, drank a quantity of laudanum and turned on the gas in his room at 53 Duke street yesterday. The body was still warm when the odor of gas attracted the occupants of the house to his room and Doctors Simpson and Stevenson worked over him for half an hour. A letter addressed to J. C. Leslie, Willard House, was left by the deceased. Coroner A. J. Johnson decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

PROBABILITIES.

Moderate winds; fine and slightly cooler to-day and on Sunday.

MONUMENT TO BE ERECTED IN HONOR OF LAFONTAINE

Fine Flow of Oratory Marks Commencement of Memorial to Louis Hippolyte Lefontaine—Statesman's Principle of Uniting the Two Races is Forgotten To-day.

Montreal, June 26.—French-Canadians dearly love oratory, and they had it to their hearts' content yesterday.

The occasion was the laying of the cornerstone of the Lafontaine monument in Lafontaine Park, presided over by Sir Alphonse Pelletier, Lieutenant-Governor of the province.

Senator Dandurand said that Lafontaine strove for a good understanding between the English and French, and then said that the educators of to-day did not do their duty in this respect. The French-Canadian and English-speaking youths were brought up as strangers, and instead of teaching mutual respect, suspicions and distrust were the result of present day education.

Henri Bourassa sought to show that while it was true that Lafontaine had done great work, he could not have succeeded had it not been for Papineau years before. Louis Hippolyte Lafontaine had retired disgusted from public life at the early age of 53 because, as he wrote to Judge Berthelot at the time, every member from Lower Canada, except perhaps one or two, wanted to enter the Cabinet. They had gained responsible Government, but it had all degenerated into a race for place and power.

F. D. Monk claimed that Lafontaine was the real founder of responsible Government.

The proceedings were naturally conducted in French, but the committee paid a high honor to an English-speaking Canadian, John Boyd, the well-known Canadian poet, by requesting him to read a poetical tribute in English to the memory of Lafontaine, which was received with great enthusiasm. Mr. Boyd before reading his tribute, in a few remarks which were loudly applauded, said: "The name of Lafontaine should be an inspiration to all Canadians. The work that he accomplished in association with that other great Canadian, Robert Baldwin, is known to you all. But it is the great lesson of their lives that we should take to heart to-day. And what is that lesson? I cannot in this connection do better than to quote the words of that distinguished Canadian educationist and historian, Prof. Leacock, summing up the careers of those two great men says: 'To find a real basis of political union between French and British Canada, to substitute for the strife of unreconciled races the fellow-citizenship of two great peoples, and to set up in the foremost of British colonies an example of self-government that should prove the lasting basis of empire—this was the completed work by which they had amply earned the rest of eventide after the day of toil.'"

He hoped to see the day when a monument would also rise to the memory of Sir George Etienne Cartier.

FOUR YOUNG MEN WERE DISORDERLY AT GYPSY CAMP

Four young men appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, charged with being drunk and disorderly at the Gypsy camp last evening. Two of the accused were fined two dollars and the other two were discharged.

One of the women of the camp gave evidence to the fact the men were drunk and making trouble at the camp last night. One of them wanted to fight and also used insulting language.

The two men who are engaged by the county as constables at this place corroborated the evidence of the witness and also stated that one of the young men had taken off his coat and made the remark that he could lick any man in Peterborough.

The ringleader of the party stated in his evidence that one of the women had asked to be allowed to tell his fortune and had put her arm on his shoulder but he pushed her away.

While he admitted having had a few drinks there had been no insulting language used.

The evidence on the whole was contradictory and the Magistrate gave the accused the benefit of the doubt and only imposed the usual fine on the two who had pleaded guilty to being drunk.

PREMIER ASQUITH LOSES MINISTERS

London, June 26.—The resignations of two members of the Government were announced last night.

Ostensibly they were handed in on account of ill-health, but it is believed they were due partly to the disapproval of the budget.

Lord Fitzmaurice, as chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, is succeeded by Herbert Louis Samuel, Under Secretary for Home Affairs, who thus is promoted to Cabinet rank. Thomas P. Buchanan, Parliamentary secretary to the Indian Office, is the other to retire.

The latter is succeeded by the master of Elibank, Alexander W. C. O. Murray.

G.T.P. APROACHING NEAR EDMONTON

Winnipeg, June 26.—Word was received here yesterday from the end of the steel on the G.T.P. that the track will be laid into Edmonton by July 7. Gangs are now 48 miles from that city, but the strength will be doubled and they will now be able to lay from four to six miles per day. Ballasting gangs are well up with the work, and the entire line will be ready for traffic when the crop begins to move. The line will be 794 miles between this city and Edmonton.

The Dominion Government will establish two experimental farms in the country tributary to the G.T.P., one in northern Saskatchewan, and the other in Alberta.

The bullet entered at the right temple and lodged at the base of the brain. He was able to walk into the house and tell his mother what had happened, and then lapsed into unconsciousness.

THAT CANADIAN NAVY

Liberally-inclined journals such as the Canadian Courier are hastening to endorse the new Laurier policy of a Canadian, not an Imperial navy. The authorities quoted by the Courier are Richard Jebb, an author who plainly expects as D'Israeli did that Canada will some day, when ripe, fall from the parent tree. But Lord Beresford says that a Canadian navy must "precede" an Imperial navy. Now the word "precede" implies that subsequently it will form part of an Imperial navy. Does the Courier endorse this implication too? Is it Sir Wilfrid's policy? With our own navy and our own governor-general (another part of the Liberal policy) it will be difficult to say what part of us belongs to the British empire. The "Canadian Navy" idea seems to us a whole-hearted humbug. To be wholly Canadian it must be under at least a Canadian vice-admiral, if not an admiral. He will act independently of Home instructions or else the navy will be in fact what it would not have been intended to be, viz., a unit of the British Navy. As a matter of fact the Canadian navy idea is wholly incompatible with permanency of British connection. Neither Great Britain nor Canada could put up with it for a month in the event of an approaching crisis. Rather than offend us the British would quietly ignore us and in the end we should find that they and we had grown completely out of touch. Such an estrangement means separation, a position wholly impossible in the event of our contribution being to an Imperial navy which Mr. Borden stands for.

OUT OF DATE

We read of the great beauties of human brotherhood and of the solidarity of humanity and we read of the universal brotherhood of man. Then we of Pan-Islam, the Pan-Slav, the Pan-German, Pan-Irish, or Pan-Gaelic, etc., until it is wondered if the preacher prophets of the latter have any idea of consistency at all.

The fundamental idea of brother- involves the obliteration of racial landmarks. When the French-Canadians insist upon the preservation of the language, forms, rights, privileges and customs of that race inviolate it would mean in case of fusion or brotherhood the absolute surrender of English-speaking Canadians to them in every particular and vice versa. If there is ever to be even an approach to brotherhood it must be according to at least the principles of reason and common sense.

The fanning of the racial flame is the chief cause of war. The attainment of brotherhood would mean almost the total suppression of war. So that those who preach brotherhood and Judaslike deny it, are at the same time covertly declaring for war. There is no escape from this conclusion. To be at peace is to be united, to be at war is to be disunited and racially differentiated. There is much vanity and consequent absurdity about it too. Boasting of what the English, French, etc., have done as English and French, is more an evidence of intellectual weakness than intellectual strength. It may do for the Choctaws or the Fiji-islanders who parade in war paint and beat the air while boasting of the wonderful deeds of their murderous ancestors and the wonderful deeds they themselves are about to perform. It is a form of primeval silliness.

But there are those who would keep it up even under the aegis of a church. We cannot see that it is at all likely to make for fairplay or for any of the graces of life that men shall not be allowed to combine except by giving up to others even their religion. That this demand should extend to every racial characteristic is to give out to the world that narrowness and bigotry are the watchwords of those who demand all the sacrifice without yielding any.

THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL

The faces of the women of the world assembled in council in Toronto are radiant with intellectual beauty. It is not in any case the flash of fashion or the pitiable appeal for flattery. It is the highest form of that combination of spirituality and noble-mindedness which will reach its highest pinnacle in womanhood.

There are a few timid sisters in the world of women who shrink from the responsibilities of a more independent participation in the well-being of the world. But they will "come round" in time. It is not given to all to be consistently and persistently strong. The comprehensiveness of the Council's aims is a matter of congratulation. The advent of woman is the discovery of a new world

EDITORIAL NOTES

The progressiveness of women in these latter days makes it a question if, after all, men would not make better "mothers" than women.

Frenchman—I don't suppose you see the papers much up here, but you've probably heard about the King winning the Derby!

Boatman—Oo, ay! I heerd tell o' that. He maun be a gu.d rider, him.—Punch.

The elevation of Hon R. W. Scott to knighthood is the honouring of a truly honourable gentleman, and what more need be said.

Messrs. Butler, C.E., and Newcome are men whom the Dominion delights to honour.

"I see you paid a well-merited tribute to the genial superintendent of the Deaf and Dumb Institution and his wife for their hospitality to the entertainers in aid of the hospital," said a gentleman in the city; "but you omitted a deserved compliment," he added, "which should, in justice, have been paid to a well-to-do property owner in the city, who generously purchased a cent's worth of gum at the island booth."—Belleville Intelligencer.

While a justice of the peace or a magistrate or a judge anywhere has the right and frequently exercises the right of fining or "sending down" people for contempt of court, it is undoubtedly better to leave criticisms made after the trial to public opinion. The object of journalistic spite or hatred may smart under it, but he would, under the circumstances, gain more by forbearance than by severity. Mr. Fournier has served long enough.

The Fall River, Mass., (Independent) says, in reply to some persons who were crying out for reciprocity with Canada, that "the exports from the United States to Canada have increased from 1868 to 1909, from 34 per cent. to 60 per cent. of Canada's total importations, while Great Britain's exports have gone down from 50 per cent. to 23 per cent. of Canada's total imports."

Rome, June 5th, 1909— Your publication of letters calling together the first Canadian Plenary Council, demonstrates the growing importance of the church in your country, and the energy with which its local rulers provide for its full and harmonious development. Incidentally this Plenary Council is hailed here also as a new diplomatic achievement on the part of His Excellency your Apostolic Delegate. Mgr. Sbarretti is generally known and spoken of here among the most brilliant minds of the church as a prelate of great "ingegnio"—an expression covering the whole range of intellectual pre-eminence. And this new proof of its vigorous application in the distant and important mission entrusted to him by the Holy See, delights his many friends here as greatly as it pleases his ecclesiastical superiors. The calling together of a national council in a country towards which the eyes of the world are now turned with ever growing interest, is a fitting crown to His Excellency's sixteen years' service of the Church on the North American Continent—Catholic Register.

A peddler's horse killed in an automobile collision at Waterbury, Conn., was found to have $150 worth of gold filling in its teeth.

FRIGHTFUL STOMACH TROUBLE

For Four Long Years He Suffered—Then "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

Stratford Centre, Wolfe Co., Que. May 11th, 1908.

I have been completely cured of a frightful condition of my stomach through this wonderful medicine, "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for four long years with this trouble. My head ached incessantly. I could not eat anything but what I suffered awful pains from indigestion. I used every known remedy and was treated by physicians, but the dyspepsia and headaches persisted in spite of the treatment.

I was told to try "Fruit-a-tives," and I sent for six boxes, and this was the only medicine that did me any good. I am now entirely well, I can eat ordinary food and I never have a headache, and for this relief I thank this wonderful remedy "Fruit-a-tives." My case is well known in this vicinity and you may publish this statement.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR HAVE OUTING

The Catholic Register's Roman Letter

St. John's choir, the Chancel Guild and many of the church officers had a splendid days' sail to Burleigh Falls and Mount Julian yesterday on the steamer Water Lily. The party, numbering 90, with H. W. Morphet and R. J. Devey in charge, left at noon. Lunching at the Royal Hotel, the party next sailed to Mount Julian where the races and sports were held. A baseball match, married and single, resulted in a win for the married men by 2 runs to 0. The steamer was again boarded at 4 p.m. when tea provided by Coleman Bros. was served, a most enjoyable day's pleasure ending at 8 p.m. the choir boys giving volleys of cheers for those who had helped them to a happy day.

Mr. H. Long brought along a goodly supply of ice cream and Messrs. Conway, Coulthard, F. Linton and R. Palmer contributed to the prize list. The weather was lovely and Captain Trewer and his staff were most courteous in their efforts for the comfort of the party on the steamer.

SOME BRIGHT REFERENCES

Sawloman in all His Wisdom Couldn't Write Such Sparklets

The following are from the Morning Times, a paper published in this city. These intellectual gleanings are from a column called "Ins and Outs," in which the writer shows he is generally "out."—

If anything should happen the newspaper plate factory in Toronto, we fear our little local contemporaries would have to run a few of their pages blank.

Our George street contemporary printed a paragraph a few days ago that the St. Lawrence route is going to the dogs. This g.f.j. might venture the suggestion that the writer probably saw a few ocean greyhounds in the river.

Our little Hunter street contemporary printed a paragraph the other day to the effect that great wealth does not ensure happiness, referring to the Gould divorce case as a sample of the truth of this assertion. This great family journal would respectfully add that all is not Gould that glitters.

RETURNED FROM HONEYMOON TRIP

Mr and Mrs. Thos. W. Sexsmith, who were married at Campbellford last week, returned on Saturday from a honeymoon spent at Toronto and Niagara Falls. After the ceremony on Wednesday afternoon last, a wedding luncheon was partaken of at the residence of the bride's brother, Mrs. S. J. Fisher. The bride's wedding gown was a Princess dress of cream silk voile trimmed with embroidery, chiffon and ribbon, and she wore a hat to match. Her travelling suit was of smoke grey. The numerous and costly presents received by the happy couple testified to the high esteem in which they are held. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch.

Mr. Sexsmith is a brother of Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., by whom he and his bride were charmingly entertained on arrival home.

SOOTHING OIL CURES THE SKIN

Tender Skin of Children Soothed by a Mild Liquid Compound

Have you ever tried a few drops of an oil of wintergreen compound for skin trouble? It seems to be about the only safe and sure cure for eczema, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm and kindred diseases. The liquid is so mild that it is used with wonderful soothing effect on the tender skins of infants.

To prove efficacious, the oil of wintergreen must be mixed with thymol and glycerine, as in the Prescription of Dr. D. D. Dennis, the eminent skin specialist. The compound is known as D.D.D. Prescription. Used with D.D.D. Soap it appears to be infallible.

Mrs. William Fox, Chancery Lane, Brockville, Ont., tells how she cured her little daughter:

"Gladly I give you consent to use any letter I may have sent in praise of your wonderful D.D.D. Prescription. My little daughter's head still remains clear of the horrid scaly disease. Her father and I both notice how much brighter she is, and her light hair is simply beautiful, so thick and glossy, after six years of suffering. It seems wonderful that less than four bottles of D.D.D. should have cured her after so much money spent on the X-Ray treatment failed."

For sale by all druggists.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterboroug Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

THREATENING PETERBORO' MERCHANTS

The sooner these hotel keepers of Peterborough who have been privately threatening Peterborough merchants and others with retaliation or loss of trade if they continue to support local option, change their tactics, the better it will be for the hotel keepers who are concerned. The city Temperance League has received reports from a number of sources of instances where hotel keepers, who have been doing business with certain well known people in Peterborough for years, have actually withdrawn or threatened to withdraw their trade unless the parties they deal with agreed not to support Local Option.

This is a serious matter. It is a question if it is not bribery. This is a free country. Attempts to bulldoze and force men to vote a certain way are sure to prove disastrous to those who attempt it. How would the hotel keepers like to find an effort being made to coerce or frighten them into voting the other way?

If the hotelkeepers who are concerned would only stop and think for a few minutes they themselves would see the folly of such tactics. There are only 23 licenses holders in Peterborough. There are two or three thousand temperance advocates at least. If these temperance advocates find, as they are beginning to find, that certain milk dealers, merchants and others are losing the trade of the hotel keepers because they support local option, it will not take the temperance people long to turn trade to these people. The result soon would be that the people who lost the trade of the saloon interests would gain an infinitely larger trade from the temperance people. This is not a game that the temperance people would like to play. It will, however, be only natural for them to support those who support them.

It would be an easy matter, also, for the temperance people to turn more trade away from the few hotels who are offending in this matter than the hotels have ever given to the people who they are trying to hit. The hotel keepers should come out in the open and fight fairly and not attempt to accomplish their ends by such means as some of them have been attempting.

LAW ENFORCEMENT AT LAKEFIELD

Those people who have been claiming that Local Option is not a success in Lakefield because liquor can be purchased there should notice the troubles that are following some at least of those in Lakefield who are attempting to break the law. Only a few weeks ago a hotel keeper in Lakefield was fined rather heavily for keeping liquor on his premises.

This week License Inspector Jno. Stewart visited the place of this hotel keeper unexpectedly and seized a barrel of whiskey. This means that this hotel keeper is to be again prosecuted and probably heavily fined.

Unfortunately the charge against this man is only one of keeping liquor on his premises. Could he be convicted of selling liquor, he would, on the second conviction, be sent to jail for four months, without the option of a fine. License Inspector Stewart has been doing good work in Lakefield and someone is sure to be sent to jail sooner or later if the law continues to be violated.

DEATHS FROM LIQUOR IN PETERBORO'

Were a wild animal to get loose on the streets of Peterborough and kill one or two people, steps would be taken immediately to kill it in turn. Every person in the city would be unanimous that such a creature should be put out of existence.

Liquor kills people in Peterborough every little while. The facts are suppressed. Because we hear but little of these cases, the public does not realize the terribleness of the monster that is at work in the city.

If those citizens of Peterborough who are interested in this matter were to make a few inquiries from the nurses and doctors, who know what goes on in the alcoholic wards of the two Peterborough hospitals, they would gain information that would make them determined to drive the liquor curse out of the city. Men have died in the city hospitals in the city hospitals in the "horrors" through excessive indulgence in drink, and their deaths have been of the most fearful description. Instead of being destroyed quickly, as they would have been had a wild animal attacked them, their deaths, in some cases, have been prolonged for days, and often weeks, during much of which time they have suffered more than is entailed in a score of natural deaths. The best thing we can do with the liquor traffic in Peterborough is to drive out of the city by voting for local option next January.

If we find, after we get local option that the liquor men or others are attempting to sell liquor on the sly, we must do with them what we would do with any other law-breaker—fine and imprison them. It is time for us to show the men interested in the liquor business that they must obey the law just as everyone else is expected to.

FUNDS FOR THE CAMPAIGN

Announcements have been made from the pulpits in most of the city churches inviting the members to contribute to the funds of the local option campaign. One man in Peterborough has offered to give $120 to the local option cause. Other generous contributions have been received. One poor woman, whose husband drinks, has given five dollars. This is a significant feature of the fight, and it is one that, possibly, is striking more terror into the hearts of the supporters of the liquor interests than any other one thing. After suffering patiently for years the evils inflicted by the liquor traffic, the people are arising in their might, and are determined to wipe it out of existence.

They are willing to suffer in the cause, and incidentally to subscribe the money that is needed to oppress this giant evil. This is because they know that they have right on their side, and right is might. If God be for us, who can be against us?

The supporters of the liquor traffic know that public opinion is against them. They know that people do not like it to be known that they are on their side. They have to pay and pay heavily to get people to work for them, and often then they find that they cannot depend upon the loyal support of their workers. One bartender in Peterborough has announced his intention to vote for local option.

There are hundreds in Peterborough who are willing to work on the temperance side without payment. This is one of the reasons why every person seems convinced that local option will carry in Peterborough next January.

THE KANSAS LAW

Governor Hoch, of Kansas, said many strong things in favor of the prohibitory law of his State. The liquor party denounced him as a fanatic. His term of office has gone by, and Governor Stubbs has taken his place. Does the change of administration indicate a change of public opinion? A St. Louis paper wrote the new Executive, asking him to make a statement concerning the prohibitory law and its effect on revenue and taxes. Governor Stubbs replied as follows—

"Prohibition has been successful in 90 per cent of the State for many years. An illegal license system was maintained in several cities, sanctioned by a false sentiment, but that has been effectively crushed and no longer exists. The State and local governments have so long done without revenues from the liquor traffic that no one now in the public service can tell whether it was an inconvenience to do without this revenue. There is no deficit. Crime, of course, has largely decreased, and it has been our invariable experience that laxity in the enforcement of the prohibitory law has been followed with an increase of crime and police and court costs. This is axiomatic, and never disputed in Kansas."

Comes Proof of Another Wonderful Cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mark Southern Tells How They Raised Him from A Bed of Sickness, Cured His Kidney Disease and Made him a Well Man

Skipton, Duck Lake, Sask., June 25—Special— After thirteen years suffering from Kidney Disease brought on by an accident, Mark Southern, of Heelaker Farm near here, is a well man and he is not slow to state that he owes his life to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"It began with pains in my back," Mr. Southern says, "and across my loins and of late years I became very weak and for days I had to keep to my bed. I had all kinds of advice and tried a great many medicines, but all to no purpose.

"Reading an advertisement induced me to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial and I wrote for six boxes. After taking the first box I began to feel relief, and after using five boxes I felt quite well again. I am now able to get about my work and feel no effects whatever from the old complaint."

Dodd's Kidney Pills clean all Kidney Diseases and all diseases resulting from disordered Kidneys right out of the system. That's how they cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Rheumatism and Backache. They do it by putting the Kidneys in good working order, and always do it.

NEWSY LETTER FROM OUR HAVELOCK CORRESPONDENT

Special to the Review.

Havelock, June 25—There was quite a warm time at the regular meeting of the School Board last week. All the members were present and after a few small accounts had been passed, the meeting became exciting by a warm discussion on the advisability of engaging two first class teachers for continuation work and separating it entirely from the School Board. A meeting of the ratepayers of town was held some time ago and Inspector Lees was present and gave the opinion that the Board would be wise to engage two teachers and he evidently impressed the majority of the trustees.

Joyce and Barlow put a motion that matters be conducted as before and that only one teacher be engaged but an amendment put in by Brewster and Kindred that two first class teachers be engaged was carried.

SPEAKS IN HIGHEST TERMS OF THE KAWARTHA LAKES

Mr. J. C. Douglas, Formerly of This City, Writes in New York "Press" of Canadian Summer Resorts—None Surpass Our Northern Lakes.

The former residents of Peterborough always have a good word for the old town. Mr. J. C. Douglas who used to live at 500 Gilmour street, but who is now a resident of Hoboken, N.J., has a very interesting article in the New York "Press," on the summer resorts of Canada. He speaks in the highest terms of the natural beauties of this country during the summer months, and his article should be the means of attracting many of them American resorters to spend the mAwerican resorters to spend their hot weather vacations in Canada.

Mr. Douglas has great commendation to offer the Kawartha Lakes as a summer resort and speaks of them as follows:—

"There is no finer summering place in the Dominion than the Kawartha Lakes north of Peterborough, Ontario. Peterborough itself is the most progressive and attractive of the smaller cities of Canada, and is the greatest canoe town in the world. The city has a population of 15,000 and has three canoe factories. Many of the "Peterboroughs" are used at the American pleasure resorts.

"The Kawartha Lakes are charming and are unsurpassed for fishing and boating. There are splendid pavilions for dancing and an excellent steamboat service. The season at the lakes is a gay or thoroughly restful one, as the visitor chooses to make it. A popular feature is the annual regatta, which is one of the most successful and picturesque held in the province and provides some exciting sailing, canoe, skiff, launch and eccentric races.

"The lakes cover a stretch of seventy miles, the principal one being Stoney Lake. They are delightfully refreshing in their natural beauty."

ARE PUTTING ON FINISHING TOUCHES AT T. A. S. PARK

A large crowd of men are putting the finishing touches on the grounds at T.A.S. Park this afternoon in preparation for the big list of sports to be run off on Dominion Day. The athletic events held yearly under the auspices of the T.A.S. have always attracted the largest number of people and brought together the best athletes in the country, and no pains are being spared to get the grounds in as good shape as possible. The T.A.S. tug-of-war team is out with a challenge to all comers, and several pulls are anticipated. The Abstainers will be captained by Geo. Ahearn, who is a past master in the game, and he promises to trot out a team that will pull any outfit in the country. The prize list is filling up rapidly, and will close on Tuesday night. A list of the prizes will be printed and distributed throughout the city on Wednesday, in order to give prospective entries a chance to get a line on the prizes to be captured.

THE ANNUAL EXCURSION

Business Men Had Pleasant Outing to Rice Lake Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon the steamer Otonabee carried about 150 of the business men of the city on their annual outing to Rice Lake and return. A sumptuous dinner was served in the Highland Park hotel. The steamer left the Wolfe street wharf at 1.30, and after calling at the street railway wharf proceeded to its destination. The trip down was thoroughly enjoyed and everyone present seemed to go in for a good time. At Highland Park there was an impromptu programme of sport which was pulled off in good style. Mr. W. J. Edmison, Harwood's hustling general merchant, was on hand and read the riot act at various stages of the proceedings. Shortly after sunset the party embarked for home, and it is needless to say that the trip up the river was thoroughly enjoyed. The music, songs, speeches and stories helped to pass the time away pleasantly until home was reached.

There was a very small market this morning and prices remained about the same as last week. Potatoes were offered in fairly large quantities and sold at $1.10 per bag. ## MOST WONDERFUL FEAT ACHIEVED

Prominent Physician Has Discovered a Sure Cure for the Great White Plague

A discovery which can literally be called the eighth wonder of the world has been made recently by Dr. Peltier. This wonderful achievement was the labor of several years of chemical research, years of elation and discouragement as time without number he thought he had discovered a sure cure for tuberculosis, only to find at the last moment that he had failed. But, being a courageous man, he bravely faced the many obstacles that were strewn along the path to fame and at last he succeeded in perfecting his remedy and now he stands the one physician on the earth who has proved himself to be the greatest enemy in the world to the most deadly disease that is known to civilization—the White Plague.

And Dr. Peltier is justly proud of his great achievement. The treatment is not only a complete cure, but it will cure those who are in the last stages. In fact he has not failed in all the numerous cases he has yet treated, and they have been all the way from those suffering from the deadly plague in the first stages to many who have been given up as incurable by the world's best known physicians. One of the most notable patients he has permanently cured is President Porfirio Diaz, of Mexico, who was a sufferer of tuberculosis for over eight years.

Dr. Peltier, when seen by a Review reporter yesterday at his office, 389 Queen street, appeared to be more of a successful business man than such a successful physician, as he has proved himself to be, although his whole appearance and manners showed that he was a man of extraordinary ability and intelligence. "Yes," he said to the reporter, "you are from the Review. Well, you are lucky to find me in at 6 o'clock, for my office hours are from 9 to 11 o'clock in the morning, 3 to 6 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 in the evening, so you can see the small chance you ran of getting me at 6 o'clock.

"Want to know my history," said Dr. Peltier. "Well, I am a graduate from France, South America and the United States." Here the physician opened a drawer and showed the Review reporter 12 certificates from the various countries.

Dr. Peltier then proceeded to initiate the reporter into the most important thing, the great cure that had puzzled the world's greatest brains for years, the successful cure for tuberculosis. The treatment is to be taken in two parts. The first which is called the inhaler is an effectual germicide and stands about four feet high when placed on the floor. Patients taking the treatment are provided with inhalers to use in their homes. The lower portion of this wonderful invention is reserved for the chemical while it is made in such a manner that water although it mixes in no way, is allowed to run around the fluid. Thus the air is preserved at the top and by the action of of the chemical it is rendered innocuous from further infection as well as killing any germs that have previously been absorbed. The medicine which forms the second part of the treatment is an excellent product prepared for anaemia, chorosis, infatisum, raquitisum, diarhea, strong scrofulas, indigestion, debility in general, lab-oricoss, lung trouble, convulsions, and other diseases. This medicine, which is sold in bottles carrying only the registered mark No. 55, has been highly praised by various hospitals and reformatories throughout America as has been the inhaler which is harmless, and has no taste when taken whatever. These great necessities to the human race are manufactured by Drs. Peltier and Pelkey, of Ottawa.

Dr. Peltier will be at 389 Queen street, Peterborough, for only three weeks to prove to the public that this remedy is all that they claim. After three weeks they will establish a permanent office in Toronto. Call or write for medicine or inhalers for free treatment.

LETTER TO CITY CLERK

S. R. Armstrong, Esq.,
City Clerk,
Peterborough,

Dear Sir,—There is one matter which I have neglected to mention heretofore. It is this, if the city of Peterborough and Burleigh Falls developed and 3,500 horse power transmitted and transformed for delivery in the city, experience shows that you could market a great deal more power. In this connection I am enclosing you herewith an extract from the "Canada Electrical News" from a paper which was read before the National Electric Light Association, which shows that for the reasons stated therein for the 3,500 horse-power you could probably market and obtain payment for nearly double that amount. The additional power that you would be able to sell would be a great deal more than cover your cost of distribution so that if you chose to give the power to users at the net price heretofore mentioned by us, $7.60 per horse-power, the additional power you could market would much more than cover your expenses of distribution and you could have a handsome profit. It is this factor that enables power companies to make the large profits that they have often made. You may also sell power restricted for use to period when the street-light load is not on, or practically have your street-lighting without cost.

Yours very truly,
R. J. McLAUGHLIN.

SOME ELECTRICAL POWER EXPERIENCE.

The author, who is sales manager of the Detroit Edison Company, in a paper read before the National Electric Association entitled "Some Electrical Power Experience" (see Canada Electrical News".) states—

"Observations taken in 100 factories at odd times, show that only an average of 50 per cent. of all the machines will be loaded at any one time, because operators preparing work or adjusting machines are idle, or, for the moment away from the machines.

"This statement to a manufacturer will not often be credited until he has proven it by observations. The fact is, however, well known to our selling force, and is considered when specifying motors required and in estimating probable costs, and the saving of expense with metered central station drive against other power due to this condition, is a good selling point."

OBITUARY

MRS. WM. FOSTER

On Thursday evening, June 24th, Jane Kearney, the beloved wife of Mr William Foster who lives north of Jackson park, fell asleep in Jesus.

The deceased was born at Streetsville, Ont, in 1854, and in 1878 was married at Brussels, Ont. since which time Mr. and Mrs. Foster have lived in the vicinity of Peterborough. She was a loving wife and mother, a kind thoughtful friend and neighbor and will be missed by many. During her last illness which was painful and trying she was most patient and without murmur, though at times she longed to be released from her sufferings and at rest with her Lord. Friends and neighbors waited with loving hearts and hands to administer any help or comfort within their power, which kindness is much appreciated by the members of the family.

Mrs. Foster was a member of St. John's church and the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Canon Davidson on Friday afternoon, her remains being taken, by special request to be buried beside her father and mother in Michigan.

MRS. J. J. MIX.

Word has been received in the city of the death of Mrs J. J. Mix in Seattle, Washington. She was an old and much respected resident of Ottawa, where she resided all her life until her removal to the west four years ago. Mrs. Mix died on June 21st, after an illness of some weeks. She leaves besides her husband a family of seven children. The daughters are Miss Cora Mix, Cumberland street, Ottawa; Mrs. G. B. Van Blaricom, of Toronto, and Mrs. J. T. Phelan, of Vancouver. The sons are Harry and Erskine, of Seattle. Mrs. Mix, who was fifty-nine years of age, and married thirty-eight years ago, leaves two brothers, Lawrence and John Burns, and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Young and Miss Maggie Burns, all of Ottawa.—Ottawa Journal.

The main building of the Fort William Henry Hotel at Lake George, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

GEORGE B. DOVEY.

The death of George B. Dovey, president of the Boston National League club which occurred on a Pennsylvania Railroad train last Saturday, while he was en route from Pittsburg, to Cincinnati was a shock to the baseball world. His death is thought to have been hastened through worry over the poor showing of his club and through his efforts to secure new players for the Boston team. He had been making a diligent search for men to strengthen the club and had visited many of the smaller clubs in his journeyings. He was a popular figure in baseball and always endeavored to promote the integrity of the game.

Mr. Dovey was 46 years of age. He had been owner and manager of the Boston base ball team for three years having purchased it from the famous triumvirate, Messrs. Conant, Soden, and Billings. For a number of years Mr. Dovey had been a salesman for the St. Louis Car Company and the ownership of the Boston team was his first serious baseball venture. Years ago he was a ball player himself in Kentucky. Out of respect to the dead magnate there were no games played in the National League Tuesday when his funeral was held.

| | Won | Lost | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Winnipeg | 20 | 14 | .588 |
| Medicine Hat | 14 | 10 | .583 |
| Moose Jaw | 18 | 16 | .529 |
| Regina | 16 | 17 | .485 |
| Calgary | 15 | 16 | .484 |
| Lethbridge | 12 | 14 | .462 |
| Edmonton | 13 | 16 | .448 |
| Brandon | 13 | 18 | .419 |

Montreal has only won three out of the last 16 games played.

The Toronto team is last in team fielding and second last in batting.

Three fingered Brown of Chicago Cubs has won twelve games and lost three.

Willis and Cammits, two Pittsburg twirlers lead the National League with eleven wins and one loss.

Walter Johnson of the Washington Americans pitched a curious game in New York recently. He gave seven passes on balls, made five wild pitches, struck out ten men and only allowed one hit.

The Leafs again whitewashed Montreal team yesterday by 2-0. Fallon formerly with the Royals made one of the runs and Rudolph the other. Montreal had four errors while Toronto had a clean slate.

Umpire Connors, of the Eastern League, has been suspended by President Powers, following the publication of a story Thursday of a revolt among umpires because they said Powers would not protect them against rowdy players.

AN ESCAPE INGENIOUS

Prisoner Whitewashed Suit and Got Away—Hiding in the Woods

Special to the Review.

Toronto, June 26—Word reached here of the unique escape of Joseph Smith, a prisoner at the Bracebridge jail. He was whitewashing a fence towards dusk, and in the absence of the guard, whitewashed his jail suit, cap and boots, and walked away through the town, where in the darkness people took him for a summer visitor in white flannels. He is now hiding in the woods near Huntsville.

Mr. Matthew's Address

To-morrow afternoon at three o'clock Mr. T. E. Matthews will give an address on "Egypt" in the Murray St. Church. All welcome.

HAVELOCK AND BOWMANVILLE PLAY GAME THIS AFTERNOON

Special to the Review.

Havelock, June 26—At 1.30 this afternoon Havelock and Bowmanville clash in the first game of the finals to decide the championship of the Midland Football League.

Bowmanville, the winners of Districts Nos. 1 and 2, are a fast bunch but if they run away from the locals they will have to do some fast work, as Havelock won districts nos. 3 and 4 with ease.

The game will be a battle royal as goals count on the round and both teams will endeavor to run up the score so as to get a good lead, but there will likely be little scoring.

Goal—Wm Rose.
Backs—H. Andrews, K McKay
Half backs— W McMullin, H. Kindred and W Hutchins.
Centre forward—Chas Robinson.
Right forwards —R McPherson and G Mathison.

SOME IMPRESSIONS OF THE MILITARY CAMP AT NASSAU

A representative from the Review visited the camp at Nassau last evening and found everything in first-class order as a result of the splendid discipline which is being carried out in the camp. The men are loud in their praise for the efficient manner in which the officers are carrying out every detail and on the other hand the officers are proud of the men who are working hard and giving a good account of themselves both while on or off duty. The fact that there is lots of water nearby is a welcome feature of the camp as the men can take full advantage of the opportunities afforded. Many of the members of the camp on leave of absence have visited this city during the week and so far, no reports have been received at headquarters of bad behaviour. The fishing line has been greatly utilized during the past week and many fine catches have been made. While the weather has been very trying both on the horses and men, nobody has suffered and as one of the officers stated last evening, It is much nicer than if it was damp or wet. The members of the camp appreciate the privilege of attending divine service to-morrow morning at St. Luke's church and all are anxious that the Third Prince of Wales Dragoons will make a fine showing.

THE WIFE OF FORMER LOCAL MAN GRANTED ALIMONY

Cobourg, June 26—Appleby vs Appleby in an action for alimony, was heard by Justice Riddell. It was an action brought by the newly-wedded wife of Alex. E. Appleby hide dealer of Cobourg and formerly of Peterborough. Mrs. Appleby alleged that her husband's conduct did not conduce to wedded happiness. Plaintiff has been residing temporarily with defendant's father and mother. Judgment was entered for Mrs. Appleby with costs.

Laugh a Little Bit.

Here's a motto, just your fit,
"Laugh a little bit."
When you think you're trouble hit
"Laugh a little bit."
Look misfortune in the face,
Brave the bedlam's rude grimace.
Ten to one 'twill yield its place
If you have the wit and grit
Just to laugh a little bit.

Cherish this peculiar gift,
"Laugh a little bit."
Keep it with you, sample it—
"Laugh a little bit."
Little ills will sure betide you,
Fortune may not sit beside you,
Men may mock and fame deride you,
But you'll mind them not a whit
If you laugh a little bit.

To Girls About to Marry.

To the girl about to marry one would tender the advice that she study her intended victim at breakfast. If he is one feeding like forty, reject him as the direct descendant of Circe's herd of swine. If he is melancholy, beware of the abrupt curves of his temperament. If he be boisterous and facetious, remember that an empty drum gives the greatest reverberation and a chatterbox at 8 o'clock in the morning is as tiresome as a chanticleer at 3 o'clock in the morning. By his breakfast you shall know him.

THEY ARE ROUNDED UP ON A SOUTH END CORNER LOT

How Our Gypsy Visitors Are Putting in the Time While Waiting the Lifting of the Embargo---They Have Many Callers.

It passes all the attractions of a free show. The gypsy encampment, such as it is, at the foot of George street, furnishes an objective point that puts Jackson Park out of the running and divided up public opinion with the band in the park. It is the conventional thing to stroll out after tea and see how our friends of the week are bearing up under adversity, and the bothers of temporary detention. It is safe to say that public curiosity would not have shown itself in many respects so impertinent that the men of the gypsy camp bear at home to receive callers. Thursday night the free show was well attended; last evening good places to view the show were at a premium, and it is safe to say that Saturday evening will break the record, for that human trait to go and see just how bad things look is the ruling passion. The authorities might, with some consideration, see that the street about the ground is watered and such slight conveniences as may be done provided for the comfort of our visiting friends. The open ground at the foot of the street is not fenced in. It is too early since the street was driven through. So the roadway is a mass of dusty sand and soil. The once grass is trodden out of all semblance to turf. Huddled in a corner, near a fence, are a few waggons, most of them covered with canvas. One sheeted in with boards proclaims on the lettering on its side that it once belonged to a baker, at Sandwich. Now Sandwich is in the county of Essex, hang up against the shore of Lake Erie, and not so far from Detroit. How the old shack of a bread cart got down here is a mystery. The canvas over the others is supported by hoops rigged on a skeleton. It would seem that a good hearty storm would blow the whole outfit to ribbons, but these ships of the road navigate in stress of weather as well as on fair days.

Left of the roadway are three tents, a trifle better than the others. It would seem that the lines are drawn with some distinctness, and that social recognition is just as dear to the heart of the gypsy woman as to her housed-in sister. The tents were partly open, disclosing bed clothing, and just outside a couple of kegs, said to contain beer, for this sitting as an object lesson to all sight-seers is a dry and dusty business. And the ladies quaffed of the brown ale and nodded to the other ladies looking on, who exhibited tokens of astonishment, and said, "Oh, my!" and "did you ever." On the west side of the road were other tents. The house-keeping arrangements in these were sadly out of joint. It is plain that the occupants are not troubled with any spring house-cleaning. Bags of straw, for pillows, gay colored and coverlets, blankets, all soiled beyond hope of redemption, were scattered about. Two of these apologies for mattresses were thrown to one side, and at intervals, reclining on the ground, and a cushion of some sort lay several of the women. Two or three sat up, and with the benignant expression seen on the features of a cigar store sign, puffed at long, crooked pipes. Critical observers, who set up as connoisseurs on the matter, said the quality of the tobacco was good. When a smoker approached one of the ladies he was solicited for the loan of a pipeful of the weed and generally complied.

If race suicide ever had a hold on this green earth, it must have fled when the idea struck the gypsy camps. Children were everywhere. They crawled in and out of the tents, climbed up and hung to the ridge poles, swung in and out of the covered waggons in incessant activity. Few of the women were without a baby, and some cared for two. Only a scrap or two of clothing covered the children, especially the younger. They may have at some time been washed, but this conjecture is only regarded as a supposition due to the Provincial Health Act, and the amenities of polite society. However, we'll say they might have been washed, and let it go at that. The entire lot needed sandpapering and an assortment of the most useful soaps and a garden hose would be a judicious gift from this community to our entirely separated brothers and sisters. The older children, boys and girls, wandered up and down, in groups, and threw sticks and stones with such elegance and precision that the town boy felt careful to keep out of the lot. Musn't interfere with vested rights.

Evidently this people have brought enough clothing and bed clothing to face a Canadian winter, for the vehicles are fairly crammed with it, but the deuce of it is they are mighty scared to wear it. The entire outfit of gowns worn by the women would not fetch $2.50 if put up at auction. The favorite patterns seem to be gaudy, and flaring prints, reds and yellows being in the majority. So far as could be observed there wasn't a pair of shoes in the outfit. Several of the little ones squatted in the road and threw the dust over one another, and laughed with glee as the sand and dirt rolled off their brown skins.

The prevailing headdress is a sort of bright colored shawl, fastened under the chin. Several wore strings of beads, coins and circular pieces of metal. It is safe to infer that the masses of black and tawny hair, plaited and swinging from side to side is not the hair of commerce. A dentist would starve in such a community before he would get a job. There was a cheerful indifference to the daily papers, and the prevailing light literature of the period was lacking. Likewise the popular magazines were few.

In attitude and demeanor the women seem indifferent to both the staring and remarks of the curious, and so far as showing impatience or irritation the crowd might as well have been miles away. A few boys began some rough play on Thursday night, but were suppressed. The local authorities should detail a policeman to go down and look after our wards, for yes or no, we have adopted them and they are in our care.

The cooking arrangements are primitive. The open camp fire and pot take the place of the kitchen range and gas stove. Squatted about the vessel the meal is partaken of, but a pile of empty cans thrown to one side show that the canned edible has a place on the bill of fare.

The invariable question is where did the gypsies come from. As near as can be ascertained they are of the race of gypsies thronging throughout Cuba. From there they made way to New York and gathering together set out on their wanderings. Several of the families are related, the others being merely accessory after the fact. The captain, or chief man and the lady, dignified with the appellation of Queen are near relatives. The first looks after the men, being as he is in authority. The queen attends to the women. She has certain hereditary rights, privileges and authority that must be respected. On all the gains a per-centage, or share, goes to those in authority. The revenue comes from horse-trading, barter of articles, fortune-telling and palmistry work, for all the world over there are fools who believe that the future may be read and truthfully by a gypsy. The smaller children are sent out to beg, from house to house when practicable. Being beautifully undressed a certain amount of pity and commiseration is aroused with consequent change as a solace. It is understood that this particular band has been kept together as a nucleus—everything springs from a nucleus—for nearly six years, and that members of the party have been together for over five years. They crossed the Canadian border somewhere in the eastern townships and have been from the very early spring making their way along, avoiding the travelled roads along the front. Like all nomadic people they are clannish among themselves, and the lines of association are strictly drawn. The ordinary man or woman might as well try to break into a gypsy organization as to get into the four hundred of New York, and would be about equally successful in either venture.

The curious thing is that this people adopt their form of living, not from necessity, but choice, they have what one would anticipate, they have plenty of money at command. The aggregate of their doings turn out very lucrative. This may be understood when the captain put up $400 bail money and offered to put up very much more if his friends were released. If they must they can pay their way, but what is the use. The world is their field to glean in and they glean closely and to a purpose.

Whether we have been wise in viewing the stranger and taking him in, remains to be seen. It would seem to have been a judicious thing, when these people were not within our lines, to have been a little less hospitable and have invited them to take a short walk into the next county. What the next county would have said need not have distressed us, but the fact remains, we have a half-hundred of unwilling guests on our hands and if they stay long enough we may have to issue debentures, so as to saddle the expense on posterity. If the whole outfit could be loaded on the Otonabee and fired on shore on the other side of Rice Lake it would be about their size and would be an unexpected pleasure. What the county of Northumberland would say need not be printed, but they might be reminded that sometimes some people entertain angels unawares.

LEWIS, THE PICKPOCKET, WAS SHOT IN NEW YORK POOLROOM

Was One of Gang Rounded Up Here Two Years Ago for Picking Pockets at Ringling's Circus—Shot Through Abdomen and in Knee.

New York, June 26.—Harry Lewis, aged thirty, of East 112th st., is seriously injured in the New York Hospital from a bullet wound through his abdomen and another bullet in his knee. His assailant, Harry Horowitz, eighteen, a bookkeeper of No. 54 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street, has been held without bail for examination to-morrow.

Lewis was playing pool in William Bleecker's rooms, at No. 302 West 36th street, about 1.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Horowitz entered. Without warning, Horowitz is alleged to have shot Lewis, who dropped to the floor, but got to his feet again and ran around the pool table. Horowitz pursued and fired another shot, which hit Lewis in the knee.

Detective John Higgins, of the College Point Station, heard the shooting and grabbed Horowitz. Higgins had his hands full until Policeman Brower, of the West Thirty-seventh street station, arrived and clubbed Horowitz into submission.

Lewis is known to the police and has done time for picking pockets in the State Prison, Auburn.

Lewis is one of the gang that was rounded up here two years ago by P. C. Newhall for picking pockets at Ringling's circus. His three companions were sentenced to the Central Prison for a term of eighteen months, but Lewis was acquitted through lack of evidence.

POISON IVY A DANGEROUS NUISANCE AT INVERLEA

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Would you please allow me space in your valuable paper to sound a note of warning re a treacherous and dangerous nuisance existing in Inverlea Park. And in order that I may be understood, I will give the public the benefit of our experience during the past four weeks. On or about May 26th one of the teachers in the Collegiate Institute sent my boy for some dandelion roots which he secured in the park near Smith street bridge, where there is to be found one of the worst plots of poison ivy and one of the worst kind of poisons growing in the province. In a few days after he got the dandelion roots in this bed of ivy he was swollen beyond recognition, and the suffering was intense. We actually thought the skin would burst before he began to blister. The blisters were as large as plums on him. We were afraid he would not get over it. He lost a month from school and grieved over losing his examinations, as it means so much when he returns to school.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, and hoping something will be done to save others the trouble we have experienced in this matter.

I remain, yours truly,
JOS. SUCOKE.

Bicyclists have grievance

There are many complaints from the owners of bicycles, who leave their machines outside stores while transacting business inside, and on their return the bicycle has disappeared, and does not turn up for a day or so, in some cases for a week. The persons who are guilty of taking the bicycles show very mean and contemptible dispositions, and should they be caught will receive very little leniency at the hands of the law.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS FOR YOUNG MOTHERS

The hot weather months are an anxious time for all mothers but particularly for young mothers. They are the most fatal time of the year for babies and young children, because of the great prevalence of stomach and bowel troubles. These come almost without warning and often before the mother realizes that there is danger the little one may be beyond aid. No other medicine can equal Baby's Own Tablets in promptly curing bowel and stomach troubles and an occasional dose given the well child will keep the stomach and bowels free from offending matter and ensure good health to the child. Therefore the Tablets should always be kept in the home as they may be the means of saving a little life. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine, Co. Brockville, Ont.

PULP MAY ENTER FREE SENATE CHANGES ITS MIND

Aldrich Amendment to Schedule Regarding Wood Pulp and Print Paper is Voted Down in Favor of a New Clause.

Washington, June 28.—The Senate on Saturday revised its previous action on the print paper and wood pulp schedule, Senator Aldrich agreeing to amendments relating both to pulp and paper in place of amendments hitherto adopted. The amendments adopted were those proposed by Senator Brown of Nebraska a few days ago. He was apparently quite as much surprised as pleased at this turn of affairs in his favor. The Aldrich proposals were aimed directly at Canada.

The Brown amendment provides for the free admission of mechanically ground wood pulp, but authorizes the imposition of a duty of one-twelfth of a cent per pound, dry weight, if any country, dependency or province has unduly discriminated against the United States by the imposition of an export duty or export charge of any kind upon pulpwood, wood pulp or printing paper exported into the United States, or has forbidden or restricts the exportation of any of these articles directly or indirectly.

On chemical wood pulp, a duty of one-sixth of a cent per pound is provided on the unbleached article and of one-fourth of a cent on the bleached article, and in case of discrimination by the exporting country, the duties are to be doubled.

The paper amendment provides the doubling of the duty on newspaper print paper in case of discrimination. This paper is valued at three cents a pound or less, and according to the terms of the bill, is made dutiable at the rate of five-tenths of a cent a pound.

An amendment proposing free admission of agricultural implements was voted down by 45 votes to 20, and the paragraph imposing a 15 per cent. ad valorem duty on farm implements was adopted.

THE WEEK-END DROWNINGS EIGHT TRAGEDIES REPORTED

Young Married Woman and Her Brother Lose Their Lives at Fort William—Two Bank Clerks Perish in River at Winnipeg While Out Canoeing.

Fort William, June 28.—On Saturday the bride of J. Loughton, aged 20, and her brother, William Ward, drowned in the Kaministiqua River. They were canoeing on the river and while Ward was changing the paddle from one hand to another the current capsized the boat. Loughton supported his wife until he became unconscious. He was rescued by two men.

Smothers In Water.

London, June 28.—The body of Frederick Sathse, aged 44, was found floating in the Thames yesterday morning. Death was due to suffocation. He had gone in bathing and was stricken with a fainting spell and fell face downward in the water. The body floated a mile with the lungs full of air, keeping out all water. He leaves a widow and four children.

Double Canoe Drowning.

Winnipeg, June 28.—Late yesterday afternoon W. C. Thompson and Samuel McConaghy, two clerks, were canoeing on the river near Elm Park, when their boat upset and both were drowned.

Drowns While Bathing.

Iroquois, June 28.—Dannie Roberts, 16-years old, son of Edward Roberts, was drowned yesterday while bathing in the canal.

Jumped From a Boat.

Brockville, June 27.—Albert Marshall, a river guide, of Clayton, N.Y., was taking Gordon Emmett, a carpenter, of Fine View, home from Clayton in his boat about noon yesterday. When a few rods from Round Island Emmett suddenly arose from his seat in the boat and jumped overboard. Marshall, as Emmett rose to the surface, grabbed him, but was unable to maintain his hold upon the man, who sank and was drowned. Emmett was a widower and about 50 years of age. No reason for his act is known.

Drowned While Bathing.

North Bay, June 28.—Garfield B. McMinn, aged 10 years, son of J. B. McMinn, lumberman, was drowned while bathing with some companions near his home at Rutherglen, twenty-six miles east of North Bay. The body was recovered and taken to Huntsville for burial.

Brothers Drown.

New York, June 28.—Caught in a strong undertow, Abbott Willard and Norman Willard, brothers, 10 and 11 years old, were drowned while wading in the Hudson. Two small companions tried to form a chain as they struggled in the water, but were unable to reach them.

SIX SHEEP WERE KILLED BY LIGHTENING IN SMITH

Although there was no storm here last Tuesday, a severe one raged in Smith township. Six sheep were killed by lightning in a field on the farm of Mr. Pearson, Smith, a short distance from Selwyn.

The sheep were apparently huddled together when the bolt came and killed them.

A peculiar feature of the affair was that one of the sheep had the wool completely burned off it and was given a regular electric roast. It was yoked to another sheep to prevent them from jumping out of their pasture, but the other animal did not have the wool scorched off it.

It was quite a surprise to Mr. Pearson to find his sheep strewn on the grass after the storm was over.

GYPSIES UP FOR TRIAL AT COURT HOUSE TO-DAY; EVIDENCE ALL HEARD

If any admirers of that notable American, Charles Dana Gibson, had seen the gaily dressed throng of Mexican women, attended by their scantily-dressed progeny, filling the chairs, usually occupied by the twelve good men and true, at the High Court this morning, his vision of the "Jury of the Future" would be rudely shattered. It was in short, a picturesque scene that was enacted in front of a packed courtroom when the charge of obstructing the public highway in the township of Smith on Sunday, June 19th, laid against the members of the band, was being heard. Considerable time was taken up by Magistrate Edmison, Crown Attorney Wood and the defending lawyers, Messrs. Kerr and and Gordon, before a definite route of proceedings was decided on. Finally it was agreed that the general charge of vagrancy and obstructing the public highway, should be first disposed of.

Mr. Robert Maitland, who keeps a store in Smith, testified to having seen the party of gypsies on Sunday, June 19th. The children were very scantily dressed. Several of the women paid frequent visits to the store throughout the day, but were refused the provisions which they tried to buy. Bad language was used by some of the women.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr, witness said that the men and women were properly clothed. The children did not wear merry widows or other elaborate accoutrement, but witness did not feel shocked.

Robert Bailey was called and testified that Caster John, a gaudily dressed Mexican, referred to the previous witness in unprintable language.

Mr. Gordon questioned the witness. Witness could identify two of the gypsies who used bad language. He was not obstructed, although he knew some men who had been.

Several other witnesses for the prosecution were examined, after when the court adjourned until 2.30 in the afternoon.

The first witness called at the afternoon session was James Kennedy, who stated that the party of gypsies had passed his house, and one of the women had asked him if he wanted his fortune told, and also asked for a quantity of oats.

Mr. F. D. Kerr objected to the evidence on the grounds that it had no bearing on the charge, but the objection was not allowed.

A witness named Porter was next called, but did not answer.

Mr. Geo. Cochrane, High County Constable, next called, stated the facts concerning the arrest of the party at Fowler's Corners.

To Mr. Kerr witness stated that some of the waggons were hitched to the horses on the road, but the party got as far as they wished to. Counsel wished to bring out the fact that the gypsies were not loitering.

This concluded the evidence for the prosecution.

Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. F. D. Kerr, in arguing the case for the defence, submitted that the evidence produced did not prove that the accused were guilty of loitering or obstructing the highway. It was not shown that they had inconvenienced anybody by their travelling on the road.

On going to press the defending lawyers were arguing the case.

St. Andrew's S. S. Excursion

The steamer Otonabee will leave Wolfe street wharf at 8.30 a.m. Tuesday morning, calling at the lock on Ashburnham side of the lake, and also at St. Railway wharf, for accommodation of excursionists.

VICIOUS TRAMP WAS CAUGHT

Rural Phone Instrumental in Arrest of Assailant of Woman

Gananoque, June 28.—Charged with having attempted assault on three women, John Fitzgerald, aged 35, of Montreal, a tramp, is under arrest.

His capture was effected largely through the use of the rural telephone system, after Miss Mabel Spafford, aged 18, a farmer's daughter, had reported at home that she had been attacked.

A posse of 25 farmers was organized and a thorough search was instituted, resulting in Fitzgerald's arrest at Findlay Station, six miles from here.

Miss Spafford was picking berries along the railway, when accosted, and it was only her desperate struggles which saved her. In escaping she ran across the railway tracks just a few feet in front of a freight train.

It is charged, too, that Fitzgerald also failed in later assaults on a farmer's wife and a young girl, the latter striking him across the face and setting a dog on him. It was at this moment that the posse came along. Fitzgerald started to run, but was soon overhauled.

Fitzgerald is five feet in height, of sandy complexion. He was committed for trial at Brockville.

MORE SCARED THAN HURT

Albany, N.Y., June 28.—Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss has transmitted to Governor Hughes a report prepared by the Department's auditor on the effect of the business of life insurance of the so-called Armstrong amendments to the New Yoork insurance law.

The report shows that while there was a notable falling off during the past three years in the business of the New York companies, such falling off was due primarily to the disclosures of the investigation, and not to the amendments themselves, and such companies are now rapidly recovering.

Beerbohm Tree May Come.

New York, June 28.—The Herald's London correspondent cables that W. A. Brady is trying to perfect an arrangement with Sir Beerbohm Tree for an American tour commencing next January, with his production of "The School for Scandal," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Oliver Twist," "The Newcomes," "The Tempest," Richard III., and other plays of his extended repertoire.

HIGH PRICES FOR PICTURES

London, June 28.—Prices at Christie's are still running high. The dealers, already loaded up with Turners or eighteenth century portraits or French landscapes, cannot afford to allow their own stocks to be depreciated by sacrifice prices at auction. The enormous price of $62,250 was paid for Turner's "Burning of the Houses of Parliament," by the Agnews, and sets a new standard for other works of superior merit from the same hand. The same remark applies to the unprecedented prices for Constables.

CLOTHING PRICES GO UP IN U. S.

New York, June 28.—In anticipation of the effect of the present provisions of the Aldrich tariff bill the price of men's clothing have been sent sky high within a week. Clothing dealers report that suits could be bought a week ago for $20 are now being marked to $35.

Staple worsteds and woolens have all taken a 35 per cent. rise in the last few days. Couple with the expected tariff effect is the increased cost of scoured wool, which a year ago cost 16 cents a pound and which now is quoted at 75 cents.

Clothing sellers look upon the situation with much satisfaction, their position being much stronger than it has been in many years.

THIS MAN GOT HIS DESERTS

Special to the Review.

Stratford, Ont., June 28. — Frank Roughmond was hanged in the yard of Stratford gaol this morning for the murder of Mrs. Mary Ann Packe, Sept. 30th last. The negro maintained an attitude of indifference to the last. The drop fell at one and a half minutes to five, and ten minutes after Roughmond was pronounced dead. Twenty-five to thirty persons witnessed the execution, and there was no hitch in the proceedings. Roughmond killed Mrs. Peake in her own home while the husband and family were at work in the field.

Sigel Girl Asphyxiated.

New York, June 28.—The coroner's autopsy has shown that Elsie Sigel was asphyxiated, not strangled, thus confirming the theory that her death was not premeditated. It develops that Leon Ling, early in the afternoon of the day of the murder, was in Newark, N.J., trying to get rid of the trunk in which the body was concealed.

H. Waugh, a Klondike pioneer prospector, is investing $20,000 in freighting a 7-ton gold stamp mill to his claim on the Peel River, 2,0000 miles north of Edmonton.

Judge Wells has decided that, as the Fort Erie race track liquor license has not yet been issued, although granted by the commissioners, he has no jurisdiction to hear the application to cancel it.

F. W. Sussex, teller in the Union Bank at Rocanville, Sask., has disappeared. He came from Palmerston.

The Imperial Social Club at Hamilton was raided by the police, and 27 colored men arrested on a charge of gambling.

AN IMPORTANT MERGER PLANNED

Montreal, June 28.—Negotiations are now being conducted to amalgamate two of the largest paper and lumber interests in the province. The merger involves a total capital of approximately three million dollars. The two firms are the Riordan Paper Mills, Limited, of this city, and the G. H. Perley Lumber Co. of Hull, Que.

The object is to acquire timber limits on the Rouge River, near Hawkesbury, Ont. At the present time there are 600 miles of limits in that district, one-half owned by the Riordan Co. and the other half by the Perley firm.

An important result of the merger will be the erection of a large bletching mill at Hawkesbury to supplement the present $1,000,000 sulphide plant in that town.

MUST ANSWER OR RETURN TO GOAL

Winnipeg, Man., June 28.—Lewis James, committed for contempt of court for refusing to answer questions put to him at the preliminary hearing of C. Hornbeck, accused of murdering Mrs. James, was released by Judge Mathers by writ of habeas corpus, owing to a mistake in the order of committment. The judge, however, ruled that the question which James had refused to answer were proper and that he should be required to answer. If he refuses to answer again he will be sent to jail.

Dr. Coulter Returns.

Ottawa, June 28.—Dr. S. M. Coulter, Deputy Postmaster-General, who went to Australia and New Zealand six months ago to confer in regard to the all-red steamship project, has returned, via Great Britain, where he conferred with the imperial authorities also. Dr. Coulter is satisfied with the result of his mission. He will make a report to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Dr. Coulter is of the opinion that the antipodes abound in trade possibilities for the Canadian people.

SLASHED BY A CHINAMAN

Ottawa, June 28.—Three or four Celestials standing at the corner of O'Connor and Slater streets were being pelted with sand and gravel by some lads when one of the Chinese suddenly dashed towards them and slashed a boy named O'Connell in the neck. The wound is slight. The Chinaman blew a whistle and 50 of his compatriots were immediately on the spot. A crowd of several hundred whites also gathered and the Chinese all decamped.

Another Naval Scare.

London, June 28.—Prof. Hearnshaw Hartley of University College, has an extravagant letter in Saturday's Spectator, with the contention that the construction of Dreadnoughts is hardly more critically important than the radical changes in international law which have been affected at the naval conference without observation.

To Uplifting Boys.

Detroit, June 28.—Following an investigation by 17 experts on questions affecting the youth of the city, the directors of the Detroit Young Men's Christian Association now are preparing to begin a campaign looking to the uplifting of boys.

Boy's Bad Fall.

Cornwall, June 28.—Robert Fraser, aged 16, fell thirty feet into the hold of the steamship Acadian. He landed on a pile of steel rails, broke his arm, dislocated his shoulder and cut his head.

Cardinal Satolli Ill.

Rome, June 28.—Cardinal Satolli, who has been ill for the past week, is believed to be in a serious condition from nephritis and atrophy of the right lung.

WILL NOT CONSENT TO ANNEXATION

Greece Receives Warning to Let the Islanders Alone

Paris, June 28.—It was with reluctance and grave misgivings that the French Government conditionally assented to the proposal made by Sir Edward Grey that the four powers which had assumed the task of preserving order in Crete should withdraw their contingents from the island on July 27, because the French Cabinet was convinced that such a step, owing to the present national excitement in Crete and Greece, would inevitably result in war between Turkey and Greece.

It was upon the initiative of the French Minister of Foreign Affairs that the original plan presented by Sir Edward Grey has been so modified as to require that the four cruisers—one French, one British, one Russian and one Italian—charged with the future surveillance of Crete should each be provided with a landing force of a thousand men and six machine guns, ready to disembark and occupy the island at the first symptom of disorder.

Practically, the future naval surveillance will differ only slightly from the present military occupation. The four powers have agreed to decline the proposition made by Turkey to enter into negotiations intended to bring greater autonomy and home rule in Crete, and while assuring the Turkish Government of their determination to support Turkish sovereignty in the island, they have again made it clear to the Greek Government and to the Cretan population that they will not countenance any efforts to bring about the annexation of Crete to Greece.

BEAMSVILLE'S LOST INDUSTRY

Beamsville, June 28.—A building famous in the annals of its time to many old residents of a wide district, will soon be torn down in this town. The structure is no less than the cradle of the infant industry began by the late John Harris, and now known as the Massey-Harris Co. It was here somewhere in 1865 that Harris conducted a moulding shop. About 1871 the owner asked the village council for an exemption from further taxation, but was refused and shortly afterwards removed to Brantford.

Retiring Governer's Discourtesy.

Atlanta, Ga., June 28.—Joseph M. Brown on Saturday took office as governor of Georgia, succeeding Hoke Smith. The governor-elect, attired in a suit of Georgia homespun, eluded a delegation sent to meet him by having the train stop at a crossing before the station was reached.

The retiring governor, Hoke Smith, handed the seal to Brown abruptly, bowed distantly and without a word of congratulation walked away.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND MAY GO ON STRIKE

Youngstown, Ohio, June 28.—The executive committee of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tinplate Workers have refused the demands of the Republic Iron & Steel Co. for an open shop. The Republic Company operates a plant in this city and one in Moline, Ills. Six thousand men are employed.

If the Republic Co. remains firm in its decision to open its plants to all comers the result is said to be that next Wednesday 3,000 men here, 1,000 at Moline, Ills., 1,200 at East Chicago, and 5,000 at Massilon will walk out.

These men, with the employes of the U. S. Steel Corporation, who have voted to strike on the same grievances July 1, will lay off a total of 16,000 steel workers throughout the central west.

PROBABILITIES.

Moderate winds, fine to-day and on Tuesday; slightly cooler to-night.

COMPENSATION FOR N.Z. HOTELMEN

Wellington, N.Z., June 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—As a result of the poll taken in November, 1908, 28 hotels in Auckland district will be closed. The Auckland Licensed Victuallers' Association is canvassing its members in the hope of raising the sum of a thousand pounds for distribution among the licensees. Five hotels in Auckland City will also be closed.

Parisian Printers Coming.

New York, June 28.—A party of printers from Paris, here for a study of methods pursued in American typographical establishments, has arrived from Havre. ## BERESFORD SAYS ASSISTANCE IS NEEDED FOR THE NAVY

Lord Charles Declares That Sister Nations Overseas Will Have to Help the Motherland to Maintain the Two-Power Standard.

London, June 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Imperial Press Conference Saturday resumed the adjourned discussion on imperial defence, Lord Esther presiding. The chairman told the delegates that he thought it was impossible to agree upon any definite scheme of imperial naval defence.

"If, however, you can agree upon a plan," he said, "which will give you good sailors and good officers, then good ships—the right types of ships—are bound to follow. Your true guides will ultimately be not the British Admiralty, but your own expert officers, who will have learned their naval lesson in the main battle fleet, and who will be in touch with the strategical plans of the British Admiralty, and also in touch with your own sentiment and your own needs."

The necessities of imperial military defence, Lord Esther said, were summed up in the words "imperial general staff." He then emphasized the necessity of organizing the whole resources of the nation for the purposes of defence. In the future victory would rest with the organized nation.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford thought the grave note of the statesmen's speeches during the conference was due to the fact that they knew we were not prepared for defence. He thought that owing to deferred liabilities and other things it was impossible for Britain to maintain the two power standard without the aid of the five sister nations.

"Don't let us be in a hurry, but don't let us be too long," he said; "Let us meet together on the same platform and discuss how each can help the other."

Lord Beresford suggested that the oversea states could do most by protecting the weakest places, namely, the imperial trade routes. They should have mobile defensive forces, and he advocated an interchange of cruisers, pointing out the pleasure it would be to British sailors to see a Canadian or Australian ship leading the line.

Having praised the personnel of his navy, which he said had never been better during the last 50 years, he referred to the "mad infatuation" which resulted in the dismantling of repairing stations all over the world. He suggested that the oversea states might put those in repair, and concluded that when it came to war, the oversea fleet must come under a great strategic bureau, which will be at the Admiralty, but is not there now. (Laughter and applause.)

Lord Beresford's reference to the absence of a strategical bureau at the Admiralty called out a sharp rebuke from W. T. Stead, who declared that no man should use his position in society or his popularity in the newspapers to intrigue against and vilify a man (Admiral Sir John Fisher) whom the King and two successive Ministers had placed in office.

Sir John French dealt with the imperial general staff. In order to weld together the scattered forces of the Empire, he asked the delegates to use their power in furthering this object.

Mr. Temperley moved a resolution to the effect that national defence is the most urgent question of the day for the Empire.

The Australian and home delegates monopolized the ensuing discussion, but towards the close, Mr. J. A. Macdonald of Toronto rose and hoped the resolution would not be put, first, because it either meant too little or two much, and second, because it could not express the result of the conference. The result is that we all know and see each other's standpoint and obligations, and we go back with a wide outlook and sense of empire relationship and empire obligation and we go back with a wide outlook which could not be expressed by a feckless, thewless, pithless resolution. The conference had not been a "junket," it had been a serious affair, largely because it was not bound by any resolution, and we shall go back truer empire men.

Referring particularly to defence, he said that if Canada had 20,000,000 people no power could wipe it off the map with 80,000,000 alongside it, but it behooved Canada to be wise. Their international boundary of 2,000 miles was without a gun and without a ship. He desired to see that one instance of humanity and civilization retained undisturbed. (Applause.)

Mr. Temperley withdrew the resolution, and after the delegates had expressed the warmest appreciation of their reception in Britain the conference concluded with the national anthem and cheers.

M. E. Nicholls of The Winnipeg Telegram submitted to the conference a cable from the Winnipeg World's Fair Committee an invitation to meet in Winnipeg in 1912.

Kyffin Thomas (Australia) requested the delegates to meet and subsequently consider it.

Journalists to Meet Again

London, June 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A permanent committee of the Imperial Press Conference has been elected to maintain contact between journals. The decision was reached to hold further conferences, the next time probably in Winnipeg.

White Firemen Not Superior.

Atlanta, Ga., June 28.—The Georgia Railroad Strike Arbitration Board decided Saturday night against the seniority of the white firemen over negroes. The arbitration, however, placed a premium on intelligence among firemen, which it is believed will ultimately result in the gradual elimination of all except the most expert negroes.

He had been out of work for a long time and despondency is evidently responsible.

Hornell, N.Y., June 28.—Robert M. Bonner, a blacksmith, committed suicide in a peculiar manner yesterday.

BOSPHORUS PAVED WITH SKELETONS

"While at Constantinople on April 30, two divers went down in the Bosphorus for some purpose, and they reported that the bottom was covered with skeletons. One of the divers died from the effects of going down, and the other went mad.

"A yacht anchored in this place a little while ago, and when the crew hove up the anchor there were two dead bodies hooked in it shackled together."

The planer, which it is planned will run the year round, will also employ a large number of hands. The company has a capital of $20,000,000 and owns a large amount of timber in this district.

AGRICULTURE AT NORWOOD

Mr Duff, who was recently appointed inspector of the new Agricultural Training School at Norwood, addressed the Board of Education in that town last week in regard to the purpose and work of the new school.

Mr. Duff said that they did not expect to have a large class at the outset. He proposed to try and interest the boys in the work who are too young to do heavy work on the farm. The work that would be taken up would include: Animal husbandry—such as stock judging, the principles of breeding, etc.; field husbandry—work among the plots; getting the pupils acquainted with the different kinds of grain; the different kinds of weeds and how to eradicate them. The plot would not be a large one, three-quarters to one acre would suffice. one acre well kept would be better than a larger amount poorly cultivated. They would also be instructed in the selection and management of poultry, the construction of poultry houses, etc. Horticulture would also be taken up and the different varieties of fruit considered. Instruction would be given in spraying, budding, grafting, also in gardening. Chemistry, as related to farming in general and also to the dairy, would be taught. In addition to this there would be a short course of study in agricultural botany, entomology, physics, etc.

The full course would be two years. There would also be a short course for those who could not take the full two-year course. He advised that no tuition fee be charged the first year. In this the Board coincided.—Havelock Standard.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

"Wanted: At once and without any more big talk, a fulfilment, either partial or complete, of the promises made by the Liberal candidate last autumn that Rural Mail and Parcel Delivery would be inaugurated without any delay and at short notice in the West Riding of the County of Peterborough."

This is the sort of notice that is posted in the head or hat of every farmer, farmer's wife, son or daughter in the riding. Ninety odd routes have been established in Canada, but none in West Peterborough after all the talk. Was the giving-in to the Conservative policy of doing something for the farmer mere pretence? It looks like it. The farmer has got so much of late years in "the neck" that it is high time he was shown some consideration. We shall keep on asking for it in the farmers' behalf until he gets it. There will be no let up. It is a prime necessity and should be installed without any makeshift in its stead.

A WANT OF SENSE

A short time ago the regiments, of Elmira, New York State, invited the Kingston, Ontario, regiment to pay them a visit on July 4th. The invitation was of course forwarded to the Department of Militia, at Ottawa, but "would you believe it?" the authorities there turned it down remarking "We wonder what sort of people those Kingston soldiers can be anyhow to want to visit a 4th of July parade in uniform or any other way?"

This sudden (too sudden) outburst of loyalty "fairly paralyzed" the Kingston men and in fact the people of all Canada, who couldn't see any harm in the proposed friendly visit. The returning tide of public opinion, however, was so much against the stupid policy of the department which hinted uncommonly like a bid for birthday honors, that the Kingston regiment received permission to go, and will go accordingly. The idea of treasuring scores of 100 years of age is making too much of "old scores" altogether.

SIR LOUIS LAFONTAINE

Quebec has produced some really great men and none greater than Sir Louis Lafontaine. Sir George Cartier was a man of equal fame and equal patriotism. These two men had what mere money cannot buy and what most men with money don't know enough to value. It is not necessary to name it. A child could answer. There was nothing of the charlatan about them either—none of that low combination of astuteness and vice so prevalent among self-advertisers. It would hearten us all to hear addresses upon such men as these. Occasionally men like Hon. Alexander MacKenzie turn with fine scorn upon the tribe of jackals, as in his famous phrase in defence of the treasury. What Rabelais mockingly called "the farce of life" has its farcical side no doubt especially when we see men drunken and sober, honest and dishonest, religious and impure, brazen and modest, all in one—being as Pope bitingly says, "not one but all mankind's epitome." When we learn to value in Lafontaine and men like him what is alone to be valued in any man, consistency of conduct, the squaring of his professions and his practice, scripture will have been fulfilled in that the wolves (goats) will have been separated from the sheep.

In reading Canadian and American history, the idea often arises "what was it saved the country from becoming the prey of the wolves at such and such a juncture?" The answer is found in the remark of Goethe that the progress of a nation is marked as by milestones, by its truly great men. The rank and file here and there fight off the financial foot-pad, the stock gambler and manipulator and those who make money by juggling with the necessaries of life and thus prey upon the poor who fatten them with their lifeblood. But men like Lincoln, the incorruptible, fill a different place in the nation's service and affections. They are not the soldiery or the police or the protectors or the money men but the guiding stars of a nation. So is it with Lafontaine, in connection with whom, however much or little he may have impressed us, with his theories of the solution of the problems of life and nationhood, we do not think of otherwise than for his unsullied virtue. It has been said that gold can buy anything but virtue. It has also been said that gold can buy anything but love. It will be found, however, that beyond meat and drink and the outward luxuries of life, money can buy very little except the refuse of humanity. Knowing our own weaknesses both from ourselves and all around us, we can the more revere such an exalted character as Sir Louis Lafontaine who will live forever in the hearts of all Canadians. It is a striking fact too often lost sight of that it is necessity that breeds these saviours of mankind. Without them the human race would fall a prey to its own inherent tendency to vice and decay. And it is even a still more striking fact that men like Lafontaine, Baldwin, Cartier, Papineau, Joly, Laurier, Macdonald, Mackenzie, &c, care nothing for money. It is a necessity as is food and water, but that is all. It is not manhood or the aim of life. None of these men also, were or are what is known as "practical" men. They were the experts who made the calculations, tested the strains, in a word designed the structure of the nation leaving to the "practical" men of the country the carrying out of that plan. The "practical" man is an absolute necessity, but he is even less indispensable than the thinkers. There is a place for every man, in the commonwealth but none higher than occupied by men like Lafontaine.

It is possible that the Anglers' Association will conduct an interesting inquiry into the cause of the suicidal mania which has apparently struck the fish in the Niagara River. The cause of so many dead fish, especially sturgeon, along the bank of the river, in most instances having their heads crushed, has long been a source of wonder to the fishermen, until they saw scores of fish rush through the water near the Queenston and Lewiston Suspension bridge, only to dash their brains out on the rock that lines the bank. Followers of Ike Walton are endeavoring to ascertain the cause of this evident self-destruction.—St. Thomas Times.

OF INTEREST

The Catholic Register's Roman Letter

Since the opening of the new Italian Parliament occasional allusions to the Vatican and religious organizations have been made by the extreme parties. In fact at the outset bitter attacks were directed against the Giolitti Government for its presumed alliance with the forces of religion to sustain it in power. Some of the "Catholic" deputies, principally Cameroni and Nuoboli, then distinguished themselves by plain and outspoken defence of their title of Catholic though the fact that they cannot be recognized under that title was made evident when to the challenge hurled at them regarding their feelings as to the Roman question, they answered that they accepted it as it stood—with Rome the capital of their united country. It is hard for the outsider to quite grasp the political situation here and understand the position occupied by true Catholics. To do that we must go back to 1870, when the unification of Italy under the dynasty of Savoy was made complete by the armed assault on defenceless Rome which at least might have been left as what true Catholic can deny?—as a remnant of the papal states indispensable to the liberty and independent action of a sovereign whose dominion was limited only by the confines of the world. The Pope was thereby robbed of his independence and reduced to the practical alternative of perpetual seclusion or else of submission as subject of an earthly sovereign. For numberless reasons the latter did not suit the dignity or office of the Vicar of Christ and he has therefore since lived practically a prisoner in constant protest against the usurping power which has robbed him of privileges essential to the proper exercise of his exalted office. All Italian citizens therefore who valued their quality of Catholics, were recommended by the Holy See to abstain from political activity whether as electors or as elected in the work of the usurping government which had placed its capital in the city of the Church. This law, known as the "non expedit" is still in force and can be relaxed only where the faithful need to step in to resist political attacks against the free exercise of religion. This year several bishops felt that the time had come when indifference would be tantamount to denial of religion and they rallied their forces to the support of law and order as against the bold and growing subversive element and with a success which the government could not fail to recognize and value. A certain number even presented themselves as Catholics and were elected as such, but without recognition from the Church on account of the unfortunate anomalous condition explained above. But their presence in the Chamber and that of many others whom Catholic votes had placed there, enraged the baffled ranks of the subversives, and hence the derisive challenges and insulting epithets hurled thick and fast across the room during the opening debate on the speech from the throne. Lately the attack has been resumed by the extreme parties. A proposal to make the civil marriage ceremony always precede the sacramental one was rejected by the government and defeated by an overwhelming majority. Again with a long, rambling discourse of the old incoherent unreasoning style Deputy Chiesa demanded that the Government be censured on account of its toleration of illegal religious associations. This was also defeated by three to one, and the government enunciated the principle that it stood for liberty for all Italian subjects, no matter what their creed or profession and that as long as men were allowed to form associations for civil purposes, the same right could not be denied them when these purposes became religious. Both must stand or fall together. If the government holds to this position which is altogether unassailable, it will hold the respect of its people and avoid the results which subversive tactics have produced in the sister country, France—a sad object lesson likely to do much good.

It is not strange, the hatred with which religion is regarded by those ambitious for the spoils to be gained per fas et nefas, but it is past comprehension that an intelligent people should listen with approval or even with indifference, to the unreasoning charges made and the assaults organized against the representatives of divine and supernatural authority. The clergy are not expected to be recognized as teachers of the people. What then is their purpose? A certain Ettore Sacchi, a radical deputy, during the late election campaign, issued a letter in support of his friend, a candidate in Pavia, in which he generally asserted that religion was respectable when it confined itself to work of charity, love and comfort, but became a danger to civil society when its teachings interfered with political interests. Priests therefore, who took any part in the formation of political conscience should, as servants of the state, be deprived of their stipends. Fine reasoning this! The priests' revenue, which he received from the state, not as a gratuity, but as the one-hundredth part of property the state has taken from the Church, must be taken from him if he exercises his right as a citizen and votes, or avails himself of whatever authority he may have to direct votes in defence of law, morality and right! Must all others paid by the state, not with their own money, as in this case, but with that of the state, come under the same penalty? No, only the priest. The priest is the only legitimate object of unreasoning logic and unreasonable tactics. "Listen not to the priests; they will not teach you what we want." That is the practical advice of the hungers after political loaves and fishes. An organization of tramwaymen here had an orator from Genoa, the "Hon." Giuseppe Macaggi, come down lately to deliver a lecture entitled "Why Workmen Should be Anti-Clerical." Last year the most diabolical stories were invented and circulated concerning of religious profession, all of which when investigated proved absolutely false. But of course religious are not necessarily perfect, and if ever a fault be discovered, woe to the weak one, and to all his brethren. So priests and religious have to walk very straight in this country. They are certainly watched, and every fault marked, and it is a mighty tribute to their virtue and integrity that so little can be shown against them. Some weeks ago on the evidence of a hysterical revolutionary a certain Maria Rygier, condemned for matricide to prison, regarding the doings of the nuns in the prisons of Florence, caused no end of a sensation and gave a fresh impetus to the agitation to remove all religious from the care of prisons. Another case of a slight mistake by a religious in the Policlinico here the other day, caused the newspapers to cry out against their presence as nurses in hospitals. And so on. But the most anti-clerical of them, when it comes to a fight for the existing constitution and the sign of law and order, have to recognize that the forces of religion always stand for the right. So the Tribuna, a Jewish anti-clerical semi-official organ declared during the recent elections that "the suspension of the non expedit, and the participation of many electors, previously clerical, at the urns, arrested the path of socialism," and much more in the same tenor. So the Government finds its only safeguard in falling back on those taught by the clergy in order to save it from the ever active and ever bolder forces of political disorder and revolution. The Church, however, wishes it plainly understood that this aid given by its members in the cause of peace and order, and the presence in parliament of members who openly glory in their Catholic faith, while recognizing the Roman usurpation which has humiliated and enchained that faith, are not facts to be interpreted, as has been attempted all over Europe, as a capitulation on the part of the Vatican or the Vicar of Christ. Some of the outside papers commenting on Cameroni's profession of Catholic faith and counter profession of political faith, have declared that the Pope has abandoned his position, and that therefore non-Italian Catholics need not now obey a Pope politically Italian. Oh, the ingenuity of human perversity! But the Church goes on with its work, and capitulates in nothing. The Normal School Teachers' Convention here the other day elaborated the only effective plan to make the Pope capitulate in any of his rights, or religion cease to worry the spirits of the nether world in flesh. Its president, the "Hon." Credaro, took as the only way of getting rid of religious teachers, a vote which was unanimously approved in favor of the abolition of the Papacy! So these good teachers will wear out their delicate nails in scratching down the rock of the Vatican, and what then must be their teaching? And what their learning? Surely the little that is dangerous. Oh, let us teach Catechism effectively and well and we will have no Roman question, and fewer Socialists, Freemasons and Anarchists to combat. That is the point where the mistake was made, and the only point it will pay to repair.

An international medical congress is holding its session at the Capitol these days.

The general chapter of the Friars' Minor is being held at Assisi these days, for the election of Definitors-General, and for other serious business affairs of the order, as well as to celebrate the 7th centenary of its foundation.

The unfortunate excommunicated priest now shining as a deputy in the Italian parliament, made a speech a few days ago whose anti-clerical and anti-religious tone amply justified to the world his sentence of excommunication.

There are Seven Types of Men, and 70 Variations from each Type

A thorough practical study of the proportions of the Human Form was made by the originators of the Semi-ready system, and the general types were divided:

| | |
|---|---|
| Normal Short | Type A |
| Average Type | Type B |
| Tall Man | Type C |
| Tall, Slim | Type D |
| Short, Stout | Type E |
| Average, Stout | Type F |
| Tall, Stout | Type G |

From these we have a system whereby every conceivable variation of the normal, corpulent, or slim man can be perfectly fitted.

Concise directions are given in our Physique Type Book, so that, whether a man be high shouldered, stoop shouldered, or have sloping shoulders, he can have a perfect fitting coat.

Height, the never-changing measurement, is helped out by weight, in our basic system.

The three illustrations shown above are among the designs shown in the normal types. There are suits at $18, $20, $25, $30—as high as you want to go in quality, and as low as it is safe to go in price.

The Woman In the Alcove

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,

Author of "The Millionaire Baby," "The Filigree Ball," "The House in the Mist," "The Amethyst Box," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY.

Hiding the effect produced upon him by this discovery, he placed his finger on this name and begged his cousin to look up its owner's antecedents and present reputation in America; but, not content with this, he sent his own agent over to New York, whither, as he soon learned, this gentleman had returned. The result was an apparent vindication of the suspected American. He was found to be a well known citizen of the great metropolis, moving in the highest circles and with a reputation for wealth won by an extraordinary business instinct.

To be sure, he had not always enjoyed these distinctions. Like many another self made man, he had risen from a menial position in a western mining camp to be the owner of a mine himself and so up through the various gradations of a successful life to a position among the foremost business men of New York. In all these changes he had maintained a name for honest if not generous dealing. He lived in great style, had married and was known to have but one extravagant fancy. This was for the unique and curious in art, a taste which, if report spoke true, cost him many thousands each year.

This last was the only clause in the report which pointed in any way toward this man being the possible abstractor of the Great Mogul, as Mr. Grey's famous diamond was called, and the latter was too just a man and too much of a fancier in this line himself to let a fact of this kind weigh against the favorable nature of the rest. So he recalled his agent, double locked his cabinets and continued to confine his display of valuables to articles which did not suggest jewels. Thus three years passed, when one day he heard mention made of a wonderful diamond which had been seen in New York. From its description he gathered that it must be the one surreptitiously abstracted from his cabinet, and when, after some careful inquiries, he learned that the name of its possessor was Fairbrother, he awoke to his old suspicions and determined to probe this matter to the bottom—but secretly. He still had too much consideration to attack a man in high position without full proof.

Knowing of no one he could trust with so delicate an inquiry as this had now become, he decided to undertake it himself, and for this purpose embraced the first opportunity to cross the water. He took his daughter with him because he had resolved never to let his one remaining child out of his sight. But she knew nothing of his plans or reason for travel. No one did. Indeed, only his lawyer and the police were aware of the loss of his diamond.

His first surprise on landing was to learn that Mr. Fairbrother, of whose marriage he had heard, had quarreled with his wife and that, in the separation which had occurred, the diamond had fallen to her share and was consequently in her possession at the present moment.

This changed matters, and Mr. Grey's only thought now was to surprise her with the diamond on her person and by one glance assure himself that it was indeed the Great Mogul. Since Mrs. Fairbrother was reported to be a beautiful woman and a great society belle, he saw no reason why he should not meet her publicly, and that very soon. He therefore accepted invitations and attended theaters and balls, though his daughter had suffered from her voyage and was not able to accompany him. But alas! He soon learned that Mrs. Fairbrother was never seen with her diamond and, one evening after an introduction at the opera, that she never talked about it. So there he was, balked on the very threshold of his enterprise, and, recognizing the fact, was preparing to take his now seriously ailing daughter south, when he received an invitation to a ball of such a select character that he decided to remain for it, in the hope that Mrs. Fairbrother would be tempted to put on all her splendor for so magnificent a function and thus gratify him with a sight of his own diamond. During the days that intervened he saw her several times and very soon decided that, in spite of her reticence in regard to this gem, she was not sufficiently in her husband's confidence to know the secret of its real ownership. This encouraged him to attempt piquing her into wearing the diamond on this occasion. He talked of precious stones and finally of his own, declaring that he had a connoisseur's eye for a fine diamond, but had seen none as yet in America to compete with a specimen or two he had in his own cabinets. Her eyes flashed at this and, though she said nothing, he felt sure that her presence at Mr. Ramsdell's house would be enlivened by her great jewel.

So much for Mr. Grey's attitude in this matter up to the night of the ball. It is interesting enough, but that of Abner Fairbrother is more interesting still and much more serious.

His was, indeed, the hand which had abstracted the diamond from Mr. Grey's collection. Under ordinary conditions he was an honest man. He prized his good name and would not willingly risk it, but he had little real conscience, and once his passions were aroused nothing short of the object desired would content him. At once forceful and subtle, he had at his command infinite resources which his wandering and eventful life had heightened almost to the point of genius. He saw this stone and at once felt an inordinate desire to possess it. He had coveted other men's treasures before, but not as he coveted this. What had been longing in other cases was mania in this. There was a woman in America whom he loved. She was beautiful, and she was splendor loving. To see her with this glory on her breast would be worth almost any risk which his imagination could picture at the moment. Before the diamond had left his hand he had made up his mind to have it for his own. He knew that it could not be bought, so he set about obtaining it by an act he did not hesitate to acknowledge to himself as criminal. But he did not act without precaution. Having a keen eye and a proper sense of size and color, he carried away from his first view of it a true image of the stone, and when he was next admitted to Mr. Grey's cabinet room he had provided the means for deceiving the owner, whose character he had sounded.

He might have failed in his daring attempt if he had not been favored by a circumstance no one could have foreseen. A daughter of the house, Cecilia by name, lay critically ill at the time, and Mr. Grey's attention was more or less distracted. Still the probabilities are that he would have noticed something amiss with the stone when he came to restore it to its place if just as he took it in his hand there had not risen in the air outside a weird and wailing cry which at once seized upon the imagination of the dozen gentlemen present, and so nearly prostrated their host that he thrust the box he held unopened into the safe and fell upon his knees, a totally unnerved him, crying:

"The banshee! The banshee! My daughter will die!"

Another hand than his locked the safe and dropped the key into the distracted father's pocket.

Thus a superhuman daring conjoined with a special intervention of fate had made the enterprise a successful one, and Fairbrother, believing more than ever in his star, carried this invaluable jewel back with him to New York. The stiletto—well, the taking of that was a folly for which he had never ceased to blush. He had not stolen it. He would not steal so inconsiderable an object. He had merely put it in his pocket when he saw it forgotten, passed over, given to him, as it were. That the risk, contrary to that involved in the taking of the diamond, was far in excess of the gratification obtained he realized almost immediately; but, having made the break and acquired the curio, he spared himself all further thought of the consequences and presently resumed his old life in New York, none the worse, to all appearances, for these escapades from virtue and his usual course of fair and open dealing.

But he was soon the worse from jealousy of the wife which his new possession had possibly won for him. She had answered all his expectations as mistress of his home and the exponent of his wealth, and for a year—nay, for two—he had been perfectly happy. Indeed, he had been more than that. He had been triumphant, especially on that memorable evening when, after a cautious delay of months, he had dared to pin that unapproachable sparkler to her breast and present her thus bedecked to the smart set—her whom his talents, and especially his far reaching business talents, had made his own.

Recalling the old days of barter and sale across the pine counter in Colorado, he felt that his star rode high and for a time was satisfied with his wife's magnificence and the prestige she gave his establishment. But pride is not all, even to a man of his daring ambition. Gradually he began to realize—first, that she was indifferent to him; next, that she despised him and, lastly, that she hated him. She had dozens at her feet, any of whom was more agreeable to her than her own husband, and, though he could not put his finger on any definite fault, he soon wearied of a beauty that only glowed for others and made up his mind to part with her rather than let his heart be eaten out by unappeasable longing for what his own good sense told him would never be his.

Yet, being naturally generous, he was satisfied with a separation, and, finding it impossible to think of her as other than extravagantly fed, waited on and clothed, he allowed her a good share of his fortune with the one proviso, that she should not disgrace him. But the diamond she stole, or rather carried off in her naturally high handed manner with the rest of her jewels. He had never given it to her. She knew the value he set on it, but not how he came by it, and would have worn it quite freely if he had not very soon given her to understand that the pleasure of doing so ceased when she left his house. As she could not be seen with it without occasioning public remark, she was forced, though much against her will, to heed his wishes and enjoy its brilliancy in private. But once, when he was out of town, she dared to appear with this fortune on her breast and again while on a visit west, and her husband heard of it.

Mr. Fairbrother had had the jewel set to suit him, not in Florence, as Sears had said, but by a skillful workman he had picked up in great poverty in a remote corner of New York city. Always in dread of some complication, he had provided himself with a second facsimile in paste, this time of an astonishing brightness, and this facsimile he had had set precisely like the true stone. Then he gave the workman $1,000 and sent him back to Switzerland. This imitation in paste he showed nobody, but he kept it always in his pocket. Why, he hardly knew. Meantime, he had one confidant, not of his crime, but of his sentiments toward his wife, and the determination he had secretly made to proceed to extremities if she continued to disobey him.

This was a man of [illegible] own age or older, who had known [illegible] in his early days and had followed all his fortunes. He had been the master of Fairbrother then, but he was his servant now, and as devoted to his interests as if they were his own—which, in a way, they were. For eighteen years he had stood at the latter's right hand, satisfied to look no further, but for the last three, his glances had strayed a foot or two beyond his master and taken in his master's wife.

The feelings which this man had for Mrs. Fairbrother were peculiar. She was a mere adjunct to her great lord, but she was a very gorgeous one, and, while he could not imagine himself doing anything to thwart him whose bread he ate and to whose rise he had himself contributed, yet if he could remain true to him without injuring her he would account himself happy. The day came when he had to decide between them, and, against all chances, against his own preconceived notion of what he would do under these circumstances, he chose to consider her.

This day came when, in the midst of growing complacency and an intense interest in some new scheme which demanded all his powers, Abner Fairbrother learned from the papers that Mr. Grey of English parliamentary fame had arrived in New York on an indefinite visit. As no cause was assigned for the visit beyond a natural desire on the part of this eminent statesman to see this great country, Mr. Fairbrother's fears reached a sudden climax, and he saw himself ruined and forever disgraced if the diamond now so unhappily out of his hands should fall under the eyes of its owner, whose seeming quiet under its loss had not for a moment deceived him. Waiting only long enough to make sure that the distinguished foreigner was likely to accept social attentions and so in all probability would be brought in contact with Mrs. Fairbrother, he sent her by his devoted servant a peremptory message in which he demanded back his diamond and, upon her refusing to heed this, followed it up by another in which he expressly stated that if she took it out of the safe deposit in which he had been told she was wise enough to keep it or wore it so much as once during the next three months, she would pay for her presumption with her life.

"The banshee! The banshee! My daughter will die!"

This was no idle threat, though she chose to regard it as such, laughing in the old servant's face and declaring that she would run the risk if the notion seized her. But the notion did not seem to seize her at once, and her husband was beginning to take heart when he heard of the great ball about to be given by the Ramsdells and realized that if she were going to be tempted to wear the diamond at all it would be at this brilliant function given in honor of the one man he had most cause to fear in the whole world.

Sears, seeing the emotion he was under, watched him closely. They had both been on the point of starting for New Mexico to visit a mine in which Mr. Fairbrother was interested, and he waited with inconceivable anxiety to see if his master would change his plans. It was while he was in this condition of mind that he was seen to shake his fist at Mrs. Fairbrother's passing figure, a menace naturally interpreted as directed against her, but which, if we know the man, was rather the expression of his anger against the husband who could rebuke and threaten so beautiful a creature. Meanwhile Mr. Fairbrother's preparations went on, and three weeks before the ball they started. Mr. Fairbrother had business in Chicago and business in Denver. It was two weeks and more before he reached La Junta. Sears counted the days. At La Junta they had a long conversation, or, rather, Mr. Fairbrother talked and Sears listened. The sum of what he said was this: He had made up his mind to have back his diamond. He was going to New York to get it. He was going alone, and as he wished no one to know that he had gone or that his plans had been in any way interrupted, the other was to continue on to El Moro and, passing himself off as Fairbrother, hire a room at the hotel and shut himself up in it for ten days on any plea his ingenuity might suggest. If at the end of that time Fairbrother should rejoin him, well and good. They would go on together to Santa Fe, but if for any reason the former should delay his return, then Sears was to exercise his own judgment as to the length of time he should retain his borrowed personality; also as to the advisability of pushing on to the mine and entering on the work there, as had been planned between them.

Sears knew what all this meant. He understood what was in his master's mind as well as if he had been taken into his full confidence, and openly accepted his part of the business with seeming alacrity, even to the point of supplying Fairbrother with suitable references as to the ability of one James Wellgood to fill a waiter's place at fashionable functions. It was not the first he had given him. Seventeen years before he had written the same, minus the last phrase. That was when he was the master and Fairbrother the man. But he did not mean to play the part laid out for him, for all his apparent acquiescence. He began by following the other's instructions. He exchanged clothes with him and other necessaries, and took the train for La Junta at or near the time that Fairbrother started east. But once at El Moro—once registered there as Abner Fairbrother from New York—he took a different course from the one laid out for him, a course which finally brought him into his master's wake and landed him at the same hour in New York.

This is what he did. Instead of shutting himself up in his room, he expressed an immediate desire to visit some neighboring mines, and, procuring a good horse, started off at the first available moment. He rode north, lost himself in the mountains, and wandered till he found a guide intelligent enough to lend himself to his plans. To this guide he confided his horse for the few days he intended to be gone, paying him well and promising him additional money if, during his absence, he succeeded in circulating the report that he, Abner Fairbrother, had gone deep into the mountains, bound for such and such a camp.

A POLICY FOR PETERBOROUGH

Just now the young and aspiring city of Peterborough is at the beginning of a new era. It has reached its limit as old Peterborough. Its capacity for further expansion by means of the old materials is practically at an end. Interviews with thoughtful and progressive men establish this.

But there is every prospect of a wonderful expansion in the future—the immediate future—if the people of Peterborough seize their opportunities. To realize what is meant it is necessary to go back a little. What has built us up so far? Our tariff compelled the building in Canada of branches of great American industries. The railway facilities at Peterborough helped to bring them to Peterborough. But of all the reasons for their choosing the city of Peterborough as their Canadian centre none excelled that of CHEAP POWER. It is cheap power if we get it in sufficient quantities that will make Peterborough a city of 50,000 population in fifteen years. Are we wise in delaying our purchase of the various power dams within reach? Are they not the best investment the people of Peterborough can possibly make? If we can offer power at say $12 per h.p. what can beat us?

Then there is something further. The "Soo" line which taps the western prairies is about to be extended through or near Peterborough. We will be on one of the main lines of the C.P.R. Continental system. When the T.V.C. is completed we will have all the advantage that being "on the lake" can give us. We are singularly fortunate in the number and ability of our representative men. There is nothing wanting to justify our formulating and carrying out without delay—all that is necessary to make Peterborough the Pittsburg of Eastern Ontario. The Review believes that this matter should be looked to at once.

It is true that similar ideas have been incubating for some time. The Review believes that it is time they were hatched. Who will be the apostles of the new movement?

A MONAGHAN FARMER WAS SERIOUSLY HURT

Mr. Fred Walton Thrown Out of Buggy on Gilmour Street—Head Badly Cut and May Be Injured Internally—Horse Shied at Fire.

Mr. Fred Walton, a farmer of North Monaghan, was seriously injured on Gilmour street to-day. He was in the city delivering some farm produce to his customers when his horses took fright at a small fire that was burning at the side of the road and he was thrown out as the animals suddenly shied and overturned the rig. Mr. Walton had his head badly cut and the wounds bled profusely. His wrist was also sprained and he was shaken up otherwise.

He was taken into a nearby residence and the services of a physician were secured. One long gash required several stitches and it is feared that Mr. Walton is injured internally.

The buggy was badly smashed.

DEPARTING CHOIR MEMBER WAS GIVEN PRESENTATION

Mr. Charles Harmer, a valued member of the Charlotte street choir, has been honored by his fellow choirsters prior to his departure for Edmonton, for which city he is leaving to-morrow. The presentation of a handsome suit case with supplies was made Mr. Harmer, Miss Clarry, the organist, making the presentation, and coupled with some appropriate remarks appreciative of Mr. Harmer's services to the choir. Rev. Mr. Henderson also made a brief address and spoke of the general regret of the choir at Mr. Harmer's departure.

Besides being a member of the choir Mr. Harmer was a member of the mixed quartette and he will be very much missed.

BATHER RESENTS HAVING HIS CLOTHES "CHAW-BEEFED"

Mr. Chas. Watts, an Englishman, is very indignant over the impudent and annoying ways of some young boys who are a constant source of trouble to him. Mr. Watts, who is of a physical turn of mind, goes in swimming every evening after work at Burnham's Point, the popular Ashburnham resort. He has been doing this for some time past, even when the water was too cold and uninviting for the ordinary bather. But this has no special bearing on the nature of Mr. Watt's complaint.

He asserts that for the last three weeks the boys who have been troubling him have tied his clothing into so many knots that it would keep a Newfoundland fisherman busy untieing them. Every evening he is detained considerably over schedule time and though he has tried several secluded places along the shore the wanton youngsters have generally managed to hunt him out and play havoc with with his wardrobe. He wishes to warn the malefactors that if he can detect any of them they will find themselves in police court, and according to Mr. Watts the wisest thing they can do is to discontinue their practice.

GYPSIES EXPECT TO GET EVERYTHING FOR NOTHING

Some of the gypsies located here on their round-up by the authorities are apparently very hard people to please and expect practically everything for nothing. Last week a Mexican gypsy picture was being shown at the Crystal and the wanderers from the south got word of it and came up town to see it. There were about six or eight of them in the party and all they would pay was five cents as a lump sum for the admission of the entire contingent. It happened that the film in which they were interested had been sent back to the film renting agency the day before the gypsies called and they were very indignant and kicked up quite a fuss because they did not see the picture. And this after the whole section had seen the show for a nickel.

The Italian fruit man who keeps a store a few doors north also complains of the free and easy way of the visiting roamers. He says some of them called at his store to make some purchases the other day and while a small sale was being effected enough fruit of various kinds was pilfered to start an opposition fruit stand in the camp. These gypsies are certainly good to themselves.

COUPLE OF CANOEISTS WERE UPSET IN LITTLE LAKE

The first upset of the season in Little Lake, as far as can be learned, occurred last night. A couple of young men, both of whom are employed in the C.G.E., were out trying their skill as paddlers in a small and fast canoe, when one of them overreached himself and the little craft turned turtle in a twinkling and both the paddlers were very unceremoniously submerged. The accident happened at Cemetery Point, and only a few feet from the shore. This was fortunate, for there was nobody around at the time, and had it occurred some distance out in the lake the canoeists might have spent a very unpleasant evening drifting around in the water.

The capsize cost them two cushions and a lazyback.

THREE POPULAR NUMBERS THAT SHOULD BE ENCORE WINNERS

In a popular sense the programme to be given by the 57th Regimental band at Victoria Park next Friday night should prove the most pleasing of the season. From the publishing house of Jerome H. Remick and Co. Mr. Giddon received on Saturday three of the biggest summer song hit arrangements for band presentation.

One that will undoubtedly meet general favor is "Bits of Remick's Hits," which includes such tuneful as "It Looks Like a Big Night to To-night," "Shine on Harvest Moon," "When I Marry You," and "Dear Heart." A number that should appeal to the popular fancy is "Dublin Lassies," an Irish intermezzo by Percy Renwick; author of the season's biggest seller, "Rainbow." A characteristic composition by J. Bodewalt Lampe is the third new selection that will be offered at the next concert. "Happy Go Lucky" is the descriptive title of the piece, and it should be very melodious, as it is by the author of "Happy Heine," "Creole Belle," and other light numbers of more than ordinary merit.

The band will hold two full practices this week, when other standard and popular numbers will be rehearsed.

HAVELOCK

Havelock, June 26.—Havelock and Bowmanville met at the local park on Saturday afternoon in the first game of the finals, resulting in a victory for Havelock the score being 1—0.

The game was the fastest one played here this year, and showed that the quality of ball in the Midland league this year is of a high calibre. Both teams lined up determined to play the game of their life and it was certainly fast and exciting. Havelock was somewhat handicapped by the loss of their regular centre half back, Dr. Kindred, but they managed to keep the ball well up in the Bowmanville territory most of the time.

In the first half, both teams made some hard tries to get the ball near their opponent's goal, but the work was pretty well in the centre, until Lancaster, of the Havelock team made a nice pass to McPherson, who carried the ball up the right wing and shot it into centre where Mathison put it between the stakes, thus scoring the only goal of the game.

The game then continued as before, until just before half-time when Havelock carried the ball into Bowmanville's goal, where a very lively time took place, three shots being stopped in succession by Bowmanville's goal tender.

In the second half the ball remained a great deal of the time in Bowmanville's half, but once in a while the men from the west would make a rush and twice Havelock's goal looked in danger, but Havelock's defence was too strong.

Havelock made some fine rushes but seemed unable to land the ball between the stakes. Once a pretty shot was going in, when Bowmanville's back, who was not more than four feet from the goal, seeing it, would be another one against them, scooped it out with his hand, but the referee did not think it was a deliberate foul, and so Havelock had to be contented with a free kick, which failed to take effect.

Goal, W. Rose.

Backs, H. Andrews, M. McKay.

Halves, W. Hitchins, Ashby, McMullen.

Centre, C. Robinson.

Havelock have a great record this year. They have never lost a game and have not even had a goal scored on them.

Mr. Pearson is a hard, conscientious and quiet worker. He is a strong, discriminating and vital force in the community. By both his congregation and the general public he is justly held in high esteem, and although he has been pursed with gold, "a good name is better than riches." We wish him a pleasant and profitable trip and a safe and speedy return. He has earned his holiday, and will doubtless, therefore, enjoy it.

FLOWER SUNDAY AT GEORGE ST. CHURCH

The Annual Gathering of the Parents and Sunday School Children---A Magnificent Display of Flowers

Flower Sunday at George street Methodist church is, so to speak, a fresh day. The service is one of a particularly agreeable character, and held amidst the happiest possible auspices. Preparations had been made to receive the gifts of flowers, and a design in the shape of a mammoth Maltese cross erected at the front of the pulpit platform. The scholars gathered in the Sunday school and were marshalled in lines to their seats in the body of the church, well up in front. Each bore bouquets of flowers which were received and attached to the cross. So great was the profusion of flowers that the design was entirely encrusted with the beautiful blooms, and a girdle of crimson, white and pink encircled the front of the platform.

The pastor, Rev. E. A. Pearson, preached an interesting sermon from an appropriate text, while the choir contributed suitable music in addition to the regular service of hymns and anthems.

The school is indebted to the friendly work of Messrs. Thos. Pratt, John Hartley, Ray Best and Roy Powell for the carrying out of the design and arrangement. Mr. Powell devoted considerable time to arranging and putting in the galaxy of electric lights that illuminated the cross of flowers. Miss Olive Pentland, Mamie Armstrong, Marjory Mann, Bessie Powell and Laura Hartley, members of the senior classes of the Sunday school, were a committee to receive the flowers and place them in position. At the conclusion of the evening service the flowers were removed and given out for distribution by friends to those where it was known that such would be a reminder that the recipients were in the thoughts of the givers.

POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

Two Disorderly Cases --- Theft Charge Was Dismissed and Two Dog Owners in Trouble

Charles Healy was very drunk and in a mood for fighting on Simcoe st., Saturday. At the police court this morning he was assessed $5.75 for his bad behaviour. A witness stated that the accused used very bad language, much to the annoyance of people in the street.

NO DOG TAG.

Elworth Jewel came to the city on Thursday and brought with him a dog for which he neglected to get a tag. By not doing his duty towards the city he was relieved of $2.00, of which one was used to secure a tag.

FUN COST $4.00.

Two young men paid $2 each for the fun they had in front of Innis' fruit store Friday night. The proprietor asked them to carry off their programme in some other locality, but they couldn't see it that way. Two others who were mixed up in the affair were discharged.

BOTH GOT TAKEN IN.

Vincent E. Crehar was so thoughtless as to leave $8 in his vest, which he hung up in his home at 551 Gilchrist street, last Monday night. A friend "in need" had been taken care of by the family and when Vincent missed his money the visitor was accused of appropriating the cash. The evidence, however, was not forthcoming this morning to make a conviction and the Magistrate dismissed the case.

THE WOMAN DID IT.

Chas. Rose owns a dog which has to live. He explained to the Magistrate that on account of his being a cripple he could not make the distance to the city clerk's office to get a tag. His Worship imposed a fine of $2, to be paid in four days and in default to spend a short time in jail. Charles was willing to take the time, but a woman in the case came to his assistance, and explained matters in such a convincing manner that, the Magistrate relented and if the dog disappears within four days, there will be no further trouble.

Can Get Directory

The members of the W.C.T.U. can get a copy of the directory by calling at the Review office. At the meeting on Friday, it was decided not to hold a meeting during July and August.

Ray Noble was carried by the current under a scow near Loggieville, N.B., and drowned.

EVENING SERVICE WAS IN CHARGE OF THE CHILDREN

At Park St. Baptist Church Yesterday--Large Congregation Present

The evening service at Park street Baptist church yesterday was of a very interesting and beautiful nature. The service was in charge of the young people and the church was prettily decorated with flowers, of which bouquets were distributed among the large congregation during the offertory and also sent to brighten the rooms of those who were absent on account of illness. The music by the Sunday School scholars was appropriate for the occasion and was well rendered. An address on the "Ideals of a Boy" by Mr Alex Haldow, was interesting and instructive as the different points were brought out in such a way that appealed to every one of his listeners.

Miss Nellie Hudson, who was to give a short address on "What a girl should do," was unavoidably absent and the pastor took the opportunity presented and congratulated the young people on the success which had attended their efforts of making a bright and enjoyable service.

GREAT FISHING AT 'CAYGEON

The tourists are having great luck catching fish. Each evening the boat contains the limit, which eight bass and four maskinonge. Mr. Little and his party of the White House are enjoying big catches. The Hamilton party on the house-boat reports some wonderful sport, and it is no trouble to get bass. They say the lakes are overcrowded with bass. Mr. Fred H. Tinkham, of Jamestown, N.Y., and who is a guest of the Royal, has the best record for this season so far. While out with his guide, M. Sheehan, Tuesday, he landed a 22 lb. maskinonge. It took half an hour to land him with a steel rod and 40 foot of line. The first was a beauty and measured 48 inches long. Besides this Mr. Tinkham, with his friend, caught several other maskinonge, and the weight of the day's fish was 75 lbs.—Bob Independent.

Exciting Contests in City League Fixtures at Riverside on Saturday.—T.A.S. Won Their Third Straight Game and the Straths, With a New Line-up, Defeated the West Enders.

The fans who journeyed over to Riverside park Saturday afternoon were small in numbers but it is encouraging to notice that they were the same that have patronized the league from the start. This speaks volumes for the games and spectators alike. The contests were, outside a couple of innings well played and interesting and there was evidence everywhere that the players worked hard to make the exhibitions worthy of support.

The T.A.S.A.C. and Park Street A.C. clashed together in the first game and the Abstainers won by 9-5 while the second struggle went in favor of the doughty Strathconas who won with a patched-up team, the players of which put up the best ball tossing by any team which has represented the Straths in the city league this season. The score was 9-6. Manager Metheral found himself in a bad position when the game was called, as four of the players did not show up, contrary to expectations. But players were found to fill their places and each was there with the necessary ability to fulfil the vacancies.

FIRST GAME.

Ab Quinlan twirled for the T.A.C. and although six hits were secured off his delivery they were scattered and the fine fielding of his team mates helped a lot. Jack Corkery, late of the Ottawa City League, was introduced to the fans and though making two bad plays, looks good for the position at third. Eight errors were chalked up against the field ers but their hitting and base running made up for the misplays. M. O'Brien's work at first base was of the Hal Chase variety, and his performance met with the approval of the fans. Dusty, heaving for the South Enders had a bad innings in the first but throughout the remainder of the contest delivered the goods in clever style. His fielders took a notion to go ballooning at the start and while they were enjoying the trip, five of the opposing players crossed the plate.

There were new faces on the line-up, Pentland, playing third, Ben Dusty at short, Bill Wareham at second and Bell at the receiving end, but the bad start proved fatal to their chances of winning, although things looked serious for the T.A.S. at different times.

The T.A.S. went to bat first and on a number of hits and errors made five runs, while the Park street team in their half could not score.

In the second Callaghan scored for his team and a one-handed catch by O'Brien off Davidson's fly prevented a promising looking tally for the opposing side.

In their half of the third the P. A.C. scored their first run, Ben Dusty doing the trick.

McFadden got the counter back in the fourth for the T.A.S. after beating out a bunt.

Dusty scored in the fifth and by a collision between Derocher, Callaghan and Flaherty who all went after a fly by H. O'Brien.

In the sixth Bell scored another for P.A.C. but that twirler got back the run in his team's half of the seventh innings.

Park Street looked dangerous in their seventh. Pentland started the excitement by getting a free pass and later scored on Wareham's single. Wareham made it two runs on J. Pilling's hit to right.

In the eighth Callaghan scored for the T.A.S. and the P.A.C. were shut out in their half.

No runs were scored in the last inning by either team and the following is the summary.

SECOND GAME.

Gorham was sent in to do the twirling for the Straths, and he gave a good account of himself, particularly at critical parts of the game. He had splendid control, allowing only one pass and but six hits. His fielding was of a high order, and although his throws to the bases were a trifle slow, they were accurate, and nearly always resulted in a putout. Supporting him was a team with lots of action, who throughout the contest displayed a willingness to work hard and try to land the game. The batting, which amounted to fourteen hits, was timely, and the baserunners took advantage of every opportunity before them. The team looked as if they might "blow up" during the last innings, but it was only momentary, and all settled down and came away with the big end of the score. There was no particularly brilliant fielding, nor were there any glaring errors, but the players were full of life, and this, coupled with their batting, enabled them to put the lemon sign on the West Enders, who were justly confident at the start that they would have no trouble in downing the tailenders. Carton was missing from behind the plate, and his place was filled by Dobson in capable manner. This made a change in the team's line-up. Gibson played third, while Pete Campbell worked at centre field.

The error column only shows three errors, but Dame Fortune smiled upon the bats of the Straths, and the West Enders were up against it, and Kirn had a bad day. He fielded his position in his usual fine style, and always showed good head-work, which resulted in cutting off many dangerous looking scores. Still, somebody had to win, and when a team is up against another nine who have their batting togs on, they have a big proposition to handle. Gus Rose worked in the box for the last two innings, and allowed but one run. Both teams were prevented from scoring by some fast work of the fielders in the first innings, but in the second the West Enders put three men across. In the third the Straths scored twice, Gorham and Curtis singled and made home on Shaw's two-bagger. Shaw scored on Craig's slow grounder, but the shortstop was out trying to steal home. Shaw dropped Dobson's fly, and Pilling performed the same trick with Fallon's. Both runs counted on Rose's single, and a passed ball. In the fifth the Straths scored three times. Pilling was hit, Hickey singled, and both runners made a base on Gorham's sacrifice. Curtis grounded and Pilling scored. Craig's three-bagger sent in Hickey and Curtis.

Two more runs which put the Straths in a comfortable lead, were secured in the seventh. Gorham's double, Halpin letting a hot one get through him. Shaw's single, and Craig's sacrifice causing the trouble. In the ninth one more run was scored, making a total of nine for the Strathconas.

The West Enders, who had been cut off in the run-getting for six innings, made a big attempt to break up the game in their favor in their last time at bat. Campbell, first up, hit a pretty one between shortstop and the secondbaseman, and which also got past the centre fielder, allowing the runner to make home. Gibson hit a fly to Shaw, who dropped it after dislocating a finger, and Gibson made second. King missed three and Halpin hit into a double play and both teams beat it for the dressing-room.

The score—

LONGBOAT MADE SHRUBB QUIT

Indian Showed His Class and Was Too Fast for the Englishman

The baseball grounds at Hanlan's Point were filled to overflowing on Saturday night, when Tom Longboat defeated Alfred Shrubb in a 20-mile race. There were 10,000 people present at a very conservative estimate.

Every available seat was occupied, and the overflow of the crowd had to be turned loose on the field. When the runners toed the mark both looked in perfect condition and ready to run the race of their lives. Controller Geary fired the starting gun.

Shrubb started off at a terrific clip, which Longboat followed closely for the first mile. In the second mile Longboat seemed to be tiring, and slowed up. Shrubb was a quarter of a lap in the lead, and going at a fast clip. He gained ground gradually and at the beginning of the fourth mile he was a good half-lap in the lead. As they went on, Longboat settled down to a long steady stride. When the fifth mile was covered he was within a hundred yards of the little Englishman. Just at this time Shrubb sprinted and got back the ground he had lost. He was about a lap in the lead at the end of the sixth mile. Longboat was still plugging away steadily. Shrubb lapped the Indian on the seventh mile and continued to pace him. Longboat got in some sprints in the next mile the result being that he was a few feet ahead of Shrubb in the ninth mile but still a lap behind. Shrubb sprinted again in the second lap of the ninth endeavoring to throw off his dusky opponent but Longboat stuck like a leech. At the half-way post they were both going well. Time 56.16.

At the eleventh mile, Shrubb was still pacing the redskin. Their positions remained the same until the thirteenth, when Shrubb, who had been repeatedly sprinting, began to limp badly. He still kept in the lead however. His time for the fourteen miles was 1.18.29. Shrubb was looking ready to throw up the sponge, when, after considerable sprinting, Longboat took the lead, and gained half a lap. Shrubb was limping very badly with Longboat running easily. After doing three laps of the sixteenth mile Shrubb dropped out at the club house. The crowd poured out of the stands on to the track wild with joy, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that the police were able to clear the track for Longboat to pass. Longboat ran well within himself for the last four miles, covering the full distance in 2 hours, 2 minutes and 10 seconds.

JACK CROUGH IS GETTING BUSY AT ATHLETICS IN THE WEST

Mr. Jack Crough, the former deaf and dumb athlete of the T.A.S., is at present located in North Battleford, Saskatchewan, in which vicinity he contemplates taking up a homestead in the fall. Jack hasn't forgotten all he knew about sport, as a few days ago in a football game between Dysart and Cupar he notched the only goal secured by the latter team against Dysart's — two. The newspapers of the former town comments very favorably on Crough's effective rushes and general good work. Jack also figured prominently in a lacrosse game, Old Battleford vs. North Battleford, which was won by the latter team of which he is a member, score being 6—2. In the contest Crough played a most [illegible] game.

Half Holidays

Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Could you tell me if the employees of the city are going to give their employees a weekly half holiday this year?

Yours truly,
ANNETTE

We cannot say as to that, generally, but some of the employers are doing so already and have announced it. As for ourselves we shall advise our wives and children to give such employers the preference in order that they may lose nothing by doing "a good act." The refreshment of a half-day per week in hot weather is pleasant beyond expression to those who work indoors and it cannot fail to be correspondingly profitable to those employers who occasionally feel the need of it themselves.—Ed.

LIVERPOOL RIOT WAS CONTINUED

Liverpool, June 28—There was a wild riot between Orangemen and Catholics here to-day in which several were seriously injured. For a time a howling, battling mob packed the streets, and the police were forced to violent measures to quiet the rioters. A large amount of property was destroyed by the lawless element which joined the fight.

A clanging Protestant church bell was the indirect cause of the outbreak, it being whispered about that it was a signal for an attack by the Orangemen. Scores were arrested before the riot was quelled.

THE 3RD PRINCE OF WALES DRAGOONS' CHURCH PARADE TO ST. LUKE'S YESTERDAY

The annual church parade held in connection with the camp of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons took place yesterday morning to St. Luke's church where the Chaplain and Hon. Captain, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, preached a most appropriate and instructive discourse.

The soldiers went on board the Government boat the "Bessie Butler," at their camping grounds at Nassau, and were brought down by the canal to the Lift Lock. Here they were met by Lieut-Col Stevenson commanding officer of the 57th Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Miller and a number of other officers of the 57th. Headed by the 57th Bugle Band, they marched to the church. Lieut-Col Syer of the Dragoons, commanding.

The service was of a bright and inspiring character. The soldiers occupied the centre rows of seats. Printed forms of service were provided and the singing and responses were joined in most heartily. During the offertory Miss Ruby Quartermaine sang in splendid voice "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and after the benediction the National Anthem was sung.

THE SERMON.

The Honorary Captain, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, in his remarks to his fellow soldiers chose for his text part of the fifty-fourth verse of the 27th chapter of the Gospel of St. Matthew, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

In these days of modern science, the reverend speaker said, it was well to have absolute surety of the faith within one. The words of the text were the utterance of an unbeliever, so far as the claims of Jesus Christ were concerned. But he could not help but admit the claim that Christ was the Son of God. If He was not the Son of God, Christianity would fail.

"Christ is our King, our Priest, and our Redeemer," he continued. "You soldiers are men enrolled in the service of our sovereign. I never could think of the soldiers of King Edward being disrespectful to him. How much more then should this loyalty and affection be given to our Lord and King, Jesus Christ.

"Christ was the mediator for the sins of His people. It was through Him that access to the throne of God was found. Christ was the Redeemer of the world by His death upon the cross." In conclusion Dr Langfeldt urged the soldiers to acknowledge their duties to Jesus Christ.

A large number of citizens witnessed the march of the Dragoons on their return to the camp.

INHUMAN MOTHER GOT 7 YEARS PENITTENTIARY

Special to the Review

Ottawa, June 28—Mrs. Napoleon Lajoie found guilty of ill-treating her daughter, was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary this morning. The girl was found in emaciated condition, starved, cruelly beaten, and kept in filthy condition because she resembled woman's sister-in-law, whom Mrs. Lajoie hated.

A young man from rural Nova Scotia, innocently called out the fire brigade by trying to put a letter in the fire alarm box in Ottawa.

REV. H. M. MANNING'S FAREWELL TO HIS CONGREGATION

Preached to Large Congregations at St. James' Church Yesterday—Is Leaving for Port Hope on Wednesday Morning.

There were large congregations yesterday at St. James' church, when Rev. J. M. Manning preached his farewell sermons to his flock. During the time he has been pastor of Charlotte street and St. James' churches Mr. Manning has been most popular, and his presence will be genuinely missed. The sermons were most appropriate to the occasion.

In the morning Mr. Manning took as his text Ecclesiastes 12th, verses 13 and 14: "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter; fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

If we would hear we must listen. The chief reason the gospel is not understood is because people won't give their attention to it. Children readily accept what is taught them, but began to question the teachings as they grow older. Now the practical test of truth is the working out of it. The sum of the whole gospel teaching is: "Fear the Lord and keep His commandments."

Whatever has the tendency to separate us from God must be put as error at once. In the matter of duty man is under moral obligation. And God has not given us so much to do that the whole duty cannot be performed. Man can be influenced by the fear of God in everything he does. God executes law as well as makes law.

The moral judgment of truth must be supplemented by the final judgment of each man's conduct. That judgment is minute; it embraces everything. The speaker closed with an appeal to keep God in our thoughts and to recognize his authority. In the evening Mr. Manning preached a sermon of a very helpful character, directing his remarks especially to the officials of the church.

In the morning a chorus was given by and the choir, and Miss Manning sang a solo. At the evening service the choir rendered an anthem and a duet was sung by Miss Manning and Mrs. Rehill.

An open session of the Sunday school was held in the afternoon, at which Mr. Manning and Mr. Petley addressed the pupils.

Mr. Manning will leave on Wednesday morning for his new charge at Port Hope and will have the best wishes of the members of his congregation here. His successor will be Rev. J. G. Brown, B.A., of Beaverton, who is expected to arrive here in time to conduct the Wednesday evening prayer meeting.

OTTAWA OFFICIAL HERE FOR TRIAL OF GYPSIES

Mr. E. Blake Robertson, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, is in the city acting in the interests of the Government in the gypsy case. When interviewed by the Review this morning Mr. Blake stated that the band could not be deported, as they lived in Canada more than two years. He has been a busy official during the past week, chasing up the pedigrees of the New Mexicans, and he stated that with exception of one or two members of the band, they are naturalized Canadians. "Had they," said Mr. Blake, "been guilty of any charge within two years of their arrival in this country, they might be deported, but as it is, they must receive the same consideration as is given to Canadian citizens."

EXTREME SEVERITY OF WINTER IN EASTERN PART OF LABRADOR

Letter From Dr. Grenfell—The Conditions of Last Winter—The Great Value of the Reindeer.

The winter in Labrador, and our northern section of Newfoundland has been one of extreme severity— more snow has fallen during the winter months from December to March than any resident remembers, and with that a rather mild temperature has prevailed in the southern districts, so that travelling has been exceptionally difficult—a very serious additional trouble has been an epidemic of distemper which has killed a very large number of our dogs. The disease began somewhere near Quebec early in the year and spread rapidly eastward—it struck our most western hospital somewhat this side of Anticosti Island early in February and the Doctor's kennels lost sixteen of the best hauling dogs—as the mails all along this coast are carried by dog sleighs and as the two mail teams were first attacked, and subsequently obliterated, it was at first supposed the disease spread by contagion, but later the disease suddenly appeared at our nursing station on the north-east coast of Newfoundland, having made a jump from the post we have at Forteau, just across the Straits of Bell Isle and a distance of nine miles or more over impassable floating ice. Alas the trouble did not even stay there but gradually worked its way round the coast and all teams, including our splendid teams at the east coast hospital of St. Anthony, paid a heavy tribute to its virulence. At this hospital also we have a large wired enclosure in which we have been trying to open another local industry by breeding foxes. The great amount of snow had for some time prevented the man who feeds them from seeing the animals some of which are unusually tame but he gradually noticed less and less tracks and on digging up laboriously vast heaps of snow he found some of the animals badly affected and two of the best of them dead. Some reports I received recently from a friend who has been trying a similar experiment on a large scale for commercial purposes on the Aleutian Island, states that owing to a disease called hookworm which has played havoc with his stock he has had to close down and go out of what promised to be a very remunerative industry. The majority of his foxes were of the blue variety, whereas ours were 'silvers,' the prices of which range so high—a good dark one fetching even two hundred to two hundred and fifty pounds—that we had hoped for great things. One result of the trouble has been, however, to show a very greatly enhanced value for our new experiment in domestic reindeer; for our poorer neighbors have suffered like ourselves and they have found it almost impossible to haul out of the country even the necessary amount of firewood to keep their stoves going. Under these circumstances our reindeer have proved a most invaluable stop-gap, and in this department of work have shown themselves very much more efficient than they did our first winter. The stags have been able to maintain distances of 30 miles a day regularly and with ease, and have been hauling loads of six and seven hundred pounds without losing any weight. The enormous advantage of these beasts becomes at once apparent, when we remember they need neither hay nor cereals from year's end to year's end; indeed, hay seemed to involve a form of gastritis which is liable to prove speedily fatal. The only effort we made this year to help out those regularly working in the food line, was to gather and stock in a single open enclosure some additional supply of their favorite variety—Cladonia rangiferina. This we did only to allow them to get it more quickly and so enable them to have more time to rest at nights, while they were working all day.

Yet another hopeful aspect of this branch of work has become apparent from experiments with their milk. Last autumn some milk was stored in sterilized bottles fitted with spring air tight caps, and now, after six months have elapsed they were opened and found to contain milk as sweet as when originally drawn. Of course the weather has been cold most of this long period, but one of our bugbears in the inception of the scheme was how we were to distribute to the scattered centres the milk from a herd that from the nature of our work at the best milking time it was necessary to centralize, this at any rate offers us one solution of the problem. We have promptly ordered a large supply of proper, easily-cleaned glass bottles and we hope in this way to be able to maintain fresh reindeer milk on tap all the season.

GUELPH SHOWS CANADIAN CITIES THE PROPER WAY

The Civic Spirit Has Taken Firm Root and Soon the Idea of Government by a Commission, With the Mayor as Business Manager, May be Tried.

Guelph, June 24.—As the pioneer municipal ownership city of the Dominion Guelph has been given the title of the Glasgow of Canada, but from statistics compiled for the Board of Trade by Mr. W. J. Bell of this city, it would appear that Guelph has "out-Glasgowed" Glasgow in the operation of public utilities. The figures which have been compiled not only show that Guelph has the lowest tax rate in the Dominion, but water rates and gas rates, as well as electric lighting, have been so reduced in Guelph that the living rate is the cheapest in the country and lower all round than is shown by the statistics from the city of Glasgow.

Some of the features of the figures gathered from all parts of the Dominion are interesting to those towns and cities which are following the lead that Guelph has taken. Not only is the tax rate of 14 1-2 mills from four to ten mills on the dollar lower than any other Ontario city, but the assessment of $6,000,000 is lower than any other, when the population is considered, with the value of the majority of Guelph's solid stone buildings.

LOW PRICES FOR PUBLIC SERVICE

But even with the $75,000 or $80,000 that Guelph is taking out of the water works, gas works, electric light plant, the street railway and the Guelph Junction Railway annually, and with big expenditures for improvements to the plants, the prices for public consumption have been decreased until the lump of taxes and water, gas, etc., has been reduced to fifteen per cent. or more, below any other city of the Province under the same conditions of operation. Even the cities where natural gas can be sold at a fraction of the price of the artificial the advantage is more or less in favor of the Guelph figures, while on the other hand Fort William runs 50 per cent. higher on the total.

And not all the profits have been used to the reduction of the tax rate. As these conditions indicate, the reductions to the consumers have been considerable. It is shown by figures that on an ordinary six-roomed house the reduction since 1902 in taxes, water, gas and electric rates would be as $66.34 to $42.71, $20.63, or almost a third. All the public utilities are floating themselves and are rolling up financial surpluses. The city this year gets a straight reduction of eight mills on the tax rate, besides the reduction in the different rates, and if the amounts which are being used up in surpluses were devoted to the same channel it is estimated that the rate this year would not be fourteen, but ten mills.

AS COMPARED WITH GLASGOW.

Then how does the Glasgow of Canada compare with the Glasgow of Scotland. The comparison is interesting, and it is made on the information supplied on the authority of the Lord Provost. A residence valued at £1,200 or $6,000 is instanced, and the total taxes are figured on police, roads, rivers, parks, lighting, water and other rates at £27 3s 3d., or $132.00, as compared with taxes on a house of the same value in Guelph, with water and gas rates $117.78, an advantage of $14.22, which is more than doubled when it is considered that on Guelph's basis of taxation a $6,000 house does not go down for more than $4,500, and that thus some $21 is saved in taxes.

Until now Guelph has had only a volunteer fire brigade, but there is an agitation for something better, while the underwriters have promised that in view of the very favorable conditions and small risks a brigade of four permanent firemen will procure the lowest fire rating in the Dominion.

BY GOVERNMENT COMMISSION.

Guelph has taken the foremost step in municipal ownership, and there is now a step contemplated to make the Royal City the first city in Canada to dispense with the aldermanic form of government, and to appoint a paid commission to govern the whole city, with a "City Business Manager" as the active head and the Mayor the Chief Magistrate. It is an idea yet in the first stages, but it is creating public interest. Sentiment has been raised against a Board of Control by the example of the conditions in Toronto, and particularly in Montreal.

The present state of municipal ownership in Guelph has been reached by slow stages of evolution. The waterworks was originally a municipal venture, but the real radical step was taken twenty-two years ago, when the city invested $193,000 in the Guelph Junction railway to get connections with the C.P.R. For years this was a civic white elephant but now, as a connecting link with the Guelph & Goderich, under a lease to the C.P.R., it brings $25,000 profit a year, and this promises to be doubled. Later came the purchase of the gas and electric light plants, and the street railway, and all are making money for the municipality. Fifty-five thousand dollars have been expended on improvements to the gas plant, and now $125,000 are being spent on the waterworks, with great changes contemplated in the power and light plant to distribute Niagara power.

NARROW ESCAPE

Women in Dire Peril in Burning Launch at Brockville —Had to Swim Ashore.

Brockville, June 29.—A marine disaster involving the lives of seven persons was narrowly averted on the St. Lawrence, a short distance from Brockville, yesterday afternoon in the "Swift Water," one of the most dangerous places between here and Gananoque.

The launch Argo, recently finished by a local firm for C. W. McLean, son-in-law of Mrs. Senator Fulford, had set out for a short cruise. In the boat with Mr. McLean were Mrs. McLean, Master George T. Fulford, Miss Fanny Sherriff and B. R. Sherriff, Brockville, and Miss Vaux of Toronto, and the builder, Fred Gilbert, and Bert Fraser. The Argo was only launched last week, and was a very trim craft, but is now a total loss, partly insured.

The Argo had proceeded as far as McDonald's Point, but the engine, being new, was not running smoothly, and the decision was reached to return home. When the "Swift Water" was reached, the front carburetor became flooded, and the second choked, and without warning a blaze shot up. The two men in charge brought into use an extinguisher, but the blaze had gained instant headway and the occupants had to jump overboard. All in the party, including little Geo. Fulford, were excellent swimmers and while no rescuers were in sight at the time, two or three calls for assistance brought out three rowboats, and all were picked up.

The launch drifted to Bayview, near H. S. Brown's boat house, the fire having melted the solder in the tank, allowing thirty-five gallons of gasoline to leak out and burn.

Pastor Supports Foster.

Chicago, June 29.—Dr. Donald D. MacLaurin, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, tendered his resignation to the Chicago Baptist Ministerial Conference in a letter read yesterday before the conference.

He based his action on the expulsion of Prof. George Burman Foster, because of beliefs expounded in his book, "The Function of Religion." The resignation came as a shock to the ministers.

Killed Watching Storm.

Essex, June 29—Roy Murray, eight-year-old son of Frank Murray, employed by the Michigan Central Bridge department, was struck by lightning and instantly killed while lying in the roof of a shed near his home, a few miles from here.

The young lad was taking to a companion, as they watched the approach of the storm. He was struck by the first flash. His friend at his side was unhurt.

Painful Curiosity.

Brockville, June 29.—A lad named Dowdall ran across a fog signal at the home of a railway brakeman and started experimenting by driving a nail into it. In the explosion that followed, the hand was lacerated and one finger blown off.

PROBABILITIES.

Wednesday, fine, stationary or slightly higher temperature.

CALL FOR ADVICE FROM EXPERTS

Quebec Bridge Engineering Board Invites Advice of Engineers

Ottawa, June 29.—The engineering board of the Quebec Bridge has not been able to agree as to whether the present piers will be sufficient to carry the new structure. The piers were built to carry a bridge weighing thirty-five thousand tons and the new structure will weight fifty thousand tons.

The statute under which the commission was appointed to prepare bridge plans provides that, in any case where the engineers fail to agree in opinion on any point, the advise of two additional engineers shall be obtained. Henry Holgate, C.E., of Montreal, and Alfred Noble, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania tunnel at New York, have accepted an invitation to give an opinion whether the present piers are sufficient, whether the span should be shortened by building additional piers further out in the river, or whether the bridge should be erected on a new site.

MURDER STILL A MYSTERY

Winnipeg, June 29.—Chas. F. Hornfeck was discharged yesterday on a charge of murdering Louise Pearl James. The prosecution fell down woefully, the most damaging evidence being a confession written by the prisoner. An alibi was established by the defence, which showed that the accused was not within ten miles of the city on the day of the murder. A precedent was established when C. P. Fullerton, for the defence, called the prisoner to the witness-box to testify at his preliminary trial. Louis James, the husband of the murdered woman, did not appear to give evidence, and the case was closed. The next action of the crown is watched for with interest.

Too Free With Firearms.

Belleville, June 29.—Senior Judge Deroche tried a Mohawk Indian, Isaac Green, charged with shooting H. A. Fish, a suitor for his daughter's hand, with intent, some weeks ago. Green, who is a respected resident of the reserve, had been in jail ever since, bail being refused. His honor reduced the charge to common assault, and fined Green $20 and costs, amounting to over $100.

Barbara Heck Memorial.

Prescott, June 29.—Unveiling ceremony July 1. The unveiling of the Barbara Heck monument will take place at the grave in the blue church cemetery, on the banks of the St. Lawrence River, three miles west of Prescott, at 10 a.m. July 1. Bishop Hamilton, D.D. of Boston; Rev. Dr. Carman of Toronto, and other distinguished clergymen are expected to deliver addresses.

Ran In Front of Train.

Montreal, June 29.—Percy Kilgallon, aged 18, son of Councillor Kilgallon, of Montreal south, was cut to pieces yesterday morning on the G.T.R. tracks at Mountain street. He came to the city from his suburban home on a train which slowed down at the crossing, and he decided to get off. While crossing the tracks he was cut down by an outward-bound express.

THE CHIEF ENGINER QUITS AND REFUSES TO EXPLAIN

Trouble on Transcontinental Commission Results in the Resignation of Huge D. Lumsden—Believed to Have Quarrelled Over Arbitrary Behavior Regarding Contracts.

Ottawa, June 29.—Hugh D. Lumsden, chief engineer since the National Transcontinental Railway Commission was organized in 1904, resigned his post. He gives no explanation.

"I have my reasons," he said, "but I am not going to say anything about them."

As his appointment was made by the Government itself, his letter of resignation goes to the Minister of Railways, and as Mr. Graham will not return to town till Wednesday, its contents remain unknown. Hon. Mr. Parent, chairman of the commission, regards this fact as imposing on him an obligation to remain quiet.

This event comes as a climax to the steady and persistent rumors of trouble over the classification on district F, the stretch from Winnipeg to Superior Junction. It was over this section and the classification upon it, that Major Hodgins came to grief. His charges were succeeded by even more serious allegations of over-classification made by the G.T.P. Co. through its assistant engineer, Woods.

More recently it became necessary for the cost of the section to be ascertained, as the time was drawing near for the G.T.P. to take it over. A board of arbitration, was appointed, consisting of Collingwood Schreiber, formerly Deputy Minister of Railways, and now Government consulting engineer for the G.T.P., as chairman, and Mr. Kelliher, chief engineer of the G.T.P., and Mr. Lumsden, as members.

It is stated that there have been complaints as to the arbitrary methods of the board of arbitration, that, for instance, they have refused to give a hearing to contractors and district engineers. The result of such a proceeding would be that if the contractors took into court the matter of a disputed account, and were allowed by the court a higher payment than that allowed by the board, the Government would be paying the full price, while the G.T.P. Railway would only pay interest on the reduced amount. This procedure it is said has helped to bring about the strained relations between the board, and in particular Mr. Lumsden, and the commission.

EXCURSION OF "OLD BRIGADE"

DR. PRINGLE AT SIDNEY N. S.

Halifax, N.S., June 29.—Rev. Dr. Pringle addressed a very large congregation in St. Andrew's Church, Sydney, Sunday evening, on the work of the Presbyterian General Assembly, and gave an explicit statement of the position which he took in the assembly on the question of social and moral reform, saying:

"A great many things have been said about me and my speech on that occasion, and that the preacher has no business to meddle in politics. My answer to that is that I shall meddle in politics. It is the business of Christ's ministers to destroy the works of the devil, whenever they appear. I shall not cease to denounce vile characters in public offices and the vile things done by them. I exaggerated nothing, but stated the plain cold truth."

WILL ENDORSE THE ADMIRALTY

London, June 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Cabinet committee appointed to investigate Lord Charles Beresford's charges against the Admiralty and the policy of administration hopes to finish its work this week. Probably the report will not be made public, but it is generally understood that the judgment of the committee will be entirely favorable to the Admiralty.

Fournier Stays In Jail.

Quebec, June 29.—Justices Carroll and Lavergne, sitting in appeal, rendered their decision yesterday in the habeas corpus case of Fournier, editor of Le Nationaliste, condemned to three months of incarceration in the district jail for libel.

A DROWNING AT HANOVER

Hanover, June 29.—[illegible] evening the Saugeen River claimed a victim. Miss Alice Wright, daughter of Wm. Wright, who, in company with another young lady and two young men had gone to bathe in the river.

When leaving home, she had girlishly clapped her hands, saying she was delighted to go bathing, and called good-bye to her parents and sisters. The party went half a mile down the river in a canoe and then went into the water. Miss Wright attempted to swim across, but got tired. One of the young men went to her rescue and would also have drowned had not the other young man rescued him.

Miss Wright was a graduate nurse from Kenora (Ont.) hospital, and was engaged to be married to a young doctor, now in England.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE A BOY ?

St. Catharines, June 29.—St. Catharines may claim the distinction of having the finest troop of Baden-Powell boy scouts in Canada. It was organized last January, and has got into shape for work and instruction while troops are just being organized elsewhere.

The troop is composed of boys from all the schools, and comprises four patrols of seven men each. H. Neelon is scout master, with W. Griffin second in command. Patrol leaders are S. Lovelace, E. Caverhill, James McMenemy and A. Ireland. The boy scouts, under Sir Baden-Powell's plan, are for instruction in woodcraft, tracking and stalking, fire-lighting, cooking, straw mattress making, tent and hut erecting, knot-tying, signalling and Morse code telegraphing, life saving, first aid and general ambulance work.

HIS SKULL MAY BE FRACTURED BY FALL

William Hamilton of Concession St. Ashburnham Fell off C.P.R. Bridge and Was Seriously Injured---Was Stepping Back From Freight Train.

Owing to an accident he met with yesterday afternoon about 5.30, Mr. William Hamilton, an old man who lives on Concession street, Ashburnham, is lying in St. Joseph's hospital in a serious condition. Mr. Hamilton was walking across the C.P.R. bridge at the time mentioned when a freight was approaching the station. He was standing at the centre pier of the bridge, and in stepping back went over the side of the bridge and fell on the stones about fifteen feet below. He was badly injured around the head and face, and it was reported from the hospital this afternoon that it is feared he may have sustained a fractured skull. Both his eyes are blackened and closed, and when he was brought to the hospital yesterday afternoon the lids were full of blood.

The injured man is in a stupor today and has been in a semi-conscious condition since he was taken to the hospital.

After he had fallen off the bridge he was assisted into a passing canoe by a couple of men who were at the scene of the accident and was paddled to the shore.

The Dan Spence ambulance was then called and he was removed to the hospital.

ARTILLERY AT COBOURG; 10TH BRIGADE C. F. A.

Camp Cobourg,
10th Brigade, C.F.A.
June 28, 1909.

Orders issued June 28;

On July 1st—Inspection Day—at an hour specified later, a Gymkana will be held on the camp grounds, consisting of the following events;

Baseball match between the 14th and 24th Batteries.

Tug of War, teams of four.

Bare back wrestling, teams of four.

Victoria Cross race.

Half mile steeple chase, mounted, four jumps.

Midnight alarm.

Wrestling contest Sgt. Douglas Young son of Major Young, versus Gunner Fox—both weigh about 50 pounds

All officers and men of the Brigade paraded at the Exhibition park for observation of fire this afternoon. The balance of the day was spent in cleaning up.

On Sunday morning at 10 o'clock divine service was held on the parade grounds. The Cobourg Garrison Artillery headed by their band marched from their armories to the grounds and both 14th and 24th Batteries attended also, when a short and eloquent sermon was delivered by Rev Canon Spragge, after which the balance of the day belonged to the boys.

A large number of visitors gathered and the working of the guns were explained to them and they were pleased with the courteous manner in which they were treated.

Today both batteries had a march down town and afterwards practiced standing gun drill.

It is rumored that the 24th Battery will leave here, route march for Peterborough on Friday morning at 4 o'clock.

The weather has been all that is required but is rather hot.

At a meeting of the Sergeants mess O.R. Sergt. R. Hay was elected Sec.-Treas., and Sergt F. Durien, both of the 24th Battery, one of the Executive Committee.

One of the members of the 24th Battery met with an accident on Saturday. While mounting a horse the horse struck the heel rope of another and was thrown, the rider falling on his face. He was removed to the hospital tent but today he is feeling pretty good. His nose was broken and his mouth cut.

The grub dished up is very good and there are very few complaints. Men and horses cannot be better and they all look like old campaigners.

The appearance of the 24th is certainly good and their conduct both on and off the lines ditto.

Major [illegible] W. H. Young, OC. of the 24th Battery and his officers are complimented on all sides. The Major is certainly a popular officer. His little boy Douglas has been fitted out with a uniform with the rank of Sergeant and he struts around like a peacock. He is a great little fellow and is quite a favorite.

The Non-Coms. of the brigade have been invited by the Cobourg Garrison Artillery to a smoker tonight at the armories.

FOUL PLAY IS SUSPECTED

Windsor, June 29.—The [illegible] decomposed remains of John J. Kenny, aged 23, a former employe of the Detroit River Tunnel, who disappeared last February, were found in the Detroit River yesterday. Relatives are sure foul play was committed, as Kenny was last seen alive in company with two strangers at an hotel. He had a small amount of money and a gold watch at that time. Yesterday the money and watch were missing, although letters were found in the pockets. Coroner Labell has deemed an inquest unnecessary.

HANDWRITING EXPERTS ROASTED

New York, June 29.—The end of the trial of Broughton Brandenburg, charged with grand larceny, in connection with the sale of an alleged spurious letter of Grover Cleveland to The New York Times, Oswald N. Jacoby, summing up for Brandenburg, declared that if the article was written by Grover Cleveland, the question of whether the signature was genuine or not was immaterial. He read passages from the article, which he said, no one else but Cleveland could have written, and concluded with an attack on the hand-writing experts, who had testified against Brandenburg. He called their profession despicable.

Rev. Mr. Manning of St, James Church Was Presented With Purse of Gold and an Address Last Night

A large number of the congregation of St. James' Methodist church met last night at the home of Mr. Thomas Brown, McGill street, and presented Rev. Mr. Manning and family, who were also present, with a purse of gold, accompanied by an address. The Rev. Mr. Manning has been a faithful and consistent worker ever since he came to this city, and the affair last night was an evidence that his congregation have appreciated his efforts in their behalf. His wife and family have also done their part, and will be greatly missed in the Sunday school and the societies of the church. Rev. Mr. Manning's next charge will be in Whitby.

The presentation was made by Mrs. W. S. Robinson while Mrs. J. Mann read the following address;

The members of St. James' Methodist desire to place on record our sincere and hearty appreciation of the valuable service rendered to our church by our esteemed pastor and his family.

We also desire to express to him our warmest admiration and great satisfaction with the manner in which he has conducted all the interest of the church, his forceful and eloquent pulpit administrations have been a blessing to many of us and acceptable to all and we feel certain the spirituality of the membership is much higher through his faithful presentation of the old old story from week to week.

THE BIGGEST CATCH YET

Mr. C, Frost Gets 25 Pounder at Bald Point

Mr. C. Frost, of the Baker Lumber Company, claims the honor of catching the largest fish that has been caught in the Kawartha waters this season. It was a dandy and weighs 25 pounds. Mr. Frost caught him in the Big Bay, near Bald Point, and had considerable difficulty in landing him.

MEXICO WANTS MUCH GRAIN

Government Has Abolished Duty on Wheat Until Sept. 1st.

Vancouver, B.C., June 29.—Owing to the severe drought in Mexico, the Government has entirely abolished the duty on wheat until Sept. 15, according to advices received yesterday. This means that the export of Alberta grain to Mexico, via Vancouver, this season will be large, as much being shipped as can be landed at Mexican ports prior to the date on which the duty will again become operative. Shipping and grain men here, however, look upon Sept. 15 as too early a date for the reimposition of the duty, and it may be possible to have the open season extended for sixty days. It is said that the dry season is the worst that has been experienced in Mexico in eighty years. Crops have literally withered to chaff.

QUEBEC HAS ANOTHER SURPLUS

Montreal, June 29.—Another surplus over the half million mark is promised by Hon. W. A. Weir, Provincial Treasurer. The record of $1,035,000 was set last year, when the Federal subsidy was increased by $600,000 and there was no provision made for its expenditure.

There is a falling off in the revenue from the crown lands, due to the greater number of wooded lots granted to settlers. On other points the revenue is well up to the mark. The succession duties will produce an unprecedented revenue. Montreal alone contributing $150,000.

THE OGILVIE'S CROP REPORT

Winnipeg, June 24.—The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co.'s weekly report shows a very satisfactory position existing with respect to the growing crop.

During the past week copious rains have fallen, which, together with other favorable weather conditions, have placed the crop in a most excellent condition. Generally speaking, summer fallow fields are very heavy, spring plowing and stubble are a very good average, and all is stooling out well.

The earlier sown wheat is starting to come into shot blade.

IS KILLED IN FIGHT

Michael Kelly Dead as Result of Row Near Barrie.

Phelpston, June 29.—A very unfortunate affair occurred on Sunday about two miles west of Crossland postoffice, about six miles northwest of here, between neighbors. A man named Michael Kelly and James and William Smith have been on bad terms for some time, and the trouble culminated Sunday in a fight, and later Kelly died.

It appears that Kelly came out of his house and met the Smith boys driving in a buggy, in search of their cow, which Kelly had put in the pound. He seized the horse's head and stopped the rig, and then proceeded to club William Smith with a stick in his hands. William Smith jumped out of the buggy, but became entangled in the lines and fell. In the meantime Kelly was belaboring him with the club. The other brother, James, got out of the rig pulled Kelly off his brother Will, who started to run away, but returned, picked up the stick that Kelly had been beating him with, and struck Kelly on the head, knocking him down. Kelly got up and went to his house and died yesterday morning. An inquest is being held to determine the cause of death.

The Smith brothers were arrested yesterday and locked up at Elmvale, to await the outcome of an inquest which Coroner McLinton will conduct on Wednesday.

TUG FIREMAN DROWNS AT SOO

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 29.—John Nalmburg of the Michigan Soo, fireman on the tug Schenck, was drowned at the Canadian locks yesterday afternoon. Nalmburg, down below, heard the noise and ran up. It is not known whether the breaking of the line on the tug swept him over or whether he attempted to jump to the pier.

THAT CANADIAN NAVY

The idea of having Canada go into the navy business is that she shall be able always to lend her help in that way towards the protection of the empire. Roughly speaking, the colonies have half the white population of the United Kingdom, and, if we judge by the returns per capita, quite as much ability to "do" their share if the ability and desire are both admitted, as they seem to be, the way to "do" it is merely a matter of time and common sense. It is absurd to talk of our having a navy that will protect our own shores! It would take, in case of necessity, the whole Imperial fleet to do that. A few cruisers, such as some suggest, would hardly make a mouthful for a leading power, except as part of a larger force. It must be, therefore, as a unit of an aggregate navy that Canadians are to discuss their contribution. If the admirals-in-chief or the Admiralty Board decide that we can best help them in any particular way, that way we should adopt. But the idea that simply because we wish to maintain or increase our autonomy, therefore, we are to pretend to do that which, being carried out, means an expensive burlesque in a "horse of another color," and something too unreasonable to discuss. In fact, if we are to begin and maintain a "wee navy" as a nucleus for greater things some day, and as a pledge both to and for our autonomy, then we are surely on the high-road to independence. It must be remembered that it is possible to be a working unit without losing one particle of our autonomy. But, being a working unit is one thing and having a navy of our own is another. The Laurier Government has done many mad and extravagant things, but if it has succeeded in persuading "the old people" that this plan is the only feasible one, it will have beaten its record by a whole lot.

WESTERN FARM LANDS

It has been proved with government statistics that Canada's unoccupied free lands extended up to the billions of acres. The proofs are all right both as to climate and latitude, only the land isn't there. Canada's free lands extended to the Pole all right, only they are not farm lands. It is perfectly true that if you add up the long sunlight of the almost nightless Northern summer it totals more hours than the sunlight farther to the south and ripens wheat fast enough to escape early frost. Wheat grows on Peace River and on the Athabasca and kitchen gardens flourish round the fur posts of the Mackenzie; but the point is that when you go seventy miles north of the Saskatchewan arable lands exists only in small patches. The rest of the north country is sand, muskeg, rock —nature's great fur preserve on this continent for all time to come.

This limits the remaining wheat area of the Canadian Northwest, from the boundary on the south to a strip seventy miles or thereabouts north of the Saskatchewan, with a few additional patches on the Upper Fraser, sections but only small sections on the Peace, and Grand Prairie of Lesser Slave Lake. Coming down the Saskatchewan what did we find. Settlers north of the Saskatchewan as far back as fifty miles. Betwen the Saskatchewan and the boundary the best lands have already been culled out and are held at advance prices; and the remaining free lands were being taken up at the rate of a quarter of a million farms a person before the "panic year." As for the east end of the Saskatchewan, it is not a farming country at all— Agnes C. Laut, in Century Magazine.

SOMEWHAT AMUSING

A man or a newspaper wedded to an idea that they do not understand is always amusing. The "Preference" is to be withdrawn from British goods not entering by a Canadian port. If this is not a measure of that Protection which the Globe affects to despise and which the Laurier Government long ago adopted we would like to know what it is. Surely it is restraint of trade. By no possible means can it be tortured to mean freedom of trade. That it is a wise provision for the benefit of Canada all will admit and that it is a thing for which we are distinctly grateful. But that it, in any way, partakes of the principle of letting trade go free and unconstrained whither it will, we promptly deny. Will the Globe acknowledge the propriety of the Government's action or will it call down that Government for doing something which it has so often, so vehemently and so inconsistently condemned? It will not. It will go on aiding and abetting the Laurier Government in the practice of protection while denouncing the same in its leading articles. Liberals wonder why the Globe has gone up in circulation while going down in popular influence. The answer is at hand. It is no cut-and-dried party paper. It is a comic daily. Its news service is good and its sporting column worth while but when it comes to "trade," why there you are!

THE GYPSIES

We have seen the greasers, read of them, heard of them and know of them and largely of their doings in and about the County of Peterborough and we have no hesitation in saying that in our opinion no municipality should be called upon to act as policeman for the province in bringing to a stop their wild career. There is nothing to prevent, if the Dominion Government will not and the Provincial Government will not, any gang of hoodlums or tramps from going through the province like "a gale of wind thro' a country village" and just as destructively. When the Provincial Government was apprised of the number and actions of the immigrants let into Canada by the officials of of the Dominion government it should have taken steps then to protect the province and not have allowed the municipalities under its protection and for whose benefit it exists, to become the victims of lawlessness and of a faulty system of provincial police. The expense that the county has been put to should be recouped at once. Warden Scott has had an anxious and aggravating time of it and the indifference of the provincial police at headquarters has not helped matters with him by any means. No blame is attachable to Mr. Scott or to anyone in the county's service or the city's either. It is up to the province, however, either to do justly or to appeal to the Laurier Government to do the square thing in this vexatious business and not to allow the people of the province to be made the continued victims of riot and robbery. It is not too much to say that the gypsy pilgrimage has caused a feeling of alarm in the minds of those who had expected better things under like circumstances.

REV. J. R. TENEY RETIRING RECTOR HONORED

On the eve of his departure from Omemee to take charge of St. Philip's Church, Toronto, the Rev. J. R. Teney was presented by each of his three congregations with an address and purse, the latter amounting to $150.00. For nearly eight years Mr. Teney has ministered to the congregations of Omemee and Emily, and his departure occasions much regret, not only to his own people, but to the whole community, and the above presentations gave expression to the affection and esteem in which he was justly held.

During the time of his ministry here, he has been supported by his wife, who, in the midst of much domestic care, found time, at considerable sacrifice to herself, to devote to the work of the Sunday school, and the Women's Auxiliary, of which latter she was president. At their last meeting the members of the W. A. presented Mrs. Teney with a hot water kettle of polished brass, and a gold bar attachment for the W.A. cross, bearing the word "Omemee."

The retiring rector and his family leave behind them in Omemee and Emily hosts of friends, whose best wishes follow them to their new abode. Sunday next, July 4th, will be Mr. Teney's first Sunday in his new parish, his induction by Bishop Sweeney taking place the following night.

LATE HAPPENINGS AROUND BETHEL

Special to the Review.

Bethel, June 26—A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mrs. Chas Mills, Emily, on Wednesday, June 16th when her daughter, Lily J. Mills was united in marriage to Mr. Wilfrid J. Jackson.

The bride, who was given away by her brother George, looked charming in a dress of white muslin trimmed with lace and insertion and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations. At the hour of 6.30 pm, the organ was heard to peal forth the sweet strains of Mendelssohn's march rendered by Miss Ella Switzer. The marriage took place under a very pretty arch of evergreens and flowers, on the lawn.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. McCulloch of Omemee, assisted by the Rev G MacKenzie, of Bethel. The bride was attended by her sister Annie of Rochester and the groom was ably supported by Mr. Eugene Switzer.

After the ceremony was performed one hundred guests sat down to a sumptuous supper and a very pleasant evening was spent.

The presents received by the bride were numerous and costly showing the esteem in which she was held by her many friends.

The bride's going away dress was a suit of brown satin cloth with cream over lace waist and hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson have settled in their home on the farm opposite the Bethel church where their many friends wish them a happy and prosperous life.

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS

(Department of Agriculture)

The proud owner says "This is a high-grade Canadian, and this is a pure bred Holstein." The admiring visitor to the cow stable remarks, "What beautiful cows!" The thoughtful student asks, "What yield of milk and fat do they give?" The practical man enquires, "What does their milk cost?" And the hard business sense of the dairyman leads him to determine cost of production of milk and fat through the medium of Cow Testing Associations. The high grade may give but a poor weight of milk, the pure bred may test low, while the common grade may possibly be producing milk at the lowest cost. No one knows definitely just what the cost is until some record is kept; milk may cost 92 cents per 100 lbs.; fat, 25 cents per lb.; these cost prices may be up to $2.00 milk and 50 cents per pound of fat with some poor cows, or they may be reduced by good, economical feeders to 35 cents per 100, and 10 cents per lb.

This all goes to prove that the careful dairyman, and particularly the average, and possibly careless farmer, should take immediate steps to find out what profit each cow brings in. Enormous improvement and largely increased profits have been made by the men who are sufficiently alive to their own interests to weigh and sample each cow's milk regularly and keep a record of feed consumed. Blank forms for milk and feed records are supplied free on application to the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa. A good record for this month from a herd of 18 cows is an average of 1020 lbs. milk, 3.9 test, 39 lbs. fat. One grade in the herd gave 1530 lbs. milk, testing 4.0 per cent. fat.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 28.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending June 26 were 2350 cattle, 375 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 1450 calves. The offerings this morning for local consumption were 1000 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 100 calves. A feature of the market was the continued scarcity of good to choice steers, and prices for such were stronger, but the lower grades of cattle were more plentiful than a week ago, and prices in consequence show a decline of ¼c to ½c per lb. The gathering of buyers was large, and, in spite of the very warm weather, the demand for top quality stock was good, but the trade in the commoner grades was rather slow, even at the above reduction in values. There was a fair demand from exporters on account of the continued strong cable advices which were received from Liverpool, which reported trade very firm at a further advance in prices of ¼c to ½c per lb., with sales of choice Canadians at as high as 14½c, and ranchers at 13½c per pound. On the strength of this, exporters paid 6c to 6½c per pound for steers, but some holders were asking as high as 7¼c for extra choice stall-fed steers, but the top figure paid for such was 6¾c for local consumption, and the bulk of the trade was done in choice stock at 6¼c to 6½c, with good at 5¾c to 6c. The best grass-fed steers sold at 5c to 5¼c; medium at 4½c to 4¾c, and lower grades at 3c to 4c per lb. The demand for bulls was good, and some choice ones brought 5¼c to 5¾c, and good 4¾c to 5¼c per pound. There was no further change in the condition of the market for hogs since this day week; but, as supplies were again limited, the undertone to the market was strong at the late advance in prices, in spite of the fact that cable advices from all the leading foreign markets on Canadian bacon last week were weaker and noted a decline in values of 2s to 4s per cwt., compared with the previous week. The demand for hogs here was good, and an active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $8.75 to $8.85 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. Supplies of small meats were fair, for which the demand was good, and a fairly active trade was done at steady prices. Sheep sold at 3½c to 4c per lb. Lambs brought from $3 to $5 each, and calves ranged from $2 to $8 each, as to quality.

At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts for the week ending June 26 were 1917 cattle and 453 sheep for export account, and 850 cattle, 588 sheep and lambs, 732 hogs and 1226 calves for local consumption. The supply offered on the market this morning consisted of 300 steers, 125 cows, 25 bulls, 250 sheep, 105 lambs, 75 hogs and 150 calves. The trade in cattle was fairly active. Good to choice stock was scarce and strong, while the supply of common was plentiful and cheaper. Extra choice steers sold at 6¾c; choice at 6¼c to 6½c; good at 5¾c to 6c, and the lower grades at from 4c to 5c per lb. Cows brought from 3c to 4½c, and bulls from 4¼c to 5¼c per lb.

Veals—Receipts, 1600 head; active and steady, $6 to $8.

Hogs—Receipts, 8000 head; active and 10c to 25c higher; heavy, $8.25 to $8.40; mixed, $8.30 to $8.40; yorkers, $7.65 to $8.25; pigs, $7.50; roughs, $7 to $7.25; stags, $5.50 to $6.25; dairies, $7.60 to $8.15.

The Woman In the Alcove

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,

Author of "The Millionaire Baby," "The Filigree Ball," "The House in the Mist," "The Amethyst Box," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY.

Having thus provided an alibi, not only for himself but for his master, too, in case he should need it, he took the direct road to the nearest railway station and started on his long ride east. He did not expect to overtake the man he had been personating, but fortune was kinder than is usual in such cases, and, owing to a delay caused by some accident to a freight train, he arrived in Chicago within a couple of hours of Mr. Fairbrother, and started out of that city on the same train. But not on the same car. Sears had caught a glimpse of Fairbrother on the platform and was careful to keep out of his sight. This was easy enough. He bought a compartment in the sleeper and stayed in it till they arrived at the Grand Central station. Then he hastened out and, fortune favoring him with another glimpse of the man in whose movements he was so interested, followed him into the streets.

Fairbrother had shaved off his beard before leaving El Moro. Sears had shaved his off on the train. Both were changed, the former the more owing to a peculiarity of his mouth which up till now he had always thought best to cover. Sears therefore walked behind him without fear and was almost at his heels when this owner of one of New York's most notable mansions entered with a spruce air the doors of a prominent caterer.

Understanding the plot now and having everything to fear for his mistress, he walked the streets for some hours in a state of great indecision. Then he went up to her apartment. But he had no sooner come within sight of it than a sense of disloyalty struck him, and he slunk away, only to come sidling back when it was too late and she had started for the ball.

Trembling with apprehension, but still strangely divided in his impulses, wishing to serve master and mistress both without disloyalty to the one or injury to the other, he hesitated and argued with himself till his fears for the latter drove him to Mr. Ramsdell's house.

The night was a stormy one. The heaviest snow of the season was falling, with a high gale blowing down the sound. As he approached the house, which, as we know, is one of the modern ones in the Riverside district, he felt his heart fail him. But as he came nearer and got the full effect of glancing lights, seductive music and the cheery bustle of crowding carriages he saw in his mind's eye such a picture of his beautiful mistress, threatened unknown to herself in a quarter she little realized, that he lost all sense of what had hitherto deterred him. Making then and there his great choice, he looked about for the entrance with the full intention of seeing and warning her.

But this, he presently perceived, was totally impracticable. He could neither go to her nor expect her to come to him. Meanwhile time was passing, and if his master was there— The thought made his head dizzy, and, situated as he was among the carriages, he might have been run over in his confusion if his eyes had not suddenly fallen on a lighted window, the shade of which had been inadvertently left up.

Within this window, which was only a few feet above his head, stood the glowing image of a woman clad in pink and sparkling with jewels. Her face was turned from him, but he recognized her splendor as that of the one woman who could never be too gorgeous for his taste, and, alive to this unexpected opportunity, he made for this window with the intention of shouting up to her and so attracting her attention.

But this proved futile, and, driven at last to the end of his resources, he tore out a slip of paper from his notebook and in the dark and with the blinding snow in his eyes wrote the few broken sentences which he thought would best warn her without compromising his master. The means he took to reach her with this note I have already related. As soon as he saw it in her hands he fled the place and took the first train west. He was in a pitiable condition when, three days later, he reached the small station from which he had originally set out. The haste, the exposure, the horror of the crime he had failed to avert, had undermined his hitherto excellent constitution, and the symptoms of a serious illness were beginning to make themselves manifest. But he, like his indomitable master, possessed a great fund of energy and will power. He saw that if he was to save Abner Fairbrother (and now that Mrs. Fairbrother was dead his old master was all the world to him) he must make Fairbrother's alibi good by carrying on the deception as planned by the latter and getting as soon as possible to his camp in the New Mexico mountains. He knew that he would have strength to do this, and he went about it without sparing himself.

Making his way into the mountains, he found the guide and his horse at the place agreed upon and, paying the guide enough for his services to insure a quiet tongue, rode back toward El Moro, where he was met and sent on to Santa Fe as already related.

Such is the real explanation of the well nigh unintelligible scrawl found in Mrs. Fairbrother's hand after her death. As to the one which left Miss Grey's bedside for this same house, it was, alike in the writing and sending, the loving freak of a very sick but tender hearted girl. She had noted the look with which Mr. Grey had left her, and, in her delirious state, thought that a line in her own hand would convince him of her good condition and make it possible for him to enjoy the evening. She was, however, too much afraid of her nurse to write it openly, and though we never found that scrawl, it was doubtless not very different in appearance from the one with which I had confounded it. The man to whom it was intrusted stopped for too many warming drinks on his way for it ever to reach Mr. Ramsdell's house. He did not even return home that night, and when he did put in an appearance the next morning, he was dismissed.

This takes me back to the ball and Mrs. Fairbrother. She had never had much fear of her husband till she received his old servant's note in the peculiar manner already mentioned. This, coming through the night and the wet and with all the marks of hurry upon it, did impress her greatly and led her to take the first means which offered of ridding herself of her dangerous ornament. The story of this we know.

Meanwhile a burning heart and a scheming brain were keeping up their deadly work a few paces off under the impassive aspect and active movements of the caterer's newly hired waiter. Abner Fairbrother, whose real character no one had ever been able to sound, unless it was the man who had known him in his days of struggle, was one of those dangerous men who can conceal under a still brow and a noiseless manner the most violent passions and the most desperate resolves. He was angry with his wife, who was deliberately jeopardizing his good name, and he had come there to kill her if he found her flaunting the diamond in Mr. Grey's eyes; and though no one could have detected any change in his look and manner as he passed through the room where these two were standing, the doom of that fair woman was struck when he saw the eager scrutiny and indescribable air of recognition with which this long defrauded gentleman eyed his own diamond.

He had meant to attack her openly, seize the diamond, fling it at Mr. Grey's feet and then kill himself. That had been his plan. But when he found after a round or two among the guests that nobody looked at him and nobody recognized the well known millionaire in the automaton-like figure with the formally arranged whiskers and sleekly combed hair, colder purposes intervened, and he asked himself if it would not be possible to come upon her alone, strike his blow, possess himself of the diamond and make for parts unknown before his identity could be discovered. He loved life even without the charm cast over it by this woman. Its struggles and its hard bought luxuries fascinated him. If Mr. Grey suspected him, why, Mr. Grey was English and he a resourceful American. If it came to an issue, the subtle American would win if Mr. Grey were not able to point to the flaw which marked this diamond as his own. And this Fairbrother had provided against and would succeed in if he could hold his passions in check and be ready with all his wit when matters reached a climax.

Such were the thoughts and such the plans of the quiet, attentive man who, with his tray laden with coffee and ices, came and went an unnoticed unit among the twenty other units similarly quiet and similarly attentive. He waited on lady after lady, and when, on the reissuing of Mr. Durand from the alcove, he passed in there with his tray and his two cups of coffee nobody heeded and nobody remembered.

It was all over in a minute, and he came out, still unnoted, and went to the supper room for more cups of coffee. But that minute had set its seal on his heart forever. She was sitting there alone, with her side to the entrance, so that he had to pass around in order to face her. Her elegance and a certain air she had of remoteness from the scene of which she was the glowing center when she smiled, awed him and made his hand loosen a little on the slender stiletto he held close against the bottom of the tray. But such resolution does not easily yield, and his fingers soon tightened again, this time with a deadly grip.

He had expected to meet the flash of the diamond as he bent over her and dreaded doing so for fear it would attract his eye from her face and so cost him the sight of that startled recognition which would give the desired point to his revenge. But the tray, as he held it, shielded her breast from view, and when he lowered it to strike his blow he thought of nothing but aiming so truly as to need no second blow. He had had his experience in those old years in a mining camp, and he did not fear failure in this. What he did fear was her utterance of some cry, possibly his name, but she was stunned with horror and did not shriek—horror of him whose eyes she met with her glassy and staring ones as he slowly drew forth the weapon.

Why he drew it forth instead of leaving it in her breast he could not say. Possibly because it gave him his moment of gloating revenge. When in another instant her hands flew up and the tray tipped and the china fell the revulsion came, and his eyes opened to two facts—the instrument of death was still in his grasp, and the diamond, on whose possession he counted, was gone from his wife's breast.

It was a horrible moment. Voices could be heard approaching the alcove—laughing voices that in an instant would take on the note of horror. And the music—ah, how low it had sunk, as if to give place to the dying murmur he now heard issuing from her lips! But he was a man of iron. Thrusting the stiletto into the first place that offered, he drew the curtains over the staring windows, then slid out with his tray, calm, speckless and attentive as ever, dead to thought, dead to feeling, but aware, quite aware in the secret depths of his being that something besides his wife had been killed that night and that sleep and peace of mind and all pleasure in the past were gone forever.

It was not he I saw enter the alcove and come out with news of the crime. He left this role to one whose antecedents could better bear investigation. His part was to play, with just the proper display of horror and curiosity, the ordinary menial brought face to face with a crime in high life. He could do this. He could even sustain his share in the gossip, and for this purpose kept near the other waiters. The absence of the diamond was all that troubled him. That brought him at times to the point of vertigo. Had Mr. Grey recognized and claimed it? If so, he, Abner Fairbrother, must remain James Wellgood, the waiter, indefinitely. This would require more belief in his star than ever he had had yet. But as the moments passed and no contradiction was given to the universally received impression that the same hand which had struck the blow had taken the diamond, even this cause of anxiety left his breast, and he faced people with more and more courage till the moment when he suddenly heard that the diamond had been found in the possession of a man perfectly strange to him and saw the inspector pass it over into the hands of Mr. Grey.

Instantly he realized that the crisis of his fate was on him. If Mr. Grey were given time to identify this stone, he (Abner Fairbrother) was lost and the diamond as well. Could he prevent this? There was but one way, and that way he took. Making use of his ventriloquial powers—he had spent a year on the public stage in those early days, playing just such tricks as these—he raised the one cry which he knew would startle Mr. Grey more than any other in the world, and when the diamond fell from his hand, as he knew it would, he rushed forward and, in the act of picking it up, made that exchange which not only baffled the suspicions of the statesman, but restored to him the diamond, for whose possession he was now ready to barter half his remaining days.

Meanwhile Mr. Grey had had his own anxieties. During this whole long evening, he had been sustained by the conviction that the diamond of which he had caught but one passing glimpse was the Great Mogul of his once famous collection. So sure was he of this, that at one moment he found himself tempted to enter the alcove, demand a closer sight of the diamond and settle the question then and there. He even went so far as to take in his hands the two cups of coffee which should serve as his excuse for this intrusion, but his naturally chivalrous instincts again intervened, and he set the cups down again—this I did not see—and turned his steps toward the library with the intention of writing her a note instead. But though he found paper and pen to hand, he could find no words for so daring a request, and he came back into the hall, only to hear that the woman he had contemplated addressing had just been murdered and her great jewel stolen.

The shock was too much, and as there was no leaving the house then, he retreated again to the library where he devoured his anxieties in silence till hope revived again at sight of the diamond in the inspector's hand, only to vanish under the machinations of one he did not even recognize when he took the false jewel from his hand.

The American had outwitted the Englishman and the triumph of evil was complete.

GRAND SUCCESS

Wonderful Growth in Sales During 1908.

The year just passed will long be remembered for the financial and commercial depression. Business houses all over Canada were affected. Most of them show a loss over 1907. Some did about as much business last year as in the preceeding one. A few—a very few—show substantial gains. In spite of "hard times" and "financial depression" the sales of "Fruit-a-tives" doubled in 1908 over 1907.

The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada Limited bought "Fruit-a-tives" in 100 gross lots (14,000 boxes). Lyman Sons & Company of Montreal, and Lyman Brothers in Toronto, also ordered "Fruit-a-tives" by the hundred gross lots. These big wholesalers bought such big orders simply because the retail dealers ordered so many boxes of "Fruit-a-tives"—and the dealers had to keep "Fruit-a-tives" always in stock to supply the constantly growing demand of people in every section of Canada.

To-day, "Fruit-a-tives" are the most popular family medicine in the Dominion. In the big cities, in the smaller towns, on farms and ranches, "Fruit-a-tives" are the standby in curing all forms of Stomach, Liver, Bowel, Skin and Kidney Trouble, Rheumatism, Headaches and Neuralgia.

Are you a sufferer from any of the diseases? Don't hesitate a moment. Get a box of "Fruit-a-tives" — take them according to directions—and they will cure without fail. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FOR THE EPICURE.

Three Odd Dishes That Are Not Difficult to Prepare.

This is the way one woman utilizes stale brown bread crumbs and makes a quickly made dessert. She covers the bottom of a glass dish with powdered sugar and breadcrumbs mixed. Over this she puts a layer of whipped cream and a spoonful or two of preserves, then more crumbs and sugar and another layer of whipped cream and preserves. The cook who prepares this is a German, and she calls the simple dainty "gotterspeise."

Portuguese apples are prepared thus: Choose twelve apples, not too large and all of one size. Peel them and remove the core. Stew gently in sirup until tender, but not broken. Leave till cold. Place in a glass or silver dish, strain and then color the sirup pink and fill the hollow in each apple with red currant jelly, melted sufficiently to be poured in. For the sirup use a breakfastcupful of sugar, the same of water, the juice of one lemon and the peel of half.

An appetizing way to prepare so called sole—really flounder—is to skin and filet two of the fish and season with salt, pepper and a little lemon juice. Place them in a well buttered fireproof dish, cover with buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes, moistening with a little stock. For the sauce, stew four large tomatoes. When cooked, rub through a sieve and mix with them the juice of half a lemon, a pinch of salt and pepper and add the liquid in which the fish have been cooked. Stir well, make thoroughly hot and pour over the fish. Chopped mushrooms or truffles may be added to the sauce, and a glass of wine should not be omitted.

Stewed chicken with olives is delicious. Cut the chicken into neat joints and fry them in butter or sweet olive oil in a saute pan. Pour off the oil and add a finely minced shallot. Cook for a little time and then moisten with rich brown stock or gravy. Cover the pan and stew gently for about thirty-five minutes. About fifteen minutes before taking up the chicken add twenty stuffed olives. Dish up on a crouton of fried bread and garnish with croutons. Pour the sauce, strained, round the fowl and serve.

IMPROVED CLOTHESPIN.

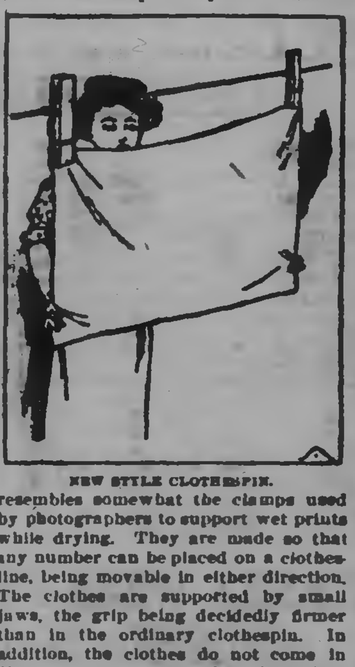
Resembles Somewhat the Holders Used by Photographers.

If asked the question the majority of housewives would say that the common clothespin was perfectly satisfactory in its present form. Nevertheless a glance at the illustration below shows what a decided improvement can be made in these laundry accessories. The improved pin shown here resembles somewhat the clamps used by photographers to support wet prints while drying. They are made so that any number can be placed on a clothesline, being movable in either direction. The clothes are supported by small jaws, the grip being decidedly firmer than in the ordinary clothespin. In addition, the clothes do not come in direct contact with the clothesline and cannot become soiled, as is often the case with the ordinary line. They are also easier to handle and after the clothes are removed are allowed to remain on the line.



NEW STYLE CLOTHESPIN.

Washington Hopes For a Salon.

A phase in the character of the only New York chatelaine in a cabinet home is her fondness for getting celebrities together. The hope is large that at last Washington may have a salon. Mrs. Wickersham is a profound student of public affairs and public men. Experienced leaders of society have declared the salon impossible. Mrs. Wickersham thinks differently. She is especially interested in the personality of leaders of thought, not only in the political world, but in the worlds of science, art and letters. The nearest approach to the salon Washington has known in the last few years has been in the British embassy since the advent of James Bryce and Mrs. Bryce. When the limitations etiquette places on the activities of foreign chatelaines are considered, if Mrs. Wickersham is as earnest in her efforts as Mrs. Bryce has been a brilliant reputation awaits her.

Cretonne Used For Embroidery Bag.

A nice little embroidery bag is made of cretonne covered with two embroidery hoops and finished at the ends with the cardboard covered with cretonne just the size of the hoops. In other words, the bag is built like a barrel, with an opening at the side. This opening is held together by lacing with ribbon or by two buttons.

The bag is carried by ribbon loops, which are fastened at each end to the embroidery hoops.

It is pretty, and the sewing materials do not get lost when thus protected.

Brantford Public School Board has decided to abolish slates in the Public schools as conducive to slovenly writing.

Soliloquy of the Engagement Ring.

I am considered a brilliant success in literature, though many people accuse me of plagarism, the popular criticism of my work being "that old, old story."

It is a pity I am so bright, however, considering the conversations I have to listen to every evening. Last night he remarked sixty-five times, "I love you so, dear," and sixty-five times she replied, "Do you, dear?"

He tells them all "I love you as man never loved before." Isn't he clever to find so many new ways of doing something so old?

Personally I can see no difference in his methods myself.

They held on to me with both hands last evening, but I insisted upon cutting them.

The man owes all his happiness to me. Only through my influence is he able to hold her hands in his and taste the sweetness of her lips, yet already has he forgotten me in his longing for a wedding ring.

Men are so ungrateful, but I will bide my time. Methinks I will soon be avenged.

I am the "best seller" on the market. —Puck.

THE CONVENIENCE AFFORDED AND GOOD WORK DONE AT Y.M.C.A. CAMP AT KINGSTON

After a strenuously busy week in the Y.M.C.A. tent at the annual camp at Kingston of Militia District No. 3, Mr G. G. Hassard, secretary of the Peterborough YMCA. has returned to the city. Mr. Hassard was accompanied by Messrs. Stanley Madill and Allan Stabler of the local institution.

The Y.M.C.A. tent carried its usual anual work for the benefit of those in camp supplying soft drinks, stationery providing post office facilities etc. Over 6300 sheets of letter paper were used and about 2000 envelopes. Over 3500 pieces of mail matter were posted at the tent and on the average 920 visits were made to the tent each day. An average of 75 men a day took part in the athletic work under the direction of Mr Wilks physical director of the YMCA. at Belleville.

The staff was composed of, in addition to the three men from Peterborough and Mr. Wilks, of five men from the Kingston Association and an evangelist from Toronto. Ten evangelistic meetings were held, with an average attendance of over 250 men at each meeting.

The camp this year was not such an imposing sight as in former years on account of the small number of battalions on the grounds, none of which were over half strength. A noticeable feature was the absence of the canteen where liquors are sold and as a result the conduct and general deportment of the men was remarkably improved over that of former years.

MISS FLORENCE KINRADE MARRIED LAST MONDAY

Another Chapter in the Hamilton Murder Mystery—Wedding Was of a Very Quiet Nature.

Special to the Review.

Hamilton, June 29.—The following letter written in New York yesterday and signed by Mr. T. L. Kinrade, was received in a local newspaper office this morning;—

"The marriage of Miss Florence Kinrade, daughter of T. L. Kinrade, Principal of Canon street School, Hamilton, Ont., to Clare Montrose Wright, B.A., of Victoria University, Toronto, took place Monday, June 28th, 1909, in New York City. The ceremony, which was private, only the nearest relatives being present, was held in Madison Avenue Methodist church, and was performed by the Rev. Wallace McMullen, D.D. The bride, who was handsomely gowned in white, was given away by her father. Mr and Mrs. Wright left the city on their honeymoon soon after. It is understood they may spend some time in England and principal European cities.

THE KEENE FISHERMEN ARE LOCATING SOME BIG ONES

Who says the fishing is not good in Keene? As far as can be learned nobody has, but in case anyone does, it will be an easy matter to refute such an illtimed statement.

Yesterday morning the Methuselah of Rice Lake fisherman, Mr. Jimmy Dickson, landed a lunge that weighed 22 1-2 pounds, which is certainly a magnificent catch. The other day Mr. Marsh Weir caught a 17 1-4 pounder, in the river above the wharf. Last Friday Mr. Dennis Kennelly, who is probably the most successful wharf fisherman in the improvement society village, caught a 4 1-2 pound black bass.

Some other excellent catches have also been made since the opening of the season in the Indian River and Rice Lake.

THE CANOE COMPANY WAS GRANTED USE OF THE LAND

At last night's meeting the Manufacturers' Committee took up the application of the Peterborough Canoe Company for use of the land behind their factory and for a fixed assessment. The company wants to get about 100 feet on the width to run a siding from the C.P.R. to their factory. The company is not so particular about the fixed assessment, and as this was the most objectionable feature it is not likely that the matter would be difficult to handle.

The Canoe Company are now prepared to do all kinds of business in the manufacture of launches, but at the present time they have not the room to extend, and it also costs the company at least double to load it at the C.P.R. station of what it would if they had a siding in.

The 100 feet north of the factory will be used as a piling ground, and as this is the most valuable to the city it will be given for a short lease.

Ald. Hicks and Chairman Ald. Gillespie suggested that the company be given a long lease for the land east of their factory, and a short lease for the land 100 feet north.

Ald. Hicks moved and Ald. Mothersill seconded, that the city solicitor be instructed to draft an agreement and submit it to the committee on Saturday night.

A letter was received from the publishers of the "Commercial Hand Book and Opportunities in Canada" asking for an advertisement from the city. Last year an advertisement was put in free of charge, but they would pay this year.

The committee decided not to take it.

GYPSIES WERE FINED AND ORDERED TO LEAVE THE CITY

After the evidence had been all heard at the trial of the gypsies yesterday, County Magistrate Edmison imposed a fine of $125 and an additional $25 to reimburse residents in the county who had suffered at the hands of this wandering tribe. They must also pay the Crown Attorney's fees and those of their counsel, which amounts to a considerable sum. They were also ordered to get out of the city to-day. Several of the party protested against te decision of the Magistrate, but finally agreed to pay their accounts and take up their abode in some other locality where the expenses are not so high.

WANTS TO KNOW WHAT RIGHT POLICE HAVE TO HIS FIND

To the Editor of the Review.

Peterborough, June 29.

Dear Sir,—About two months ago I found a small bag on the street containing fifty-five cents. Thinking that the owner might possibly be found if I did so, I called at the Police Station and left the bag and the money there.

About six weeks later I called to find out if anything had transpired and was informed that the money had been mislaid or something to that effect and I was not able to get it. I think I am entitled to it, as nobody called to claim it. Of course the amount is only a trifling one, but at the same time I might ask what right the police have to keep it, when no owner has turned up and in view of the fact that I found it?

I have applied twice since my first call.

Yours truly,
DENNIS KENNEALLY.

WARDEN SCOTT EXPLAINS DELAY IN DEALING WITH THE GYPSIES

Warden Scott explained to a Review representative to-day the mix-up that resulted in the Mexican greasers camping near the city. He said;

"When these people were arrested they could have been fined a week ago Monday just as well as yesterday. It was at the request of Detective Greer that they were remanded for a week and after all the expense the county has been put to in feeding the 27 horses of the gypsies and supplying constables to protect the people's gardens. Detective Greer had not the courtesy even to 'phone the County Crown Attorney that he would not be down. He simply quietly slipped out of the whole business and left it on our shoulders after himself securing the remand for a week. The gypsies have been fined $150, $25 of that being money returned to three men in Emily from whom it had been taken. The county gets the remainder of the fine, viz., $125, but the expense has been so great that it is still a loser by over $100. We think since it was at the request of the Government detective that these people were remanded, the extra expense of the $100 should be borne by the Government. The citizens of Peterborough are blaming the county for bringing these people in here, but the county would have had them fined and sent on their way at once. So the county is not to blame. We had to take them out of the jail yard or they would have died there."

CANADIAN DOCTOR MAKES A DISCOVERY

DR. PELKEY CAN CURE ALL LUNG DISEASES AND KIDNEY TROUBLES

This discovery has been made by Dr. Pelkey, a Canadian physician, who, it is claimed, will absolutely cure tubercular consumption of the first and second stages in from thirty to ninety days. Dr. Pelkey has the apparatus which was invented by Dr. Peltier, of Ottawa, at his office, 389 Queen street.

Dr. Pelkey is exhibiting the invention, which is called the Peltier Inhaler, throughout the country. The inhaler is first a platinum tank, divided into 38 compartments, into which various chemicals and drugs are placed. Outside these compartments cold water is placed. The action of the cold water causes a vaporous gas to rise into an eight-part evaporator at the top, where it is purified and forced through tubes for inhalation. The gas forms pure oxygen tasteless and odorless, and the patient inhales this. So healing is its effect that it will almost immediately stop a tuberculosis cough.

Most wonderful of all is the fact that Dr. Pelkey offers to treat his patients with his inhaler free of charge. The only thing for which he charges is a blood-purifier and building-up tonic, which he insists upon the patient's taking. He will even allow the person undergoing the treatment to take home the tank with him and be treated there.

Dr. Pelkey has been for 17 years in Mexico and Central and South America. He has Government certificates from Mexico, Brazil, New Mexico and Canada and many Latin-America requblics testifying to cures wrought by him with the inhaler. One certificate states that nearly half a troop of Mexican soldiers and American soldiers and Government officials of Montreal were cured under his treatment. Another is signed by President Diaz, of Mexico, himself, whom Dr. Pelkey cured. Dr. Pelkey can show hundreds of other testimonials of permanent people of Ottawa, who were cured of lung troubles and kidney troubles after suffering for five years.

WEDDING BELLS

REYNOLDS—GRAHAM.

An interesting event took place yesterday in St. John's church at four o'clock, when Miss Katherine Graham, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Graham, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas Reynolds, of the American Cereal Company. The Rev. Canon Davidson performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of only the immediate friends of the contracting parties. Miss Nellie Graham, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and the groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. William Reynolds. The bride wore a pretty Rajah silk travelling suit with a Panama hat, while the bridesmaid's dress was of pale blue striped voile with a Panama hat.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party drove to the C.P.R. station and Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds took the 4.38 train for a trip to Toronto and Niagara, after which they will reside at the Alpheus Apartment, Hamilton.

To the bride will be extended heartiest congratulations by her many friends and acquaintances in this city, as she has always been highly esteemed and her departure will be regretted.

CUMMINGS—McKENTY.

A very pretty marriage was solemnized in the Sacred Heart Church, Madoc, on June 15th, when Mr. Thomas Cummings, Peterborough, and Miss Nellie McKenty, Madoc township, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Father O'Riordan, with nuptial mass. After luncheon, at the home of the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Cummings left on the afternoon train on their bridal trip to Toronto and other western points.—Madoc Review.

PACER WALLACE GETTING UP THE PUGILISTIC LADDER

Bills are to hand from Edmonton announcing a fifteen round bout on July 5th, between Kid Wallace, featherweight champion of Alberta, and T. Simpkins, featherweight champion of Saskatchewan. Kid Wallace is none other than "Pacer" Wallace, the former Peterborough preliminary performer.

The Kid when he was here didn't get away with any stuff that would make Abe Attell jealous, but since he has been in the west he has been in several encounters and as he was always willing to allow himself to be severaly battered it wouldn't be at all surprising if he has developed into a fairly good glove artist. The bout will be for the featherweight champoinship of the west and will be pulled off at Lloydminster, Saskatchewan.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

INQUISITIVE FAN.

Q.—There is a runner on second base with one out. The batter knocks a ball to the pitcher, who fields it in time to catch the man at first easily, but turns to throw to third. The runner could have been put out easily, but the thirdbaseman was not watching the play at all. The pitcher had started to throw the ball when he noticed the man was not looking. He did not have time to stop the throw, but turned his arm so that the ball hit the ground and rolled over toward third, when otherwise it would have gone past the sleeping pitcher. Should the pitcher be credited with an error, when, if he had thrown the ball, the man would have scored, or is there some way of giving the baseman an error? If not, would you score the play?

A.—If the ball had been thrown to third accurately and there had been occasion to make the throw, the third baseman could have been charged with the error if he failed to cover the base. However, in this case it would seem that a fielder's choice for the batsman and no error should be scored, inasmuch as the ball really was not thrown to any base.

The first time the Boston Red Sox faced "Cy" Young this season they walloped the old boy for seventeen large bullseyes, and beat Cleveland 8 to 1. The second time "Cy" pitched to his old team-mates he allowed just two stingy little bunts and beat the Sox 8 to 1. It evidently doesn't pay to fool with the old critter.

Mathewson appears to be still the mainstay of the Giants, who play better ball behind him than when the other New York pitchers take their turn. Matty has won several games by his hitting, too, which is an excellent indication of his worth. Where would the Giants be without him?

There were no games played in the Intermediate League on Saturday, although the Y.M.C.A. team was on hand ready to play the Park Nines. If there ever was a chance to develop young players it is now. The Senior City League has all of the older players, and there are lots of young fellows who would be glad to jump into the game if the managers and officers would get busy and push the proposition before them.

Besides Mitchell Toronto has another leader in Kid Mahling, who has collected more errors than any other fielder. His misplays to date amount to 42.

---

Newton got the glad hand by winning his first game with Toronto, but his two errors gave Montreal the game yesterday by the score of 3—1.

---

Fred. Falkenberg, with Cleveland, doesn't do much to earn his pay. He has only pitched a couple of full games this season.

---

The great and only Silk O'Loughlin failed to get in right with the fans at Washington Saturday, and the handy help of the officers was necessary to protect him from the fans. Washington lost to Boston by one run.

To Save the Slippers.

For the very fine slipper, whose softness needs little more than the old time stuffing of crumpled tissue paper, there is a homemade spreader that will save the price of a shoe tree.

Take a pair of long, covered steels, those that come for boning waist seams. Cover them with puffed ribbon or silk and stick one end of each into a tight ball of cotton, also covered with shirred ribbon or silk. This ball should be big enough to fill the vamp of the slipper and should be securely sewed to the steel. Finally it is to be placed in the slipper's toe, after which the other end of the steel is sprung into the heel.

A USEFUL FABRIC.

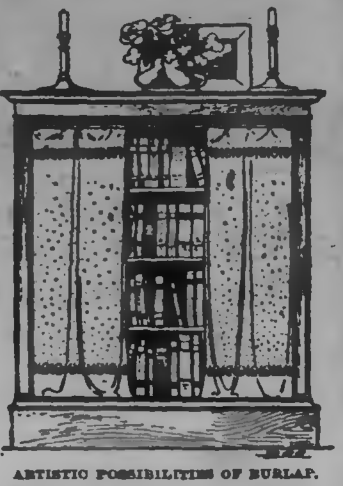
Some Artistic Possibilities In Inexpensive Burlaps.

Ordinary burlap is a somewhat despised fabric, and for no other reason perhaps than that it has been put to such common uses as in the potato bag or wrapping for bales of merchandise.

But even as the caterpillar, which is so often spurned, emerges from his cocoon into a lovely butterfly, so the dingy burlap may be transformed into an excellent material for decorative purposes.

Trust a clever woman to find artistic possibilities in most anything when she finds her home is lacking draperies while at the same time there is a corresponding lack of funds to lavish upon the beautifying of her surroundings.



ARTISTIC POSSIBILITIES OF BURLAP.

One may buy in the department stores at the small cost of 8 cents a yard some heavy burlap in very pleasing colors. The coarser the weave of the material the more desirable it will be for the making of such excellent curtains as are shown in the accompanying illustration.

These may be charmingly embellished by a bit of handiwork such as the hemstitching, which appears on the broad hems at both the top and the bottom of the curtains. Since the material is so coarse and loosely woven the threads may very readily be drawn, and the needlework will be quite a simple matter. The openwork should be about an inch wide on a three inch hem. This decoration will add surprisingly to the attractiveness of the curtains and will amply reward one for the few hours devoted to the sash.

These inexpensive burlaps are dyed in many of the most desirable colors, such as red, blue, green and brown. Choose some soft tone that will harmonize with the prevailing color of the room where these draperies are to be used.

Curtains for either bookshelves, windows or doorways would be equally effective treated in this manner. What could be more artistic for the den, the studio or the bungalow than such decorative curtains?

Scallops Attractively Served.

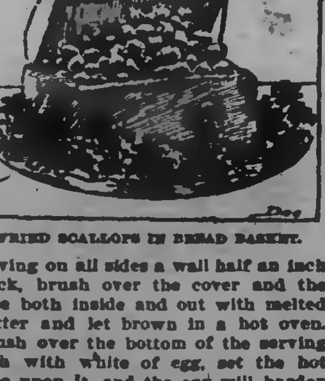
Pour boiling water over the scallops, heat quickly to the boiling point, drain and dry on a cloth. Roll in sifted breadcrumbs, then in an egg beaten and diluted with a tablespoonful of milk and again in fine crumbs. Fry in deep fat and drain on soft paper. Have ready a case or basket made from a five cent loaf of baker's bread. Turn the scallops into the basket, decorate with parsley and serve at once, with sauce tartare in a separate dish. To make the case remove the crust from the bread and cut a slice from the top for a cover, cut out the center, leaving on all sides a wall half an inch thick, brush over the cover and the case both inside and out with melted butter and let brown in a hot oven. Brush over the bottom of the serving dish with white of egg, set the hot case upon it, and the egg will harden and hold the case firmly in place.



FRIED SCALLOPS IN BREAD BASKET.

Beat the yolk of an egg, add a generous fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of paprika. Beat again; then gradually beat in a tablespoonful of cider vinegar; then with an egg beater beat in a cup of olive oil, a teaspoonful and after a time a tablespoonful at a time. Finish with two tablespoonfuls each of fine chopped pickles, olives, capers and parsley.

Protect the Finger.

Every woman who sews or embroiders objects to the roughened first finger of the left hand, which seems impossible not to prick. Not only is the roughened edge unsightly, but it catches on the work, especially when doing silk embroidery, and is almost impossible to keep clean.

There is a new protector for this finger that seems to protect without getting in the way of the sewer. It is made of a specially prepared glass that does not blunt the needle, comes in several sizes and, best of all, is cheap enough for every sewer to own.

Thoughtful.

"Do stop that child's crying!"
"Does it annoy you so much?"
"I am afraid it will wake poor Fido."

A number of street orators defied the mandates of the Winnipeg police to [illegible] and were promptly arrested.

THE LAND OF THE MAPLE

By J. R. McCrea.

We crown thee with laurel, fair land of our birth,
We greet thee and hail thee as Queen of the Earth,
Our loyal devotion we lay at thy shrine
Dear land of the Maple we pledge it as thine.
Thou land of the future, thou nation to-day,
With progress thy watchword and faith as thy stay,
No danger assail thee! Thy great pulsing heart
Will guide thee and aid thee in playing thy part.
All bloodless thy conquest, the years, fleeting fast,
Will bring thee full glory; thy due in the past.
Will pay thee the tribute thy worth shall command
As long as thy sceptre waves over the land,
Will strengthen thine arm if forever thou'rt true,
Will grant thee fresh courage, and daily renew
While the sun and the moon continue to glow,
The rivers run onward, the tides ebb and flow.

As long as creation, through night and through day—
Until dissolution the earth pass away,
Thy place mid the nations is destined to be
The backbone of empire, the strong vertebrae,
But, thicker than water, the old tie shall stand
That binds thee in love to the old mother land;
Firmer and closer thy feet in her track,
With hand in salute to the old, Union Jack.

Winnipeg, June 25th, 1909.

ABOUT CONFEDERATION

The July number of The Canadian Magazine might almost be called a Confederation number, some attention has been given in it to Newfoundland. The first article is entitled "The Land of the Baccalhaos," which was the term used by the early Portuguese explorers. It means "The Land of Dry Salt Fish." This is an appreciative, illuminative, well illustrated article on the trade and resources of Newfoundland. The author is Rev. Edwin Smith, who is well acquainted with the subject. "Pre-Confederation Sentiment in Newfoundland" is the title of an article by Francis Asbury Carman, which claims the existence of a considerable feeling in favor of confederation with Canada. There is also an entertaining descriptive article of a canoe trip down some picturesque Newfoundland rivers. Other articles of note are "The Inquisition in Canada," by C. Lintern Sibley, "The Romance of Song," by Mare Talbot Tourner; "Many-Armed Creatures of the Sea," by F. M. Kelly; "The Romance of Balnagown," by W. Macgill; "Tom Moore in Canada," by Rev. George Hutchinson Smith—with short stories by Lilian Leveridge, Hattie E. Cragg, Frances Von Buhl and Suzanne Marny, and poems by Douglas Roberts, Minnie Evelyn Henderson, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, E. M. Yeoman and John Boyd.

A Query

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I enclose clipping from Ottawa Citizen. Are people going crazy that they should get up a euchre party to help spread the Gospel? But that's the way everything is going these days;

"A most enjoyable euchre party, the first of the season, was held at Old Chelsea Friday evening for the benefit of St. Stephen's church. This entertainment took place in the parish hall, and was gotten up by the summer residents, who were on hand in full force. Quite a number from Kirk's Ferry, Kingsmere and adjoining summer resorts, were present, as well as a number from Ottawa, who came to Chelsea especially for this occasion. The euchre contest resulted as follows; First gentleman's prize, a razor, won by Mr. P. Blair; first lady's prize, handsome belt, won by Miss S. Chamberlain, Old Chelsea. The two consolation prizes were awarded to Mrs. Sweeney, Chelsea, and Mr. C. Oneil, Squaw Hollow. Choice refreshments were served by a number of attractive young ladies and Grazarodi's orchestra of Ottawa, furnished the music. Dr. Benoit acted as chairman. While the success of this very pleasant and profitable evening is due largely to the energy of Miss Daisy Oneil, a large and sufficient staff of young ladies and gentlemen rendered her valuable help. The evening was concluded by a few words of thanks by the pastor, Rev. Dr. McNally. Encouraged by the results the young people are planning another social evening for the near future."

THE GOWGANDA CAMP LOOKS GOOD TO THE MINING MEN

Visitor to Peterborough Tells of Ontario's Latest Silver District—Has Ten Claims There—Was Prospecting Partner of Mr. S. W. Collings Last Year.

That Gowganda will live up to the most sanguine expectations of the mining optimists is the opinion of Mr. A. E. Dumond, who is in the city on a short visit to his friend, Mr. S. W. Collings, physical director of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Dumond and his partner, Mr. James Thompson, have ten claims which they started edveloping this spring and have a gang of men now employed at that work. A sample of some silver ore from one of the properties was shown the Review and it is expected that they will pan out with splendid results. The claims are located just west of Spawning Lake, a rich section of the camp.

EVERY NATIONALITY.

There are a great many people coming into the camp, and the population, which now numbers about 500, is growing daily. In the search for silver nearly every nationality is represented.

The mail to the camp is pretty heavy and comes in every other day. The paper mail comes by canoe by the Stoney Creek route, and the letter mail by the trail.

CLEANING UP THE DIVES.

"About every six weeks," said Mr. Dumond, "the blind pigs are raided by the Government officials, and just before I left a big seizure was made."

Such things as illicit refreshment booths are almost certain to crop up in any mushroom settlement, but the moral conditions are pretty good for a mining camp.

Mr Dumond knows of Conroy's general store at Gowganda, and says it probably carries the largest stock of any store in the place. Mr. S. W. Collings was associated last year with Mr. Dumond as his mining partner, and was with him around Hawk Lake and the west branch of Montreal River.

THE PRICES OF MEAT WILL TAKE A DROP VERY SHORTLY

The housewife will welcome the news that meat will be cheaper within the next couple of weeks. The retail prices of meat took a jump three months ago and have remained high ever since. The increase in the prices was brought about on account of the scarcity and high price of feed, but now that there is plenty of good grass the effect on the price of meats will be noticeable. During the past three months beef steaks have been selling at from 16c. to 18c. per lb., boiling beef 7c., roast beef 14c., while roast pork cost 14c., pork chops 14c, mutton chops 12 1-2c.

Pork tenderloin is a class of meat that has had one more jump in price than the rest. The present price is 22c., while up to three months ago it could be obtained for $18c. There is also another reason for the decrease in price. The arrival of the fruit season affects the meat business to a considerable extent as the amount of meat consumed is much smaller and the hot weather also plays a prominent part.

SOME PROPOSED CONDITIONS OF THE 30 YEARS' FRANCHISE

That Peterborough Light and Power Company Wants for Use of City Streets--Matter Was Again Taken Up at Meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee Last Night---Interesting Clauses.

The important business of the Manufacturers' Committee at its meeting last night was the matter of the application of the Peterborough Light and Power Company for a thirty-year franchise for the use of the city streets. The question had been considered before by the committee, and the city solicitor had been instructed to draw up a skeleton agreement.

This agreement was gone over by the committee last night and by Mr. J. H. Larmonth, manager of the Light and Power Company. It was very thoroughly considered and some time was spent considering it. Some of the clauses presented were satisfactory, but others will have to be modified. Nothing definite towards the granting of the franchise was done, and the matter will be again taken up at a meeting on Saturday night.

SOME OF THE CLAUSES DISCUSSED.

In the memo of the agreement between the committee and the Light and Power Co., containing conditions proposed to govern the franchise in case it is granted, some of the more interesting clauses are:

The company to pay the city rental for the use of the poles on the present basis.

The city to have the right to use the poles of the company for street lighting purposes if desired by the city, and a rental if not mutually agreed on, to be fixed by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

The company agree to charge during the whole term of the franchise, rates not exceeding the following.—(a) A minimum meter rate of $9. The charges for stores, offices and other places of business to be the same as those charged for private houses. (b) To give a flat rate yearly for 16 candle power lamps or under, and a proportionate rate for lamps over 16 candle power as follows:

For the first 8 lamps $1 per year each.

For the next 8 lamps 75 cents per year each.

For all additional lamps 50 cents per year each.

(c) To give a flat yearly rate for stores, offices and other places of business of $2 per lamp on the ground floor and $1 per lamp elsewhere. (d) To increase the discount for meter rates to 60 per cent.

The company to agree to charge for power during the whole term of franchise, rates per horse power not exceeding the following for a 24-hour service:—(a) For from 1 to 4 horse power $40 per year. (b) For from 5 to 9 horse power $30 per year. (c) For 10 horse power and over $20 per year, or 1 1-2 cents per horse power per hour.

The company to agree that the charge for gas for domestic use shall be 90 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

THE COMPANY.

The company is willing to rebuild the pole line, taking out half of the poles up at present, and putting smaller ones where possible, the poles possibly to be concrete.

The company makes the suggestion not to raise the rate for the next five years, and after that a Board of Arbitration be appointed at the instance of either the city or company to make any necessary adjustments.

The company is agreeable to have the placing of all additional poles under the direction of the city engineer.

The company agrees to use the poles of the Otonabee Light and Power Company where possible.

The company also agrees to use the most modern and up-to-date appliances for the transmission of electricity.

All the above are concessions that the committee has asked for.

Mr. Larmonth told the Review this morning that there was nothing for discussion in the matter of the franchise outside of what had been considered at the committee meetings.

If definite arrangements are not made at the meeting on Saturday night Mr. Robert Stuart, Chicago, the general manager of the company, will be here on Wednesday to meet the committee.

OFFICERS OF DRAGOONS WERE GUESTS OF EVENING

Entertained by Officers of the 57th at Armouries Last Night—Impromtu Programme Given—A Very Pleasing Function.

One of the pleasantest affairs of the season in local military circles took place at the armouries last night when the officers of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons were entertained by the officers of the 57th. Lt.-Col. Stevenson of the 57th, acted as toastmaster and Major Hayes was vice-chairman. The affair was of an informal character and only two toasts were proposed, the King and the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. "The King" was honored in the usual hearty manner and Lt.-Col. Syer made an appropriate response to the toast to his regiment. About fifty were present.

An impromptu musical programme was given and was greeted with much applause. Songs were rendered by Capt. Cluxton, W. McIlroy, W. S. Davidson, Lieut. Edmison and Capt. McPherson enlivened the proceedings with some humorous stories.

TRAIN ROBBERS KILL POLICEMAN

Special to the Review

Winnipeg, Man., June 29.—A despatch from Ashcroft, B.C., says special policeman Declere, one of the officers searching for the C.P.R. train robbers, stopped a boat containing two men passing Perry's station, on the Thompson river last night, and ordered the men to stand. The men obeyed, when one of them drew a revolver. Declere promptly shot the man dead, only to fall dead himself from a bullet fired by the other one. The latter then fled down the railway track followed by a posse. His capture is certain.

YOUTH HAD BOTH EYES BLOWN OUT

Shot Gun in the Hands of His Brother Was Accidently Discharged

Madoc, June 29.—About five o'clock last night little Cecil Vincent, about seven or eight years of age, was shot and probably fatally injured by a shot gun in the hands of his brother, at Crookston. His two eyes are blown out, his sight being entirely destroyed, and he is also terribly injured about the head.

From the account received it appears that the two boys were near the kitchen door, the older one about ten years old, having the gun in his hand, when in some way it became discharged with the above results. His mother was down in the pasture field at the time, and his father, who is a section foreman at Crookston, was in Belleville. Medical aid was promptly on hand, but as we go to press it is not known whether the boy will recover. Part of the shot broke an upstairs window in the store of Mr. F. C. Sherwin.

Madoc, June 29.—Mr. C. E. Ritchie, president of the Central Ontario Railway, has secured control of the Coe Hill Iron mine. This is one of the largest and best deposits of magnetic iron ore in the county of Hastings. It was opened up in 1883 and operated extensively for three years, during which time a very large quantity of ore was shipped, but on account of the United States government placing a duty on iron ore the mine was obliged to close down. The Central Ontario Railway was practically built from Trenton to Coe Hill to handle the ore from this mine.

THE SESSION NEARLY OVER LAST NIGHT MEETING HELD

Final Reception to Notable Delegates To-night Ends "Congress of Organized Sympathy"—Plea for Legal Aid Officers for the Poor.

Toronto, June 30.—"When the lights go down to-night in this beautiful hall, they will not be lighted again under similar conditions till five years hence in the Eternal City."

So Lady Edgar feelingly referred to the last night meeting of the present International Women's Congress last night in convocation hall. The congress will continue its sessions during the day, and to-night a farewell reception will be held in the Parliament buildings.

"The last time is one for solemn thoughts," Lady Edgar said. Rev. Canon Cody, speaking last Sunday, she reminded the audience, described it as "a congress of organized sympathy."

"Will you think of it as this," she pleaded.

One of the speakers was Fraulein Ida Kirch of Germany, who told how legal aid was furnished to the poor by the trades union organizations. Protestant legal aid, Roman Catholic legal aid, legal aid societies for women by women, public welfare societies, political organization and municipal legal aid societies. In 1907 one million cases were dealt with by these societies. From the first the women took part in the work.

"In our work we hold it essential that a woman should stand face to face with a woman as she can enter into her case as a man cannot do," said the speaker. In marriage contracts, and guardianships of poor children, much useful advice was given, and male barristers and judges gave much assistance.

She therefore made a warm appeal to the women of Canada and the United States for the establishment of municipal legal aid offices under the direction of men and women lawyers.

CORPORATION TAX FAVORED

U. S. Senator Aldrich Declares in Favor of it

Washington, June 30.—With the tariff schedule disposed of and the door locked against the present intrusion of amendments upon them, the Senate yesterday finally entered upon the consideration of the income and corporation tax questions as connected with the tariff bill.

It has for some time been whispered around the Senate corridors that Senator Aldrich has become an advocate of a tax on the earnings of corporations as the most effective means of defeating a general income tax amendment to the pending bill. Aldrich yesterday confirmed the rumors. He added another reason, which was that he thought that the next year or two there would be a deficit in the treasury receipts, which he was willing to have made good by the income that would result from the proposed corporation tax. With this service performed he thought the law could and would be materially modified if not entirely repealed.

This frank declaration was seized upon by the Democrats as a confession that the corporation tax is a mere subterfuge to destroy the income tax. Mr. Aldrich denied, however, that he had intended to characterise the corporation tax as a subterfuge and defended it as a legitimate means of raising revenue.

THE ROADWAYS ARE SINKING

Antigonish, N.S., June 30.—The disappearance of great stretches of road from the highway is causing much alarm.

A few days ago a portion of the James road, six miles from here, sank, carrying with it a telephone pole of which no portion can be seen.

No sooner had this opening been filled up than the earth caved in again, with a long stretch of the highway which had not been disturbed before, making a hole about 100 feet long and 30 wide.

The roadbed of the Intercolonial Railway has been seriously affected by the phenomenon, the rails having settled more than a foot in several places.

PROBABILITIES.

THREE CHEERS FOR BREAD AND BEER

Semmering, Austria, June 30.—E. H. Harriman has been told that his salvation lies in getting fat. He must put on flesh.

Mr. Harriman tipped the scales at 144 pounds, and Prof. Streumpell, after fingering the Harriman ribs, announced that his patient must take the fattening cure.

"Plenty of cereals, large quantities of milk, much meat and, above all, unlimited malt beer," was the Streumpell prescription.

Mr. Harriman, on receiving this advice, laughed and exclaimed:

"Three cheers for bread and beer!"

He will remain at Semmering until July 15, practicing this fattening diet, and then go to Bandaste to take radium baths.

Hamilton, June 30.—Clair Montrose Wright and Florence Kinrade were married Monday in New York City, at the Madison Avenue Methodist Church, by Rev. Dr. Wallace McMullen.

Miss Kinrade is the daughter of T. L. Kinrade, the wealthy school principal, the murder of whose daughter, Ethel, in the family residence in the heart of Hamilton's fashionable residential district, created an international sensation.

The announcement of the wedding was conveyed to the papers by Mr. Kinrade himself. The bride was given away by her father, and only near relatives were present. The bride and groom will go to England, and tour the continent. In view of Wright's devoted attention to the girl during the inquest, the announcement of the wedding was not unexpected.

Washington, June 30.—The excess of Government disbursements over receipts for the fiscal year to date is $93,173,000. This sum is likely to be reduced by to-day's transactions to approximately $92,500,000. The customs receipts for the year will fall but little short of $300,000,000, and the internal revenue receipts will be about $245,000,000. The gain in customs receipts over last year will be about $15,000,000, with a loss of about $3,000,000 in internal revenue.

THE SUFFRAGETTES IN RIOT AND OVER 100 ARE ARRESTED

Exciting Scenes in Which Englishwomen Try to Get Message to Premier Asquith Are Repulsed and Arrested Wholesale—Mrs. Pankhurst Slaps Police Inspector and is Locked up—Fifty Thousand Spectators.

London, June 30.—The thirteenth vain attempt of the militant suffragettes to obtain access to Premier Asquith by deputation resulted in exciting scenes in Parliament Square last night and the arrest of more than one hundred women.

The plan of campaign followed the lines previously employed by the suffragettes. The women's parliament assembled in Caxton Hall at 8 o'clock in the evening and sent a deputation, headed by Mrs. Pankhurst to endeavor to see the Prime Minister who had previously decided not to see the deputation.

The deputation was received by the crowd with wild cheers.

Escorted by the police the deputation arrived at the St. Stephen's entrance to Parliament were it was met by Chief Inspector Scanlebury, who handed Mrs. Pankhurst a letter from the Premier, regretting his inability to receive the deputation.

MRS. PANKHURST.

The police tried to induce the women to disperse quietly, and then began to take the members of the deputation by the arms to lead them away.

To the surprise of the spectators, who were massed around the entrance, Mrs. Pankhurst slapped Inspector Jarvis in the face, knocking his cap in the mud. There were cries of "shame" and several of the spectators told the suffragettes' leader that she had no provocation to do such a thing.

Eventually, the entire deputation was placed under arrest.

By this time a second deputation had left Caxton Hall, accompanied by some hundreds of suffragettes and others, and an attempt was made to reach the House of Commons through the underground passage leading from Westminster Bridge.

This, too, was unsuccessful, but for two hours the whole district was in a state of uproar, the police dispersing the crowds and arresting women by the wholesale.

Altogether 112 women were arrested, including Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Solomon, the Hon. Mrs. Haverfield, daughter of Lord Abinger, Miss Margesson, daughter of Lady Margesson, Miss Maud Joachim, niece of the violinist, and many other prominent women.

Probably 50,000 persons gathered at the scene. All avenues of approach were cordoned by police and ambulances were provided to deal with cases of accident. Within the cordon were a very large number of members of both Houses of Parliament, and scores of ladies in dinner wraps and men in evening dress. The Prime Minister himself drove away from the House unobserved by the crowd.

Great excitement was caused by the movements of the equestrian suffragette, Miss Vera How, who, in riding habit and bowler hat, rode backwards and forwards, carrying messages between the different deputations, and who ultimately was arrested.

The police behaved with the utmost forbearance, but the suffragettes in many cases forced them to some amount of rough handling. There was much screaming and in some cases fainting, and many women had to be taken to the hospitals in a state of collapse.

AN ARMED BANDIT HIDES OUTLAW AND CONSTABLE SHOT

Officers Trail Train Robber to His Lair in B.C.—Second Man Escapes and is Now Lurking in Red Gulch Mine Workings.

Ashcroft, B.C., June 29.—One of the bandits who a week ago held up the C.P.R. train near Kamloops, was shot and killed Monday night by a policeman, Ike Decker, who, in turn was murdered by another of the bandits.

The shooting occurred at Ashcroft, Decker having ordered two men in a boat to land. They did so, remarking, "We're here, now arrest us." Decker and one bandit fired almost together, the latter being killed. Bandit No. 2 at once emptied a shotgun into Decker's head.

The remaining bandit fled, but was tracked to Red Gulch, six miles east of Ashcroft, where he is now hiding in a mining tunnel. The dead robber was identified as a man who ordered the C.P.R. engineer to stop his train at Ducks over a week ago and burst the express car open under the mistaken idea that it was loaded with silver bullion.

Decker had been advised that three men, belonging to the Ducks hold-up gang, had passed Pennys station, going down the river in a rowboat. When the boat reached Ashcroft there were only two men aboard. Covering them with his rifle Decker ordered them to pull into shore, and the bandits obeyed. As the bow grated on the sand, the foremost man stepped ashore carrying a light overcoat. Suddenly he drew a revolver from under his coat and fired. The constable's Winchester rang out at the same instant, and both men fell. The remaining robber, leaping over the prostrate bodies, dashed away. Villagers along the river watched the occurrence, but were unable to avert the tragedy.

The country was aroused at once, and posses set out from Ashcroft, Savonac and Kamloops. Detective Draper of Spokane went along in charge of bloodhounds, and sent back, yesterday morning, from Red Gulch to Ashcroft for assistance. The murdered constable was well-known in Ashcroft, where he had been a resident for twenty years. He was married and leaves a family.

Mr. Busteed, general superintendent of the western lines division of the C.P.R., said yesterday that he was not prepared to state why Decker had attempted to effect the capture single-handed, probably he had thought to earn the entire reward himself. A bag of dynamite was found in the boat.

DEATHS BY VIOLENCE

It looks as if being gored to death by a bull is going to lead all other varieties of death by violence. It is not for the mere newspaper mind to say how it comes about that farmers young and old, trust themselves to the whims and fancies of animals whose sudden and tempestuous temper has been the cause of more terrible deaths amongst farmers than all the other causes put together. The only explanation offered is that there is no other way of handling a bull except by treating him as an ordinary "head of cattle." It is evidently not realized how many deaths occurred at the horns of bulls. They are always attended with the most frightful and tragic circumstances. The heartrending loss of many a father has plunged many a little family in grief. Surely there is some way out of this yearly toll to Bashan.

AN ALARMING STATEMENT

The following editorial of the Montreal Witness is the last word in condemnation of the Laurier Government. Nothing more remains to be said:—

Statements are being made that the cause of the resignation of Mr. Lumsden, chief engineer of the National Transcontinental Railway, is not ill health, but the prevalence of government interference, or, in other words, graft, which was too outrageous for him to stand. We presume Mr. Lumsden will not say anything. The work is mum with government employees. Anything else is disgrace, such as Detective Guerin suffered for speaking in the most casual manner his personal mind—supposing that he did say what he was accused of having said. Mr. Lumsden could not make statements in print without looking for the experience that Major Hodgins was put through. All this shows how lame a thing it was to appoint a competent civil service commission for one department only. IT MAY BE THAT MR. LUMSDEN HAS NO SUCH REASON BEHIND HIS RESIGNATION. BUT SO LONG AS THE PUBLIC KNOWS WHAT IT DOES KNOW ABOUT THE PUBLIC SERVICE, ALL ALONG THE LINE, AND SO LONG AS IT BELIEVES WHAT IT DOES BELIEVE ABOUT IT, NO ONE WILL BE GOT TO THINK, WITHOUT EVIDENCE, THAT THAT ONE DEPARTMENT WAS THE ONLY ONE THAT NEEDED CLEANING OUT.—The Montreal Witness (Liberal).

It will be read with profound regret by all those who had been hoping against hope that much of the smoke had been raised by the enemy's camp-fires. But the Witness unmasks its batteries and attacks the evil. It is no longer a question of morals, it has become one of necessity. It is necessary for the people to save for themselves their own possessions and well-being. The warning of the Witness is quite unmistakable.

HOW LIBERAL CONSERVATISM CAME

In Montreal the first stone has just been laid of a statue to Sir Louis Hyppolite Lafontaine. The fact that the memory of this great man is to be perpetuated is interesting, and all the more so seeing that he and his colleague, Robert Baldwin, although known as Reformers, were really the founders of the Liberal-Conservative party. Prior to the grant of responsible government, great agitations, culminating in rebellion, were carried on with a view of securing the constitutional change that was so much desired. While some men favored these violent measures, a really Liberal element, led in Lower Canada by Lafontaine, and in Upper Canada by Baldwin, stood out for reform by constitutional means.

These two men refused to take part in any revolt. They believed that the people, through the Legislature, could insist upon the recognition of the principle of responsibility which they favored. Until the rebellion was at an end Lafontaine and Baldwin were discreetly quiet. But the moment all was over they launched their programme of reform. They were antagonized by the extreme men on both sides of the question, but it was their good fortune to "corner up" the Government then in control, and to secure power. In office, strongly supported by the House, they insisted upon full constitutional rights for the Administration, and with success. Thus, to them we owe the fact that Cabinet Government, government in which the people's representatives have full and complete authority, was granted. The official life of the two leaders was not happy. Lafontaine was, in one election, defeated by his own people. He was thereupon invited by Robert Baldwin to sit for North York. He accepted, and was elected. Baldwin appealing to the County of Hastings as a Minister, was unsuccessful. He was thereupon invited to run in Rimouski. He accepted, and was duly returned. The internal troubles arose from the extreme faction in the ranks. In Upper Canada William Lyon Mackenzie was opposed to Baldwin. In Lower Canada Papineau was antagonistic to Lafontaine. The opposition of Mackenzie and his companions in Upper Canada resulted in the formation of the Clear Grit party—the so-called Liberal party of to-day. The opposition of Papineau and his friends in Lower Canada produced the Parti Rouge—the Quebec Liberalism of this moment. As a consequence of the inter-party strife the two great leaders, who had accomplished the reform for which all had fought, were defeated, and Lafontaine and Baldwin abandoned public life for ever.

Those citizens who had sympathized with Lafontaine and Baldwin, united in due course with the Tories, and the Tories and the Liberals together formed the Liberal-Conservative party. That Quebec should honor Lafontaine is very fitting, for in his life he represented more thoroughly than any statesman has ever done the ideas of his compatriots. A reformer, yet opposed to revolt, a good French-Canadian, yet so liberal in his views that he could carry an Ontario constituency for an English-speaking leader, he was one of the noble men this country has produced.—The Mail and Empire.

"There was a man who lived in New England, whose name was Legion. Nine-tenths of the time he tilled his land and mended stone fences, like a moral and intelligent being, and the tenth part of the time a madness came upon him—an hereditary madness. He remembered subconsciously how his ancestors wrested the soil from the forests, and did battle with the foes that lurked in their depths, and he seized his axe and went forthwith to take vengeance upon the forest, for the hostile front it showed his elders. But the forest was gone, and the only soil he could find to wrest was beside the town roads, on each hand. This, then, he fell upon with right good will. There were oaks, and these he cut down wastefully two feet from the ground and scattered their branches about. There were walnuts and birches and beeches, and he felled them all and hewed them into bits. There was red cedar, with its priceless worth, and its heart of fragrance, and this he hacked and haggled and utterly destroyed. Then he looked upon what he had done, and called it very good and the madness left him. He never returned to finish clearing up the roadside. He never covered the seared rocks, or levelled the ragged banks. The ground bristled with stubble of trees, and their boughs rotted where they fell.

The only time when the man revisited the roadside, where when he cast old stovepipes and broken china, in a heap, a few hundred yards from his dwelling.

What shall be done for the madness of this man? He is not to be greatly frighted with droughts or floods, and he has no regard in his heart for the landscape. He does not desire shade trees. Would legislation avail for his cure, or psychotherapy, or beating with many stripes? If this last were done speedily, there are still birches left by the roadside wherewith to do it. But if he is not restrained before long, New England will be, here and there among its towns, in like condition with Japan, which has no need to make laws to protect its birds, because the birds are all slaughtered.—Conservation.

CROP REPORT FOR THIS MONTH

(Ontario Department of Agriculture.)

Owing to the unusually wet, cold and generally backward spring, vegetation was greatly checked, and in many localities, but little sowing or planting had been done when the schedule for the May Bulletin was sent to correspondents. It was deemed advisable, therefore, to ask for further information, and the following is a statement of conditions on or about the 22nd of June:—

The Weather.—April was an unusually wet and cold month, and early sowing was hindered. The first half of May was also unfavorable to farm operations, and as a consequence spring sowing was very backward at the end of that month. However, a general rainfall about the first of June, followed by warm weather, sent growth along with a bound, and spring crops were fast approaching normal conditions.

Fall Wheat.—As correspondents wrote, fall wheat was heading out, being about a week or ten days later than usual. While some correspondents speak of the likelihood of a large yield, fully as many describe the fields as being thin or spotty on low-lying or undrained soils. A considerable area was plowed up, and more would have been, but for the wet condition of the ground, and the fact that grass had been sown with the wheat. Many of the patchy spots were resown with barley or oats. Taken on the whole, the June prospects for fall wheat are decidedly better than those of May.

Clover.—Hay, like fall wheat, will be very variable in yield, ranging from light to heavy, even in the same localities, but the present outlook for the crop is more favorable than that reported a month ago. New meadows have done much better than old ones, and clover is reported to be relatively ahead of timothy. There has been practically no complaint of the midge. The poorest accounts concerning hay come from the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Counties and the northern districts. Cutting will be fully a week later than usual. Reports regarding alfalfa are practically unanimous as to the vigorous growth of that crop.

Spring Grains.—The bulk of these crops have been sown a week or two later than ordinarily; in fact, some oats and barley were being put in as late as the 10th of June, and corn was being planted even later. Some correspondents point out that the spring conditions of 1907 were somewhat similar so far as lateness is concerned, and that very fair yields were given after all. Where spring wheat, barley or oats failed to catch, or were not put in, the following were used as alternatives;—Buckwheat, millet, corn, rape, peas, beans and vetches, while some preferred to summer fallow.

Spring Wheat.—There has been a further decline in the acreage of this crop, but where grown is looking well, considering late sowing.

Barley—About the average area has been given to barley. It had a late start, but is now making splendid growth, with prospects of a good yield, should favorable weather continue.

Oats.—Some correspondents claim a decreased acreage for oats, while others claim that it has been increased. A good average is the probable area. Though late, the crop looks well as a whole, although rather thin in places.

Peas.—The lateness of the season prevented the sowing of some cereals, and led to a larger acreage being given to peas. The crop looks promising, and less is said about the "bug" or weevil than for years.

Buckwheat.—Buckwheat is being planted more largely than ever this year in nearly every part of the province, mainly as an emergency crop, owing to some cereals being crowded out by the lateness of the spring.

Corn.—Ontario farmers appear to be depending more upon corn than formerly. The area has been considerably enlarged this year, and the only drawback to the situation is the lateness of planting, in fact some were putting in corn in the third week of June. What was up when correspondent wrote looked well, although even then some complaints were being made of the grub.

Beans.—Like other field crops, beans have been planted late. They have come up nicely, however, and were looking well when correspondents reported.

Tobacco.—Owing to the land being wet tobacco was not planted until a week or two later than usual. The plants were rather small when returns were made, and there were reports of the crop being attacked by grubs.

Potatoes.—Very few early potatoes were got in, but late planting had been vigorously pushed, and in a number of counties the acreage will be greater than last year. The season being a week or two later than usual the vines were not of average size when returns were made, but the outlook generally was favorable, although bugs were beginning to appear in large numbers.

Roots.—Roots were sown on the late side, and were only showing up when correspondents wrote. Turnips were promising well, although many fields had been purposely held back in order to escape the louse. Mangles were not doing so well, and some patchy places had to be resown with turnips. Brown sugar beets were looking well.

Fruit.—Blossoming was late, but full, and there has been a more general setting of fruit than in ordinary years. Apples will likely turn out satisfactorily, for although early varieties will be scarce, the more valuable varieties promise a big yield. Pears will be only fair. The latest reports regarding peaches put the probable yield as medium; in some places the leaves have been attacked by curl-leaf. Plums are likely to be a full crop, taking the province as a whole, although in some of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa counties a number of trees are said to have been "blasted." Cherries will yield from fair to large crops. Grapes promise an average yield, and small fruits generally will do well unless drought sets in early.

The new Dominion loan of ten million pounds will be issued in London on Friday. The price is likely to be about 91.

EXTRACTS FROM SPEECHES AT GREAT PRESS CONFERENCE

The Chairman.—I think we had better perhaps not waste time in discussing details of order, and I think the two points that have been raised could be met adequately if the assembly would allow me on my own authority to modify the resolution so as to meet both the objections raised. I suggest it should be discussed as follows;—"That this Conference affirms the urgent necessity of placing the defence of the Empire on the surest foundation, and to that end considers it essential that as each of the self-governing portions of the Empire systematic and universal training of the male population should be strenuously advocated by the Press." That meets both points of order and gets rid of both objections.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, said: Mr. Balfour, and members of the Conference, my name was not sent in, and I did not intend to speak on this subject at all, but in the way in which it has now been put, we can have nothing to do with it at all. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) I do not discuss the worth of military training, and although I have the blood of a man of war in my veins, for I am a Celt—(laughter)—but, sir, we are called here to discuss questions, not to pass resolutions, but to make opinion, and I conceive nothing more hurtful to the ultimate good of such a conference as this—than is, having to put it on records that there are amongst us acute differences of opinion. (Cheers.) I for one must vote against this resolution in any form. (Hear, hear.) Training there must be, but let each Dominion do its own in its own way. What may be good for Britain, for Australia, and for New Zealand may not be good for us in Canada. I know Canada from east to west. I have gone all over it. For 150 years my family have lived there, and I know that to advocate what it has been urged here we should advocate would be to hurt the Empire's interests in the Dominion of Canada. (Cheers). We need not say we are loyal. It offends me to hear a man ask if Canada is loyal to the flag. There is enough loyalty in Toronto alone to stock a whole Dominion. (Cheers.) We shall do the best service to the Empire as well as for Canada if we go back home and each man in his own way, and through his own journal urges upon his people and his Government the importance of a fleet for Canada if we believe in it—that fleet to be an integral part of the Navy—the Navy to be one, but the fleets to be as many as the nations of the Empire will provide. You need never have any doubt of the loyalty of the Parliament and the people of our Dominion, French as well as English, of every class and every tongue, once it is made plain that there is a crisis within the Empire—make that plain, without any noise or nonsense—and, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier said, he would "stump" Quebec in calling to arms for the defence of the Empire if the Empire was in danger, and he voiced the sentiment of every Canadian when he said the word. We shall do our best, if we advocate in our own way, in our own organs, the responsibility which rests upon public opinion to give expression to this sentiment. One of the things we need to do is to fill up our Canadian Dominion, whose lands are crying for population. If we could secure that we would be doing very much for the Empire. But in all our writing let us keep civil tongues in our heads. (Cheers.) Let us instill that sense of the obligation we are under to the Empire. But there is an equal duty resting upon British journalists. (Hear, hear.) We ask them to keep Imperial matters out of politics. Let them exercise their obligations of self-control and self-constraint. Let them refrain from scaring us unless they think we ought to be scared, and that only with the responsible authority of Britain. Whatever Canada may decide to do must be left to the Parliament and people of Canada. I must again hope, sir, that you will not ask us to vote on this occasion. You cannot put the essential, the real worthwhile purpose of this Conference into the four corners of any motion, and I am afraid, in any case, that every working newspaper man knows exactly how little worth the average conventional motion is, but how tremendously powerful is the sentiment which has been awakened in us here, and the men of Australia, New Zealand, India, and the far parts of the Empire. Let us behave ourselves as responsible men at a critical time, for, sir, every day in an Empire like ours is a critical day. I, for one, will refuse to vote on any resolution, binding or otherwise, for it is the formation of public opinion and healthy sentiment which is the main purpose of such a conference as this. (Cheers.)

The Woman In the Alcove

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,

Author of "The Millionaire Baby," "The Filigree Ball," "The House in the Mist," "The Amethyst Box," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY.

Or so it seemed. But if the Englishman is slow, he is sure. Thrown off the track for the time being, Mr. Grey had only to see a picture of the stiletto in the papers, to feel again that, despite all appearances, Fairbrother was really not only at the bottom of the thefts from which his cousin and himself had suffered, but of this frightful murder as well. He made no open move—he was a stranger in a strange land and much disturbed, besides, by his fears for his daughter—but he started a secret inquiry through his old valet, whom he ran across in the street and whose peculiar adaptability for this kind of work he well knew.

The aim of these inquiries was to determine if the person, whom two physicians and three assistants were endeavoring to nurse back to health on the top of a wild plateau in a remote district of New Mexico, was the man he had once entertained at his own board in England, and the adventures thus incurred would make a story in itself. But the result seemed to justify them. Word came after innumerable delays, very trying to Mr. Grey, that he was not the same, though he bore the name of Fairbrother, and was considered by every one around there to be Fairbrother. Mr. Grey, ignorant of the relations between the millionaire master and his man which sometimes led to the latter's personifying the former, was confident of his own mistake and bitterly ashamed of his own suspicions.

But a second message set him right. A deception was being practiced down in New Mexico, and this was how his spy had found it out. Certain letters which went into the sick tent were sent away again, and always to that one address. He had learned the address. It was that of James Wellgood, C—, Maine. If Mr. Grey would look up this Wellgood he would doubtless learn something of the man he was so interested in.

This gave Mr. Grey personally something to do, for he would trust no second party with a message involving the honor of a possibly innocent man. As the place was accessible by railroad and his duty clear, he took the journey involved and succeeded in getting a glimpse in the manner we know of the man James Wellgood. This time he recognized Fairbrother and, satisfied from the circumstances of the moment that he would be making no mistake in accusing him of having taken the Great Mogul, he intercepted him in his flight, as you have already read, and demanded the immediate return of his great diamond.

And Fairbrother? We shall have to go back a little to bring his history up to this critical instant.

When he realized the trend of public opinion, when he saw a perfectly innocent man committed to the Tombs for his crime, he was first astonished and then amused at what he continued to regard as the triumph of his star. But he did not start for El Moro, wise as he felt it would be to do so. Something of the fascination usual with criminals kept him near the scene of his crime, that and an anxiety to see how Sears would conduct himself in the southwest. That Sears had followed him to New York, knew his crime and was the strongest witness against him was as far from his thoughts as that he owed him the warning which had all but balked him of his revenge. When therefore he read in the papers that "Abner Fairbrother" had been found sick in his camp at Santa Fe he felt that nothing now stood in the way of his entering on the plans he had framed for ultimate escape. On his departure from El Moro he had taken the precaution of giving Sears the name of a certain small town on the coast of Maine where his mail was to be sent in case of a great emergency. He had chosen this town for two reasons—first, because he knew all about it, having had a young man from there in his employ; secondly, because of its neighborhood to the inlet where an old launch of his had been docked for the winter. Always astute, always precautionary, he had given orders to have this launch floated and provisioned, so that now he had only to send word to the captain to have at his command the best possible means of escape.

Meanwhile he must make good his position in C—. He did it in the way we know. Satisfied that the only danger he need fear was the discovery of the fraud practiced in New Mexico, he had confidence enough in Sears even in his present disabled state to take his time and make himself solid with the people of C— while waiting for the ice to disappear from the harbor. This accomplished and cruising made possible, he took a flying trip to New York to secure such papers and valuables as he wished to carry out of the country with him. They were in safe deposit, but that safe deposit was in his strong room in the center of his house in Eighty-sixth street—a room which you will remember in connection with Sweetwater's adventure.

To enter his own door with his own latchkey, in the security and darkness of a stormy night, seemed to this self confident man a matter of no great risk. Nor did he find it so. He reached his strong room, procured his securities and was leaving the house, without having suffered an alarm, when some instinct of self preservation suggested to him the advisability of arming himself with a pistol. His own was in Maine, but he remembered where Sears kept his. He had seen it often enough in that old trunk he had brought with him from the Sierras. He accordingly went upstairs to the steward's room, found the pistol and became from that instant invincible. But in restoring the articles he had pulled out he came across a photograph of his wife and lost himself over it and went mad, as we have heard the detective tell. That later, he should succeed in trapping this detective and should leave the house without a qualm as to his fate, shows what sort of man he was in moments of extreme danger. I doubt, from what I have heard of him since, if he ever gave two thoughts to the man after he had sprung the double lock on him; which, considering his extreme ignorance of who his victim was or what relation he bore to his own fate, was certainly remarkable.

Back again in C—, he made his final preparations for departure. He had already communicated with the captain of the launch, who may or may not have known his passenger's real name. He says that he supposed him to be some agent of Mr. Fairbrother's; that among the first orders he received from that gentleman was one to the effect that he was to follow the instructions of one Wellgood as if they came from himself; that he had done so, and not till he had Mr. Fairbrother on board had he known whom he was expected to carry into other waters. However, there are many who do not believe the captain. Fairbrother had a genius for rousing devotion in the men who worked for him, and probably this man was another Sears.

To leave speculation, all was in train, then, and freedom but a quarter of a mile away, when the boat he was in was stopped by another and he heard Mr. Grey's voice demanding the jewel.

The shock was severe and he had need of all the nerve which had hitherto made his career so prosperous to sustain the encounter with the calmness which alone could carry off the situation. Declaring that the diamond was in New York, he promised to restore it if the other would make the sacrifice worth while by continuing to preserve his hitherto admirable silence concerning him. Mr. Grey responded by granting him just twenty-four hours, and when Fairbrother said the time was not long enough and allowed his hand to steal ominously to his breast he repeated still more decisively, "Twenty-four hours."

The ex-miner honored bravery. Withdrawing his hand from his breast, he brought out a notebook instead of a pistol and, in a tone fully as determined, replied: "The diamond is in a place inaccessible to any one but myself. If you will put your name to a promise not to betray me for the thirty-six hours I ask, I will sign one to restore you the diamond before 1:30 o'clock on Friday."

"I will," said Mr. Grey.

So the promises were written and duly exchanged. Mr. Grey returned to New York, and Fairbrother boarded his launch.

The diamond really was in New York, and to him it seemed more politic to use it as a means of securing Mr. Grey's permanent silence than to fly the country, leaving a man behind him who knew his secret and could precipitate his doom with a word. He would therefore go to New York, play his last great card and, if he lost, be no worse off than he was now. He did not mean to lose.

But he had not calculated on any inherent weakness in himself had not calculated on Providence. A dish tumbled and with it fell into chaos the fair structure of his dreams. With the cry of "Grizel! Grizel!" he gave up his secret, his hopes and his life. There was no retrieval possible after that. The star of Abner Fairbrother had set.

Mr. Grey and his daughter learned very soon of my relations to Mr. Durand, but through the precautions of the inspector and my own powers of self control no suspicion has ever crossed their minds of the part I once played in the matter of the stiletto.

This was amply proved by the invitation Mr. Durand and I have just received to spend our honeymoon at Darlington Manor.

THE END.

WHAT BEAUTIFUL HAIR!

How often do we hear that exclamation of a certain woman's hair or a certain man's hair.

A prominent scientist and hair specialist emphatically states, and has proven that any man or woman can have luxuriant, lustrous hair, by using a famous prescription called Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now made and sold in Canada. Wm. Madill the druggist is the agent in Peterborough and the readers of the Review can buy from him for only 50 cents a large bottle.

Wm. Madill knows that Parisian Sage will beautify the hair, cure dandruff and stop falling hair, and for that reason he sells it under a guarantee to cure or money back.

If you cannot obtain Parisian Sage where you live, you can get a bottle for 50 cents from Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont. express charges prepaid.

Duly Warned.

A tourist while sojourning at a rising Scottish seaside resort was one morning almost drowned through rushing into the sea to recover his hat that had been blown off by a gale of wind. He was, however, gallantly rescued by a passerby; but, to his astonishment, he was seized by a constable as he was being dragged ashore and conveyed to the police station, where he was charged with disregarding a bylaw which enacted that any one found in the water after 8 a. m. should be prosecuted as the law directs.

The presiding bailie animadverted severely on the heinousness of such a flagrant breach of the bylaw, remarking:

"Eh, man, an' so ye are doin' all ye can to drive awa' trade and frighten awa' sightseers from the toon. It's a shame, after we ha'e spent so much money to mak' the toon attractive. I ha'e a great mind to mak' ye pay a heavy fine for yer thoughtless conduct."

"But, bailie," pleaded the rescued one, "I"—

"Silence!" roared that functionary. "Silence! Ye cam' here an' get droon'd, that gi'es the toon a bad name, and casts a gloom over everything, frightens awa' visitors and upsets all our arrangements for the entire season. Now awa' the noo, and remember ye maun be carefu' for the future."—Dundee Advertiser.

The American's Gambling Ways.

In a letter from "A German In America," published in a Berlin newspaper, the writer dwells at length on the "American's fondness for gambling and his proficiency in the art." "His business methods," says the writer, "are speculative and not conservative, like ours, and he takes great risks to reach the coveted goal of riches. At school he plays games with the small copper coin of the country, and when he reaches college he plays poker. He gambles on the outcome of the athletic contests in his and rival educational institutions, and when driven to the wall in argument, no matter what the subject may be, the final and usually effective weapon is a bet. From school he goes into business. If this happens to be in the 'financial' line, there is no interruption of the gambling habits acquired at school. If he goes into commerce and can resist the temptations of the men who dangle before his eyes visions of fortunes made by speculating in stocks, he may be saved. But usually he succumbs and is worse off than the financial gambler, because he becomes a speculator in his own business and in the stock market also. It must be a dreadful strain on the men, but they seem to thrive on it and to grow fat and rich as well, and only we who worry about them remain poor."

THE WHAT-DO-YOU-THINK.

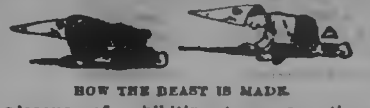
Wonderful Animal That Can Be Made in the Nursery.

Look at the funny animal in the picture. Can you guess how he is manufactured? The performer, who should have black kid gloves on, places on his head a paper cap worked up with the aid of the nursery paint box into a rough semblance of an animal's head. This being securely fastened on, he goes down on his hands and knees and a shaggy fur rug is thrown over him and secured round his neck, when the animal is complete.

When all is in readiness the exhibitor begins in proper showman style: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have the pleasure of exhibiting to your notice the celebrated 'what-do-you-think' or giant uncle eater. You have all probably heard of the ant eater. This is, as you will readily perceive, a member of the same family, but more so! He measures seven feet from the tip of his snout to the end of his tail, eight feet back again, five feet around the small of his waist and has four feet of his own, making twenty-four in all. In his natural state he lives chiefly on bluebottle flies and mixed pickles, but in captivity it is found that so rich a diet has a tendency to make him stout, and he is now fed exclusively on old champagne corks and back numbers of the daily paper. His voice, which you may perhaps have an opportunity of hearing (here the 'what-do-you-think' howls dismally), is in the key of B flat and is greatly admired. People come here before breakfast to hear it, and when they have heard it they assure us that they never heard anything like it before."—Philadelphia Ledger.



HOW THE BEAST IS MADE.

A CHEROKEE LEGEND.

Indian Story of the Lazy Rabbit and the Tar Wolf.

Among the Cherokee Indians the following story of the rabbit and the tar wolf used often to be told:

"Once there was such a long season of dry weather that no more water remained in the creeks and springs, and the animals held a council to see what could be done. They decided to dig a well, and all agreed to help except the rabbit, who was a lazy fellow and said:

"'I don't need to dig for water. The dew on the grass is enough for me.'

"The other animals were not pleased with the rabbit's remarks, but they set to work to dig the well. They noticed that the rabbit kept sleek and lively, although it was still dry weather and the water was becoming low in the well.

"The other animals suspected that the tricky rabbit was stealing the water at night, and they made a wolf of pine gum and tar and placed it by the well to frighten the thief. That night the rabbit came, as he had been coming every night, to drink enough to last him all the next day. When he saw the queer black thing by the well, he inquired:

"'Who's there?'

"But there was no reply. The rabbit came nearer, but the wolf didn't move, so he grew braver and said:

"'Get out of my way or I'll kick you.'

"Still there was no reply. Then the rabbit kicked with his hind foot so hard that it was caught in the gum, and he could not move, and there he stuck until the animals came for water in the morning. When they discovered the thief they had great sport over him for awhile and then prepared to kill him. But as soon as the rabbit was released from the tar wolf he managed to escape."

Stopping a Train.

An old locomotive engineer was once asked within what distance it was possible to stop a train that was running at a speed of sixty miles an hour. He answered that with air brakes, little wind and dry rails it could be stopped within a quarter of a mile, but the distance would be greater if the rails were wet and a strong wind was blowing from the rear. With dry rails and a strong wind blowing from the front, the stop could be made within less than a quarter of a mile. Much would depend, he said, on the way the air brakes were applied. If they are put on too suddenly they will "pick the wheels up" and the latter will slide along the track the same almost as if they were running. The brakes must be applied gradually and tentatively, so to speak, to get the best results from their action.

An Interrupted Story.

Said Mrs. Moon: "In chapters two a fairy tale I'll tell,
Chapter the first—I rose last night and shone o'er hill and dell.
I woke the pixies in the woods and all the sleeping elves
And bade them scamper to the fields and there enjoy themselves.

"Away they sped on tripping feet, with hearts as light as air.
A banquet spread by fairy hands was waiting for them there.
Oh, dear, they had a lovely time, the pixies, elves and fays!
They danced and sang right merrily beneath my silver rays.

"And now 'tis time for chapter two. There is so much to say!
The moon sees many things, you know, which no one sees by day.
Alas, alack, here come the clouds to hide my beauteous light,
So I must go to bed at once! Good night, my dears; good night!"

Brantford Public School Board has decided to abolish slates in the Public schools as conducive to slovenly writing.

First Ice Machine.

Dr. John Gorrie, a native of Charleston, S. C., was practicing medicine in Apalachicola, Fla. He was a scientific man and fond of making experiments. He conceived the idea of artificially cooling the air in the rooms occupied by fever patients by taking advantage of the absorption of heat from surrounding objects by expanding volatile gases. He was so successful as to make actual ice as early as 1845.

In 1850, in the Madison hotel, in his home town, he publicly exhibited his machine and made ice with it. He was granted the first patent for an ice making machine in the same year. The New York papers made fun of the invention, and Dr. Gorrie could not get enough money to enable him to make experiments along large lines. He died in 1855, without having seen the success of the line of work which he had begun.

Jacob Perkins, an American engineer living in England, had made some successful experiments with cooling apparatus several years before. Professor Alexander Twining, in America, and James Harrison, of Australia, as well as several French scientists, came along about the same time with experimental machines.

But the first ice factory of importance in the world was established in New Orleans in 1866, and it became the forerunner of the thousands of plants now being operated. The Australians were first to think of freezing meat to preserve it for long keeping, but the notion was adopted in the United States without a moment's delay.—Exchange.

T.A.S. TENTH ANNUAL PICNIC TO BE THE GREATEST EVER

Boat Races, Yacht Races, Ball Game and Other Sports—A Most Attractive Programme—Best Boat Service Ever Had.

Full arrangements for the tenth annual excursion of St. Peter's T. A.S. to their park to-morrow have been completed, and a monster turn-out is assured. Greater and better boat accommodations than was ever had before will be provided, and from 8.30 a.m. till night a steady stream of excursionists will be handled by an efficient boat committee. The grounds present a gala appearance already, the booths, tents and other paraphernalia having been put in place. Choice meals and refreshments will as usual be served by a capable corps of young ladies.

The drawing card will be the sports, for which nearly two hundred dollars in prizes are offered, and a distinctly classy field of athletes will compete in the events. The ball game between the abstainers' star nine and the West Ends will be a humnor, and will begin at one o'clock, in order to give the committee handling sports sufficient time to run off the sports left over from the morning. The races will begin promptly at 11 a.m. This step was decided on when the committee arranged their list. To run off everything in the afternoon would be a practical impossibility, and hence the above decision as to time of starting. The tug-of-war and launch races are other distinctive features of the outing, which, under ordinary weather conditions, will be the grandest effort in this line the Total Abstinence Society have ever put forth.

OFFICERS OF 57TH REGIMENT WERE GUESTS OF DRAGOONS

At Nassau Camp Last Night—Excellent Spread and Bright Programme—A Most Successful Affair.

It was a happy exchange of courtesies last night at the camp of the 3rd Prince of Wales's Dragoons at Nassau, when the officer of that regiment entertained the officers of the 57th Regiment. An appetizing spread was provided by Coleman Brothers, and after the supper the evening was spent in informal entertainment. Lt.-Col. Syer, O.C., occupied the chair and Capt. Clarry was in the vice chair. The toast to the King was first honored, and the toast to "Our Guests" was replied to by Major Clegg, of the 57th.

Lieut. Edmison was the first called to contribute to the programme with a vocal number, and he was followed by songs by Major McLaughlin, Capt. Cluxton and Capt. Watt. Col. Miller made an eloquent speech and also gave a couple of recitations, which earned the cordial applause of the assembly. Short speeches were made by Major Davidson, chaplain of the 57th, and Capt. Langfeldt, chaplain of the Dragoons, and Capt. Smith, the Quartermaster of the Dragoons.

The function was a great success, and the guests congratulated the officers of the Dragoons on their excellent qualities as entertainers. The gathering broke up about twelve o'clock.

THE FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE MET LAST NIGHT

The Fire, Water & Light Committee last night took up the question of the lights reported out on the streets during the past quarter. There were reports of 48 lights out, and these the company claimed were out due to a cause through no fault of theirs, and did not think they should be charged up with them.

There were three lights over which there were some dispute, and these were on motion of Ald. Turner, struck off, but the others were not allowed, and $7.37 will be deducted from the company's account.

The committee do not feel that they can pay for anything they do not get. If the company's lights do not work it is not the city's fault.

A number of new lights were placed this year by the chairman on authority of the committee and these were passed last night by the committee.

Ald. Turner said that in view of the fact that there is room for dispute about some of the lights reported out he would move that the company's trimmer call up every morning and ask for the reports, and if there are any the chief of the fire department or one of his men will go out with the trimmer and these disputes will be avoided.

The Fire, Water & Light Committee does not want a cent that it is not entitled to, neither does it want to pay any more than is necessary.

The matter of a load of straw left at the fire hall without an order was left in the hands of the chairman to to settle. The farmer asked $5 for a load of straw about 800 pounds. This price is too much and anyway the farmer cannot collect anything as it was not ordered.

A new horse is needed at the fire hall as a spare horse and for use in fixing the alarm wires, etc. The city should have a good big general purpose horse that can be put into the truck or draw a big load of tools and three or four men for repair work.

Moved by Ald. Turner and Mayor Rush that this committee be authorized to purchase a horse for the fire hall, and that it be paid for upon the certificate of the engineer.

The four men entitled to two weeks' holidays this year will get them and the chief was authorised to engage a man to take their places.

The interesting points here to be seen include the Invalides and Tomb of Napoleon, Palace of the Louvre, Cathedral of Notre Dame, the Boulevards and Palais de la Concorde. An excursion by rail to the Palace and gardens of Versailles will conclude the visit in Paris.

From Paris the party will take the train for Havre, and from there sail for Canada and home.

BAND CONCERT AT GROVE ATTRACTED MANY CANOEISTS

The band concert at Crawford's Grove last night was an attraction for an immense crowd of launches and canoes. It is estimated that there were over one hundred canoes at the grove, and a large number of launches.

Many walked from the end of the street car line to the park, and there were several buggies from the city there. There were twelve pieces in the band, and an acceptable programme of light numbers was played. The evening was a little cool, and if the weather had been as warm as usual there, no doubt, would have been an even larger attendance.

DR. PELKEY

Consumption Cured

And all other Lung and Kidney Troubles

By the Wonderful Discovery made by a Canadian Doctor.

Dr. Pelkey, a Canadian Physician, holding medical certificates in France, United States and Mexico, has made a discovery that promises to be the greatest boon yet given to humanity.

His great Consumption Cure is applied by means of an inhaler, the ingredients for which are contained in a tank, an the very first use made of it by the patient brings immedite relief, followed quickly by permanent cure. These inhalers are not sold to the people, but are placed in the home until they are not further needed, and then taken away.

Dr. Pelkey is exhibiting the invention, which is called the Peltier Inhaler, throughout the country. The inhaler is first a platinum tank, divided into 38 compartments, into which various chemicals and drugs are placed. Outside these compartments cold water is placed. The action of the cold water causes a vaporous gas to rise into an eight-part evaporator at the top, where it is purified and forced through tubes for inhalation. The gas forms pure oxygen tasteless and odorless, and the patient inhales this. So healing is its effect that it will almost immediately stop a tuberculosis cough.

Most wonderful of all is the fact that Dr. Pelkey offers to treat his patients with his inhaler free of charge. The only thing for which he charges is a blood-purifier and building-up tonic, which he insists upon the patient's taking. He will even allow the person undergoing the treatment to take home the tank with him and be treated there.

Dr. Pelkey has been for 17 years in Mexico and Central and South America. He has Government certificates from Mexico, Brasil, New Mexico and Canada and many Latin-American republics testifying to cures wrought by him with the inhaler. One certificate states that nearly half a troop of Mexican soldiers and American soldiers and Government officials of Montreal were cured under his treatment. Another is signed by President Diaz, of Mexico, himself, whom Dr. Pelkey cured. Dr. Pelkey can show hundreds of other testimonials of permanent people of Ottawa, who were cured of lung troubles and kidney troubles after suffering for five years.

A WARNING FROM THE WITNESS

"... So long as the public knows what it does know about the public service, all along the line, and so long as it believes what it does believe about it, no one will be got to think, without evidence, that that one department was the only one that needed cleaning out."

Such is the astounding indictment of the Laurier Government by the Montreal Witness (Liberal) in its issue of Tuesday, June 29th, 1909.

It must be taken as a fair warning by a Liberal journal to the people of Canada that corruption is eating the heart out of the public service. One commission that was appointed to investigate, it will be remembered, laid the charge of a "lack of conscience" in the administration of the affairs of that department. Other investigations have disclosed similar conditions. Both parties and all patriotic, honest-minded Canadians are under immediate obligation to heed the Witness's warning. There has been a tendency to "compromise" in many ways in affairs moral, political and departmental of late, and it remains only for this same tendency to permeate ordinary commercial life as it has political, when the ruin of the state will be at hand. It seems to be the fate of all governments, at least in Canada, to disintegrate through rottenness, sooner or later, and the Laurier Government is evidently no exception to a gruesome rule. We are victims of a temptation which we punish our children for yielding to. It begins to look as if we shall merit the scorn of that writer who said that "we were not men but merely painted to look like men." It has been said of California that it is God's country but the devil's people. Evidently we have nothing on them in this respect.

A programme of similar nature is planned by those coming from Peel County.

The members of the choir of George St. Methodist church, held a very successful and enjoyable ice cream social last night on the lawn of the church. Music was furnished by the Sunday school orchestra and several members of the choir rendered vocal numbers. A large attendance of young people were present, and all spent a pleasant time.

YOUNG MAN GIVEN A CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD

Was Allowed off on Suspended Sentence—Must Report to Chief Roszel Each Month

The young man who was charged at the police court last week with having stolen a quantity of tools, and who was remanded until to-day, was this morning allowed to go on suspended sentence, and must report to Chief Roszel on the first day of the next six months.

The young man, who comes of respectable parents, has not had a very creditable record in the past. He has appeared in police court before, and on one occasion was sentenced to three months in jail, but he is, apparently, of the class of offenders who do not profit by this kind of punishment. Mr. Gordon asked that the young man be given a chance to make good in the future, and suggested a similar judgment to that given by the magistrate.

Everyone should plan to hear the Rev. A. B. Simpson, pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, New York, and President of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, who is expected to speak at the Bethany Tabernacle on Friday evening of this week. Mr. Simpson is a man who God has greatly honored in evangelistic, pastoral, publishing and missionary efforts. Over twenty-five years ago he was the pastor of one of the large fashionable Presbyterian churches in New York City, but felt the need of a place where the poorer and middle classes would feel more at home than in the larger churches. He left the church, started a Gospel Mission for the neglected, and too often despised poor, multitude of whom flocked to hear the simple gospel messages, and were saved. The present Tabernacle, together with the Eighth Avenue Mission, is now proclaiming the same old gospel, and while in many places, comparatively few are being saved, yet God still saves many here.

As the work developed, a great need of men who knew the Word of God, and were filled with His Spirit, was felt continually. Mr. Simpson started a Bible class with a view to securing such workers, and soon a few earnest men and women gathered around him as helpers, in teaching and prayer. There was no guaranteed support, and throughout all these years God has honored the prayer of faith and poured men and money into the work, until now the large Missionary Training Institute at Nyack, New York, stands as a monument of what God does in answer to prayer. Since those days of small things, hundreds of workers have gone forth from the Training Institute, both to Home and Foreign work, and to-day there are about three hundred missionaries in India, Africa, China, Palestine, South America, Japan and the Philippines. In the Training Institute there have been about two hundred and twenty-five young men and women gathering for about seven or eight months of the year each year, and a good training is given for an efficient and fruitful and fruitful gospel ministry. At present, in Toronto, there is gathered a large company who are interested in this work, because it stands for the old Bible and a full salvation from the guilt and power of sin, not only for a favored few, but for all nations, and Mr. Simpson is attending this twenty-first annual Canadian Convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, and has promised to come to Peterborough for Friday evening. Be sure to come on Friday evening.

ANTI HAT LEAGUE THE VERY LATEST

A number of men in town have gotten together and decided it is foolish to wear hats unless the weather is too severe, and there is an understanding amongst the boys that no hats are to be worn unless absolutely necessary. The fashion comes into effect to-morrow, and everyone who can see that nature—that is the sun and fresh air—help to strengthen a person's scalp, and that wearing hats only tend to make a person bald, is invited to join the Anti-Hat League. The only qualification being that you do without a hat.

The only people who will not like it will be the hair restorer people, because they will be out of a job.

DEPARTURE OF MR. AND MRS. MONTIZAMBERT

This morning Mr., Mrs. and Miss Montizambert took their departure from Peterborough on the 8.30 a.m. G.T.R. train. They will spend the holiday season at Rosseville, Muskoka, before going to Brantford. A large number of friends were at the station to see them off, and to say a last word of regret at their departure.

LAKEFIELD

A patriotic service was held in the Presbyterian church on Sabbath morning. The church was tastefully decorated with flags. The address on "Canada for Christ," was delivered by Rev. S. G. Burns.

The Methodist Sunday school excursion took place to Bel's Creek on Monday, June 28th, and was largely attended.

Clement Lodge, A.F. and A.M., attended divine service at St. John's church on Sunday morning. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Bro. Spencer.

We wish to correct an error which occurred in last week's correspondence. Mr. Lennox was not driving the horse that was killed, but was driving another animal, and only saved it from being crushed by his prompt action.

Mr. J. L. Garvin, who has been conducting examinations at Keene, has returned to the village.

The demise occurred on Sunday evening of Mrs. Wm. Heard, of Smith, who had been ill for some time at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jno. Millage, Lakefield. An operation to remove a tumor was performed on Sunday morning, and owing to the low state of health, the patient was unable to regain her strength. The deceased leaves to mourn her loss her husband and five children, three sons and two daughters.

The Presbyterian and Baptist Sabbath schools held a union excursion to Buckhorn on Tuesday, June 29th. A large number took it in.

Miss Flannigan, of London, is the guest of Miss Kenneally in the village.

The young people of the village drove to Chemong on Monday evening and enjoyed themselves tripping the light fantastic.

Mr. W. H. Casement and Mr. Wm. Preston are spending a few days at Stony Lake.

Mr. Gerald Hayward, who has been away with a Grand Trunk Pacific survey party, is back to the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Jackson and family spent Sunday and Monday in Toronto.

Mrs. F. E. Kline and Miss Gladys left Monday for Huntsville, where they will be the guests of Mrs Kline's mother, Mrs. Botterill.

Mr. Albert Graham is building a new house on Water street.

Miss Purser, who has been visiting her sister in Isley, Alberta, passed through the village this week en route for her home at Buckhorn.

The train service has been changed to three trains a day, and the tourists are beginning to flock into the village in large numbers to and from Stony Lake.

Mrs. W. H. E. Bravender, who has been visiting her sister at St. Thomas, has returned home.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

A MESSAGE FROM MARJORIE

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Farrington turned from the bookcase with a little gesture of annoyance. His Shakespeare, of all volumes! How stupid of Thomas to have let out his books without his knowledge or consent! Only last week he had missed his favorite, much marked copy of Rochefoucault. Presley had nabbed that.

But this was a little too much. Especially in view of the fact that "Hamlet" was playing that night and there were a couple of passages he felt he must run over.

He crossed the room impatiently and pushed the call bell. It was answered at once by the redoubtable valet.

"It seems still more of my books are missing, Thomas. I am afraid you have been careless. I can't locate that red calf edition of Shakespeare anywhere."

"You left orders, sir—begging your pardon—to accommodate any of the young gentlemen"—

"When I rushed off to Europe, eh?" A whimsical smile made its transient passage across Farrington's scowling face. "Very well. I presume you are right. I was a bit upset, I remember. You may go."

But as the man started toward the door he called him back.

"By the way, are there any bookstores hereabout?"

"No first class ones, sir."

"Any—er—first class neighbors?"

"A few, sir."

"Good! Scrimmage around and find me a Shakespeare before night and I'll"—

But Thomas had already disappeared.

• • • • • • • •

Marjorie Hayward was just coming out of the front door when Farrington's man stepped up on the veranda. His request surprised her a little, but she was very glad, indeed, to be able to accommodate him.

She had a copy of Shakespeare somewhere, she said, an old, battered one, but his "master" was welcome to the use of it, certainly. And with this information she went back into the library to search for it.

What sort of people were they, anyhow, the new neighbors who had just moved in the day before and were already beginning to borrow people's books? she wondered good naturedly.

At last she came across the rusty little volume, stuffed to overflowing with old letters, clippings and scraps of memoranda.

She held it up and shook them out in a shower, a swarm of memories suddenly aroused by the long buried sight of certain familiar bits of writing, pressed flowers crumbling to atoms, yet vaguely redolent still of a dear, dead past.

With a smothered sigh she caught herself back sharply from her foolish reflections and returned to the door with the book. Thomas thanked her elaborately and hastened away. Marjorie waited till he had passed up the short stone walk of the house next door. Then she buttoned up her coat and walked down the gravel path to the gate.

• • • • • • • •

Farrington took the volume eagerly, turning the yellowed leaves with deft fingers till he should come to "Hamlet." But suddenly he paused, his eyes narrowed curiously and his heart gave a startled jump. A brief extract from "The Merry Wives of Windsor" caught his attention. "Ask me no reason why I love you, for, though love use reason for its precision, he admits him not for his counselor."

The passage was heavily underscored, and below it were scribbled in corroboration the initials "M. H."—"W. F." They were hers—and his!

Marjorie Hayward! The name sent his thoughts tumbling tumultuously back over the past, sent the blood tingling even to his eyelids. How many years—nearly ten!—since he had called that name. Yet how many days, indeed, had it been absent from his heart?

The minutes flew by as he sat there wrapped in meditation. At last he began again to slip the leaves absently through his fingers, when abruptly they came in contact with something alien.

He glanced closer, almost indifferently, and started again as his gaze rested stupidly upon an envelope stuck to one of the pages and addressed in full to himself—addressed in Marjorie Hayward's clear, resolute characters half a score of years ago, when they had both lived in the same little western town.

Without a second thought as to whether he should or should not open it Farrington deliberately tore the letter from its inclosure and read:

> Dear Walter—I have been thinking things over, and, after all, you must be right. I made the mistake, and I am willing to acknowledge it. We love each other too much, do we not, to let a silly quarrel separate us for life? Come to me tonight. I shall be waiting for you. As ever,
> MARJORIE.

For an indeterminate space Walter Farrington sat half stunned. What had happened? What could it mean? Had she changed her mind about sending the letter, or had there been some oversight, some carelessness, in the posting?

And Marjorie herself, where was she now? Could it be that she was less than a block away at this minute?

IF DUNLOP AUTOMOBILE TIRES ARE NOT GENUINELY GOOD WHY ARE THEY SO GENERALLY POPULAR.

Perhaps she was married. Or was she dead, and had fate chosen this ironical opportunity to thrust an added misery into his bitter memories?

Farrington was not a man to hem and haw. He thought quickly, and he acted with proportionate dispatch. He took out his watch. It was almost 8. In fifteen minutes he was ringing the doorbell next door.

But he was destined to disappointment. Miss Hayward had gone to "Hamlet." Farrington hurried down the avenue that led to the playhouse. Luckily, his ticket was to be called for at the box office. It was a good seat and commanded a sweeping view of the audience.

After the first act their eyes met—locked—across the sea of faces in the orchestra. The girl paled, flushed and paled again. Then her eyes fell away from the deep, ardent gaze riveted upon her.

After the play Farrington stationed himself at the door, but Marjorie left by a box entrance, and he went home with a sinking heart to a dream haunted pillow.

The rain washed sky was blushing pink when he opened his shutters at 6 the next morning. The flowers made a rainbow of color in the garden below, and the air was vocal with the matutinal chirping of birds.

Suddenly the door of the house across the way swung open, and a young woman in a trim brown traveling dress, suit case in hand, emerged upon the porch.

Farrington caught a desperate breath. The northbound train left in twelve minutes, and he was still in his bathrobe and slippers.

After Providence had thus delectably tossed them together again she was running away from him.

Seven minutes later, decidedly ill groomed, he whizzed up to the platform of the G. and G., jumped out and sent Thomas speeding on his way in the runabout.

Miss Hayward was just turning from the ticket window as he came up, and again their eyes met, hers evasively, his with the old compelling power she had never known how to resist.

"Marjorie!"

"Walter!" The name escaped her unconsciously.

"I just received your message, dear," he said, "and that is why I am here." He displayed to her bewildered gaze the faded writing on the yellowed paper.

"Why," she breathed wonderingly—"why, I don't understand. I wrote you that letter over nine years ago and"—

"For some reason which is not presently apparent it was never mailed. See, the stamp is uncanceled. I found it in the little old Shakespeare we used to read so often together."

"And which I have never opened since you went away," she interposed in a little tremulous whisper.

The engine bell rang. With a little exclamation Marjorie started toward the train. Farrington took her suit case from her.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"To Pittsburg. And you?"

"Wherever you are—always."

And they stepped aboard the moving train.

A number of street [illegible] defied the mandates of the Winnipeg police [illegible] were promptly arrested.

What Is in a Name.

Heinemann, the European publisher, once noticed two peddlers standing side by side, selling toy dolls. One of them had a queer, fat faced doll, which he was pushing into the faces of the passersby, giving it the name of a well known woman reformer then prominently before the public. His dolls were selling rapidly, while the man beside him, who had a really more attractive doll, was doing comparatively little business. A thought occurred to Heinemann, and he tried an experiment. Calling the second peddler to one side, "My friend," he said, "do you want to know how to sell twice as many of these dolls as you are selling now? Hold them up in pairs, two together in each hand, and cry them as 'The Heavenly Twins.'" The toy vender somewhat grudgingly followed his advice. It was at a time when Sarah Grand's famous novel was at the height of its popularity, and the title of the book was on every one's tongue. Perhaps it was merely luck, but the heavenly twins dolls were an instantaneous success, and within one hour the vender of the woman reformer dolls gave up the fight, acknowledged himself beaten and moved five blocks down the street to escape the ruinous competition.—Lorin F. Deland in Atlantic.

The Supreme Gift.

Man has no wings, and yet he can soar above the clouds. He is not swift of foot, and yet he can outspeed the fleetest hound or horse. He has but feeble weapons in his organization, and yet he can slay or master all the great beasts. His eye is not so sharp as that of the eagle or the vulture, and yet he can see into the farthest depths of sidereal space. He has only very feeble occult powers of communication with his fellows, and yet he can talk around the world and send his voice across mountains and deserts. His hands are weak things beside a lion's paw or an elephant's trunk, and yet he can move mountains and stay rivers and set bounds to the wildest seas. His dog can outsmell him and outrun him and outbite him, and yet his dog looks up to him as to a god. He has erring reasons in place of unerring instinct, and yet he has changed the face of the planet.

Without the specialization of the lower animals—their wonderful adaptation to particular ends, their tools, their weapons, their strength, their speed—man yet makes them all his servants. His brain is more than a match for all the special advantages nature has given them. The one gift of reason makes him supreme in the world.—John Burroughs in Atlantic.

Prof. Ernest Von Walle, a former member of the Ministry of Marine, and a famous writer on political economy, is dead in Berlin.

TALES OF A TAXIDERMIST

THE WILDEBEEST AND THE BLACK MANED LION.

BY TUDOR JENKS

Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.

WHEN I read about Roosevelt having shot a wildebeest I began to wonder whether my friend the Taxidermist had ever shot one of them, and I made it a point to call upon him in order to make the inquiry.

I found him growling to himself over a pile of excelsior that he had removed from the skin of an elk. He was evidently not in good humor, and when I spoke of the wildebeests he began to sniff disdainfully.

"Have I ever shot one?" said he. "Certainly not. Why should I? There's no need to shoot the poor things. They're the most friendly critters in Africa."

"But why haven't I heard of them?" I asked. "I thought I knew most of the common animals in Africa."

"It's because of their calling it by that outlandish Dutch name. That ain't the right name. The right name is gnu. That's what all sensible folk call it unless they're descended from the Dutch.

"Oh, the gnu!" I exclaimed. "I knew I knew the gnu. There's nothing new about the gnu."

"And to think of shooting the poor thing! Why, I'd as soon think of getting myself up in khaki and leggings in order to go out and pot robins. There's no excuse for it, except to make news. You just go and read up about gnus and you'll see why I feel so bad. They're just as playful as kittens. They come around the camp and indulge in all sorts of queer antics and gambols, simply to attract attention. Anybody who would shoot a wildebeest would go gunning for girls in Easter bonnets on Fifth avenue. It makes me tired to think of folks going all the way to Africa to hunt gnus. The fact is, if Colonel Roosevelt did it, it must be because he forgot for a minute whether he was a hunter out for game or an editor out for gnus. There's only one excuse for him. No doubt he landed in Africa feeling rather shaky and anaemic after his long voyage, and while he was camping out somewhere in the suburbs, just beyond trolley distance, somebody yelled:—'Gee, the wildebeest!' Of course Theodore grabbed for his gun, Kermit for his camera and everybody else for pen and ink.

"Then while Theodore was fooling with his gun it went off. So then somebody had to shoot the poor gnu for fear the Colonel would think he had missed and would turn crusty about it.

"That's the worst of going hunting with a man the newspapers have to tell about."

"But I understand there's to be nothing published about the expedition until Roosevelt gets out his own account," I ventured.

"Don't you believe it! Why, I've no doubt there are a dozen reporters camping on the trail, and they're going to send in copy if they have to use every book about Africa that ever was written. There is very little that's reliable printed about Africa anyway. I believe that my own stories are about the only really authentic accounts that have ever been published. Most hunters tell only the adventures that cover them with glory. Now, I tell you the straight facts.

"For example, one of the most unpleasant weeks I ever spent in my life occurred during my ninth visit to Mombasa. There was a very ugly old black maned lion moaning about there which gave the King a lot of trouble. At first he was timid and lurked about without doing any particular damage except eating a woman or two at short intervals. And as this kept the women from gadding about and holding afternoon tea or going to bridge parties the King considered it a rather wholesome influence in the neighborhood. In fact, he said that the lion ought to have a pension. But when the lion began to catch the King's own goats and sheep, and even his pet dogs, the old man lost his temper completely and sent for me.

The Troublesome Lion.

"I couldn't very well refuse, and so I packed up my suit case, took the first gun I happened to lay my hands on and caught the 9.45 train for Mombasa. I found the King playing billiards in the hotel.

"'I'm here,' said I. 'What's wanted?'

"'There's a lion round here,' said the King, 'and I thought you might enjoy shooting it.'

"'It'll cost you eight dollars and my expenses,' said I, for I wasn't in business for my health in those days.

"'Too high,' said the King, missing an easy massé shot. 'Nothing doing.'

"'Well,' said I, 'seeing you're a good customer, I'll mark it down to $7.90, but that's spot cash.'

"'Nixy,' said the King. 'But I don't mind paying $7.50.'

"'Don't let's quarrel over a half dollar,' I said. 'I'll call it $7.69, if you won't tell, for they're cutting prices mighty fine nowadays.'

"'Well, let her go,' said the King, chalking the end of his cue, in preparation for a three cushion shot.

"It wasn't worth more talk, and so I started for the jungle, after checking my suit case at the hotel office.

"I made up my mind that the surest bait for the black maned lion was a good plump widow who lived near the palace, and after a little bargaining I persuaded her to let herself be tied out near the lion's usual watering place. She charged me a string of glass beads and eighteen cents in cash, but I felt it was worth the expense. There was very little danger to her, according to my notion, and she gladly consented to earn a little pin money, as she was a Pagan Scientist and didn't believe in lions, anyway; besides which she belonged to a Don't Worry Club.

"About midnight we thought that the lion was coming. But it proved to be a false alarm. It was only a herd of wildebeests who were indulging in a little moonlight picnic. The graceful creatures played many pretty round games, such as hide and go seek, tag, catch as catch can, and finally retired.

"But an hour or so later we suddenly heard a fearsome roaring. The plump widow pricked up her ears, I looked to the loading of my gun and we awaited the approach of the monarch of the jungle. Soon he came, shaking his mane and walking proudly through the glade. All at once he scented the unfortunate widow and, giving a blood curdling roar, he dashed away into the depths of the jungle as if in danger of being run over by an automobile."

"Why was that?" I inquired.

The Lion Knew Her.

"I couldn't imagine, at first," said the Taxidermist, "but afterward I learned that the lion must have known the woman by reputation, as she certainly was a terror. At all events, that was the end of my enterprise for that night, so I paid the Pagan Scientist her wages and dismissed her.

"The next night I procured a goat for bait, and climbing into the branches of an umbrageous tree began my second vigil with what seemed a better chance of success. About three o'clock in the morning again was heard the stealthy approach of the black maned lion. This time he came on with considerable confidence, whistling through his teeth"——

"Whistling?" I said inquiringly. "Isn't that something new for lions?"

"Entirely," the Taxidermist agreed. "I never knew a lion to do it before or since. But whistle he did, and he didn't stop till he saw the goat. Then he stepped up, gave the goat a biff in the ear that knocked him silly and began to look around for me. Evidently he soon scented me, for he made direct for the tree in which I was perched. Well, of course that suited me, and, drawing a bead on him, I let him have it."

"Did you hit him?"

"Yes, of course. But in my hurry I had picked up one of the modern peewee rifles and the bullet went right through the lion without more than tickling him. So I turned the popgun loose again, with the same result. Not to repeat myself, I emptied my repeater with no damage to the lion except to punch him full of minute punctures that may have been uncomfortable, but certainly didn't do him any more harm than pins do a pincushion. The bullets only made him restless and slightly irritable. When my gun was empty I threw the useless weapon at him and cursed him in three or four languages—all without doing any visible damage.

"So there I was, treed and helpless. Seeing my plight, the lion evidently thought it time to get busy. He emitted a peculiar howl, and soon I heard a distant rustling in the jungle. It rapidly increased, and before long fourteen jackals appeared and surrounded their royal master.

"Now, I'm not one of these nature fakers and I don't pretend to explain what happened. But it seemed to me that the lion gave the leader of the jackals some quiet instructions. And thereupon five of the jackals took their places shoulder to shoulder beneath the tree. Four more climbed upon their backs; three more stood on these; then came two—the whole family forming a pyramid such as you have seen formed by acrobats in the circus. When all were in place the lion retired for a few paces, and then came bounding gracefully to the foot of the tree. With a last nimble spring he clambered up the pyramid of jackals, and, taking his place at the top, poised himself with a horrid grin, ready to leap upon me.

"It was a pretty piece of circus work, but I hadn't time to properly enjoy it. I saw that unless I acted quickly Mrs. Taxidermist would be a widow. Dropping from branch to branch, I reached the ground in the twinkling of an eye, and before the brute intellect could comprehend my purpose I rushed to the off hind leg of the lower jackal in the lowest row and, exerting my strength, pulled out the limb, thus destroying by a single well chosen attack the equilibrium of the carefully constructed pyramid.

"Down came the whole structure while jackals and lion each emitted a blood-curdling howl of dire dismay and dreadful disappointment. No sooner did they strike the ground than the whole pack of jackals shuffled away into the wilderness, looking for a squarer deal. But the lion, falling from his giddy height, was somewhat injured, and for a moment was confused.

So They Shook Hands.

"I fell upon him and seized him by the throat, and then began a terrific struggle that must have lasted for hours. Neither of us would give in, and neither dared to let go. After several hours of rough and tumble I became tired of the thing. I [illegible] getting much more than my money's worth, and the fight was losing interest. Pretty soon the lion broke away. I tumbled backward, and as neither cared to renew the struggle for a [illegible], we sat down a few paces apart, breathing hard and wondering what to do next.

"Pretty soon the lion [illegible] feet and [illegible]. I kept my eye upon him, but [illegible] ore. When he was near [illegible] offered me his right paw with a most engaging grin. Well, sir, I knew what he meant. He was offering to call it a draw. And I was only too glad to take him up. So we shook hands, and each withdrew feebly, with mutual good will.

"After I had recovered from my fatigue I went in search of the King. I found him at the hotel playing bridge for prizes. I asked him whether I might have a few minutes' private conversation, and waiting until he was dummy he obligingly consented.

"'Well,' said he, 'did you get the lion?'

"'No,' I admitted; 'we had a good scrap and finally agreed to call it a draw.' And I told him about it.

"'That was hard luck,' said the King, 'but it all comes of those small bore rifles. Would you like to try again? I can lend you a small cannon I've got lying around the place somewhere, and if you can hit him with that'——

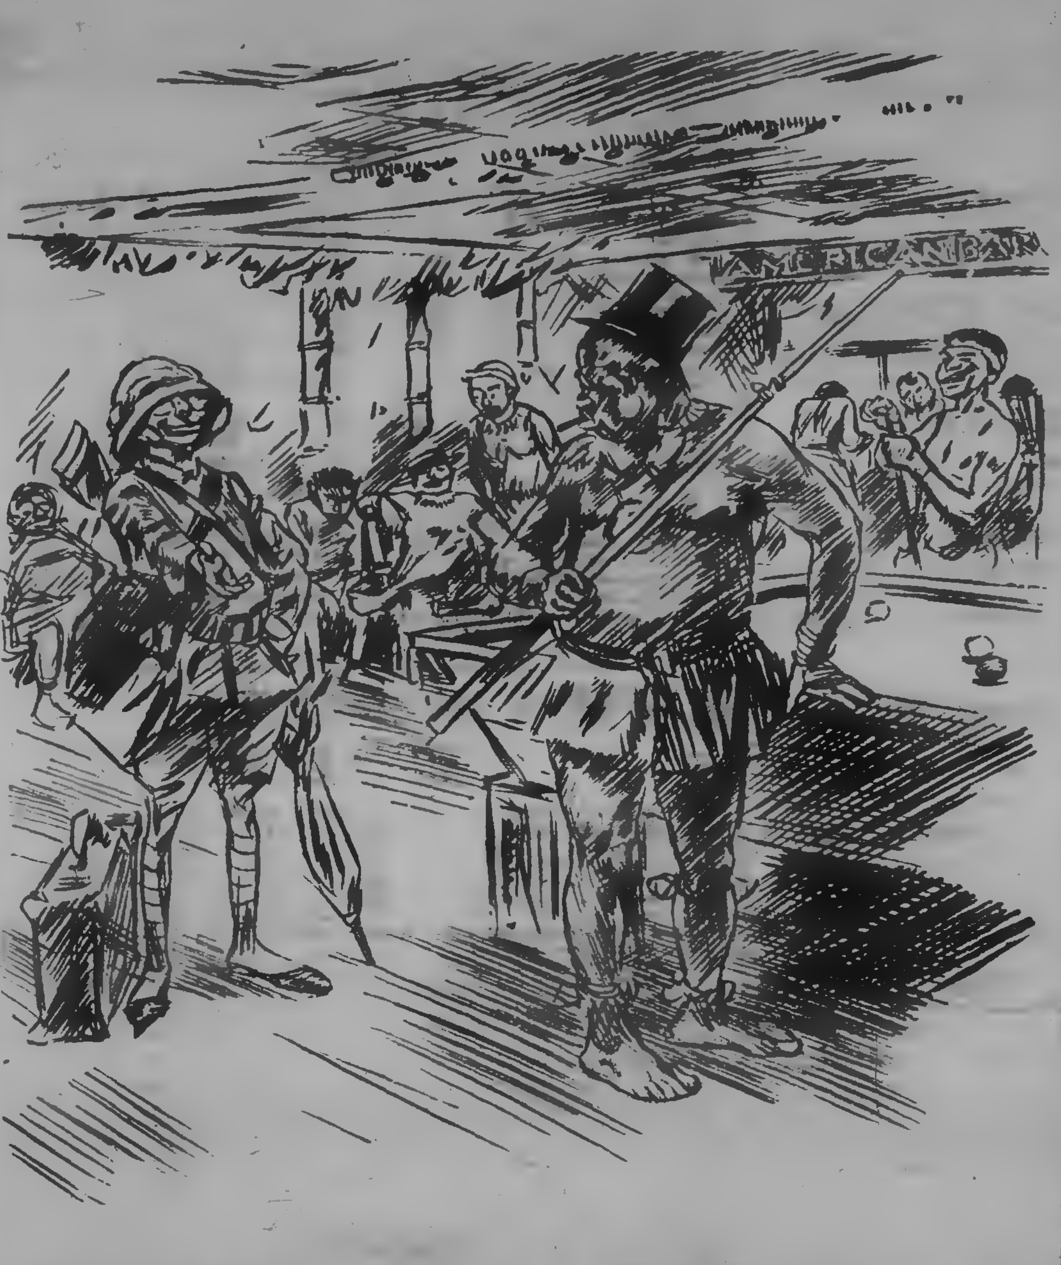
"Just then came a cry, 'It's your deal, Your Majesty,' and he left me without any mention of compensation. As for me, I went and got my suit case and caught the train for home. I had lost my time and my rifle, and besides had ruined my reputation with the King. I never did have any luck with black maned lions or red headed girls. Every man has his hoodoo, and those are mine. But, after all, I gained something from the experience."

"What was that?" I inquired.

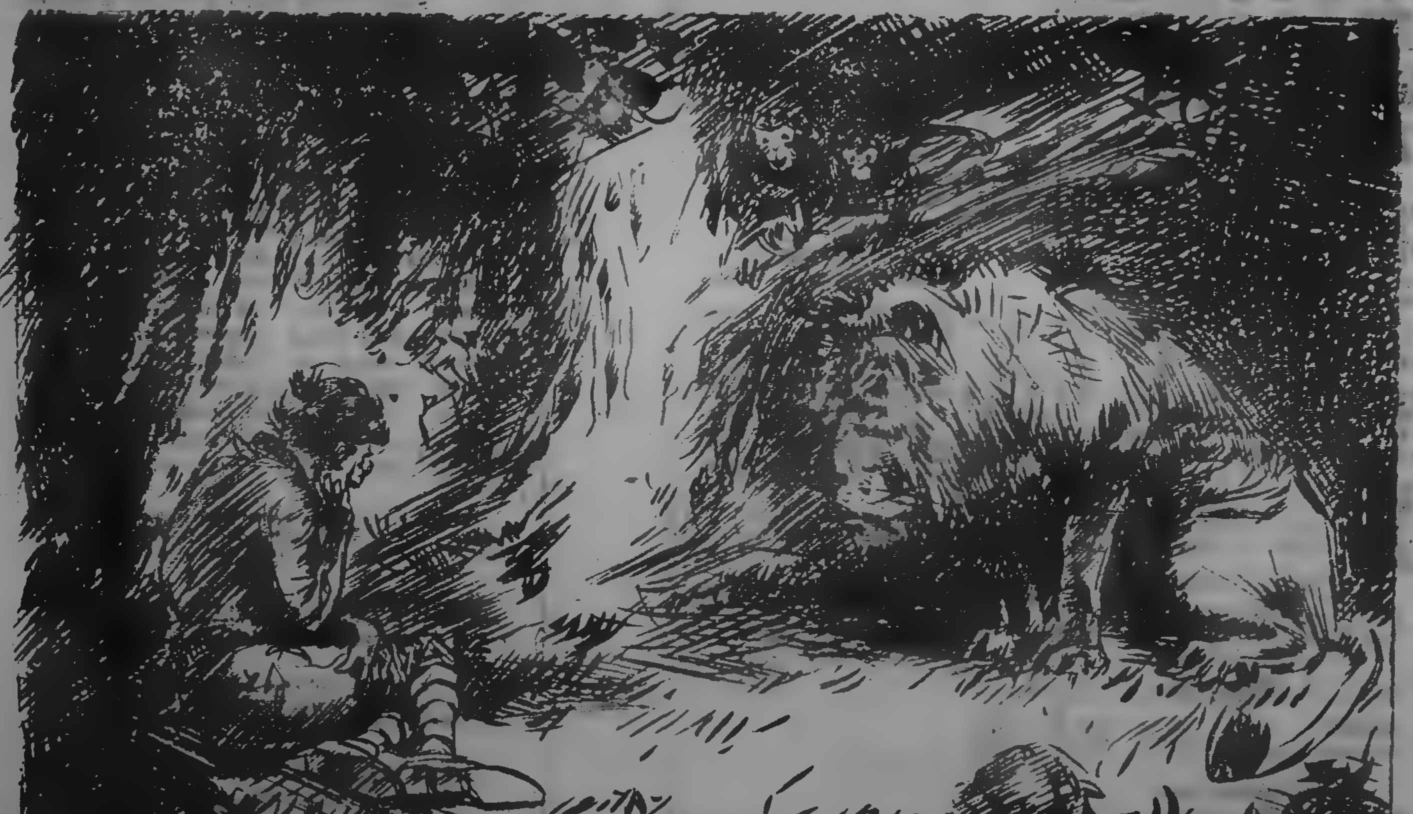
"I learned to appreciate the playful character of the wildebeest. You mark my words, when we hear the truth about that one Roosevelt shot, we shall learn that the Colonel has bitterly repented his hasty action. I shall not be surprised to hear that he has chartered a steamer to bring Mrs. Wildebeest and her orphaned children home to pass a harmless and honored old age as pets for the amusement and instruction of the neighbors around Oyster Bay. I should think that the pretty gambols of a flock of wildebeests would make a pleasant feature of the annual reunions of the "Roosevelt Neighbors" when they meet upon the lawns of the old homestead to drink in fresh buttermilk the health of the Lord of the Manor.

"Did you ever hear," said the Taxidermist, "of such folly as stuffing animals with excelsior? It is a positive menace to the community! Think of the awful conflagration that might come if an elephant or hippopotamus stuffed with excelsior should catch fire! I mean to write to Governor Hughes about it."

"I certainly would," said I, as I took my leave.



I FOUND THE KING PLAYING BILLIARDS IN THE HOTEL.



WE SAT A FEW PACES APART, BREATHING HARD AND WONDERING WHAT TO DO NEXT.

She Knew When to Keep Quiet.

"ANY fool of a woman can manage a bright man, but it takes a bright woman to manage a fool of a man," says a philosopher, to whose words I gave but scant heed when I was young.

Even now I'm not so sure about what any fool of a woman may do, but as to the other limb of the proposition let me draw a little scene and you draw a little conclusion. It was after the opera one night when a friend and I took our supper seats at a small table between two windows, next to a large table opposite a window, where chairs were turned down, denoting that the table was reserved. There were gorgeous flowers on the table, and its other appointments showed that a supper of the first order had been bespoken.

That was interesting, but interest grew when the party came in and we saw that the host was young Mr. Blank, whose real name doesn't matter, but whose station does. He already has a fortune, and on the death of an elderly aunt he will inherit another fortune whose size makes it worth talking about even in days like these. He is unmarried, good looking and, indeed, there is nothing the matter with him except that he is a fool—if that matters. I should add to his list of good qualities that the elderly female relative from whom he will inherit a second fortune has a weak constitution, no digestion, is devoted to bridge, late hours and supper dishes which would demolish the health of a hobo.

The party was made up thus: Three young women, an elderly man, father of one of the young women; a popular young detrimental without a cent, and our hero. We couldn't help hearing every word that was said at the table even if we had not wanted to. And we didn't want to. Our hero is not only a fool, but a garrulous one. You know the kind—loves to talk and, as fools often do, talks well—about money, clothes, clubs and road racing rules for automobiles. They had been to the opera, but might as well have been to the dentist's so far as it affected our hero's topics of speech. Papa devoted himself strictly to the supper; the poor young man beamed impartially at various pretty girls about the restaurant, who seemed rather to like it; the three young women attended themselves to our hero—who talked. Two of the girls spoke frequently, making occasions to address our hero, even interrupted him fatally to show how impressed they were with his witty remarks. The third young woman never said a word—literally not a word from the sitting down to the [illegible] of the [illegible] ery.

Gradually the hero turned to her more than to the others, and always she looked [illegible] upon him [illegible]. [illegible] never a word [illegible]. At last he addressed her only, and her eyes reflected the marvel of her mind that such a brilliant stream could pour from the lips of man. The others struggled like little women of the world as they were. In vain! Of course they never knew what he was talking about, and their desperate attempts to seem as if they did annoyed him. Probably the silent one understood as little of his prattle as her sisters in the race, but there was no speech to betray that she knew, at least, that he was a fool. At the end he was hooked; fairly, deeply and-they-lived-happy-ever-afterwardly hooked.

"Clever little girl that," said my friend, when we could speak of it.

"The silent one?" I asked.

"Silent?" snorted my friend, who knows everybody. "She's the most galloping, runaway, whirlwind talker on Manhattan Island. But clever."

The Rag Girl.

THERE are disquieting rumors that the "rag girl" has appeared in New York "high social" circles in any other circle she would be only a pronounced "cut-up." Now, the "rag girl" is not a ragtime dancer—not necessarily; she is a girl who does bold and unconventional things in society and pretends that she doesn't know she is doing even the unusual.

England is aghast over her performances just now, if we are to believe the shuddering comments of a certain London paper which exists by reason of a public faith that it truthfully reports "high life."

American gentlemen, I believe, would not encourage the "rag girl" except in some other set than their own.

Not long ago an American woman who had visited the Hawaiian Islands and met there a set of high caste natives, who still hold together as in the old days of the monarchy, entertained here some girls of that set who, properly chaperoned, were making a tour of this country. The woman had three of the prettiest girls of the party at her home one evening and a trio of New York men to meet them. It turned out to be a stupid evening, and the hostess hinted in vain for some of those songs and dances in which she knew the girls to be adepts. The answers to these hints were sly looks from the girls, while they gently rubbed their own knees. The hostess saw and understood, for she had been initiated; that scarcely noticeable smoothing of the skirts over the knees meant "the men are too cold."

The point is this:—Had those men met those girls in the home of a hostess not exactly of their set they would have shown no lack of eagerness in demanding those songs and dances. On the contrary, quite otherwise. But in their own set—their own setting—one might say—the right sort of New York men discourage that sort of thing.

Even to write this seems to be denying an accepted fact, for our English cousins have for many generations of book writers held themselves horrified at the "ragging" of American girls, and it gives a topsy-turvy impression to suggest that ours are the conventional and the English the unconventional girls.

An Epicurean Tragedy.

IT was a trying situation. Cordelia loved Mr. Jackson, Adelaide loved Mr. Jackson, Mr. Jackson loved nobody but was willing to love almost anybody. Cordelia held the best hand.

She met Mr. Jackson at a concert and said:

"Good evening."

"Good evening," said Jackson.

"Won't you come around to our house to-morrow night for dinner?" Cordelia asked.

Jackson liked to eat; he never refused a dinner.

"Thank you; I will come," he said.

He went. Cordelia cooked the dinner herself. It was an excellent dinner. Jackson enjoyed it.

"I'm glad you like it," said Cordelia. "Perhaps you will come again Wednesday evening."

Jackson went on Wednesday, and he continued to go on Wednesdays and Sundays and any other day when he happened to get an invitation for six weeks.

"Are you engaged yet?" asked Adelaide.

Cordelia said she was not.

"That is too bad," said Adelaide. "You ought to do something."

Cordelia confessed that she had already done everything she knew how to do.

"But you haven't done enough," said Adelaide. "You have never fed Mr. Jackson on Olympian chowder."

"No," said Cordelia. "I never have. I never heard of it. I do not know how to make it."

"I will tell you how," said Adelaide.

Then she gave Cordelia the recipe for Olympian chowder. Cordelia went home and made it. That evening Jackson dropped in for dinner. As he approached the dining room he sniffed eagerly.

"Ah," said he, "what delicious odor is that? It smells like Olympian chowder."

"It is," said Cordelia. "I just got the recipe to-day. I made it especially for you."

"This," said he, "seems like living. There is nothing I like quite so well as Olympian chowder. This is the first I have eaten in three months."

Cordelia understood about the three months. She knew that Jackson meant that he had not eaten Olympian chowder since he quit going to see Adelaide.

"I am glad you like it," she said. "Hereafter you shall have it frequently."

The next day Cordelia made more chowder, but Jackson was not there to eat it. He dined with Adelaide. Adelaide also had Olympian chowder.

"Ah," said Jackson, "this is great. Last night I had chowder at—some place else, but it couldn't begin to come up to this. I hadn't given much thought to chowder in the last three months, but that taste last night whetted my appetite for it. I can't get along without it. But I want it of a better quality than that was. Adelaide, when it comes to chowder nobody can hold a candle to you."

Adelaide already knew that, but she was glad to hear Jackson say so.

"I will make it again Wednesday," she said, "if you care to come then."

Jackson went on Wednesday, and thenceforward he continued to dine with Adelaide instead of Cordelia on Wednesdays and Sundays and any other day when he got an invitation. In four weeks Adelaide and Mr. Jackson were married. The day after the wedding Adelaide and Cordelia met. They did not speak.

"Poor Cordelia!" thought Adelaide. "I expect she wishes now she had never tried to make Olympian chowder."

And Cordelia did.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fowlds, of Hastings, visited at the home of Dr. Ford on Sunday.

All boys holding High School Entrance certificates will be eligible for entrance. Others may be admitted upon the recommendation of the Public School Inspector and the agricultural representative. No tuition fees will be charged 1st year students. Any wishing information should address Mr. Duff.

During July and August the Norwood stores and other places of business will be closed every Wednesday afternoon. A petition was circulated last week, and every business man in the village signed it. Parties living in the country will need to make a memo that Norwood will be away from home a half day each week during the hot weather.

Mr. T. E. Finley and family had a narrow escape from a serious accident one day last week, going to Stoney Lake. They had almost arrived at their destination, and while going down a steep hill some of the harness broke, which allowed the rig to run into the horse, which became frightened and jumped, dragging Mr. Finlay out of the waggon, which, when free from the horse, plunged into the ditch, throwing the rest of the occupants out, happily without serious injury other than a bad fright and a slight shaking up.

Rev. Mr. Balfour, of Havelock, preached both morning and evening in the Methodist church here on Sunday last.

THE DRAGOONS A SMART CORPS

The 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons were inspected yesterday morning at 11 o'clock by Col. Willis, of Toronto, Inspector of Cavalry. The inspecting officer was highly pleased with the showing of the corps which he pronounced one of the smartest he has seen this year.

Capt. Langfeldt acted as A.D.C. to Col. Williams.

The Dragoons have completed their shooting at the ranges at the camp and their scores show a highly creditable efficiency.

WERE FOUR PRICES AT THE SESSION OF THE CHEESE BOARD THIS MORNING

12 1-2 Cents Was High—Mr. Travers Welcomed to the Board—4371 Boxes Boarded and Every Factory Sold—Two Weeks' Adjournment Decided Upon.

There was a busy session of the cheese board this morning. The high price was 11 9-16 cents, and the factories that did not get this sold for 12 1-2, 11 7-16 and 11 3-8. Every factory on the board was taken by the buyers. 4,371 boxes were boarded.

Before the meeting opened President Coughlin introduced Mr. Travers, the new manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, and he addressed a few remarks to those assembled. He stated he was very glad to meet them, and would only be too glad to allow the board to have the use of the board room in the future as in the past. He expressed the wish that he might know them all later on.

In opening the proceedings Mr. Coughlin stated that at the last meeting a little dispute had arisen over the bidding. He said a board bid had the preference over another bid and when the board bid was made the board should be taken.

The following buyers were present at this morning's meetings: Messrs. Fitzgerald, Gillespie, Wakin, Ridell, Weir, Morton, Cook, Kerr, W. Cook, and Squires.

THE BIDDING.

Mr. Gunn opened the bidding at 11 cents. Mr. Gillespie made it 11 1-8; Mr. Cook raised it to 11 1-4, and it mounted 11 1-2 by Mr. Cook, with several intermediate bids. Mr. Squires, a new buyer on the board, who made his first appearance this morning raised it to 11 9-16. Nothing better was offered and Mr. Squires took Oakdale, Norwood, Killarney and Daisy D.

Mr. Gillespie offered 11 3-8 for further. Mr. W. H. Cook made it 11 1-2. He raised Shearer but his factory refused; Warsaw accepted, so did Indian River and Selwyn; Central Smith refused, Maple Leaf accepted.

Mr. Gunn raised 11 1-2 for further selections. There was no advance. Mr. Gunn took Shamrock, Westwood, Ormonde, Villiers. This ended Mr. Gunn's selections. Mr. Cook offered 11 1-2 for further and took Crown, Fleetwood, Shearer, Cavanville, Fraserville. Mr. Weir bid 11 7-16 for further. No buyer offered more and Mr. Weir took Central Smith; East Emily and Trewern refused, Cedardale accepted. Mr. Cook bid 11 3-8 for further selections. Mr. Gillespie offered the same price for the balance of the board. Mr. Kerr made it 11 7-16 for selecions. He named Bensfort, Trewern, East Emily, King Edwar, and Myrtle. All accepted. Mr. Kerr offered 11 3-8 for further selections. Mr. Gillespie bid the same figure for the balance of the board. Mr. Kerr added Keene to his selections at 11 7-16. There was no advance on Mr. Gillespie's bid for further at 11 3-8. Mr. Gillespie took Warminster, Lakefield, Pine Grove, Young's Point, North Dummer and Stoney Lake, which were all the factories left, and they all sold to him.

TWO WEEKS' ADJOURNMENT

President Coughlin brought up the question of the best period to adjourn for. It was moved by Mr. Young, seconded by Mr. McGregor, that the board adjourn for three weeks.

Mr. Buck and Mr. Switzer moved that a two weeks' adjournment be made. Sixteen voted for the amendment and nine for the three weeks adjournment, so it was carried that the board meet in two weeks' time.

LAWYERS AND DOCTORS HAD PLEASANT OUTING

The members of the legal and medical professions enjoyed an outing down the river to Rice Lake yesterday afternoon, and, as is usual when these two bodies of professional men come together, there was something doing all the time. The weather was of the choicest, and the "Water Lily," which was secured to convey the excursionists, did the distance to Rice Lake and return in her usual efficient manner. A number of the members of the 57th Regimental band were on board and furnished excellent music in liberal quantities. The party took possession of Gore's Landing on their arrival and a baseball game was played, which ended, as has been the case on previous occasions, in favor of the doctors. Space will not permit the publication of the score, but it will be given in another issue. Supper was served in the dining hall of the hotel, after which the return trip to the city was made, the boat arriving at the wharf about ten o'clock, on board of which were about sixty passengers, who had spent together a very enjoyable time.

PERSONAL

Mrs. C. Munns, of St. Thomas, and Mrs. S. Kemp, of Peterborough, were the guest of Mrs. H. P. Lindsay, at her cottage, "Britannia," Stoney Lake.

In the report of the primary examination results of the Ontario Medical Council, given out to-day, Mr. Max Yelland's name appears and he will receive the congratulations of his many friends in his success.

MANY EXCURSIONS TO-MORROW NO ATTRACTIONS IN CITY

There is not a great deal booked for the holiday to-morrow. There will be the usual number of excursions to the various points and the outflow from the city for the day will be a large one. No attractions have been made to entertain those who prefer to spend the day in the city and there will be no programme of sport or other events here. In fact as far as Peterborough is concerned the day will be passed in about the quietest possible manner.

At the lakes and the river resorts the "first" should prove quite lively as there will be large crowds of visitors to the various summering places.

A REAL GYPSY MARRIAGE WAS CELEBRATED THIS AFTERNOON

A ceremony new to Peterborough and almost savage in its primitive color was a gypsy wedding, which was celebrated this afternoon at the Driving Park. Celebrated is used in reference to Canadian weddings, and the word seems too mild to apply to the orgies in connection with the gypsy function. The whole camp is in gala attire in honor of the event, and the party is as gaudily dressed as an excited crowd at a Mexican bull fight or an Oriental population rejoicing over the ascension of a new Sultan.

The celebration will continue for three days, it is said, and during that time there will be singing, dancing and rejoicing in general. A large proportion of the rejoicing will be in the absorption of the larger quantity of the liquid that cheers than even this hot weather warrants. The stein stuff will be flowing freely and the imbibing last night on the eve the event was so heavy hat a large majority of he picturesque people were rather overcome. Fire works will also play a part in he general confusion and other means will be adopted to add to the gayety of the occasion, for the Mexican gypsies have the "biggest" weddings and all the circus features hat the lurid imaginations of those interested can conceive are brought ino effect.

The marriage, which took place his afternoon, was one of pariicular interest for it is the first one that has been held since the arrival of he party in Canada four years ago. The groom is J. Stoke, a Canadian, and the bride is the daughter of Chief Michael George. The husband, it is stated, is quite prosperous and has a ranch in the Canadian west. He appears to be about 25 years of age, while the sweet young bride, who is a rather pretty girl, has only seen fourteen summers. By the marriage she is made a Canadian subject. Yesterday, so as to be in readiness for the event, some of the women of the camp bought silk kimonas of pale blue and pink and satin ribbon to make large bows on the sleeves, shoulders and down the front. The dress ideas of some of the feminine members of the party were certainly not obtained from Paris and the effects are often grotesque and fairly blazing in the matter of color combination. The bride is also arrayed in raiment that would make an Egyptian snake-charming princess look as unalluring as the latest wallpaper pattern on a five cent a roll bargain day.

Who married the dark skined pair is a mystery. They refused to give any information on the subject to a Review reporter this afternoon. When the scribe called the members of the 57th Regimental Band were stationed under a canopy playing selections to the great pleasure of members fo the encampment. As the band tore off "Rainbow" several gypsy men and gypsy fairies minuetted trough some of the characteristic dances of Gypsyland, and apparently enjoyed the festivities to the full measure.

As one approached the camp with its canvas and waggons it reminded one of a side show, an so realistic was the effect that it seemed as though something was missing when no spieler was telling of "Wild Rose" and the other wonderful attractions in the side show tent.

Gypsies Had Been too Long in Country to be Deported

Special to the Review.

Toronto, June 30.—Inspector Greer to-day replied to charge that Attorney-General's Department had treated Peterborough authorities discourteously. See Globe. "After we made investigation it seemed a case for deportation and the Dominion Government sent an officer to investigate. Then as it was in his jurisdiction we handed the case over to him freely and withdrew. The only telephone conversation we had was with this officer who told us that the gypsies had been too long in the country to be deported and the best thing was to fine them.

EULOGIES FOR THE DOMINION A BRILLIANT GATHERING

Earl Grey at Confederation Day Banquet Says Incoming Americans are Becoming Enthusiastic Canadians —R. L. Borden Touches on Immigration.

London, July 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The celebration of Dominion Day in London took the form of a banquet at the "White City." Lord Strathcona presided over an unusually representative and distinguished gathering, including Prince Francis of Teck, the Duke of Argyll, Earl Grey, Earl Crewe, Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Milner, Lord Northcliffe, Hon. Mr. Fielding, Hon. Frank Oliver, Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, R. L. Borden, K.C., Mr. McNamara, M.P., the Norwegian Minister, Lieut. Shackleton, R.N., and four members of his Antarctic crew; Muirhead Collins, representing Australia; representatives of the oversea states; S. E. Collins of the West Indies Department in the Colonial Office, and many I.P.C. delegates.

Lord Strathcona and Hon. A. B. Aylesworth proposed the loyal toasts, and the chairman for the fourteenth time consecutively proposed the toast of "The Dominion of Canada." He declared that Canada's future would in every respect vie with that of the United States, and his references to "Canada's potentialities, nay certainties," were received with great applause.

Earl Gery, in responding, was enthusiastically received. He declared that though other Canadians might be more eloquent, he would not allow a single one to claim a deeper affection for, or a greater belief in, Canada than he (Cheers.) Never had there been more profound conviction that all parts of the Empire were necessary one to another. Without the overseas states, the Empire must fall; without the Empire, the outlying parts would not stand. (Cheers.)

Referring to American immigration, he declared that the Americans who were entering Canada became enthusiastic and patriotic Canadians. He anticipated with assurance the time when Canada would become a predominant factor in the Empire.

"What Canadian can shrink from such a destiny?" he said, amid loud cheers, and then referred to the "Elizabethian spirit" of Canadians.

R. L. Borden followed. He referred first to the harmonious relations between the oversea state and the Mother Country, and said Canadians desired there should be co-operation in all that concerned the interests of the Empire. In respect to immigration, he said that while the United States settlers were splendid settlers, he would like to see a largely increased immigration from Britain, and hoped for co-operation on the question. (Applause.) He also trusted that co-operation in commerce would find a common ground in every dominion of the Empire and the British Isles as well.

Referring to the defence conference, he said, "We are not meeting together to tell each other what fine fellows we are. It is our duty to lay down principles, to make, as far as we can, positive proposals, but let me not be misunderstood. We do not desire to force upon any dominion a system of defence or amount of defence to which they are not absolutely prepared to agree. We could not if we would, we would not if we could. At the same time, we are confident that out of this conference some real results may be hoped for, which will make the defence of Empire coherent, whole, a reality, and will enable us in time of danger to face any risks we may be called on to meet." (Cheers.)

Earl Crewe in a masterly peroration, pictured the Canada of the future, its people, having triumphantly served the test of its capacity to absorb the diverse elements as a mighty nation, a strong security for the peace of the world. (Cheers.)

Lieut. Shackleton also responded in a brief, manly speech, referring to the pleasure it gave him to have Canadians on his staff.

The Duke of Argyll gave a speech full of national fervor. He said, as Earl Grey had declared, that if Canada was true to herself and true to British traditions, she would build up a nation whereof she would be proud, and the Empire could be proud as well. (Applause.)

Hon. Frank Oliver proposed the health of Lord Strathcona, who, with Lady Strathcona, subsequently held a reception.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier sent the following cable to the Dominion Day banquet:

"I beg to join with you and all Canadians assembled in celebrating the 42nd anniversary of our Dominion. May God ever bless it, as well as all other sister states and the old Motherland."

Drowning at Kingston.

Kingston, July 2.—Frederick Catternole, a coachman of Kingston, was drowned last night near Staley's Grove, Wolf Island. He was about going in swimming, when he slipped and fell into deep water. He was speedily recovered, but efforts to resuscitate him failed. He was 37 years of age and leaves a wife and three children.

Ottawan Killed by Fall.

Ottawa, July 2.—James Ingram is dead as the result of an accident at the power house of the Ottawa Electric Railway, where he was employed. The floor gave way and he fell a distance of twenty feet.

Chinese Laundryman Murdered.

New York, July 2.—The body of Ung Yow, a Chinese laundryman, who had been strangled with a rope, was found wedged into a washtub in his laundry at 124 Stanton street yesterday. The laundry was in great disorder.

TENNESSEE GOES DRY

Memphis, Tenn., July 2.—Bells in church and town steeples on tolling the midnight hour, marked the passing of saloons in Tennessee, for at that hour the Holladay state wide prohibition law went into effect. This law makes it illegal to sell alcoholic beverages within four miles of any schoolhouse in the state. Only two hotels are left in all Tennessee. Both are within 12 miles of Memphis, near the Mississippi state line. The nearest school house is six miles from both of these point, but steps have already been taken by white ribboners to have the county board of education erect a schoolhouse within the distance prescribed by the Holladay law, so that there will be no Mecca in the entire state for thirsty pilgrims. Thousands of men are thrown out of employment.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Fire did $200,000 damage to the premises occupied by the American Film Service Co., Chicago.

A seizure of otter and beaver skins has been made in the Hudson Bay Co.'s warehouse at North Bay.

Special cars for women on the New York Subway, have been tested and found not wanted, and will be withdrawn.

Bush fires are raging on both sides of the Montreal River near Elk Lake. Four settlers' houses and three shacks have been destroyed.

The extension of the Government telegraph line westward from Athabasca Landing into the Peace River country is progressing satisfactorily.

Mrs. Fred Devinish, wife of a Montreal Witness reporter, and Mr. John Cain were drowned on Lake St. Louis by the upsetting of their dinghy.

BARBERS MUST BE STERILIZED

Winnipeg, July 2.—The Provincial Board of Health has drafted a schedule of laws for the guidance of barbers in their trade, and for the protection of the public against infection while in barber's chairs.

These stringent rules come into effect at once. In future barbers must wear white uniforms, must wash and disinfect their hands after each customer, must disinfect all tools, razors, straps, towels and equipment and must do away with cake soap in favor of powder immediately.

COAT STRIKE APPROVED OF

Sydney, N.S., July 2.—The threatened strike among members of the United Workers of America in the southern collieries, as indicated by alleged admissions of Daniel McDougall, the local president of the foreign labor body, seems to be the beginning of a bitter struggle between the opposing forces in Cape Breton.

The strike has been approved by the international board, which sat at Indianapolis, which has sanctioned the quitting of work by its Cape Breton members on Monday.

The precautions being taken by the Steel company in sending full cargoes of coal on their steamers, the Felix and Helen, to the works at Marble Mountain and Wabana, means that the company will take no chances.

The Dominion Coal Co. are taking every precaution and in all likelihood the Bridgeport, No. 6, and Caledonia Collieries will be closed down, so that the loyal P.W.A. miners working in these mines will be given employment to fill the places of the strikers in other sections.

SUGAR DIRECTORS INDICTED BY JURY

New York, July 2.—The American Sugar Refining Co., six of its directors and two other individuals, were indicted by a Federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The individuals indicted are Washington E. Thomas, president of the American Sugar Refining Co.; Arthur Donner, Charles Senff and John E. Parsons of New York; John Mayer of Morriston, N.J., and George H. Frazier of Philadelphia, all of whom are directors of the company.

SUFFRAGETTES IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., July 2.—The state convention of the Washington Woman Suffrage Association was marked yesterday by scenes of confusion and almost violence. A faction of fifty women, led by Mrs. Mary Arkwright-Hutton of Spokane, sought to oust the present officers, headed by President Emma Smith Devoe, whose supporters number about two hundred. The report of the committee on credentials declared the Spokane delegates not entitled to seats.

On the debate on the report, some of the delegates called others "thieves, liars and scoundrels," and there were hysterical weeping and screaming.

Advised that there was a riot in Plymouth Church, a squad of policemen entered and found the convention in tears.

The report of the credentials committee was adopted.

Panic at Teheran.

Teheran, July 2.—The advance of the nationalist forces on Teheran yesterday caused a semi-panic on the bazaars. The merchants, fearing an outbreak of lawlessness and looting, with which the disorganized police force would be powerless to cope, suddenly closed all their shops.

At the urgent request of the Shah, the British and Russian diplomatic representatives will visit His Majesty to-day to discuss the situation.

Drugged In Toronto Hotel?

Detroit, Mich., July 2.—Noah W. Beck, jr., aged 35, who says that he lives in Wheeling, Va., was found in the Union Station yesterday morning in a dazed condition. He said that he had a couple of drinks with strangers in a Toronto hotel before boarding the train for Detroit, and believed that he had been drugged.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL MEETS

Canadian Women Hold Convention on Confederation Day

Toronto, July 2.—Dominion Day was celebrated by the National Council of Women of Canada holding its annual convention. The founder and first president, Lady Aberdeen, at the request of Lady Edgar, presided. The meeting was held in convocation hall.

The feature of the day was the establishment of a five-year organization fund. Lady Aberdeen started it with an annual subscription of $100. Mrs. Sanford followed with $50 a year. Other subscriptions made a fund of $2,000.

Lady Aberdeen said a forward movement was essential now or the inspiration of the recent congress would pass away.

The report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, stated that the council had 25 locals and 13 affiliated societies.

Mrs. Frost, treasurer, reported receipts of $1,634.20; disbursements, secretarial $700, printing $420, balance $228.47.

The officers of the council and conveners were elected. The officers are: Lady Edgar, president; Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, secretary, and Mrs. Frost, treasurer.

Lady Aberdeen gave the concluding address, expressing deep thanks for the kindness which now and in the past she had always received in Canada, so much so that it was hard to say the word good-bye! Lady Aberdeen said that Lord Aberdeen sent his regrets at being unable to be present to again meet his many Canadian friends.

The council closed with "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King."

Lday Aberdeen shook hands with everyone present and expressed a hope to meet them again at the congress in Rome in 1914.

COBALT SWEPT BY DISASTROUS FIRE

Broke Out in Chinese Restaurant — One Killed and Six Injured--3,000 Homeless--- Loss Half a Million.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Ont., July 2.—A Cobalt special says the largest fire ever known in Cobalt broke out at 4 a.m. in the restaurant of Joe Lee, a Chinaman on the Haileybury Road, destroying all the buildings on both sides of the street for half a mile, the total loss being estimated at fully half a million dollars. One man, a foreigner, is known to have been killed during the operation of blasting houses to break the spread of the flames, and it is reported another also met death, while six others were injured. Several children are missing. The Haileybury and New Liskeard fire brigades came up on a special train and rendered great assistance. 3,000 persons are homeless as a result of the fire and the whole city is in a state of consternation.

SICILY IS AGAIN SHAKEN DESTRUCTION COMPLETE

After Six Months of Comparative Peace Messina and Reggio Suffer Eight Shocks in Rapid Succession and Remaining Buildings are Destroyed.

Messina, Sicily, July 2—Six months after the devastating earthquake of Dec. 28, which laid waste over a score of cities and towns in Calebria and Sicily and killed 200,000 people, Messina and Reggio were yesterday morning again visited by an earthquake which, had they been rebuilt, would have laid them a second time in ruins.

It would seem that nature is determined to blot out Messina, one of the fairest and most smiling cities in the world.

Earthquake shocks both here and in Reggio at 7.20 o'clock yesterday morning created a panic among the people of these two cities. Walls of houses that were not completely destroyed in the visitation of last December were shaken down and one woman was killed.

The earth shocks have been becoming more intense recently and Wednesday night they were sufficiently severe to cause alarm. The shocks of yesterday morning were accompanied by deep roaring sounds. The first one was followed by an explosion like the roar of cannon, and lasted between eight and ten seconds, which seemed an eternity to the terrified population. It is said that this quake was of greater severity than the fatal one of the night of December 28. The wooden houses and huts erected for the accommodation of the people seemed to be thrown from one side to another. Cries filled the air as the people fled in terror.

As on the night of Dec. 28, the first shock was followed by a circular movement of the ground.

Five minutes later there came another quake accompanied by another roaring sound. This completed the destruction. The remains of the devastated houses collapsed and the entire district was covered by a dense cloud of dust.

Detachments of troops and carbiniers were despatched for the protection of the wooden huts built with American money that had not yet been disturbed. The population, fleeing from the districts where the houses threatened to fall upon them, rushed toward the American huts with the intention of taking forcible possession of them.

Between eight o'clock Wednesday night and 7.20 yesterday morning a total of eight shocks were experienced here.

Ten Killed.

Rome, July 2.—Private telegrams from Messina give the number of persons as ten, including a lieutenant, two soldiers and two carbineers.

THE BODY OF LEON LING FOUND IN THE HUDSON

Special to the Review.

New York, July 2.—Edward L. Byrnes, of No. 479 west 165th street, a former friend of Leon Ling, accused of having killed Elsie Siegel, called at the morgue in the Fordham Hospital to-day and positively identified the body of the Chinamen found in the Hudson river near King's Bridge, as that of Leon. The identification was made in the presence of more than half a dozen newspaper men.

STRAWBERRIES DYING ON VINES; LAY DEAD IN PATCHES

The continued drought is working havoc in the farming districts and unless rain comes in a short time things will be in a bad state for the farmers.

The farmers are earnestly hoping for rain and the conditions are all the worse on account of the extremely hot days and the scorching sun. If the drought is not broken soon the crops will be a scarcity and the prices will consequently be very high.

PLOT TO KILL RUSSIA'S RULER

Stockholm, July 2.—Evidence of an anarchist plot to assassinate the Emperor of Russia some time during his approaching European trip was disclosed here yesterday.

Adolf Vang, the Swede, who last week shot and killed Major-General Beckman, chief of the coast artillery, and then committed suicide, belonged to a group of anarchists who have been plotting against the Russian rule.

Eight Russian anarchists were arrested previous to the killing of Gen. Beckman, but their apprehension was kept secret. Two of them were found hiding in the palace.

Vang left a letter saying that insomuch as his Russian comrades had been arrested, it was impossible for him alone to kill the Emperor.

Consequently he assassinated the first high official he met.

15,000 CANADIAN LOGS SEIZED

Rainy River, July 2.—A drive of saw logs, about 15,000, which had been cut illicitly on the Canadian side and towed into American waters near Beaudette, was seized on behalf of the Washington Government. The logs will probably be returned to the owners of the permits upon which they were cut.

They were cut by halfbreeds, who had arranged to sell them on the American side.

Leon Ling Drowned?

New York, July 2.—Although complete identification was impossible there appeared to be a strong probability that the body of a Chinaman found yesterday evening floating in the Hudson River was that of Leon Lang, the murderer of Elsie Sigel. The body was nude and had been in the water for more than a week.

Mangled by Car.

Toronto, July 2.—John B. Wilkie, a young Scotchman, who had just bid his cousin good-night, was struck down by a street car at King and Simcoe streets at 10 o'clock last night, and died a few momens later.

C.P.R. CONDUCTOR ARDELL KILLED

North Bay, July 2.—Ashland Ardell, a C.P.R. conductor, was killed near Markstay, 55 miles west of North Bay, Wednesday night, while walking along the track.

Ardell's train was stalled by a freight wreck, which had blocked the line, and he had walked out to the farmhouse a mile away, where a party was in progress. Returning to his train, he must have been struck by the westbound Winnipeg express, the mangled body being picked up yesterday morning by sectionmen. Ardell leaves a wife and one child in North Bay. Interment will take place at Bryson, Que.

AWAITS A NEW ENOCH ARDEN STORY

Lee, Mass., July 2.—George Hecox, who has been missing for forty-five years, appeared here Wednesday night and made himself known to his wife, who had during his long absence, married another man and been widowed. Hecox went out with the 34th Massachusetts regiment in the civil war, and as he never returned home, was believed dead. His wife married Timothy Tucker and Hecox, learning of this, decided to remain away. The death of Tucker paved the way for his return.

PROBABILITIES.

Showers and local thunderstorms during the night and on Saturday.

OPENED AT PORT HOPE TO LARGE HOLIDAY CROWD

The Edwards Amusement Company put on its first entertainment in Port Hope yesterday afternooon at the Opera House and played to capacity business. If the opening offering may be taken as an indication the season in Port Hope should be a most successful and remunerative one.

Yesterday two excellent films were shown and were highly appreciated by the audiences. The little Long sisters made a big hit with their songs "I Remember You," and "Captain Baby Bunting."

The house has been leased eight months and during that season moving pictures and vaudeville will be provided. Mr. D. Nicholl, of the Crystal staff, is manager of the enterprise.

Case Was Enlarged

OFFICIALS ARE MURDERED POLITICAL OUTRAGE IN LONDON

Parsee Student Shoots Sir William Hutt Curzon Wyilie and Dr. Cowas Lalcaca During Meeting at Imperial Institute—Crime Premediated.

London, July 2.—A startling double assassination of a political character occurred late last night towards the conclusion of a public gathering at the Imperial Institute.

An Indian student, whose name is not known, shot and killed Lieut.Col. Sir Wm. Hutt Curzon Wyllie and Dr. Cawas Lalcaca, Shanghai.

Wyllie, who had held important Indian appointments, fell dead on the spot. Dr. Cawas Lalcaca showed signs of life after he fell and was hurried to St. George's hospital, but on arrival there it was found that he was dead.

Those near the assassin seized and held him until the arrival of the police. He had two revolvers, a dagger and a knife.

All were new and it is believed that crime was premeditated.

Detectives searched the assassin. Besides two revolvers a 12-inch dagger was found and a card bearing the name of "Dhinagra." The address was Newbury road, Bayswater. Various papers and letters also were taken from the prisoner. Sir William had dined at the Savoy, with his wife and some Indian friends. From the Savoy he proceeded to the "at home" which was held under the auspices of the Indian Association with which he was connected. Several hundred Indian students attended the function.

The attack on Sir William occurred on a wide square landing leading to the staircase, which had been used as an overflow smoking room. Sir William and Lady Wyllie were just preparing to depart when the former was approached by the Indian student. One bullet shattered the right eye, and another pierced the face just below the left eye.

Dr. Lalcaca was a Parsee and from present evidence it would seem that he was shot accidentally. The assassin, who is also a Parsee, is about 26 years of age. He was cool and self-possessed after his arrest, and since has maintained an obstinate silence. The identification of the man so far has been impossible, as a great number of visiting cards bearing different names were found on him. It is reported that he had in his possession written documents setting forth reasons and justifications for the crime.

The gathering at the Imperial Institute, a building devoted to Indian and other colonial functions, was an at home to Indian students.

Lieut.-Col. Sir W. H. Curzon Wyllie was born at Cheltenham in 1848, the youngest son of Gen. Sir Wm. Wyllie, G.C.B. He was educated at Sandhurst and entered the army in 1866 as ensign in the 106th Regiment. In 1869 he entered the Indian staff corps and his subsequent career was devoted to that empire. In 1870 he joined the Oudh commission and in 1879 was transferred to the political department. He served in Beluchistan during the Afghan war 1879-80, participating in the relief of Kandahar. He was military secretary to the governor of Madras in 1881 and had successively held appointments as Resident in Nipal; Governor-General's agent in Central India and in Rajputanay. In 1881 he was appointed companion of the Order of the Indian Empire and in 1902 he was created a knight of the Indian Empire. He was also a member of the Victorian Order.

ELIOT LIST COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISE

New York, July 2.—The American says: Harvard graduates in New York yesterday were amazed when they received a circular letter from a publishing house saying that the thirty-odd books named by President Eliot of Harvard as containing the best knowledge and culture of the world, were selected at the request of the publishing house and would be reissued as a commercial enterprise in handsome "Harvard crimson" binding. Mr. Eliot has hitherto refused to lend his name to advertising schemes. The reason for the omission of the Bible and Shakespeare from the list of "best books" is now explained.

WHAT IT REALLY MEANS

The following from the Weekly Sun shows just exactly what the Liberal "Canadian Navy" policy really means. It is instructive, if not agreeable reading:

"To J. S. Brierly, of the Montreal Herald, as well as to J. A. Macdonald, of the Globe, is due a meed of praise for a word spoken in season during the progress of this Imperial press conference.

It must be remembered, Mr. Brierly said during one of the functions connected with the conference, that Canada is not all British—that the Dominion holds at least 2,000,000 people who are not of British stock and that these cannot be expected to entertain the same sentiments as those whose ancestors came from the United Kingdom. Mr. Brierly went further and declared that Canada, as a whole would not assent to the creation of an Imperial army and an Imperial navy, made up of contingents from Canada as well as Great Britain, and wholly controlled from London. The Dominion would, he said, insist on her right to direct the expenditure of any moneys she might raise and any forces she might create.

(What Mr. Brierly said, it is reasonable to believe did not prove wholly pleasing to his hosts. It is not likely it evoked many cheers from those present, and it is altogether unlikely any birthday or Dominion Day honors in the way of knighthoods will come to him. But in speaking of our mixed nationality he brought prominently to the front a most important fact, and one that there is too often a disposition to ignore. In declaring again that this country will never assent to the placing of forces raised in this country, and paid for by Canadian money, at the sole disposal of a Government over which we have no control, Mr. Brierly stated a more important fact still.

To the editorial chief of the Liberal organ in Montreal, as well as to the editorial chief of the Liberal organ in Toronto, this country is indebted for no small service and one rendered under peculiarly trying circumstances. It is never an easy thing to state an unpleasant fact to generous hosts; and the host on whom the entertainment of the colonial press delegates has fallen have been more than generous."—Weekly Sun.

ABOUT ELECTION PROTESTS

From the Weekly Sun.

"As a preliminary to the protest of a Dominion election it is necessary to put up a deposit of $1,000. It has become a more or less frequent practice of late years for the successful candidate, not too sure of the manner in which his election has been conducted, to arrange for entering a protest in a riding carried by the other side in order that he may be able to negotiate a saw-off in the event of his own return being protested. It has become a more frequent practice for the central party organizations on each side to enter a number of protests either as a basis of negotiation looking to wholesale sawing off, or, if thought politically profitable, with a view of effecting a change either in general or local results through the courts. In the matter of the late Dominion elections it is announced that the former course has been adopted—that there has been a mutual withdrawal of all proceedings begun through the two central organizations.

To this mutual condonation of alleged wholesale corruption the Peterborough Review enters vigorous objection. What lends greater weight to the objection made is the fact that although the Review is a Conservative journal, what it says is directed against the leader of its own party, R. L. Borden. It is idle, the Review in effect says, for a leader to proclaim from every platform that he is aghast at the corruption which prevails in the country when he allows a committee to arrange for a sawing-off of charges of corruption which had been laid before the courts for investigation. Platform condemnation of corruption in general, when it comes from a leader who assents to a bargain involving the smothering of charges of corruption in particular, cannot be expected to carry any weight with an intelligent public.

The Review is deserving of congratulations for its outspoken criticism. Either the protests should not have been entered at all or else they should have been carried to a finish. The conclusion that will be formed by the ordinary citizen from what has occurred is that both parties are so deeply in the mire that the one dare not show up the other for fear of being shown up in turn, and that consequently it has been decided to let all charges on both sides go by the board.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Weekly Sun delights in quoting the high prices of protected goods in the United States, but it never refers to the high price of protected pork in Canada. Why is this?

Already 368 employees have been "let go" from the Intercolonial Railway. They were not needed. The road has been overmanned. They would account for half a million of the deficit.

---

The Toronto Star excels in witty paragraphs. One of its latest if not as hoped, its last, is to the effect that all great Liberals when dead, become Conservatives. This is true, because holding fast to that which is good is the essence of Conservatism.

---

In an editorial note in this paper referring to Sir H. Lafontaine, the eminent statesman, the printer set up Parti Rogue, for Parti Rouge, the French-Canadian name of the old Liberal party. The mistake was corrected as soon as possible.

---

"Some few months ago Frank Morse, General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, resigned from his position. Now Mr. Hugh Lumsden, Chief Engineer of the road has also tendered his resignation—and, like Mr. Morse, without assigning any reason.

Of course, such resignations may have no significance whatever, but it is scarcely probable that men would step out of important positions like these if there was not something wholly unsatisfactory to them in the manner in which operations were conducted. One thing is certain, that these resignations without explanation, must inevitably lend additional color to the stories of graft and corruption and favoritism in connection with the Transcontinental that have persisted these many months."—Kingston Standard.

There are many tragedies in life, but few sadder than this:

A Philadelphia despatch says: A letter written by Gladys Benson, a five-weeks bride, who committed suicide, has been made public. The cause of her suicide was the arrest of her husband, Paul Benson, on a charge of taking money from his father, A. W. Benson, a Minneapolis manufacturer, while on a recent visit. The letter was addressed to her family in Mt. Carmel, Pa., and reads:

"To my dear ones at home—The time has come and I can stand trouble no longer. My trouble of to-day is too much. My heart is broken. I find no relief in this world of sorrow, so I seek relief in death. People don't know, they only think they do. I am so much better off, dear ones, to be dead and out of all this misery. God won't disown me.

"My all I lived for was taken from me Sunday. I see no other way than end all for your sake, for Paul's sake, and for my sake. I hope, I pray, that no other girl will be taken away from her mother's side and then thrown [illegible] the [illegible] of the world as I was. [illegible] who made me happy, ah, so happy. I forgot all the past and lived in the future. I was happy, then I was robbed of his love, his caressing, my heart sank so deep that nothing can raise it again.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BIG NOISE IN HAVELOCK

Monster Celebration in the Railway Town—Games and Horse Races

Havelock, July 1.—There was a grand attendance at the monster celebration here to-day and July 1st, 1909, will go down in the memory of many people as one of the greatest days they have ever witnessed in this busy burg. Something doing all the time from the rise of the sun until the day passed away. The weather was excellent, which was responsible for the good attendance. The village and park where the games were run off were gaily decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting.

Victoria school won first prize in the school children's parade open to all the country schools surrounding Havelock.

The horse races caused a great deal of excitement. In the green horse race Mr. B. Smith's horse, of town, won first place, taking the last three heats in succession. In the free-for-all, Mr. Elmhirst's horse, of Otonabee, took first place.

Havelock defeated Marmora in baseball to the tune of 20—13 in a very interesting game. Ford and Bullied were Havelock's battery, while Naylor and Wells occupied the same position for Marmora. The following was the line-up for the Havelock team;

C. L. Bullied, p; D. Ford, 1st H. Towan, 2nd H Curtis, 3rd W. Ryan, cf., Ed. Oldrey, rf R. Frost, lf T. Bennett.

Norwood tied Havelock in football, each scoring a goal. The following was Havelock's line-up;

Goal, B. Copp; backs, S. Barlow, R. Kitchen; halves, A. Sinclair, R. Frost, W. Watson, centre, Mr. Mallor; left wing, W. Ryan, M. Neill; right wing, H. Meads, D. Tomlinson.

The smaller sports were well conducted and caused a great amount of interest from the mile race down to the children's races.

T. A. S. PICNIC YESTERDAY WAS A SPLENDID SUCCESS

Large Numbers Visited the Park During the Day — Committees Did Their Work Well---Sporting Events and the Winners.

The annual picnic of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society was held yesterday and was the most successful yet held. The day was an ideal one for such an occasion, and large numbers took advantage of the excellent boat service to and from the park. The progressive spirit which has always been shown by the Society was everywhere in evidence yesterday, when it is estimated that nearly four thousand visited the grounds during the day. The booths at which dinner and refreshments were served, were in the capable hands of the ladies, who did their work in a highly creditable manner. The committees in charge of all other arrangements were equal to the occasion and are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts to make the day an enjoyable and profitable one. The sporting events, which were a big feature of the picnic, were well contested and watched by a big crowd. The officials in charge had a big task before them, but each event was carried out to the satisfaction of all concerned. The baseball match and foot races were especially interesting. The officers and men of the Rainbow and Water Lily did all they could to make everything agreeable for the passengers, and their courtesy and kindness throughout the day was much appreciated. The many events and the winners were as follows:—

INSPECTOR GIVES AN EXPLANATION

Criticizes Despatch as Unfair-His Statement of the Matter

The Globe yesterday says:

"The Peterborough despatch in the Globe criticizing the officers of the Attorney-General's Department for an alleged abandoning of the case against the gypsies who have proved such an annoyance in that county does not state the facts or deal fairly with the department," said Inspector William Greer in a statement to the Globe yesterday morning.

"The history of the case," the officer continued, "is briefly this. On being notified of the presence of these foreigners and the fact that they were a subject of annoyance to the residents, we proceeded to the spot and gathered all the evidence we could secure concerning them.

"It appeared to us to be a case for deportation and we communicated with the Dominion authorities and found they agreed with us. The Federal Government sent down an officer to take charge of the case, and on his arrival he was given the evidence which we had gathered and took over the case. As it was under his jurisdiction, we withdrew. The only communication we had afterwards came from the Federal officer, who notified us that the gypsies had been too long in the country to be deported, and that he had recommended a continuance of the prosecution, with the result that they would be required to move. We would only have been too willing to do more if we could," concluded the officer.

ON DIVORCES

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir, please put in the following extract;—New York Times.—A public lecturer recently made the statement that "the licensed saloon is a wrecker of homes and a sunderer of the marriage tie." I am myself a believer in temperance in all things—even in the words we use. The lecturer's remarks led me to look up some statistics on the subject, and I find that they hardly bear out his assertion in the sweeping sense that he used it.

However, I am still open to conviction, and if the Times can give me any figures that will show the relations between the saloon and divorces I shall be obliged. As the parent of prohibition, Maine should afford a good subject for a comparative study on this point.

The United States census report for 1900, the latest reliable information obtainable on the subject, apparently does not bear out the sweeping assertion that the saloon is at the bottom of any large percentage of divorces. It is not to be denied, however, that it has a share in the causes contributing to marital disturbances.

According to the last census report the prohibition state of Maine actually far surpasses any of the license States in the relative number of divorces. For the last preceding twenty years the ratio of divorces to population in Maine was 1 for every 42. In New York the ratio was 1 for every 260, while in New Jersey the ratio was 1 for every 258.

Singularly enough the census report says that Maine, in which the liquor traffic has been prohibited for more than sixty years, has the largest number of divorces in which drunkenness is given as the direct cause, with the single exception of Connecticut.

Taking in all of the United States the percentage of divorces granted in which intemperance is given as the cause is, for women, 1.1; for men, 8.3. In Maine the figures are; For women, 3.3; for men, 16.9.

The ratio of divorces to marriages, according to the census report, is 1 to 6 in Maine, 1 to 41 in New York, and 1 to 45 in New Jersey.

Yours, etc.,

SUBSCRIBER.

OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindsay, Ont.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to her some time ago I was a very sick woman, suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the female organs, and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend this medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and think they are fine."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, Lindsay, Ontario.

We cannot understand why women will take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, without first trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

FOR TIRED EYES.

Looking Into Space Occasionally Is Very Restful.

When any other organ of our body gets tired we do not hesitate to rest it, but few people take systematic rest of the eyes. Yet they, being very sensitive, need especial care.

Women will say, "My eyes are so tired I can hardly see!" Yet, instead of stopping fine sewing or embroidery, they stitch away in a half light with no thought of evils to follow.

It is not possible for every one whose eyes are weary to stop work for a time, but it is possible for them to pause and close the eyes for a few seconds. This gives a needed rest to the muscles, and the habit, once formed, will postpone the evil day of glasses and oculist's bills.

Another quick rest for tired eyes is to look into space occasionally. Your friends may accuse you of being love-lorn or looney, but who cares if vision is strengthened thereby.

The woman whose eyes are on a constant strain will find it time well spent if she rise occasionally from her work, say, once every two hours, and bathe her eyes with very hot or very cold water. One must decide for herself which gives greatest relief. One famous oculist declares cold water for those under forty years of age and hot water thereafter.

If one's eyes stay tired persistently, the cause must be looked into. It may be due to faulty vision, and an oculist should be consulted without delay. There is no poorer economy than to fool with one's eyesight.

Often tired eyes come from a run-down condition of the health, sometimes from serious functional disorders. One man complained for months of tired eyes, but neglected it as a trifling discomfort until, too late, he learned the tired feeling was caused by hardening of the arteries and blindness was inevitable.

If your eyes stay tired persistently, try to keep in good physical condition by exercise, diet and fresh air. Should they still annoy you consult a doctor at once.

Henry Deutsch has given the University of Paris $100,000 for aerial locomotion research.

A WEIRD CREATION.

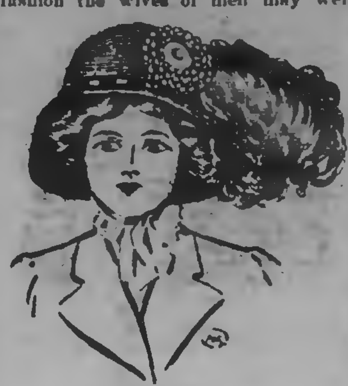
It's the "Bucket Hat," Designed by Mrs. Higham.

It is time to wheel the cabriolet hats into the barn, although they have been in favor but a few weeks, for the bucket hat has come to America, introduced by Mrs. T. F. Higham of Norfolk, Va., where the terrapins grow.

The "bucket" was worn by Mrs. Higham in her trip across from London aboard the Lusitania. As soon as she unpacks her things she is going to show it to Broadway and Fifth avenue, New York, and after it is full fashion the wives of men may well equip their husbands with blinders to keep them from becoming frightened and running away.



THE BUCKET HAT.

"I designed it myself," says Mrs. Higham. "Really I did, and I had the best of milliners build it."

Just what year actual construction was started she does not say.

The "bucket" is the shape of a large pail, or, rather, the shape of an inverted butter tub. It rises ten inches high in the crown, has a framework of pink straw daintily relieved with cornice work of green straw and in the front and center is adorned with a thing that the wearer says is a "capichon."

This "capichon" is a mass of scrambled imitation jewels in the center, and around it is wound ropes of imitation pearls each the size of a bantam's egg. The pearl strings, after a series of convulsive turns about the center of the "capichon," dart off and begin winding around the bucket proper. Where they cross on the left side is made the nesting place for the roots of a huge bunch of ostrich plumes. These rear up and then topple over on the wearer's shoulder, making a feathery fuss such as a cocking main in South Carolina might be expected to make.

AN EMBROIDERY NOTION.

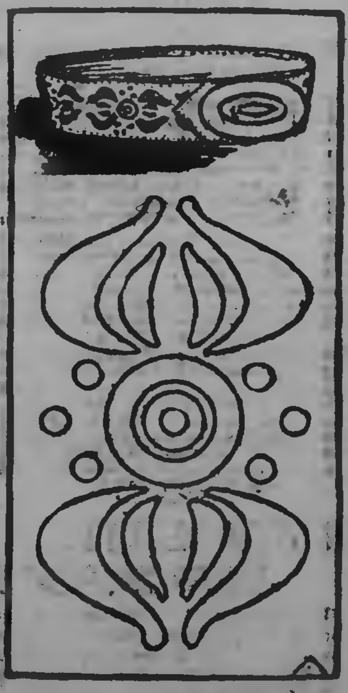
A Smart Belt to Go With Your New Spring Suit.

Why not embroider a belt to go with your new spring suit? There is no lack of attractive belts of silk and leather in the stores, but one of ecru linen embroidered in a simple design will be much more distinctive and springlike in appearance than one of these which come ready made. To make the belt in the sketch, cut a piece of linen five inches wide and the required length, allowing a little extra for the pointed end. Turn down one-half inch on each edge and then fold over, bringing the edges together, baste all around and then stitch near the edge. The eyelet holes for the buckle may be neatly buttonholed, or brass eyelets can be put in by a shoemaker.



DESIGN FOR AN EMBROIDERED BELT.

The linen should, of course, be shrunk before cutting. Transfer the design to the linen by means of carbon paper, placing the small motifs one after the other, as shown in the sketch. Use a heavy embroidery silk and work the figures in the plain satin stitch. Outline the figures, if desired, with a finer floss in black, though the effect will be rather simpler and better without the outline. Its use is a question of personal taste. The color chosen should correspond with the costume with which it is to be worn. A good combination is ecru linen with the now popular peacock colors. The inside ring in the center is of deep dark blue, the outer ring of dark green, though a lighter tone than the blue. The inner petals of the flower form are of blue about two shades lighter than in the center, and the outer petals are of a green a little lighter than the green used in the center ring.

Handy Ink Eradicator.

When a blot occurs and the ink eraser is not at hand use a bit of the emery board which comes for manicuring the nails. It is quick and efficacious, but care must be taken to work gently so as not to make a hole in the paper.

Corner Rhymes.

Corner rhymes is a fine game and is played thus: The players sit in the four corners of a room. Those in one corner decide upon a word in whispers. The word must be one that has three words rhyming with it. Then these players act the word until one of the other groups guesses it and begins acting one of the rhymes. As soon as the third and fourth corners guess they act two other rhymes, all three corners keeping up the acting until the last has begun acting the fourth rhyme word. Easy words like rope, two making the action of a skipping rope for a third; grope—on the floor in the corner; mope—with heads hanging or faces to the wall; soap—action of washing. Good words are squeeze, sneeze, please, trees, pour, snore, roar, floor.

When there is a false guess, the players already acting suddenly stop, and this is the signal for the guessers to try again.

WEDDING BELLS

HILLIER—BARTLEY.

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock in Knox church, when Miss Mabel A. Bartley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Bartley, 435 Rubidge street, was united in marriage to Mr. Ralph C. Hillier. The church was tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers, and the bride entered upon the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. J. W. Patten. The bride looked charming in a dress of alice blue satin cloth with a large picture hat of Tuscan lace. She was attended by her sister, Miss Florence E. Bartley, who wore a dress of mauve satin cloth with a hat to match. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Ernest W. Hillier, of Welland. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. J. Keith, after which Miss A. Carr sang "O, Fair, O, Sweet, O, Holy!" The ushers at the church were Mr. George Hillier, brother of the groom, and Mr. George Bartley, of Toronto, cousin of the bride. The bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents and after extending congratulations, the guests, to the number of sixty, sat down to a dainty luncheon in the drawing room, which was prettily decorated with palms and flowers.

Among the many beautiful presents received was a handsome vase from the lamp department of the C.G.E., and a quartered-oak rocker from Knox Church Hockey Club, of which the groom was a member.

Guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hillier, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hillier, and Master Harold, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. Thompson and Miss Edna, of Toronto; Mrs. E. Montgomery, of Blackstock; Mr. Jas. Wilson, of Toronto, Mr. George Bartley, Toronto; and Miss D. Williams, of Campbellford.

The newly-wedded couple left on the 4.38 train for Toronto and Niagara and will return to reside in this city. The bride's going-away dress was of fawn taffeta cloth with hat to match.

ELLIOTT—LYLE.

A wedding of interest to many in the city took place last Wednesday at Bowmanville, when Miss Gertrude Lyle was united in marriage to Mr. Robert H. Elliott, of Toronto. The groom recently lived here, and was employed at R. Fair & Co's. His many friends will join in extending congratulations.

The Toronto News says:—The marriage of Miss Gertrude Lyle, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyle, and Mr. Robert H. Elliott, of Toronto, was very quietly celebrated at "Lakeview," the residence of the bride's parents, Bowmanville, this morning. The wedding march was played by Mrs. R. M. Mitchell, sister of the bride, and Rev. John Garbutt, of the Methodist church, was the officiating clergyman. The bride was given away by her father and wore a navy blue travelling suit with tuscan hat. The groom's gift to her was a pearl and diamond ring. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Elliott left by the noon train for the eastern States. On their return from their wedding trip they will reside at Dowling Apartments, Parkdale. Among the out-of-town guests were the groom's mother, Mrs. James Elliott, Paris; Mr. James Elliott, Duluth, Minn.; Mr. J. Telfer, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Telfer, Miss Alice Telfer, Paris.

THE SUFFRAGIST ARMY

See the mighty host advancing,
 Susan leading on;
Umbrellas proudly waving,
 Victory is won.

Hark! a voice is loudly shrieking,
 Piercing through the midnight air,

 Cries a maid, in loud despair.

Dearest mankind to the rescue,
 Drag the horrid creature out,
Then for woman's rights and suffrage
 I promise nevermore to shout.

THE STONECUTTERS PROTEST AGAINST WORK BEING DONE OUTSIDE OF THE CITY

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The tenders for the new Carnegie Library building call for Roman stone, i.e., cement pressed to look like stone. This stone is not made here, but in Toronto. If it was real stone the work would be done here. The difference in price is not great. But all the other good buildings in the neighborhood have cut stone foundations and trimmings. They will make the Roman stone look "cheap and nasty." A good many people think the work should be done here. There is no good reason for having it done elsewhere. All things considered, it is not fair to the local stone-cutters.

Yours, etc.,
STONE-CUTTERS' ASSOCIATION

P.S.—Many other citizens think so too.

MADE THE DISTANCE FROM STATION WITHOUT SHOES

A young man of Taft-like proportions had a rather uncomfortable experience this morning. He went to Toronto yesterday to spend the holiday in the Queen City, and returned on the early morning C. P. R. this morning. He felt rather sleepy when he was coming home and took off his boots and placed them under the seat and was soon enjoying a pleasant snooze.

When the "brakie" came through the train announcing Peterborough the respected resident reached under the seat for his boots. Imagine his chagrin and embarrassing disappointment when he found they had vanished. He searched carefully for them, but despite his rigid inspection couldnt locate them. When the train drew up at the station he was minus the babies, and to make the best of the situation, he socked it up to his hotel, which is about twelve or fifteen minutes' walk from the station depot. As he is very well known locally the policeman he passed in the uncertain light of early morning didn't apprehend him on a vagrancy charge.

MT. JULIAN NEEDS A BIGGER WHARF

If the Increasing Traffic and Freight is to be Handled as it Should be

Those who saw the business done at Mt. Julian wharf during the last few days were convinced that the facilities are wholly inadequate. During the day and night of each 24 hours, 16 calls were made by the steamers plying the waters. Several times two or three boats made the wharf about the same time and as the wharf is about as long as any one of the boats, those not having the right of way had to hitch up one outside the other, and passengers clamber from one boat through another to get ashore. Freight had to be boosted over in the same way, and necessarily received hasty handling.

What is needed is the wharf extended to the east for at least 200 feet so as to make rooom for the craft calling at this point. The matter has been brought to the attention of the authorities, time and again, and some things promised, but so far nothing has been done. The people of the neighborhood and those who are interested in developing the tourist traffic were hopeful that the accommodation needed would have been provided for this season's business, but so far their hopes have not been realized. If fairly prompt action were now taken the demand could be met.

ANOTHER MAN ON THE STAFF

The firm of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, to meet the demands of increasing business, have added a master carpenter and joiner to their staff in the person of Mr. James Libby, of St. Blazey, Cornwall, Eng., Mr. Libby arrived on Monday and has commenced work with his new employers.

He is very much pleased with this city and will bring out his family shortly.

RESCUED IN THE NICK OF TIME

Mr. Robert Shearer While at Work Yesterday Fell into the River Near the Peterboro' Lumber Coy's Sawmill

Mr. Robert Shearer, an employee of the Peterborough Lumber Co., had an experience yesterday morning about 8.30 which he will probably not forget for a long time. He was working on one of the "jacks" near the company's sawmill, putting in logs. The pike pole with which he was doing the work pulled out of one of the logs and he fell backwards into the river. His cries for help attracted the attention of several other men in the vicinity who hurried to his aid, and he was pulled out of the water as he was about to go down for the third time. The victim of the accident was taken to his home where he soon recovered from the effects of his dip in the river.

The calf is announced as the world's greatest monstrosity and its exhibition at Millbrook will provide the only chance to see it before it is shipped to the Exhibition at Seattle, Wash.

Young Lad Named Hosken Taken From the Water in an Unconious Condition

Last Tuesday Mr. Jack Coward, who lives near Kent's Creek, a few miles down the Otonabee, was the means of preventing a drowning accident near his place. Two young boys were in bathing and one of them, named Hosken, would have been drowned byt for the timely arrival of Mr. Jack Coward, who ran hurriedly to the spot, and without taking off his clothes, jumped into the water and dove after the young lad, who in the meantime had sank. He was brought out of the water in an unconscious condition, but after his rescuer had worked over him for some time consciousness returned. This is the fifth person Mr. Coward has saved from drowning during the past several years.

THE "OLD BOYS" HAD OUTING

Excursion Organized by Mr Wilson of Springville an Enjoyable Success

On June 30th the Springville Old Boys held an excursion down the river under the supervision of Mr. Fred. Wilson. The excursionists embarked at Peterborough and Whitfield's Landing. Dinner was held at Idyl Wyld and the party stayed an hour at Gore's Landing, and Jubilee was the next point visited. Here a game of football was played between Springville and Ida, for a new ball donated by Mr. Wilson. The match proved an interesting one, Springville winning by 2—0.

The music for the day was furnished by the Grand Opera House orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Devey and it was most acceptable. Mr. Wilson invited the Springville Sunday school and members of the church, and they very heartily accepted his invitation.

The captain and officers of the Otonabee were courteous and attentive and the whole affair was thoroughly successful.

INSPECTION DAY AT COBOURG CAMP

Camp Cobourg,
1st July, 1909.

Yesterday the brigade was inspected by Col. English. The 24th battery passed a good examination and Major Young and officers are well pleased with the result. This morning both batteries paraded to Victoria Park and fired a salute. The Cobourg Co's Garrison Artillery were also inspected by the Col. and indulged in target practice, which was good, considering general conditions. This afternoon a gymkhana was held and the majority of the events went to the 24th, so it is quite evident that Peterborough's reputation has been held up to its usual good standing. The sergeants of the brigade are holding a smoking concert in their mess tent to-night, and have invited the officers of the brigade and the sergeants of the Cobourg Co. garrison Artillery. 'Nuff said. What will happen? There has not been a sign of a fight in camp, which is wonderful. The best of feeling exists between the two corps and things could not run any better. The 24th Battery leave here at four o'clock to-morrow morning route march to Peterborough, and will likely arrive there about 6.30 p.m. All are well and have thoroughly enjoyed themselves, although they have worked very hard. There has hardly been a complaint of any kind. The weather still keeps warm, but the boys are used to it now and look like a lot of red-skins.

WEST ENDS CAME FROM BEHIND AND TIED THE SCORE

Baseball Game at T. A. S. Park Furnished Considerable Exitement—The Score Was 8-8—Quinlan Was Hurt and Had to Retire in the Eighth.

The best the T.A.S. and West End Senior League teams could do yesterday at the T.A.S. picnic was to play to a tie, 8—8. The game was a good one, and furnished lots of excitement, especially in the first couple of innings, when the West Ends got a lead of three runs, and in their last innings, with two against them, they managed to even matters, and almost captured the game.

The field where the contest was played was certainly not the best in the country. The infield was studded with small hills, visible on account of the hay being cut, while in the outfield they were hidden from sight. But, despite this big handicap against them the players put up a real fast article of ball, and the big bunch of spectators were thoroughly satisfied with the game.

Kirn twirled for the West Ends and he was a puzzle to the T.A.S. in all but the fifth innings, when they got busy with the stick and scored four times. Kirn struck out twelve men and walked but one, and should have come out with a win, but last work by the opposing fielders cut off many promising looking counters. Dobson caught well, but his throwing to second was particularly good. The fielders were generally on the job, but were guilty of several wild throws, which probably had more to do with losing the game than anything else.

Billy Cahill started in to pitch for the T.A.S., but only lasted two innings, owing to his inability to locate the plate. Quinlan replaced him and twirled steadily until he was hurt in the eighth and was forced to retire from the game. Cahill went in again with his team two runs to the good, but was unable to hold the West Ends, who tied the score. There were several of the regulars of the T.A.S. who were absentees, but the substitutes did well. A nice catch of a high fly by Sheehy, with the bases full, was a feature of their work.

The score—

TWO INTERESTING GAMES BILLED FOR TO-MORROW

All Teams Will be Strong for Their Games at Riverside To-morrow Afternoon—Straths vs. P.A.C. and West Ends vs. T.A.S.

To-morrow afternoon, at Riverside Park, two more games will be played in the senior city league. The Strathconas and Park street meet in the first game at two o'clock, and as both teams are now playing fast ball the contest should be interesting. Both nines need the game, but the Straths are confident that the Straths are confident that the score will be in their favor at the finish, now that the team has settled down and are playing the game as they should. But Mr. Dusty claims he has a few new ones to work against his opponents, and is looking for another win. The line-up of the teams will be similar to that of last Saturday.

The T.A.S. and West Ends meet in the second contest, and look out for squalls. Both teams had a splendid workout at the T.A.S. picnic yesterday and will be in fine shape for the game to-morrow. Kirn and Quinlan will be the opposing twirlers, and should put up a merry struggle for the honors. Both nines should profit by their battery practice yesterday, and the fans are assured of a good exhibition of baseball.

The attendance at the games has not been as large as was expected and it is hoped that the both games to-morrow will be patronized by a big crowd.

Should the West Ends and Strathconas win to-morrow the league standing will be changed considerably, and the following would be the records of the four teams;—

| | Won. | Lost | To play. |

| T.A.S.A.C. | 3 | 1 | 5 |
| West Ends | 3 | 2 | 4 |
| Strathconas | 2 | 3 | 4 |

ALL HAVELOCK WELCOMED THE VICTORIOUS TEAM

Havelock, July 1.—Today the Havelock team won the championship of the Midland football league by defeating Bowmanville on their own grounds, to the tune of 5—2 in the second game in the finals. Havelock have a great record this year, not having lost a single game during the whole season, and the only goals that have been scored were at Bowmanville today.

The local team defeated Bowmanville here on Saturday last, the score being 1—0, thus this gives them a lead of 2 goals on the round.

The local team left town this morning by the local train for Burketon, whence they drove to Hampton, the spot selected to battle for the supremacy of the league for 1909. They were determined to win more so as Bowmanville broke the rules of true sports by hiring a man from Oshawa to play with them on Saturday last. This act on the part of Bowmanville would forfeit the district to Havelock but the locals are true sports, and decided that they would win on their merits.

At 5 p.m. the game began and was a battle royal from start to finish. In the first half Havelock were handicapped by having to kick against the wind but they managed to keep the ball pretty well away from their goal. Bowmanville with the aid of the wind made frequent spurts and succeeded in landing one between the stakes the first one that had been upt in Havelock's goal this year. Immediately after half time the Bowmanville forwards made a brilliant rush and, with some pretty combination scored a second goal. But that was their finish. Havelock decided that they must get to work and they did. From a nice kick from the halves the right wing men carried the ball up the field. McPherson passed into centre and Matheson headed the ball into the goal. When the ball was kicked off they quickly repeated their work and evened up the score. Time and again they made pretty rushes but James, in goal for Bowmanville, kept them out. A short while before time was up Havelock decided to score again, so they finished by putting another one past James, making the score 5—2 in their favor.

This is the story told of the final game that brings the Stratton cup to Havelock.

Havelock—W. Ross, goal; H. Andrews, K. McKay, backs; W. Hutchins, H. Kindrred, W. McMullen, halves; C. Robson, centre; P. Lancaster, H. Matheson, left wing; R. McPherson, G. Matheson, right wing.

E. Brumwell, secretary of the league, made a satisfactory referee.

Much praise is due the locals on their excellent work this year, and it is hoped that the good work will be kept up next year also.

BOBBY KERR EXPECTS TO WIN TO-MORROW'S DASHES

Bobby Kerr has written his friend, Mr. George Evans, Boy's Secretary at the local Y.M.C.A., says he expects to win to-morrow in the English championships 100 yards and 220 yard dashes. He will be opposed by Walker and Cartmell in both events.

Bobby states that the reason he lost in his other races was because he was not sufficiently accustomed to the climate to permit his getting into condition to do himself justice. The Hamilton sprinter sends his best regards to his Peterborough friends.

BALL TOSSER'S CORNER

CAN TURN EITHER WAY.

Q.—The batter hits an infield hit or, in fact, any kind of a hit. He overruns first base and then, without making any attempt or, in the estimation of the umpire, having any intention of running to second, the runner turns in his tracks but inadvertently to the left. If he is touched by the first baseman while he is on his way back to first base, is the runner out?

A.—No. The runner has the privilege of turning any way he wants to, provided he returns at once to first base, and does not attempt to go to second base.

HOW MANY TIMES?

Q.—A man is up five times, gets a base on balls, three hits, and is hit by a pitched ball. In figuring out the batting average how many "at bats" is he charged with?

A.—Three.

The members of the Strathconas are asked to turn out to practice at the oval to-night.

---

The manager of the West Ends has protested the win of the Strathconas last Saturday on the ground that one of the men was not signed with the Straths. This is admitted by their manager, but the circumstances were of such a nature that it was either a case of allowing him to play or disappoint the fans by not playing the game. Still the West Ends have a perfect right to protest and a meeting will be called in the near future to determine what will be done with the game.

Westminster Victorious.

Vancouver, B.C., July 2.—Because the last time that the Westminster and Vancouver met on the lacrosse field there was more blood letting than goal-making, the chief of police and police inspector went on the field yesterday afternoon before the game commenced between the rival teams and warned them that if play became unnecessarily rough both teams would be arrested and jailed. The warning had its effect, for not a single player was knocked out during the struggle, and only three players were ruled off for severe checking. There was not a single fight as compared with 15 in the last game.

Seven thousand spectators were present and the champion Westminster team won by only 8 goals to 7. Westminster's win will be notable because several of the best players of the team were crippled after two Minto Cup games with the Tecumsehs within a week.

First Ice Machine.

Dr. John Gorrie, a native of Charleston, S. C., was practicing medicine in Apalachicola, Fla. He was a scientific man and fond of making experiments. He conceived the idea of artificially cooling the air in the rooms occupied by fever patients by taking advantage of the absorption of heat from surrounding objects by expanding volatile gases. He was so successful as to make actual ice as early as 1845.

In 1850, in the Madison hotel, in his home town, he publicly exhibited his machine and made ice with it. He was granted the first patent for an ice making machine in the same year. The New York papers made fun of the invention, and Dr. Gorrie could not get enough money to enable him to make experiments along large lines. He died in 1855, without having seen the success of the line of work which he had begun.

Jacob Perkins, an American engineer living in England, had made some successful experiments with cooling apparatus several years before. Professor Alexander Twining, in America, and James Harrison, of Australia, as well as several French scientists, came along about the same time with experimental machines.

But the first ice factory of importance in the world was established in New Orleans in 1866, and it became the forerunner of the thousands of plants now being operated. The Australians were first to think of freezing meat to preserve it for long keeping but the notion was adopted in the United States without a moment's delay.—Exchange.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Even delicate glass can be safely washed in very hot water if slipped in edgewise.

Insects like neither salt nor alum, and enough adheres to the carpet to keep them away.

Saturate grass stains on children's pinafores, etc., in paraffin and then put into the washtub.

When vegetables with roots become soft and withered slice off one end and lay in water for a few hours.

A spoonful of sugar added to the water for basting roast beef will give a rich brown color as well as a fine flavor.

Burning oil is spread by water. To extinguish it throw flour, sand or earth on it. The idea is to prevent the oil spreading.

Starch should be mixed with soapy water, for thus the linen will have a more glossy appearance and be less likely to stick to the iron.

Clothes lines and pegs will last much longer if they are boiled for ten minutes when new. It is a good plan to repeat the boiling occasionally.

It is an excellent plan, if you live in a house, to have a "house purse" downstairs in a convenient place, so that when a little change is needed for something you are not obliged to run upstairs for it.

Remember in washing the china silk dress that best results are obtained by ironing it when damp. Do not let it dry at all on the line after it is washed. Roll it up in a cloth for about ten minutes and then iron on the wrong side.

THE FLIGHT OF THE CHRISTOBEL

By Arthur M. Langworthy

IT was an exciting instant. The Christobel, which had been only a flat mass of tissue paper a few minutes ago, now began to take the shape its maker intended it for: the Christobel was a balloon.

The hot air poured through the hoop forming the opening in the balloon envelope. The Christobel tugged unsteadily to release itself from the boy's grasp as he held it over the stove pipe chimney. The hot air was conducted into the balloon in this way through the brick oven built into the turf of the rising hillside.

"Quick, Bill!" shouted Frank to his brother: "I forgot to tie on Drina. Go and find her!" Drina was a doll that had been donated by Frank's sister Christobel. Drina had considerable experience, having served both as lady aeronaut and ballast on other occasions.

Bill stayed away much longer than his impatient brother expected, and when he finally appeared it was without Drina. Instead he brought Christobel's best doll, Elise.

"I couldn't find Drina, but Elise is the same size, and I don't think she'd get hurt. You know, we always got Drina back all right," explained Bill.

Frank briefly considered. Christobel thought the world of Elise, a beautiful French bisque young lady. Yet Drina had always returned safely. He decided it would be perfectly safe to let Elise make the ascent. Bill and himself would jump on their ponies and race a mile or so across the prairie after the balloon until it sank to the ground.

"Tie her on! The bag is full!" shouted Frank to Bill, who fastened under Elise's arms the end of the string hanging from the centrepiece across the hoop opening of the balloon envelope.

As the Christobel rose the different currents of air sent her in a dozen directions until she attained a height that made the glistening gilt letters of her name pasted on her red sides look like small print. Then a steady breeze wafted her slowly away toward the south.

The boys cantered along the prairie, easily keeping pace with the balloon. They travelled a mile this way, then two, then three, and Frank began to grow uneasy. None of his other balloons had ever remained so long in the air. He had not taken into consideration the fact that the Christobel was nearly twice as large as the previous ones and had just so much increased buoyancy.

Then the Christobel forged ahead of the galloping pursuers beneath her. A wild tamarack swamp began to loom up perilously close dead ahead, with the Christobel making straight for it.

Soon the brothers arrived at the swamp's edge, and as they could go no further, they dejectedly watched the Christobel sail high over the tamarack forest and disappear from view beyond the tops of the trees.

There was nothing to do but return home, as the swamp was two miles wide and at least seven long, so they mournfully trotted back, sadly discussing the disaster as they rode along.

They were met at the farm gate by Henry, who held his father's old telescope in his hand. Frank knew from his face he'd been watching the Christobel through its glass.

"Say, did she sail clear of the swamp?" he asked eagerly.

"No, the good ship Christobel was attacked by an air pirate and went down with all hands" answered Henry, with a laugh. Then he told them that he had followed the Christobel's flight, and was just about to lower the telescope when he noticed a whirring speck on the glass disk. It turned out to be an enormous bald eagle, which flew round and round the Christobel until with one final swoop it pounced on poor, helpless Elise. The great bird tore her loose and flew away toward a giant pine growing [illegible] the tamaracks.

"Where did you say the eagle flew to?" demanded Frank.

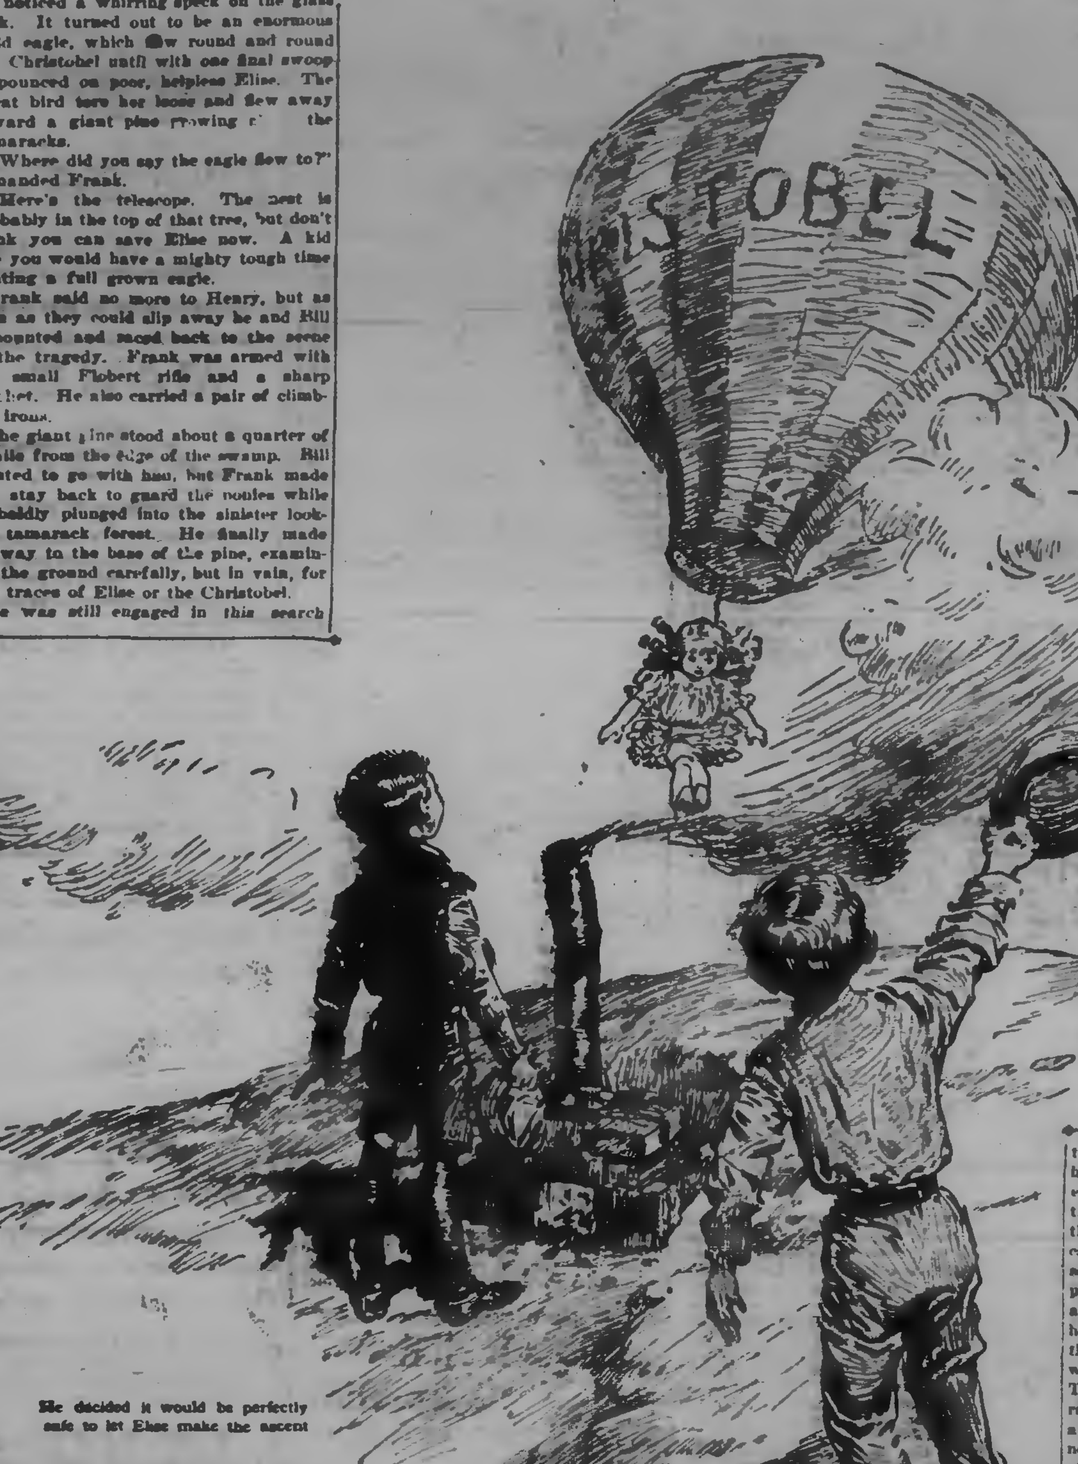
"Here's the telescope. The nest is probably in the top of that tree, but don't think you can save Elise now. A kid like you would have a mighty tough time fighting a full grown eagle.

Frank said no more to Henry, but as soon as they could slip away he and Bill remounted and raced back to the scene of the tragedy. Frank was armed with his small Flobert rifle and a sharp hatchet. He also carried a pair of climbing irons.

The giant pine stood about a quarter of a mile from the edge of the swamp. Bill wanted to go with him, but Frank made him stay back to guard the ponies while he boldly plunged into the sinister looking tamarack forest. He finally made his way to the base of the pine, examining the ground carefully, but in vain, for any traces of Elise or the Christobel.

He was still engaged in this search when he heard the flutter of wings above him. He looked up, to catch sight of the eagle flying out of the tree.

Another look discovered a dark mass faintly discernible through the leaves, thus confirming Henry's belief that the eagle's nest was in the pine. It was very lonesome here in the wild woods, so still that the eagle's movements as it beat the leaves with its wings sounded a thousand times louder in reality to Frank's high strung nerves. He unslung his rifle and crouched on the little island hummock at the base of the pine, waiting for the eagle to fly clear, so he might try a shot at it.



He decided it would be perfectly safe to let Elise make the ascent

But a half hour passed and the bird never stirred off its nest. By that time Frank had completely regained his nerve. If the eagle wouldn't come out he would force the fight. He had come to kill that eagle and rescue Elise. He adjusted the climbing irons, slung the gun over his shoulder, saw that his hatchet was easy to get at and started to climb the tree. He had not reached a third of the distance up it before the eagle became aware of its enemy. Its hoarse screams of fear and anger were not pleasant music to climb to, and it took all Frank's courage to continue. Finally he worked his way to within a foot of the leafy opening in the foliage through which he could reach the eagle's nest. The great bird became frenzied with rage and alarm at his near approach and circled wildly round and round the nest. There was a tremendous crashing of twigs, a beating of wings; a dark form descended with the swiftness of lightning upon its human enemy.

Frank fired blindly, while he instinctively shielded his face with his other arm. The next instant he was clinging to the branch with his free arm. His hat was gone, his coat sleeve was in tatters and several knifelike cuts in his arm bled profusely where the bird had struck him with his beak and talons. But, worst of all, the eagle had knocked the gun from his hands and now he faced its next onslaught with nothing but the hatchet. He had just time to draw it when his feathered foe made ready to strike again.

Again the swoop—again the sweeping blow of the hatchet. The eagle was still full of fight to judge from its actions, so nothing remained for him to do but brave it out even if he wanted to retreat.

The impact of the next onslaught nearly knocked the boy out of the tree as the feathered whirlwind struck him. But as the bird approached Frank made one desperate stroke and this time there was no return to battle. The eagle had met its match at last.

Frank's blow had struck it full in the neck. It fell fluttering out of sight into the green foliage beneath, leaving a mighty battered, shaken victor. Fortunately he had brought a handkerchief along, with which he hastily bandaged his cuts as well as he could. While resting a few minutes to get back his lost nerve and wind he was attracted by a noise in the nest above. At first he thought it might be the eagle's mate concealed there, but as the sound grew into a succession of hoarse chirps he discovered what it really was, and scrambled upward to find two eaglets in the nest. No wonder the mother eagle had put up such a battle; she was protecting her young.

He pulled off the remains of his coat and carefully transferred each squawking young bird into its folds. Then he descended as quickly as he could with his precious burden, to find his late foe quite dead, floating in the slimy waters that lapped the base of the giant pine.

Frank fished out the heavy carcass of the eagle with some difficulty, and throwing it over his shoulder, painfully dragged his way back to "Bill." "Bill" greeted the muddy, battered figure of his brother with mingled alarm and joy as he discovered his condition and the prize he carried at the same time. But Frank assured him nothing very serious was the matter and "Bill" almost went wild when Frank showed him the eaglets.

And two prouder boys never returned home than Frank and "Bill" on their second trip from the tamarack swamp. The whole farm was out to meet them, and no one was more astonished at Frank's exploit than Henry, who with their father, fervently congratulated Frank on not being at the bottom of the swamp.

BETTY'S TRIP TO TOYLAND

By Nathalie Jerrold Kelley.

BETTY was a pretty little girl of five years, with big blue eyes, rosy cheeks and curly hair. She was very fond of playing with all her dolls and toys and often she wished they were alive and could laugh and talk with her. She also used to love to go to a wood which was near her home and look for Fairies, but her mother seldom allowed her to go, as it was quite a distance to walk for such a little girl as Betty was.

One day her oldest sister Cynthia said she would take her there and Betty was delighted. Off they started, Betty running merrily ahead. Now, Cynthia was rather absent minded, and so interested was she in her book that she forgot to look after her little sister. Betty wandered off, looking and calling for the Fairies and Brownies, but they were very bashful that day and wouldn't come out of their hiding places. After a while she found she was in a very thick part of the wood; she called for Cynthia but received no answer. Then she tried to find her way out, but it was impossible. Betty became very frightened and started to cry and sank down under a tree in exhaustion. After a while her eyes closed in sleep, but she awoke with a start and looking up saw a big golden bird perched on a branch above her. He started to laugh and winked his eye at her, saying "Don't be afraid of me, Betty, I am Tommy the Golden Bird, and I have come to take you to Toyland. Will you come?"

Betty clapped her hands in glee and said nothing would suit her better. So she climbed on his back. Tommy gave a spring and away they flew over hills and dales, rivers and seas, until they reached the happiest of places, the city of Toyland! And what a beautiful town it was. The city was surrounded by a big wall made of chocolate drops and lolypops, the entrance of which was very impressive, being formed by two massive columns of peppermint candy. A wooden sentinel was standing at the gate, and much to her surprise he saluted her as she entered. The streets were of gold and lined on both sides by the most beautiful dolls' house imaginable. And what a noise and traffic there was!—just like any big city. The carriages rolled by filled with lovely dolls, who were talking and chatting together. Little boy and girl dolls went galloping by on little wooden ponies, followed by haughty plaster grooms on big horses. Automobiles whizzed along and heavy trucks and wagons trundled by. Betty heard a shrill whistle, and down the street came a toy fire engine at a terrible pace. Betty peeped into one of the houses and everything was complete. Ladies and gentlemen were playing the toy piano in the drawing room.

The cook was rattling his copper pots and pans in the kitchen, and in the nursery the dolls were having a glorious time teasing the baby dolls, and one little mischievous boy Betty actually caught sliding down the balusters. Betty played with everything to her heart's content and was able, strange as it may seem, to turn on the electric lights and bells without putting them out of order. On she passed up the street, looking at the shops, which were filled with every sort of tiny wear, and behind the counters were those familiar salesmen, with apologetic painted faces, long black mustaches and vacant expressions. But these salesmen were very lively ones and they bustled about, waiting on pretty lady dolls.

Further along Betty came to the schoolhouse and all the little dolls were doing sums at the blackboard. After a while Betty reached the outskirts of the town and she noticed that all the trees were Christmas trees, decorated with all sorts of pretty things. Suddenly a cheer went up, so she hurried along to see what the noise was about, and she found that the teddy bears were having an intercollegiate football game. The field was thronged with spectators and in front of the grand stand was a dear little bear dressed in a red suit, and so hard was he working to lead the cheers that he almost popped the buttons off his cute little vest. Betty was so happy she could have stayed on forever, and she asked the Golden Bird why all the toys at home were not alive. He shook his head and answered that St. Nicholas, who lived high up on a hill, came every year and took a great many toys away to bring them to our world. It was a very long trip and he had to fly over the moon with his eight tiny reindeer and the journey was so cold that all the dolls froze and fell asleep, but when they became broken or old Santa Claus would steal them away and would bring them back to Toyland, the doll's heaven. Then they would all wake up again and live happily ever afterward. The Golden Bird asked her if she would like to visit St. Nicholas and Betty wanted to very much, but what do you think happened? Betty woke up and found herself in her own home again and Toyland had vanished.

Betty would often wish and call for the Golden Bird to come and take her back to Toyland, but he never came. After a while, as the years went by, Betty thought less and less about Toyland, and at last the time came that she forgot all about it; and when that time comes in the lives of all little boys and girls that all those happy thoughts of childhood are forgotten, then the gates of Toyland are closed to them forever!

A PRETTY EXPERIMENT IN COLORING FLOWERS

WITH a very simply made mixture a wonderful change may be made in the color of flowers. Take a small glass, but one large enough to dip flowers in with which you expect to experiment. Pour into the glass a small quantity of ether, and to it add one-tenth of that amount of strong ammonia water. Your mixture will now be ready for use, and with it you can change any flower that is either violet or red in color to a bright green. The magical effect is almost instantaneous, as you will see if, for instance, you will dip a violet into the fluid. To your surprise you will behold the violet turn green. The same effect will follow with a red rose or geranium, the periwinkle, lilac, heliotrope or red carnation. All of these flowers you will find respond to this simple treatment, and a specimen of each exhibited to your friends will excite their wonder at your floriculture knowledge.

The violet colored sweet pea when dipped into the mixture will come out with its upper petals a deep blue and the lower ones green. White flowers treated in this way generally become yellow or deep orange, but yellow flowers seem not to be affected by the solution. The streaked carnation will turn brown and green. If some flowers are sprinkled with the fluid instead of being dipped they will present a mottled appearance instead of the whole flower becoming changed.

It is the ether that causes the effect to be speedy, as a somewhat similar effect is produced by the use of the ammonia alone, only the process is a much longer one.

Another little experiment with ammonia and the aster, that fall flower and herald of the bigger chrysanthemum, is to give this odorless flower a pleasantly aromatic odor. Pour some ammonia into a deep dish (a soup plate will serve), place the asters in a glass finger bowl and invert it so that the bowl containing the asters covers the dish with the ammonia in it. The fumes from the ammonia effect a change so that when you take the asters out they will have a distinct odor.

What Happens When There Are April Showers of Toads, Snakes and Caterpillars

IT is amusing sometimes to hear people declare that they have seen during a sharp spring or summer shower thousands of minute living frogs rained down on the roads and sidewalks. Why, they even go so far as to say—doubtfully—that they saw these frogs falling like drops of rain. Like those others who say they know of instances where frogs have been found enclosed, alive and well, in solid rocks hundreds of years old, these persons adhere to their story with a fierceness that would be laudable if applied to more reasonable things.

It is perfectly true that during spring rains swarms of the froglike babies appear in open places so suddenly as to look as if they had fallen that moment in the rainstorm. How can this and other showers of living animals be explained? For it is hardly credible that small live animals, weighing dozens of times what the raindrops do, could be lifted up into clouds by unseen forces and suspended in cloudland until dropped when the rain falls. Even the drops of water cannot stay up there when they are formed, and they are not lifted up as drops, but as vapor. We must look for some more reasonable explanation.

Look closely the next time you notice a "shower of frogs" and you will almost certainly discover them to be not frogs but toads. Frogs live in or near water; toads are land animals, living in damp places. But the eggs of both are hatched in water; forming tadpoles which grow into tiny frogs or toads, as the case may be. Now, these little baby toads hide away in corners of cellars, stones, logs and so on—a favorite spot being under flagstones. When a sudden shower comes up the running water disturbs the animals, which in the simplicity of infanthood come out of their corner and holes to seek dryer places. That is the simple explanation of this "marvellous shower of frogs."

Another favorite kind of "shower" consists of worms of various sorts—in particular, earthworms. After rain, the roads and sidewalks are sometimes spotted with the red bodies of these useful creatures, which have not fallen in showers from the vaults of heaven, but have been washed out of the loose soil by the sudden violent rain and cling to the flat places as the water drains off again. They are oftenest seen where sidewalks pass a bank or elevated lawn.

Another astonishing "shower" is composed of "just the cutest little live snakes you ever saw," as we have heard it stated. In some cases the wrigglers are really baby garter snakes, which have possibly all come from one or two mothers, for a garter snake mother may have as many as eighty "twins" born at one time. Perhaps she was hidden in a hole under a stone somewhere near by, and the rain, while not disturbing her at all, frightened the babies, which all ran out together. Such a shower is very "local" of course, but it has been noted that people mistake wriggling larvae of insects for snakes when they are not good observers. Often a heavy rain will wash myriads of "measuring worms" or brown caterpillars or other squirming things out of trees, scattering them about over everything, as if they had literally come down from the black rain clouds above. It takes a pinch of common sense to ward off belief in showers of animals.

In the case of flying creatures, of course, it is different. Up in the northern border States, opposite the great forests of Canada and the Maine or Michigan woods, people are often visited by a tiny black fly, which arrives in dense clouds with a northerly wind. These are Canada black flies, and a great pest to house owners. Witness the case of a freshly painted house or fence, against which have been blown many thousands of these tiny flies, not an uncommon experience in Buffalo.

April showers may also be composed of water plus a mixture of small moths, of gnats, mosquitoes, grasshoppers or May [illegible]. A heavy rain simply drives these poor creatures, who were enjoying the summer like sunshine, to earth. While it is doubtless pleasant to be "a little queer," as the Quaker saying had it, and beliefs in ghosts, rains of animals, and snakes with stings in their tails are diverting, it is good to remember that there are many simple folk who become genuinely frightened at such "visitations" and should be disenchanted of them. We might with equal probability expect a shower of elephants from the clouds as a shower of frogs, excepting in tornadoes or waterspouts.

Cases have occurred at sea or on lakes where ships have had, during the passing of a waterspout near by, a literal rain of tiny fishes, or, more disagreeably, of small jellyfishes. But these are only drawn up a very few yards by the violence of the twisting centre of such a whirling wind. Tornadoes, indeed, have been known to lift men, horses and even houses into the air, yet that is an example of furious wind motion utterly foreign to a summer shower.

TO LITTLE BOOK LOVERS

Little children, pray beware.
Handle story-books with care;
Playmate story-books, ill used,
Have a right to feel abused!
Dirty fingers leave their mark—
Horrid tracks all smoochy dark;
Bindings spotted, pages torn,
Make a story-book forlorn;
And I'm sure they feel it sadly
When you treat their covers badly.

STONEY LAKE WAS INVADED BY THE EXCURSIONISTS

Hundreds at the Summer Pleasure Places—Two Excursions—Big Day on the Otonabee River, Also.

Hundreds of people took advantage of the holiday to make the trip to Stony Lake. St. Luke's Bible Class went up by rail to Lakefield and took the steamer Empress. Points of interest were visited and the return trip made in good time. The excursion was most successful in every way and particularly so in the number that attended.

The Auburn Sunday school excursion was also largely patronized. The Salvation Army Band accompanied this trip, and the steamer Stoney Lake took care of the party and gave ample opportunity to view the lakes.

The Grand Trunk had a busy day. Extra trains were run, and the early evening train was made up of seven coaches. A special came down at 11 p.m., bringing home people from the celebration.

DOWN THE RIVER.

The Inthon Bible Class of the George street Sunday school held a successful excursion to Jubilee Point on the steamer Otonabee. There was a large crowd on board and the day was spent in most enjoyable fashion. The annual picnic of the T.A.S. to which extended reference is made, in another column, came up to all expectations and the finances of the society have been considerably swelled as a result.

ST. ANDREW'S SUNDAY SCHOOL HAD SPLENDID OUTING

The Sunday school of St. Andrew's church held their annual excursion to Harwood yesterday, and a very enjoyable outing was spent by all. The steamer Otonabee left the wharf at 8.30 in the morning, arriving at Gore's Landing at noon, where all enjoyed dinner. The boat left for Harwood at 2.30 and on reaching there a programme of sports were run off, under the direction of Messrs. Stewart Laing and William Langford, jr., who carried out every detail in an efficient manner. Captain White, in charge of the Otonabee, did all in his power to make the trip an enjoyable one. The excursionists arrived home at eight o'clock.

Junior Boys—1st S. Henry, 2nd Jack Green.

Junior Girls—1st Rea Potter, 2nd Aileen Wade.

Intermediate Girls—1st Margaret Eaton, 2nd Mary Potter.

TO MAKE PETERBOROUGH A MILITARY DISTRICT

The Project Outlined by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P., at Luncheon Tendered the Officers of the 3rd Dragoons.

Last night, on the eve of breaking camp of the 3rd Prince of Wales's Canadian Dragoons, at Nassau, the officers of the force and many citizens were entertained at luncheon, through the kindness of Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P. Luncheon was served in the large marquee, and was supplied by Coleman Bros., caterers, who gave every attention, and under considerable difficulty, made good.

In addition to the officers of the corps, representatives were present from the sister corps: Capt. V. Eastwood, 57th Regiment; Lieut. Hodgson, P.C.I. Cadets, and Capt. Campbell, of the Cobourg force. Of civilians there was quite a sprinkling, including Mayor Rush, Messrs. Rich. Hall, T. F. Matthews, D. W. Dumble, Geo. A. Gillespie, W. H. Denham, R. G. Macdonald, A. H. Stratton, R. R. Hall, J. H. McClellan, Judge O'Connell, F. H. Dobbin. Mr. Stratton was both the host and chairman of the evening. The 57th band played a programme of selections during the luncheon.

After disposing of several courses of the menu, the chairman rose and proposed the opening toast to the King, which was duly honored. Mr. Stratton then proposed the toast of the 3rd Dragoons, coupling with it the name of Col. Syer, the popular and able commanding officer. Mr. Stratton said he was glad to welcome the 3rd Dragoons to their annual camp. The force was made up of good soldiers and good citizens. He hoped to see more of them in the future. The idea was taking shape to make Peterborough a military centre. We had now the new armories and companies of the cavalry and artillery, as well as the city regiment, the 57th. He hoped to be able to impress on the government the importance of this district, and the advantages of accessability, location, and admirable facilities. The necessary land for the purpose could be had at a reasonable rate. Buildings would be required, but these could be erected, and the whole equipped in such a manner that soldiers could receive proper training. If men were willing to sacrifice their time it would be only fair that this should be recognized. Within thirty miles we had several corps to form a camp and make up a strong military centre. He hoped to be able to impress on the government of the day that Peterborough should be made the district it should be in military operations.

Last year the Dominion had out for annual drill nearly 50,000 men, and with increased intelligence and appreciation of the needs of the men, and of the service, he thought that the community would stand behind the Minister of Militia, whoever he might be, in supporting the expenditure of his department in increasing the efficiency of the force. He looked to the officers of the Dragoons to give hearty and valued assistance to this project.

Col. Syer, in acknowledging the compliment paid to the force, related some incidents connected with the getting out of the staff, and expressed acknowledgement to Mr. Stratton for assistance given. He was glad to have been able, when asked, to recommend Peterborough as the annual training quarters, and in arranging for the grounds he acknowledged indebtedness to the Board of Trade of Peterborough for defraying the expense for the use of the grounds. To the Mayor of Peterborough he was much indebted for kindness and courtesy. He favored Peterborough as a most suitable spot for a divisional camp in every respect.

The vice-chairman, Capt. Langfeldt, proposed "Our Municipal Institutions," and in so doing, said he and the corps appreciated thoroughly the assistance and interest shown and given by Mr. Stratton. He mentioned in connection with the toast, Mayor H. Rush, Mr. D. W. Dumble, police magistrate; Mr. D. O'Connell, acting county judge; Mr. G. Gillespie, president of the Board of Trade; Mr. Richard Hall, chairman Nicholls Hospital Board, and Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Peterborough Water Commission.

In reply, Mayor Rush gave expression to some complimentary remarks, referring to the personnel of the 3rd Dragoons, the efficiency of the corps and the national spirit inculcated by fostering a strong military spirit in the young men of the country.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said that the thought that Peterborough should be a military centre had been in his mind for many years, and he heartily approved of it. He had placed some thoughts bearing on the subject on paper, and then he read, preferring to do, rather then speak. He drew the deduction that the people of old that excelled in national deeds were those who devoted no small share of their energies to training and preparing their sons for national progress and national defense. He gloried in military training in the public schools for it made the boys what they should be—alert and reliant.

Judge D. O'Connell, in acknowledging the toast as one of the gentlemen called on, said that as an exponent of the law he would not venture to express views relative to military matters, but he remembered the day which we were celebrating—our national anniversary. He pictured the value of patriotism to Canada as a nation, and said that if the day came in which Canada found it necessary to defend itself, that it would be upheld by its citizen soldiery.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, on behalf of the Board of Trade, spoke briefly.

Mr. Richard Hall said he was only too glad to add his voice to the call to the government to make Peterborough the hub, the centre of military interests, for this part of the province.

Mr. T. F. Matthews proposed the toast of the 57th Regiment, and the P.C.I. Cadets. It was responded to by Capt. Eastwood, for the 57th Regiment, who said some complimentary things of the chairman and his very fine public spirit. Continuing, he said that the time had come when the anticipations of those connected with the militia might be realized, and this view he supported with some sound and tenable argument.

Capt. Hodgson, the six-foot-six leader of the Cadets, spoke for the rising generation of soldiers, and complimented the Dragoons on their efficiency on inspection day. He gave some details of the organization and work of the Cadet Corps. He referred to Major Hall of the corps as one of the best junior officers he had ever known, and he felt that in the Collegiate there should be inculcated the genuine idea of service for one's country.

Mr. R. R. Hall proposed "Our Manufacturing and Mercantile Interests," and said some things indicative of the extent and value of Canada in these respects.

The toast was responded to by Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who referred to the progress made in manufacturing by the city in the last ten years, and to the energy and enterprise of the men of the city who furthered its interests, and broadened both its field and opportunity.

Mr. W. H. Denham, of the Quaker Oats Co., took exception to the statements of a previous speaker, that Canada was maintained by force. Now "force" was an American product, possibly good for the Americans, but Canada should be maintained on Quaker Oats. As a manufacturer, he felt that Peterborough, in ten years, would be at least second in manufacturing in Canada.

Mr. R. R. Hall said he thought he was being inoculated with a military fever, and possibly he might have to join one of the local military bodies, but whether he did so or not, he would push on the development of the brigade camp idea in every way he could.

Mr. J. H. McClellan, who was greeted with shouts of "High Water Mac," said he at one time thought that all the money spent on drill halls and annual training should have been expended on the Trent Canal. Possibly his view was changing. He was interested in the canal, and in the waters, and the manufacturers were in turn interested in power. He could now depend on our river for a flow of at least 90,000 cubic feet per minute; a very respectable amount, and one ample for all purposes.

Mr. Stratton rose and said that with the object of promoting increased interest in the personnel of the force he would present a trophy to the 3rd Dragoons as a squadron prize annually, the trophy to be awarded in competition, and suggested as the judges, Col. Syer and the adjutant and veterinary officers of the corps. The award would be made on points for the following:—

Lines in camp, horses, physique, shooting, strength of squadron, conduct, general efficiency and drill.

Col. Syer, on behalf of the force, acknowledged the gift, and said it would be most acceptable.

The toast of "Our Host" was given and honored with expressions of appreciation from officers of the Dragoons, and citizens, and to which Mr. Stratton made acknowledgement.

The evening closed with the National Anthem.

FINE BRICK DWELLING WAS BURNED TO THE GROUND

Residence of Mr. Whitfield Northey, Smith, Destroyed by Fire Yesterday Afternoon—Heavy Loss Not Half Covered by Insurance.

A serious loss was sustained in a fire in Smith township on the Chemong road, when the residence of Mr. Whitfield Northey was leveled to the ground yesterday. The house, which was a large brick dwelling, was situated about a mile south of Bridgenorth. The blaze started about 4.30 in the afternoon, and it is presumed that it had its origin in a spark from the chimney. It was first noticed when the dog ran into the house in a state of excitement. Mr. Northey's young daughter followed the dog out to see what the trouble was, and saw that the roof was on fire. Mr. Northey was working in a field some distance away at the time, and the little girl was the only person in the house.

The neighbors willingly rendered all the assistance possible, but the fire quickly got under way to such an extent that no control of the flames could be obtained, and the house was burned to the ground. Some of the contents were saved. The loss is estimated at about $2,500, and it was not half covered by insurance.

Close watch was kept on the barns, in order to save them, and they were guarded from the sparks all night, water being drawn by means of a big threshing tank. A regretable feature of the fire was the fact that the family's wardrobe was destroyed, and they have no clothes except the ones they were wearing at the time of the fire.

COBALT IS DEVASTATED WITH LOSS OF $300,000

Two Thousand Sufferers Are Homeless and Will Have to be Cared For as Result of Conflagration—Insurance Will be Only $50,000.

Cobalt, July 3.—Cobalt is painfully familiar with the iron clang of the fire bell in the early morning hours, and when the whole town was aroused at four o'clock yesterday, people found a blaze already painting the early morning sky red, and knew that the inevitable had happened, and that fire had broken into the jam of shacks and crazy wooden buildings on the Haileybury road, and, fanned by a slight breeze, was cracking up the buildings around it like orange boxes.

For six hours the fire raged, and the result is the destruction of about 200 buildings, rendering homeless 2,000 people, in a district, about half a mile long by 100 yards wide, known as "French Town," and tenanted chiefly by foreigners. The loss is placed at about $300,000, while the insurance will be less than $50,000. This is because the insurance rates have been almost prohibitive from 10 to 15 per cent.—and in some cases the companies cancelled the risks held.

The fire originated in Joe. Lee's Chinese restaurant, supposedly from an overheated stove. Two waitresses, who roomed in the building, heard the flames crackling, and aroused the other inmates. As previous serious fires have originated in Chinese buildings, there is a decidedly anti-Oriental sentiment here to-day.

The local volunteer firemen were assisted by the brigades from New Liskeard and Haileybury, which arrived by special train about 5.30. The water supply was inadequate and resourse was had to dynamite to blow up buildings in hopes of checking the progress of the fire.

It was during the dynamiting of one building that a Finlander, who did not understand the warnings given him, and who rushed back into the house, was blown up and killed.

The more modern and considerable part of the town, though the less populous, is to the south of the seat of the fire, and the firemen and their many helpers first strove to break the rush of the flames towards the Imperial Bank and Cobalt "square." Finally, mainly through private initiative, the tide was stopped in this direction, but the wind had now veered, and was driving the flames in half a gale down the track, straight for the packed rabbit warren of "French Town."

By the time the frightened Syrians and Greeks had obtained the attention of the firemen, half a dozen buildings had gone and the fire was leaping on to fresh fuel every other minute.

Frightened men and women, the latter often with babies in arms, began to stream out of many boarding-houses and little stores, in night wrappings and the scantiest of dress, and they ran back and forth, frantically striving to drag out whatsoever they prize most.

Scant time had they for consideration, for the dread forerunners of the bellowing furnace behind, the showers of red hot sparks, settled on tindery roof and woodwork and instantly set it alight. Hard as the brigade worked with their incomplete appliances, the streams they poured into the flames had no more effect than a pailful of water on a volcano vomiting lava, and speedily they were beaten back. The bucket brigades were also futile.

Ontario Government Helps.

Toronto, July 3.—The Ontario Government took action yesterday to relieve the distress caused by the destruction of the town of Cobalt by fire.

To a press representative last night Sir James Whitney said: "An appeal was made to the Government and we communicated at once with Gen. Cotton here and the Militia Department at Ottawa. They have kindly agreed to loan tents and blankets, and Hon. F. Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, is attending to the matter. He will send a couple of men to take charge, with instructions to report by telephone to-morrow on the general situation, and advise if any further relief is needed."

Later Hon. F. Cochrane stated that E. T. Corkell, mining inspector, would leave on the night train with 100 militia tents and 300 pairs of blankets. Mr. Corkell will make a general survey of the damage and report immediately to the Department.

THE BIG COAL STRIKE

Sydney, N.S., July 3.—That the U.M.W. of American mean business in demanding what they consider their rights from the coal operators of Nova Scotia, was manifest last night, when at a meeting of the executive, with representatives of a majority of the miners from each of the coal producing districts of Nova Scotia, a resolution was passed as follows:

"That the executive ask the Dominion Coal Co. operators to meet them on the afternoon of Monday, July 5, for the purpose of coming to an agreement and in the event of the company not sending a representative to the conference, a strike to be inaugurated July 6, and that the executive be empowered to treat other companies and corporations in the same manner if necessary."

RED TAPE IN FRENCH NAVY

Paris, July 3.—Debate has begun in the Chamber of Deputies on the report of the special committee which has been making an investigation into naval matters.

The features of the debate was the speech of Deputy Pichon, exposing to ridicule what he termed "the red tape of the Ministry." He cited cases of the acquisition of a pair of sea boots for a coastguard and a dog kennel, which necessitated several months' correspondence through "hierarchic channels" to and from the Ministry, and that the replacing of a cracked tumbler on a flagship required the signature of the Minister on the voucher.

The sole duty of one of the 26 departmental committees, he declared, was to count the leeches which died at the naval dispensary every three months.

INDIANS ARE MUCH EXCITED

Assassination of Col. Wyllie is Sign of Ugly Temper

London, July 3.—Madar Loloff Dhigrini, the Indian student who Thursday night shot and killed Lieut.-Col. Sir William Butt Curzon Wyllie and Dr. Cawse Lalcada of Shanghai, at the conclusion of a public gathering in the Imperial Institute, was arraigned in the Westminster Police Court yesterday morning and remanded for one week, after being formally charged with wilful murder.

In the dock the prisoner appeared quite unconcerned. He stood with hands in pockets and shook his head negatively when asked if he wished to say anything. Subsequently, however, he said that he had not wilfully killed Dr. Lalcada.

"I saw him advance, and then he caught hold of me; I fired in self-defence," he declared.

This is the first time the methods of the terrorists have been introduced in political agitation in England, and the country has awakened to the fact in an ugly temper. The prisoner, whose age is given as 26, is said to have relatives in good standing in Calcutta.

In the Indian Office, the murder of Col. Wyllie, who was a political aide de camp to Lord Morley, Secretary of State for India, is held to be entirely political, and due to some imaginary grievance against the system of Government.

Dhinagri came to London from the Punjab some years ago. He belonged to the advanced section of the Indian Nationalist Party, and he has been taking a course in engineering in London University.

During the commemoration of the Indian Mutiny he attracted attention by wearing a badge inscribed "In memory of the martyrs." Some of his fellow students taunted Dhinagri, who threatened to cut the throat of one of his most active tormentors. He was a hard-working student, but he held very advanced political opinions. He was a frequenter of the India House, the local centre of the Indian agitators.

A Calcutta despatch yesterday says: There is to-day a recrudescence of political excitement in Eastern Bengal, and meetings to express sympathy with natives who have been deported are of almost daily occurrence. Arabindo Ghose, one of the most prominent of the Indian agitators, is traveling through the country in the interests of an anti-government campaign. He is preaching that the "Fiat of God has gone out to the Indian nation to unite, to be free and to be great."

THE LOCK WALL COLLAPSED TWENTY WORKMEN ARE DEAD

Fifty Mechanics Are Caught in Crash But Half Manage to Escape—Several Are Now Imprisoned Under the Debris—Rescuers Are Frantically Working to Release Them.

Newport, Eng., July 3.—It is estimated that twenty men perished yesterday by the sudden collapse of the west wall of the new lock at the entrance to the Alexandra dock, where fifty men were working in a trench 60 feet deep, preparing for the laying of a concrete foundation.

Without warning the heavy shoring timbers gave way, the entire structure collapsing, and carried down with it thousands of tons of earth, railway lines, many cars and four travelling coaches. The men at the bottom of the trench had no chance to escape. Of the fifty men men in the trench 25 have been accounted for.

Late at night four men, still living, were pinned in the debris in the trench. The incoming tide made the work of rescue very difficult.

At midnight, aided by electric lights and flare lamps, the rescuers were still busy with their work. Thousands of persons had gathered to watch the weird scene.

Conversation were being held with a few of the imprisoned men with the aid of speaking tubes and stimulents, and cigarettes were passed down to them, but there was little hope of rescuing the victims as the removal of the debris that was pining them down was likely to cause further falls of earth and beams.

Up to midnight eleven persons had been extricated, dead or injured, and it was believed that there still were sixteen bodies under the debris.

DR. HODGETT'S CONDEMNATION OF THE TORONTO MEAT

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 3.—Dr. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, is most emphatic in his condemnation of the lack of inspection of the meat dressed for local trade, as compared with the rigid system of Government inspection that is insisted upon as to the condition of export.

"Toronto gets the offscourings of the meat under our system, and European countries the best and healthiest of our meat," he declared. "There is no guarantee as to the quality of the meat we buy, as to whether it is diseased or not. The only safeguard there is lies in the fact that most of it is well cooked before it reaches our tables. But even if most of the danger of contagion is removed by the heat, one hardly relishes eating diseased meat.

"What is needed is a provincial law compelling all meat that is offered for sale to pass a competent inspection. A public abbatoir should be established in each district with inspectors in charge.

"The public have not been aroused yet to the seriousness of the situation or legislation would have been passed long ago. Whatever is done must be done by the province in the matter of the local meat trade. The Dominion cannot interfere."

UNIVERSITY IS PLANNING PRACTICAL BUSINESS COURSE

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 3.—The University of Toronto is planning the details of a practical business course leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree, which will be something new in America, if not in the world.

It is so far arranged that the training shall fit for the acturial and banking business particularly, although it will be a general training to a large extent. Later, the work may be broadened. As planned at present those entering this course will for the first two years attend lectures with other Arts students, but will give special attention to mathematics. During the last two years the students will be placed in business offices, where they will learn the practical workings of commerce. Very few lectures will be attended during these final years.

DESPERADOES ROB A BANK GET AWAY WITH $10,000

Trio of Bandits Enter Bank of Nova Scotia in Broad Daylight, Cover the Manager With Revolvers and Loot the Premises.

Rainy River, July 3.—One of the most daring bank robberies since the time of Jesse James was pulled off yesterday in this quiet little burgh, when three heavily armed desperadoes entered the branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, shortly before 11 a.m., and secured between nine and ten thousand dollars in cash. They chose the time well for easy access to the money, as the safes were open at that hour, the manager was alone, and business was proceeding quietly. The bandits entered the office of the manager and covered him with revolvers. While he was thus held helplessly, they speedily gathered up all the cash available and hastily made their escape into the woods north of the town limits. The streets were full of people at the time, but none became aware of the daring robbery which had been pulled off until the alarm was given by the manager of the pillaged bank. The bandits by that time had a short start, and they dashed away into the woods.

As speedily as possible every available man was armed and sent in pursuit. The river front was closely patrolled to prevent the bandits from escaping back into Minnesota, from which they no doubt came, as the revolvers with which they were armed were stolen from Weeks' Hardware Co. in Spooner, last Wednesday night. The posse is searching the woods, but pursuit is very difficult, owing to the nature of the country, which is heavily timbered and broken by innumerable streams and lakes. The bandits must either effect their escape over the river or make their way across the wild and rugged country to the C.P.R. The pursuers have an excellent description of them, and they escape should be difficult. They purchased the cartridges at the Rat Portage Lumber Co.'s stores yesterday morning, and their appearance was closely noted at that time, which supplemented the description Manager Temple was able to give. Many people also saw them running away from the bank.

While the arming of the pursuers was hurriedly in progress, a regrettable accident occurred, as a rifle was discharged, the bullet hitting Mr. Field, accountant of the bank, in the leg, inflicting a painful wound. The robbers no doubt had their plans well laid before they attempted such a daring hold-up.

After escaping into the woods they separated, two taking the box and the third running in a different direction, evidently for a rendezvous. It was impossible to communicate with Beaudette or other points around the town, as the bandits had taken the precaution to cut the wires.

MOTOR BOATS THREATENED

WIFE ILL AND NO MONEY; APPEALS TO THE POLICE

Toronto, Saturday, July 3rd.—With a wife in ill-health and four small children, the oldest but nine years of age, and the youngest only eight months, John Skipper, an English boat hand from Merriton, and recently of Peterborough, arrived in the city yesterday in an effort to get the woman into an hospital. He took her to a downtown hospital, but the authorities refused to admit the woman and referred Skipper to the police. The man, with wife and children, walked into Court street Police station last night, and laid his troubles before Sergt. Allison. The sergeant telephoned a number of institutions but was unable to get any of them to take in the unfortunate family, until finally, Mrs. Piggens of the Bellamy Home, agreed to take care of the woman and the children until the husband can find some place more suitable for her. Skipper had only $10 when he landed in the city. Skipper says his wife has required medical treatment ever since he left Peterborough four months ago.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

If some of the gentlemen who are promising wonderful things in wonderful ways for other objects would consider the fact that they pledged themselves at the last election to provide the County of Peterborough with rural mail and parcel delivery, the public would have a good deal more faith in them than it has. The farmers have been bluffed long enough. A great fuss is made over every little grant that is made to them, although that grant is more often "honoured in the breach than in' observance." The parcel branch of free rural delivery would be worth its weight in gold to the farmers of a county like Peterborough, and although a ninety-seven other routes have been put on in Canada, ours remains a mere myth. So much for the promises of politicians. However, the Review will not cease crying out for it. It can help the good cause in that way if in no other. Perhaps "they" will get tired in time and give it to us. Why, not hold a "banquet" in the vicinity of the Bald Lake bridge!

THE PRESS-AGENT AGAIN

"A purely fictitious story has been going the rounds of the papers in the west about Sir Wilfrid Laurier's relations with the 'Witness,' and honors offered its editor by him. It is true that Sir Wilfrid has been twice or perhaps trice at the Witness office. The last occasion was regarded as so notable an event that it was duly celebrated by a photograph of him, which we preserve with interest. A similar note was taken of Mr. R. L. Borden's visit about the same time. The rest of the story, which we need not repeat here, is pure invention."—The Montreal Witness.

Some time ago, it will be remembered, it was said that Sir Wilfrid had great respect for the editor of the Montreal Witness, and that he paid him frequent visits to ask his opinion, etc. This was all press-agency work, it seems. Press-agency is the means adopted by those who wish to boom somebody or something. They stuff the press, pay for it, if necessary, and lie without stint. It is the favorite way of boosting rascals, also, who wish to gain an end of any sort. "Boosting" makes the public familiar with the "great man's" name, and the press (subsidized for the occasion, usually) is quoted as reflecting public opinion. The yarn in question is of a different sort, as no one of course, supposes that Sir Wilfrid would stoop to such a thing. But he has men in his party who would stoop to anything, and they evidently think that the Witness's support is necessary just now.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

If we are to judge by the experience of Galveston, Texas, city government by commission is the thing of the future. The flood wiped out all old systems as well as old scores and left the city (without municipal buildings or municipal institutions. At this juncture the sentiment of the people was wholly for a prompt, business-like management of the wreck in order that if possible something of value might be saved from the catastrophe. A city government commission was elected, consisting of a mayor, whose duty it was to see that the by-laws were enforced, and generally to hold the [illegible] to the situation. At the meeting of the commissioners each of the remaining four was appointed supervisor and responsible head of a department. Once a week they all met together and discussed what was of a general character. Each commissioner managed his own department. The reports of the city solicitor, assessment department, finance manager, etc., were read. These reports were handled with amazing quickness, being either referred back with notes of what was to be done or fyled. The result of this management of the city's affairs is said to have been extraordinary. Out of reasonable savings an old debt of $200,000, for which nothing remained visible to the eye as an asset was at the end of five years paid off. The city buildings destroyed by the storm had been rebuilt and paid for. There were no overdrafts at the bank after the commission got fairly on its legs. A representative club called the City Club handles the elections and sees to it that designing or useless men do not get in to manipulate or mar the excellent results. Many astute observers descry municipal commissions everywhere in the near future. While the present system has its faults, it has its virtues nevertheless, a prompt, responsible management of municipal affairs ought to be just as beneficial in municipal activities as anywhere else.

"THE 'SAW-OFF' ONCE MORE."

The Montreal Star.

The political pretenders to purity in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta irrespective of party, have "mended their fences" by "sawing off" election protests. It may be taken for granted that party adherents "high up" have made the arrangements whereby a mass of allegations, subversive of all electoral decency and civic honor, were withdrawn. On the Government side the "minister for the district," on the Opposition side some one selected, because of his capacity for "confidential" work, would conduct your parleys. Leading lights of both the Liberals and Conservatives are in the plot to serve party exigency by befooling the courts and hoodwinking the people. There is invariably an excuse made to the effect that the country is "saved" the "expense" of by-elections when the unseating of a member-elect is "switched." The chief defender of the Newmarket canal foolishness would no doubt argue that way; and he is believed to have made the saw-off arrangement in Ontario. Then when it comes to rushing through the huge railway estimates, give us an Oppositionist who harps on the cost of an "unnecessary" appeal to the electorate.

What should be done is obvious. The cases should be pushed to the extreme limit. The power to put the law into effect should be removed from the hands of men who also have an equal power to withhold the application of the statutes covering the offences.

Make corruption a crime. Make laws to punish the criminals. But above all make the interested politicians stand aside. Let us strive to prevent them from juggling with the base principle of the whole machinery of civilization."

EDITORIAL NOTES

"The Church of England must make sure of what it means by Episcopacy, whether the New Testament idea or the later monarchical conception; and Nonconformists must say plainly whether or not they mean by Disestablishment the cessation of the national recognition of God. In the closer association of the Reformed Church of England and the Reformed Non-episcopal Churches the Bishop believes that the germ of the Church of the future will ultimately be found."—Bishop Diggs.

The Kaiser says that England's trouble is a fit of industrial depression and a spasm of dread over the great educational development of Germany. The reply to German supremacy is greater educational energy, and the same is true of the United States, where German competition is being much felt. The situation appears, at present, to be such that, under Free Trade, both England and the United States would cease to exist as really independent nations, each getting its inspiration from the Teutonic centre of industry and intelligence. It is this almost unexpected predominance that has aroused Great Britain, but has not yet moved the Americans, whose pride is altogether too great to admit of a panic.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness —caused by catarrh— that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterboroug Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

OPINIONS OF EMINENT CATHOLIC DIVINES

The Roman Catholic Church has waged for a long time a vigorous warfare against the liquor habit and the liquor traffic. Magnificent work has been done by the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of the United States, and by the League of the Cross in Great Britain and Canada. It would be easy to quote many forcible statements from eminent priests and prelates who have done splendid service for humanity in their holy warfare against the giant evil of intemperance.

Sometimes the liquor interests endeavor to make out that the Catholic Church is opposed to Local Option or prohibitive measures. While this may be true in some cases, it is not true in the case of some of the most eminent divines in the Catholic church. His Eminence Cardinal Manning in a speech made at Bolton, England, took very strong ground in reference to voting against the traffic in liquor. After accusing the liquor traffic of high crimes and misdemeanor against the public, he stated: "I ask you in the name of common sense and common justice, can you withhold from those entrusted with the high responsibility of the ballot the power to apply their votes in the form of a veto, when it is supposed, without consulting them, to put in the midst of them places for the sale of intoxicating drinks. It is a mockery to ask us to put down drunkenness by moral and religious means, when the Legislature facilitates the multiplication of inducements to intemperance on every hand. You might as well call upon me, as the captain of a sinking ship and say, 'Why don't you pump the water out?' when you are scuttling the ship in every direction. If you will cut off the supply of temptation, I will be bound by the help of God to convert drunkards, but until you have taken off this perpetual supply of intoxicating drink, we never can cultivate the fields." A brave bishop's fight

A Brave Bishop's Fight

One of the hardest struggles between the liquor party and the Catholic Church was that begun in an order of Bishop John A. Waterson, of the Diocese of Columbus, Ohio, in which that prelate took strong ground against the admission of liquor sellers into Catholic societies. The Bishop did not in this order condemn the liquor business itself, but his deliverance regarding liquor sellers reads as follows:

"To give greater efficiency, both to the recommendations of the bishops and to the declarations of our Catholic laity, at the recent congress in Chicago concerning the saloon business, I hereby withdraw my approbation from any and every Catholic society or branch or division thereof in this diocese that has a liquor dealer or saloon keeper at its head, or anywhere among its officers, and I suspend every such society itself from its rank and privileges as a Catholic society until it ceases to be so officered. Happily there is not much occasion for such suspensions. I again publish the condition without which for some years past I have declined to approve of new societies or new branches of old organizations in this diocese, viz.:

"'That no one who is engaged either as principal or agent in the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor can be admitted to membership.'"

There was, of course, strong objection to the action of Bishop Waterson, and an appeal was made against the Bishop's decision, which appeal was finally settled by the Papal Delegate at Washington, Mgr. Satolli, whose decision set out the soundness of Bishop Waterson's decision, said:

The Catholic Third Plenary Council held at Baltimore, made this declaration among many others—

"We call upon all pastors to induce any of their flocks who may be engaged in the sale of liquors to abandon as soon as they can the dangerous traffic, and to embrace a more becoming way of making a living."

Of the deliverances of this council Pope Leo XIII., in his reply to the part relating to intemperance, said:

"It is well-known to us how ruinous, how deplorable, is the injury, both to faith and to morals, that is to be feared from intemperance in drink. Nor can we sufficiently praise the prelates of the United States who recently, in the Plenary Council of Baltimore, with weightiest words, condemn this abuse, declaring it to be a perpetual incentive to sin and a fruitful root of all evils, plunging the families of the intemperate into the direst ruin, and dragging numberless souls down to everlasting perdition; declaring, moreover, that the faithful who yield to this vice of intemperance become thereby a scandal to non-Catholics, and great hindrance to the propagation of the true religion."

LOCAL OPTION CAN BE ENFORCED

When people say that we could not enforce local option in Peterborough were it to carry next January, they practically tell us that we are unable to govern ourselves. Do they mean to tell us that if we passed a law making it a criminal offence to sell liquor in Peterborough, that we have not got the backbone to enforce such a law? Are a few men who desire to sell liquor, able to defeat the wishes of a majority of the people of Peterborough and defy our police force, as well as our provincial license officers? Are we not as well able to govern ourselves as people in many cities of the United States?

There are over fifty cities in the United States, larger in size than Peterborough, where they have local option. One of these cities is Everett, Massachusetts. Owing to the character of its population, the enforcement of a liquor law in Everett should be much more difficult than in Peterborough. The Mayor of Everett is Charles Bruce, who is in the real estate business. He is a Canadian, having been born in Shelbourne, N.S., in 1862. Mayor Bruce, in reply to a request for information, has sent the following letter to the Peterborough City Temperance League—

Local Option a Success

"It gives me pleasure to give you the desired information in regard to the enforcement of the liquor law in this city.

"We have about thirty-four thousand inhabitants and nearly every nationality is represented.

"There has never been any open bar in this city, and I am of the opinion that there never will be.

"In Massachusetts we have what we designate local option, that is, the vote on license is taken every year. In towns it is voted on at the March town meetings, and in cities at the annual municipal election, which is held in the autumn or, more generally, in December. All liquor licenses run from May to May.

"The city has always voted by a very large majority against license, and we have no trouble whatever in enforcing the law. In fact there seems to be no disposition to disobey the law except in very rare cases. It is not only possible to prohibit the sale of liquor, it is a decidedly easy matter if those who have the enforcement of the law in charge wish to do their duty. When any person says that it is not possible, you can figure that they make the statement from a standpoint of ignorance of what has been done and is now being done throughout the United States, or the wish is "father of the thought." Don't take any stock in any such assertion, for it is not true.

"In this city we have no open bar, neither have we any of the much-quoted 'kitchen bar-room,' which is put forward as an argument in favor of the open bar. There is absolutely no need whatever for the existence of the 'kitchen bar-room' if, as I said before, those having in charge the enforcement of the law do their duty. I have heard all kinds of arguments advanced to the effect that you cannot prohibit the sale of liquor in cities, but I assure you that I have never heard an argument advanced that would hold good for one instant. I believe that I can speak from the standpoint of experience, for I am now serving my fourth term as mayor and I have been connected with the city government almost continuously since 1895.

"In conclusion would say that the sale of liquor can be prohibited in your city regardless of anything that is said to the contrary."

Campaign Note

Owing to the large number of people who are out of the city during July and August, this department will be discontinued until the fall, when it will be opened again with renewed vigor. In the interval valuable material will be gathered for the fall campaign.

Indigestion and Similar Troubles Must be Treated Through the Blood

Indigestion can be treated in many ways, but it can be cured in only one way—through the blood. Purgatives cannot cure indigestion. By main force they move the food on still undigested. That weakens the whole system, uses up the natural juices of the body and leaves the stomach and bowels parched and sore. It is a cause of indigestion—not a cure. Others try pre-digested foods and peptonized drugs. But drugs which digest the food for the stomach really weaken its power. The digestive organs can never do the work properly until they are strong enough to do it for themselves. Nothing can give the stomach that power but the new, rich, red blood so abundantly supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So the reason for their success is plain. The health of the stomach depends upon the blood in its delicate veins. If that blood is weak and watery the gastric glands haven't the strength to secrete the juices which alone can digest the food. If the blood is loaded with impurities it cannot absorb the good from the food when it is digested. Nothing can stimulate the glands and nothing can absorb the nourishment but pure, red blood. And nothing can give that pure, red blood but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Alfred Gallant, Mill River, P.E.I., says:—"For several years, previous and up to two years ago, I suffered continually from indigestion. I could not eat enough to keep my strength, and what little I did eat, caused great pains, so that I became much reduced in flesh, strength and energy. I consulted several doctors and took medicine from them but without any benefit whatever. On the advice of a friend I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and soon good results were noticed. I could slightly increase the amount of food day after day, and suffered no inconvenience until after taking ten boxes I could eat any kind of food and in a short time got back to my normal state of health, and feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have surely cured me of a most stubborn case of indigestion."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A GRAND KIDNEY MEDICINE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him When Everything Else Failed.

Ulverton, Que., March 17th, 1909.

I wish to place on record, for the sake of others who may be suffering in the same way that I suffered, that no medicine I ever took did me so much real good as "Fruit-a-tives" did.

I suffered for many years with Kidney Trouble, with bad pain in the back.

I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill, but nothing gave me any relief, and I was getting discouraged.

I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and did so—and this medicine cured me when everything else failed.

I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset they gave me relief and I am now practically well again; no pain, no distress, and all symptoms of kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well, and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I did. To them, I say try "Fruit-a-tives," as they are a grand kidney medicine.

PHONOGRAPH TRAIN CALL.

Canadian Pacific Will Install One at Winnipeg.

The megaphone is now a familiar sight in the hands of the railway train-announcer; but it is said that the "man behind" is now to be replaced by the useful and tireless phonographic record. The human worker may — and usually does — mumble and roar inarticulately; while the well-selected record, we are told, goes on forever talking intelligibly and correctly. Says Railway and Locomotive Engineering:

"The fact that a man possesses a powerful voice is no guarantee that what he says will be understood in a big building. This fact is often painfully brought home to the traveling public in the waiting-room of almost any large railway station. There is a great difference between mere loudness and distinctness. This fact has led Mr. G. J. Bury, general manager of lines west, on the Canadian Pacific, to introduce what is probably a most welcome innovation in the matter of announcing the arrival or departure of passenger-trains.

"Ordinarily a man with a loud voice calls out something and the public is made aware of the fact that something is happening, but what it is nobody seems to know. Mr. Bury has substituted a phonograph for the loud man in the Winnipeg station of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and records have been prepared where distinct enunciation has been substituted for the usual jumble of sounds and where a clear, steady voice supersedes a roar. The new arrangement, if satisfactory, will be repeated in the Montreal station. Mr. Bury believes that to make the traveler understand what is said is the main thing, and if this is not done, Stentor himself would be a useless railroad employe in the matter of train announcement."

Making a Five.

It was just the other day that a lawyer at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, slapped his knee and chortled to himself.

"I was just thinking," he said, "of what Pat Ferguson (that's W.N.) said to old Judge Ferguson one day.

"Pat was arguing a matter before the judge, and the judge was following him and was reading the papers which they say were in Pat's own handwriting. The case was full of figures and almost every time the judge would read out an amount Pat would have to correct him. The judge stumbled along, making the best he could of the figures, but at last he stumbled again.

"'What's this—a five or an eight?' he demanded of Pat.

"'It's a five, my lord.'

"'Can't you make a five better than that?' demanded his lordship, angrily.

"Pat looked up at the angry judge with a twinkle in his eye and a smile playing about his mouth.

"'I find it very hard to make a five some days, my lord,' he answered.

"But that was years ago."

Found It at Home.

The fame of the wonderful waters of Canada has spread around the world, although it is probably true that many who live not far from one of these healing fountains are like the Montreal man who journeyed all the way to Berlin to consult a great specialist, writes Cy Warman in Canada West. The learned doctor looked his patient over carefully, and then told him there was but one place where he could find relief for his peculiar malady.

"Name it," said the Montreal man, "I don't care where it is, I'll go there."

"It is a place called Abenakis," said the doctor, "in the Province of Quebec, which is in Canada."

"Oh, fudge," said the patient, "why, I can go out there in two hours."

So he paid the fat fee, came back to Montreal, went out to Abenakis in two hours, and was cured.

The president in one of the banks in Maracaibo, Venezuela, absconded with $60,000 of the bank's money.

SUMMER IS COMING.

Housecleaning Hints That Are Worth Testing This Spring.

When sweeping, says Good Housekeeping, as much furniture as possible should be removed from the room. The remainder should be covered with coarse, unbleached cotton cases kept on hand for this purpose. Pictures, mantels and mirrors should be dusted and then covered with cases made of the same material. While the sweeping is being done the doors should be closed and the windows opened.

Matting should be swept with a soft cloth or brush and then gone over with a damp cloth to remove the dust. Soap must not be used, as it is likely to discolor the matting. Soiled spots may be removed by rubbing the matting with a cloth wrung out in hot water.

Windows must be thoroughly dusted before washing and the dirt removed from corners and crevices with a wooden skewer and a piece of cloth. The glass may then be washed in clear, warm water containing a little ammonia. The washing cloth should be damp rather than dripping wet. The cloth should be rinsed frequently. The windows must be dried with a clean, soft cloth and polished with paper.

To clean cut glass use a soft brush and warm water containing a little ammonia. Try to cover the glass with the brush thoroughly in order that each little crevice shall be reached. Dry the glass immediately, and if sawdust is available sprinkle it freely over the glass and let it remain for some time. Then remove it with a soft brush, rub lightly with a clean, soft cloth, and the cut glass will be clear and sparkling.

China dishes should be scraped of all food, rinsed in cold water and washed in warm, soapy water. If there is gilt on the china be sparing in the use of soap.

The kitchen sink and the sink in the butler's pantry are likely to be in a greasy, unhygienic condition unless means of prevention are taken. These sinks should be thoroughly flushed several times a day with hot water followed by cold water.

Almost every set bowl contains a groove, inside and around the top, in which dirt is likely to settle and remain since it cannot be seen. If neglected too long this causes a peculiar and disagreeable odor, for the cause of which even good housekeepers search vainly. This groove should be attacked frequently with a brush and plenty of soap or disinfectant, as it is quite capable of producing malignant germs.

Sweep the hardwood floor with a soft hair brush and wipe with a long handled dust mop. Where the room does not become very dusty the use of the dust mop alone is necessary daily.

Three Methods of Serving Dinner.

There are three methods of serving a dinner—a la Francais, a la Russe and American. The French service for small dinners is that of presenting the entire dish to the guest, that he may help himself to the part he wants. The Russian service—that of carving in the kitchen and serving from the butler's pantry—is best adapted to large banquets, but it is preferred by many hostesses in their homes. The American service is a combination of the other two, the garnished dish being first shown to the host or hostess for inspection and approval and then cut outside.

A Novel Outing.

A party of Americans have a novel idea for the enjoyment of the summer in Canada. They have written to a Toronto friend to get them figures on the cost of a freight van, and the additional cost of fitting it up with rooms and berths. Their idea is to have the van turned into a cottage on wheels and run about the country to any point which they may wish to locate for fishing or hunting purposes, and when a move is desired, the van can again be attached to a freight train and moved on while the passengers go on by express train.

The plan has been put into operation by them on some of the lines in the Eastern States, and at present they have a car in the States, but the expense of bringing it into Canada would be greater than that of equipping a new car here. Everything is done to make the car like a home, and where it has been used it has been found very serviceable.

TRESPASS CASE WAS DISMISSED

Parties Interested in Case Could Not Reach Any Agreement

Wm. Fair and C. A. J. Duranceau could not come to any agreement at the police court this morning and the magistrate dismissed the case and told the interested parties to go and fight it out some other place. The trouble arose over the defendant, Duranceau, sending a man to the house occupied by Fair to tear different parts of it down. Fair claimed he had his rent paid up to the 17th of this month, and wanted to be protected from the inconveniences and trouble which his landlord was making him put up with. Duranceau stated that he had the permission of his tenant to do the work, but this was denied by the complainant. All parties were asked to adjourn to the downstairs office and try to reach some agreement. But this was not accomplished and the case was dismissed.

JUDGMENT FOR COMPLAINANT

Defendent Ordered to Pay $12.00 for Services Rendered by Complainant

James Cruickshanks was charged at the police court this morning with not having paid the wages agreed upon when he hired a young girl to do work at his house. The Magistrate, after hearing considerable evidence, gave judgment against accused for $12.00, and $2.60 costs, to be paid in eight days.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams conducted the case in the interests of the complainant. According to the evidence of the complainant, she was hired on the 28th of April and worked until the morning of May 24th. The defendant made the agreement with her mother that she was to receive 65 cents per day and board, and if there was any complaint she was to return home. The amount received by her was $1.25, and a one dollar hat.

The accused stated that the girl had not started work until May 5th, denied making the agreement with the mother. The words he had used were that "We will make it as good as 65 cents per day."

The parents of the complainant in their evidence swore that their daughter had commenced working on April 28th, and had remained in the employ of the defendant until the morning of May 24th.

NO ACTION TAKEN IN CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES

Meeting of Legal Committee Held Yesterday Afternoon at Five O'clock.

The Legal Committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon at five o'clock and transacted the following business:—

Those present were Ald. Turner, chairman; Ald. Metheral and Duffus.

A letter was read from the city solicitor and one from the city engineer in regard to the claim of B. R. Poole. No action was taken.

A letter was read from the city solicitor and one from the city engineer regarding the claim of Mrs. Torpey in regard to injuries received on Concession street. No action was taken.

Moved by Ald. Metheral, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the clerk write the Peterborough Cereal Company and inform them that the city solicitor advises that the declaration required by by-law No. 1,126 must be fyled before the company can receive the benefits of the fixed assessment under the by-law.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by the chairman,—That, acting on the opinion of the city solicitor, no action be taken on the claim of A. H. Kennedy for injury received on Hunter street in the winter of 1908.

In amendment, that A. H. Kennedy be offered $50 in settlement without prejudice.—Lost.

A letter was read from O'Connell & Gordon, in reference to a contract with J. J. Turner & Sons for the decoration of the streets for May 24th.—Laid over.

PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS FOR THE NEW SMITH STREET BRIDGE WERE PASSED UPON

New plans and specifications have been prepared by City Engineer Hay, and passed upon by Engineer W. J. Francis, of Montreal, for the bridge across Smith street. These have been accepted by the Board of Works, and a by-law will be prepared and submitted to the Council on Monday night, and then presented to the ratepayers to vote upon.

A report was received on the Smith street bridge from City Engineer Hay enclosing the estimates as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Bridge, concrete, complete .. | $25,000 |
| Sidewalks for bridge, concrete | 6,500 |

This does not include land damages.

The bridge is for 18-ft. roadway with two sidewalks.

A report was received from Mr. W. J. Francis, C.E., of Montreal, on Mr. C. A. S. Hay's plans on the proposed new concrete bridge on Smith street. He strongly recommended the concrete bridge and highly commended Mr. Hay's plans. He spoke strongly in favor of a concrete bridge over the steel structures. The former are permanent, with practically no maintenance and also economical in first. The concrete work of to-day is far superior to that done years ago. A concrete bridge, such as Mr. Hay's plans call for, will be permanent and will never cause any further trouble.

As Mr. Francis is an engineer of considerable reputation, and whose ability is well known in this city, the Board of Works has decided to adopt the plans and submit the by-law to the ratepayers at as early a date as possible. The probability is that at the Council meeting on Monday night it will receive its first two readings and will then be placed before the people as soon as the law will allow.

It will be noticed that the new by-law will call for a lesser amount than the one voted on last January. This is because the bridge will be smaller. The roadway will be only 18 feet instead of 24 feet. It will, however, be just as strong and just as durable. It will be of solid concrete from the rock bottom to the railing along the sides, and will, therefore, be a handsome structure, and a credit to the city. In the construction of this bridge the committee will be particular to see that the contractor is a first-class concrete man himself, or that he employs a first-class man to superintend the concrete work.

The street extension by-law with the cost of filling in the water front will have to be prepared and passed on Monday night, so that it can be submitted to the ratepayers at the same time as the Smith Street Bridge By-law. This by-law asks for $21,500, and the city solicitor was authorized to prepare a by-law for the purpose, and have it ready for Monday night's meeting.

GYPSIES BROKE UP CAMP AND WITHDREW YESTERDAY

The gypsies, which have been the centre of so much curiosity, the cause of so much trouble and the source of so much anxiety, have left for parts unknown. Without any great ado they pulled up and withdrew yesterday afternoon. None of the citizens were on hand to wish them a safe return, for it goes without saying that their departure was much more desirable "from the citizens' standpoint" than their advent.

Picturesque and dirty, they proved an attraction for a day or two, but the people grew tired of them and fearful lest the southland visitors should appropriate things which they had no claim on.

For dates of future appearances see Clipper.

PUPILS OF ALLANDALE SCHOOL HONORED TEACHER

Presented Her With Sunburst of Pearls and an Address—Miss Might Will in Future Reside in the West.

At closing exercises of Allandale school on Tuesday, June 29th, the teacher, Miss M. C. Might, who is leaving for the West, was presented with a beautiful sunburst of pearls and the following address:

Dear Teacher,—It is with sad hearts that we, the pupils of Allandale school, gather to bid farewell to our teacher, and, feeling that your departure from our midst should not pass without giving you some slight token by which we will endeavor to show that your efforts to show us the path of knowledge has not been in vain, and that we appreciate the kindness and experience shown us in our many shortcomings, beg you to accept this present. During your stay with us we have all learned to love and esteem you highly, and we know that we are not only losing a teacher but also a faithful friend, to whom we have been accustomed to tell our little grievances with confidence. With these few words expressing regret we will say goodbye and wish you all prosperity in all your undertakings in the West.

Signed on behalf of the school,
EDITH ADAMSON,

BOARD OF WORKS DECIDES TO ATTEND TO CROSSINGS

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night the matter of fixing up the bad crossings was taken up.

On motion the chairman was given power with Albert Xeiegce, to take over the street watering contract for Ashburnham in place of George McClellan, who got the contract originally.

The sidewalk on Lansdowne street is in a very bad condition. The engineer recommended that the walk be torn up and cinders laid. It is impossible to lay a new walk as the people are all outside the street line and refuse to move back.

It was moved that the walk be torn up, and if possible, to secure cinders that a cinder path be laid, if not that nothing will be laid. This was carried.

Mr. A. H. Stratton asked for a wider approach to his property so that he can get his auto in and out. The engineer suggested that as a great many changes would be necessary around the city for auto owners that the city do the job if the property owners pay the whole cost.

BAD CROSSINGS.

Ald. Bradburn drew attention to the very bad construction of some of the crossings on Charlotte street. He said the crossings were a disgrace to the street and will rack every auto and rig that goes over them.

Ald. Duncan said that there should be a surface drain on Simcoe, Hunter, King and Charlotte streets, down to the river and have the roads fixed up right, as the money being spent now is only wasted.

Ald. Bradburn and Duncan moved that some action be taken at once to improve the crossings on Stewart, Rubidge and Perry streets on Charlotte streets.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Duncan that the sidewalk on Bethune street north of Smith street be built as soon as possible. This was seconded by Ald. Bradburn and carried.

BAND CONCERT AND THE RAIN

Despite the fact that the programme for the weekly band concert at Victoria Park last night was an exceedingly good one—it rained. During the early part of the evening the efforts of the rain man were only half hearted, but as the night advanced the drops came faster and heavier, and those who were so forgetful as to leave a window open last night were awakened no doubt to the realization that it was raining and also that a very cool and refreshing breeze was blowing.

That the rain was needed goes without saying, and the only regret should be that it didn't keep raining.

THE CHEMONG ATHLETES

The athletes from Chemong Indian village were especially successful in the different events in which they took part on Dominion Day. William Taylor, jr., won the single canoe race at the Lakefield sports, and Albert Smoke won the five-mile race.

The Chemong tug-of-war team defeted their opponents at the pull at the Hiawatha demonstration. George Henry Taylor, jr., and John D. Tobico won the double canoe race at Hiawatha, and Taylor also captured the single canoe event.

The picnic, which was to have been held at the village on July 1st, was cancelled, but several people from Ennismore and Smith called at the reserve, and an interesting impromptu programme of sports was run off.

CRICKET

A new bowling machine for the use of cricketers has been invented by Dr Venn, F.R.S., and his son, J. A. Venn, by which batting practice can be had. The delivery of the ball is described as being made possible by an iron arm moving from a joint in the base of the machine, the arm being worked by a spring, the tightening or loosening of which regulates the pace. "The twist of the ball," the description further states, is secured by a clutch at the top of the arm, which is a sort of cup facing the wicket. The Australians are unanimous in their praise of the new invention, and believe it will be largely adopted in the winter, when it could be put in a shed and a coconut matting used.

BASEBALL

Q.—There are three men on bases with two men out and a man at bat with three balls and one strike. The next ball pitched hits the batter, who makes no effort to get out of the way. Is he out or is he entitled to first base?

A.—He is entitled to first base on balls, if, in the opinion of the umpire, he made no effort to get out of the way of the ball. Otherwise he is entitled to the base on a dead ball.

Q.—Please define a fielder's choice.

A.—A fielder's choice is a play in which the fielder has a chance of retiring one runner, but instead makes an effort to retire another.

It rained in Toronto yesterday and the Leafs didn't lose. A double header will be played today.

Montreal took a fall out of Rochester yesterday by 2—1. The Bronchos got their only run on a passed ball.

PETERBORO'S OLDEST PRIEST PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING

Death of Rev. Father Lynch at His Residence—History of Life of Deceased Divine—Funeral on Tuesday Morning

The oldest Catholic priest in Peterborough, Rev. Father Lynch, died this morning at 11 o'clock at his residence at the corner of Rubidge and Charlotte streets. Father Lynch has not been enjoying very robust health lately, owing to feebleness, brought on by his advanced age, but was able to be around on Thursday last, and his death came as somewhat of a surprise to his friends.

The deceased priest was 82 years old, and was born in the county of Cavan, Ireland, in 1827. When quite young he came to Canada with his parents, and began his education at Fort Therese, Quebec, where he continued for four years. He then went to Ottawa and remained there until he had completed his academic and religious education. Shortly afterward he was ordained at Ottawa by Bishop Guigues, and received his first appointment at the Island of Allumettes, where he spent two years as curate to Rev. James Lynch. His first parish was at Kitley, Leeds county. He then went to Cornwall, where he stayed five years. His next parish was Peterborough, and he remained here until the arrival of Bishop Francis Jamot, D.D. He retired for a short time. During his fifteen years as parish priest of Peterborough he built Notre Dame Convent, now St. Joseph's, and two Separate schools. Father Lynch was in Lindsay one year, and in Port Hope sixteen years. He retired at Port Hope three years ago, and since his retirement has lived in Peterborough.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

THE BATTERY AGAIN MADE A RECORD MARCH FROM COBOURG

The 24th Battery would certainly be a great outfit to get after a runaway enemy, and, without implying that the battery would ever think of doing such a thing even under the most distressing circumstances, it could beat a retreat with equal effectiveness. The boys of the 24th have arrived home after two marches which were executed in record time. Camp broke up at 5.30 a.m. yesterday morning at Cobourg, and the march was made to Peterborough by way of Port Hope. Peterborough was reached at 5.40 o'clock. The route of march was a longer one than the one taken when the battery went to Cobourg two weeks ago, and the time was better. The battery was delighted with the outing at Cobourg, and were excellently received by everyone.

BELGIAN OFFICIALS TO INSPECT THE LIFT LOCK

This evening some public officials from Belgium will visit the city for the purpose of inspecting the lift-lock. They are on a tour of Canada and the United States for the purpose of inspecting the canals of the two countries.

The gentlemen in the party are:—Messrs. Hector Genard, Inspector General of Bridges and Highways; Leon Van Wetter, engineer of Bridges and Highways; Kraft De la Saulx, Chief Engineer of Buildings and Secretary of the Belgium Government, and John Cockerill, of Searing.

TRENT CANAL OPERATIONS

Work Has Been Commenced on Hastings Division

Hastings, July 3.—The first work on this section of the canal started a few days ago, when a gang of men started excavating for the water front just above the locks. A larger force of men will be put on soon and the river front for some distance up will be completely changed by a concrete and steel pier. All the boathouses along this locality will have to be moved away or torn down at once. The plans of procedure on the contract have been changed again, and instead of building the locks this year the contractors will go ahead and dredge above. The logs have been put in at the falls and the water will likely soon be back to summer level so that steamers will soon be able to go below.

PLEASE DON'T TAKE ME HOME

Visitor to Lindsay Prefers to Stay in That Place—Will Not Have to Pay Board Bill

William Norcutt, whose home is in Peterborough, made his bed on Victoria Park Wednesday evening. Perhaps he was dreaming of his home on the banks of the Otonabee for he made the night hideous with yells and catcalls, so much, indeed, that Night Constable Short arrested him. Yesterday morning Norcutt was fined $6.60 in police court. Funds being unavailable he took the optional days in jail. He said he will "agin hairvest."

Woman's World

A WOMAN JAILER.

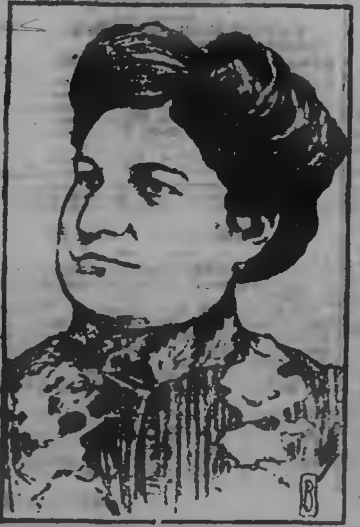
How She Manages the Male Prisoners of Aigle, Switzerland.

There is only one official woman jailer in the world. Her name is Jenny Porchet, and she lives in Switzerland. She is governor and warder of the prison of Aigle, in the Rhone valley. It came about in this way:

Thirty years ago Mme. Porchet married the chief warder of the prison and soon proved to be a helpmeet indeed, for, being a strongly built woman and with proper notions of discipline, she made as good a jailer as her husband and more than once did his work when he was ill or away.



MME. PORCHET.

So when he died the authorities asked her to take his place permanently, and she accepted.

All the year round the Aigle prison contains from twelve to twenty male prisoners, sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from three months to three years, and, although the woman jailer has no assistants, she has never had any trouble with the prisoners, except, indeed, on one occasion many years ago, when a burly ruffian attacked her.

Mme. Porchet taught him a lesson in good behavior that confined him in the hospital for several weeks.

Strict disciplinarian though she is, the woman jailer has the kindliest of hearts and takes great interest in her "guests," as she calls them. Many a prisoner has been set on the straight path again by her wise and kindly advice.

Do Not Feed Crackers.

The habit of giving baby something to chew, etc., between meals is not to be advocated, and crackers should be banished from the nursery. Far from being digestible, they are otherwise, for moistened by much saliva they go into the stomach in solid mass more or less poultice-like in effect and give the tiny organs hard work. When baby is old enough to have any such article of food, zweibach should be substituted for crackers.

Unless there is good reason for the change, a child, no matter what age, should be kept on the food on which it thrives. If the feeding varies from what the infant has been accustomed to the method should still be followed. For instance, if there is a child visiting the house its usual hours must be known and continued, and if it has been in the habit of getting its heavy meal at a time different from those at home effort should be made to let the individual regime continue. Otherwise the visitor is likely to become ill.

For example, a child of nine years who has been having her hearty meal at 6 o'clock went recently to visit some relatives who gave it to her in the middle of the day, with bread and milk at night. On coming home she told her mother that she had been hungry all the time at night and was unable to sleep, and she was really ill for three days afterward. It was entirely a result of changing hours of feeding.

A Quick Way.

No matter how much a woman may like to sew, she often gets very tired of the work, especially when there are just a few more stitches needed to complete an article. This is true of the busy mother who is always planning for the making of something else before the garment in hand is finished. By such a woman a helpful hint is appreciated.

For instance, when making a corset cover it takes time to cut and turn in the edges of material for a casing through which to run the ribbon necessarily used at the waist line of the article. A piece of strong tape of sufficient width will not have to be turned in, but merely to be sewed along each edge on the sewing machine and used as a casing.

An Ingenious Tuck.

The mother who groans over the destructiveness of her young son on the knees of his stockings should adopt the plan of one ingenious mother who has learned how to make stockings last twice as long.

In buying she selects stockings as long as they can be bought and before wearing runs a flat tuck about the ankle just below the shoe top, where it will not rub in walking.

When the knees of her son's stockings become hopelessly darned the tuck is ripped and the worn part raised so that it slips under the short trousers, while a whole knee takes its place.

ECZEMA A GERM DISEASE

Myriads of Microscopic Animals Infest the Skin of the Sufferer

When the skin of an eczema sufferer itches and burns in untold agony, do you know what is going on within the pores of that skin?

Myriads of microscopic animals are gnawing at the flesh, breaking down the fine cells, and causing festers, thick scale and that terrible itch. The germs multiply faster than Nature can throw them off.

Now, there is only one way to get rid of these germs—they must be killed in their lodging places. Dosing the stomach or trying to cure the blood will not, of course, kill the germs, and that is why all the blood remedies fail in eczema; that is also why salves which do not penetrate can do no permanent good.

Ordinary oil of wintergreen properly compounded in liquid form will penetrate the pores of the skin and kill the eczema germs. If properly mixed with thymol, glycerine and other ingredients—as in D.D.D. Prescription—this wash will build up the tissue of the skin and promote its healthy growth, giving Nature a chance, while killing the germs faster than they can multiply.

AT THE COLONY CLUB

Exhibition of Household Art of the Eighteenth Century.

NOVEL LUNCHEON SERVICE.

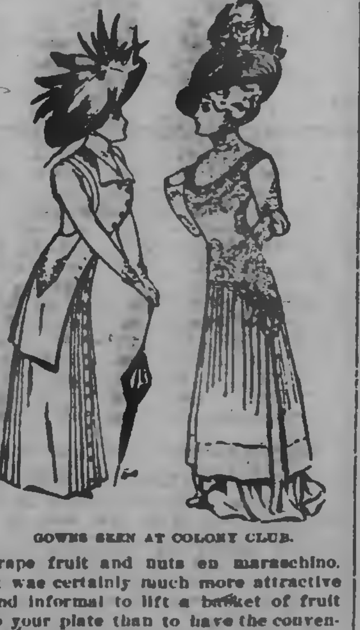
It's Smart to Pose as Intellectual Nowadays—A "Literary Morning," at Which Mme. Recamier Is the Lecturer's Theme—George Sand.

My Dear Elsa—Have you forgotten, dear, that in my last letter I promised to tell you about my visit to the Colony club? Well, just as I was putting the finishing touches to my stunningest street suit, a gray green broadcloth, and had gone through the agony of adjusting my black picture hat—the thing's so toppy on one side that the minute you have it at a fetching angle it tilts in the most rowdyish fashion over the left ear, but you are acquainted with hat vagaries—Elizabeth X. chug-chugged up in her motor car, and we whizzed down Madison avenue to the club. There is not the slightest use telling you that the Colony is one of the smartest women's clubs in the country and that it is housed in a charmingly quaint colonial building, as homelike and unclubby as possible. You know all this, and, too, that Miss Elsie de Wolfe, ex-society woman, ex-actress and present professional interior decorator, did the furnishings and that she spent a year abroad getting just the right things for the place. The effect is as restful and artistic as one could want. The coloring is mostly in moss greens, and there are an elegant simplicity and a "hominess" that most clubs lack.

It seems that before we were to see the exhibition of household arts of the eighteenth century, a loan collection that it would be difficult to duplicate outside of a museum, we were to have luncheon. Quite a party of us sat down to table—the sympathetic six, as Dick calls our bunch. Everything was beautiful, and I must tell you how the grape fruit was served. In the center of the table was a wide branched little orange tree, really growing in a pot, that bore on its branches baskets made of oranges filled with diced grape fruit and nuts en maraschino. It was certainly much more attractive and informal to lift a basket of fruit to your plate than to have the conventional grape fruit or its equivalent plumped solidly before you, don't you think? It was also a lesson in the effectiveness of an offering from nature, so to speak, which you could easily copy when you serve any other kind of fruit or for a sherbet course. At this same luncheon smelts were served at the base of a white coral branch that was gracefully spreading in shape and ornamented by tiny Japanese make believe fish and shellfish, and the tartare sauce appeared in a silver fish sauce boat.



GOWNS SEEN AT COLONY CLUB.

But how material of me to talk of things epicurean when there was such an artistic feast as well. Still, I must just whisper that Ethel Barrymore was dining with a smart out of town member at the table next to ours. I had seen her the night before as Lady Frederick—she is on tour now, so possibly she has come to your town—and then the rumors of her marriage to young Colt had just been announced. Of course you have heard that her fiance at the beginning of the theatrical season bought a seat in the orchestra and when it was possible he ran up from Boston and occupied it while Miss Barrymore was playing here in New York and that at the end of each performance the sprightly Ethel ran to her dressing room to capture the bouquet and nets that were nightly to be found hidden in the flowers. Romantic, wasn't it? And they say that sentiment is dead. Well, if it is, it cost Miss Barrymore, so says Dame Rumor, $40 a month in phone calls to ring up Mr. Colt.

As I have said, it was a lone exhibition of French eighteenth century art that the members of the Colony club were showing to their friends, and Mrs. J. P. Morgan, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the Hewitts, Huntingtons, Maynards and Alexanders and many other New York millionaires had sent all their treasures of this period in French art. The arrangement of the room in which these objects were placed was designed to give the impression of an interior of the period, comprising not only the statelier appointments of a formal apartment, but reflecting also the intimate occupations and amusements of the ladies of the court.

At one end of the room was an inclosure suggesting a boudoir with toilet table, embroidery frame, sewing table, reading lamp and even a minute dog house, silver on the outside, with the little "papillon" dog in effigy. In the center of the room was a table laid as for a banquet, and along the sides of the wall were historic and priceless Boulle cabinets, and I was so glad I knew that Boulle was cabinetmaker to Louis XIV., and when Elizabeth in that very English way of hers kept saying "Wonderful, how wonderful it all is!" it was delicious to be able to tuck in a word or two about the Marquise de Rambouillet, who made a real home after our modern ideas of her hotel in Paris in the sixteenth century from what had been a gloomy, prison-like palace. It was from this marquise that Parisians learned to put the staircase on one side so as to have a fine suit of rooms, to raise the floors and to make the doors and windows high and large and to place them opposite each other. She—the marquise—was also the first person who thought of painting a room some other color than red or brown. Indeed, polite Paris copied the form of the Marquise de Rambouillet's dwelling long before the contemporary noble was capable of imitating the urbanity and the literary cultivation of the marquise's salon. Doesn't this sound tremendously learned? Among the Colony collection was an armchair belonging to Louis XIV. that everybody was raving over. The tapestry covering was exquisite, to be sure, but I really think the silver foot warmer that stood before the chair made the biggest hit. A pretty girl standing near me flippantly likened the funny heating apparatus to a patent carpet sweeper minus the handle. The Savonnerie carpet on which the chair stood was, to my mind, one of the handsomest things in the collection. This textile, which once graced the Louvre and is now the property of Mr. J. P. Morgan, is in faded blue and wood tones. The central design is formed of the tripod, the rising sun and the crown.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay, beautifully gowned in her favorite shade of mauve, made quite a picture herself in a mediaeval gown while standing in front of some gobelin tapestry lent by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. And I overheard Mrs. Mackay say to a friend with her as I passed, "My dear, she has an entire room hung with this priceless tapestry." Having disposed of the gobelins, these ladies immediately began to discuss some woman who was a rabid anti, much to the disgust of the president of the Equal Franchise league. Indeed, one caught stray fragments of talk every now and then on the suffragette subject. But every one knows that to the majority of women the ballot question is merely a fashionable fad of the moment.

But we are so uncomfortably intellectual these days, and it is no longer possible to jog along and enjoy in one's own way one's favorite authors. No; such luxury is not ours! We must be "up" on modish literature no matter whether we like the variety or not.

Last week I went to a "conference" at Mrs. Van W.'s. The talk was about the great women of the past, and Mme. Recamier had the center of the stage, so to speak. Strange as it may seem, women known for their beauty have the preference over their plainer sisters at these seances. Interesting as are Mme. de Stael and George Sand, they will have to wait until the beauty talk has run its course before their cleverness will be served up as a literary souffle.

At this "literary morning" the lecturer did tell an amusing anecdote about George Sand which possibly you have not heard. You know, as a rule George Sand was particularly polite, but she could, if she liked, be particularly unpleasant and rude, as Mme. de G. discovered to her cost. Mme. de G. had kept, it seems, George Sand to dinner one evening, assuring her she would meet only two or three intimate friends. Instead of this number, thirty persons sat down to the banquet, and George Sand felt she was being exhibited as a celebrity. Everybody looked at her and waited for the words to drop from the famous novelist's lips, but the lady remained mute as a fish. Half an hour elapsed, and the guests looked at each other dumfounded. After a huge salad bowl was placed in front of Bouchard, one of the guests celebrated for his skill in dressing salad, he started operations. Perhaps it was the pepper that tickled him; but, whatever the cause, he suddenly sneezed right into the bowl. There was a moment's silence. Bouchard turned very red. Suddenly George Sand looked at him and said, "Pig!" It was the only word she spoke that night. And I am sure you are hoping that my last word has been spoken this night. So be it. Ever most sincerely yours,

New York. MABEL.

Several of the crew of the Government steamer, Lady Laurier, were injured by the exploding of a carbide buoy off Yarmouth, N.S.

How Cheese Is Made.

Edam cheese comes from Holland, but before being placed on American markets it undergoes lots of ceremony on its native soil.

The cheese goes to the Holland market by canal and is stacked in piles on the cobblestones.

When the porter in a high red hat rings the bell buyers come armed with long thin "tasters" and go from pile to pile, inserting the testers and tasting the curd.

The fancy cheeses with mottled blue veins are made in northern Italy from goats' milk and are ripened in caves and cellars. The blue is caused by probing the cheese with copper wires, after which the crust is plastered with a coating of terra cotta to keep in the moisture on the cheese.

Roquefort is made in the south of France from pure sheep's milk, and in some way known only to the makers breadcrumbs are worked into the curd. This causes the blue mold which forms while the cheeses are being matured in limestone caverns.

The Marquis of Lansdowne is said to have sold a Rembrandt to Dr. Bode, of Berlin, for a half million dollars.

BLACKBEARD.

The Tragic End of the Bloodthirsty English Pirate.

All the world has heard of "Blackbeard," the English sailor who, after having been a highly respected officer in his majesty's navy, turned pirate and raised the black flag against everything afloat.

This notorious sea robber, whose real name was Teach, I believe, took his pseudonym from the fact that he wore a very heavy black beard, which he was in the habit of doing up in two large braids and tying them up behind his ears. He was a man of gigantic proportions and of surpassing strength. His heart was as cruel as that of a tiger. Every now and then, when there was nothing else in sight, he would shoot one or two of his own men—just to keep his practice up!

In the early years of the eighteenth century Blackbeard patrolled the waters of Europe, but it finally became too hot for him there, and he struck out for the coasts of North America. How well he plied his trade in the new field is evidenced by the fact that from Nova Scotia to Florida he succeeded in making his name a mortal terror.

In a captured ship of forty guns he entered Charleston harbor and held the town up for a large ransom. From Charleston he passed into the waters of North Carolina, plundering and slaying right and left, and in their distress the "Tar Heels," being able to get no aid from their own governor, Eden, appealed to Governor Spotswood of Virginia to relieve them of the terrible pirate, who was making their lives a living hell.

Spotswood did not listen to the appeal in vain. Looking about for some one to put a quietus upon Blackbeard he found the person he wanted in one Robert Maynard, a young officer on his majesty's ship Pearl, which happened to be lying at the time in Chesapeake bay.

Manning a couple of small craft with some sixty resolute men, Maynard set out early in November, 1718, in search of Blackbeard, and on the 21st of the same month found him at Ocracoke inlet, North Carolina. Blackbeard did not know what fear was, young Maynard was as full of fight as a hungry wildcat, and the ball opened at once. The dancing was to the tune of "No Quarter!" For over three hours Maynard and his sixty men fought the pirate and his fifty associates.

Blackbeard sprang to the rail of his ship and seizing a bottle of whisky, drank from it and shouted, "Damnation seize my soul if I give you any quarter or take any from you!" "I neither ask for nor will I give you any quarter," roared back Maynard.

In the shallow waters of the Carolina sound the pirate's ship grounded, and Maynard made for her, intending to board her in the final death grapple, but as the two vessels came together Blackbeard anticipated his intended movement and jumped aboard of him with sixteen of his followers. Maynard had but thirteen men left by this time, but with these he tackled the sixteen pirates and their desperate leader.

Crossing swords with Blackbeard, Maynard succeeded in dealing him a death thrust in the throat, and in the meantime his men had killed or wounded all of Blackbeard's followers.

With the sea robber's head swinging by its long black hair from the bowsprit of his little craft Maynard sailed back to Virginia to receive the congratulations of the governor and the loving thanks of all dwellers along the American seaboard.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

CHURCH UNION

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—As you have on several occasions very courteously permitted me to express my views on certain important questions in your columns, I venture again to beg space in your journal to offer some remarks on the above subject, which I will endeavor to make as brief as possible. Both Anglicans and non-Anglicans have expressed an earnest desire for the corporate union of the chief Reformed Communities, but so far as the Anglican church is concerned the great difficulty is the historic episcopate. I propose, therefore, to argue out the whole matter according to the precept of Scripture: "To the law and to the testimony, if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in them." We read then in the New Testament that our Lord, after His resurrection "appeared to 500 brethren at once," (1 Cor. 15, v 6), but He did not say to them "Go teach all nations," "Baptize," "Do this in remembrance of Me." This ministerial commission He gave to the Apostles whom He had chosen and trained for the work of the ministry, and in so doing authorized and enjoined them to transmit that authority from generation to generation to the end of time, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Lo I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. As the apostles, but did not in their own persons go into all the world, passed away to their rest and their reward, the only true exposition of these words must be, that the Apostolic office was to be continued and handed on to others. Just before our Lord's ascension He spake to His apostles "of things pertaining to the kingdom of God," Acts I, v. 3., and promised them the special guidance of the Holy Spirit in organising the Christian church. "He shall teach you all things and bring all things to your remembrance, Whatsoever I have said unto you," St. John 14, v. 26. That this Apostolic commission was not to be confined to the original twelve is manifest from the fact, that Paul was "called to be an apostle," Rom. i.v.i., by special vision and inspiration. And we read of the Apostles, Barnabas and Paul, Acts 14, 14. Acting then under Divine instruction and guidance when many converts were made and congregations formed, these Apostles, Paul and Barnabas, ordained pastor to take charge of them called originally bishop or elders, Acts 14, v. 23. On visiting these pastors sometimes after their ordination, St. Paul reminded them that the "Holy Ghost had made them overseers of the flock to feed the Church of God," nothing being said to them relative to ordaining other ministers. And this ordination was conferred by the laying on of hands with prayer, 1. Timothy 4, 14.

In the pastoral Epistles to Timothy and Titus no intimation whatever is given that the ordination of ministers was to be committed to committees of Presbyteries or laymen, but, on the contrary, all admonitions and instructions concerning the ordination of ministers and the government of the church are addressed to single rulers to Timothy presiding over the Church of Ephesus and Titus over the church in Crete. The pastoral epistles mention also deacons as probationers "Men that have used the office of a deacon well purchase to themselves a good degree." I. Tim. 3:13. And this is just what the preface to the ordination of the Church of England service asserts. It is evident unto all men diligently reading Holy Scripture and ancient authors, that from the Apostles' time there have been three orders of ministers in Christ's church, bishops, priests and deacons. And in no other way can we distinguish these three orders in the New Testament than by recognizing the Apostles as the first order, claiming and exercising the sole right to "ordain elders in every city." Bishops or elders the pastors of local congregations, the second order; and deacon as the third order. These three orders, it is as-has returned
serted, have been continued from the Apostles' time until the reformation, and these still continued in the Anglican church, and no man is accounted a lawful bishop, Presbytery or deacon, or supposed to officiate in any Anglican church, unless he has episcopal ordination. And where a discrimination is made utterly irreconcilable with the notion that the church does not hold and teach that episcopal ordination is necessary to the "esse" of the church. A Roman Catholic priest, having received Episcopal ordination and desiring to conform to the Anglican church is recognized at once as a lawful minister, but a nonconformist minister desiring to do so is received simply as a layman, and no notice is taken of his having given full proof of his ministry in respect of scholarship, eloquence, amiability of disposition or apparent material success in his ministry. Much misunderstanding is caused by confounding Episcopal ordination with Episcopal government. In the ordination services great stress is laid upon the one and very little mention is made of the other. In the ordination of a deacon no mention is made of a spiritual gift, it is simply Take thou authority to execute the office of a deacon in the church of God. In the ordination of priests there is such a mention. "Receive ye the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a priest in the Church of God," but there is no allusion to the ordination for the consecration of a bishop, there is a like reference "Stir up the grace that is given thee by this imposition of our hands." There we have an application of St. Paul's words to Timothy, 2 Tim. 1, 6. What is the "Grace" or gift that the Anglican bishop professes to give "by the imposition of our hands." The bishop elect has all the required natural gifts, what is this grace then over and above, and Divine guidance pledged to transmit the ministerial commission to faithful men, 2 Tim. 2, 2., to feed the Church of God with the spiritual food of the Word and Sacraments; and as there may be occasion to hand on the full Apostolic commission to bishops who should faithfully and wisely make choice of fit persons to serve in the sacred ministry of God's Church, as it is expressed in the Ember Collect, interpreting the words of St. Paul to Timothy: "Lay hands suddenly on no man."—(1 Tim. 5, 5 v. 22.)

The practice of the Anglican Church since the Reformation has always been consistent with this theory of the Christian ministry set forth in the formularies. On the accession of Queen Elizabeth the rulers in Church and State showed a care and anxiety to obtain the true episcopal consecration for Dr. Parker altogether inconsistent with the notion that Episcopacy is not necessary to the "esse" of the Church. Political expediency alone would have inclined them to have made common cause with the continental Protestants, who were all Protestants. At the American Revolution the Anglican Church in the States was without bishops, and it was thought so important they they should have bishops consecrated to their high office by those who had the authority transmitted to them by Christ and His apostles to impart "the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a bishop," that the elected candidates took what was in those days of stage coaches and sailing vessels a long, hazardous and expensive journey, to be consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

My letter has assumed a greater length than I intended, but I could not do justice to my subject within narrower limits. In all things we have to consider first of all what is the will of God concerning us, as revealed in Holy Scripture, whether in reference to the Church at large, or to individuals and that must be followed regardless of all consequences and we have seen what, in the judgment of the Anglican Church, as the will of God and the ordinance of Christ with respect to the Christian ministry, and all loyal members of the Church of England will accept that testimony and act accordingly. What the Anglican Church teaches concerning the two Sacraments is equally true in respect of the Apostolic ministry. They are "generally necessary to salvation," which is explained to mean "necessary where they may be had." It is not denied that where the outward ceremony of baptism is wanting, either from ignorance or lack of opportunity that the inward grace may be received without the outward sign. And so with Episcopal ordination. In both cases we have before us, the will of God and the ordinance of Christ, and this cannot be lightly esteemed or ignored without sin.

Yours faithfully,
E. SOWARD.

GERMAN JUDGE SAYS THAT AMERICA IS THE REAL PERIL

Discussing Anglo-German Rivalry, a Prominent Member of Reichstag Declares That Europe Should Unite Against the States.

Berlin, July 4.—Judge Wilhelm Schwarze, a prominent member of the Reichstag and of the Prussian House of Represenatives, seizes upon America's eleventh-hour use of moral force to secure participation in the Chinese railway loan as a pretext for a fresh and vigorous warning against "the American peril."

Writing in Der Tag, under the caption, "Europe for Europeans," the learned judge urges that England and Germany abandon their mutual suspicions, trade competitions, and naval rivalries, and league themselves without further delay against their common enemy from across the water.

"America," declares the jurist and politician, "is the peril not only for England and Germany, but for all Europe. Instead of arriving at common ways and means for combating the still latent danger, England and Germany are preparing to tear each other to pieces. In order to make the danger acute, Greater Britain and Greater Germany would go to smash on account of the United States.

"Europe should realize this in time to preserve what is still to be preserved. The yellow peril is altogether secondary. Our Imperial cousin in America is the greater danger. The dollar is the bigger. It will annihilate the shilling and the mark unless Europe sets up its own Monroe doctrine of Europe for Europeans. This doctrine must eventually take the form of an economic alliance of all Europe, including England, otherwise America will be the conquerer in the world battle and will exhaust Europe. The cause of this war would be the supremacy of the sea and the world markets. No matter who won, America would be the eventual and the supreme gainer.

"It is high time to explode the fiction that England and Germany are the chief rivals for world trade dominion, and that whoever is defeated the other would attain to it. The competitors are not England and Germany. America is not only he competitor of England and Germany alone, but of both of them together.

"Let us not be deceived by the fact that the American merchant marine at present is no match for the English and German mercantile fleets. That is a circumstance due, not to the inability of America to have such a fleet, but simply because it has hitherto not wanted one. That America will get such a fleet when it needs it is deducible from its imperialistic development in recent times.

"It must also be plain that American designs on Canada would be hastened by an Anglo-Germany war. If England and Germany fight they will fly at each other's throats for the benefit of America. America will be the laughing heir of both. That this will without doubt be the case is indicated by the brutal procedure of Aldrich and Payne in connection with the new tariff bill and by the forward policy of Secretary Knox in China.

"It is of the most vital necessity that the economic factors of Europe unite against pan-Americanism before it is too late."

RESIGNATION OF ROSEBERY IS RUMOURED

New York, July 3.—The Herald's London correspondent cables: Lord Rosebery has at last, I hear, decided to break the ties that still bind him to the Liberal party, and he will pronounce his reasons for doing so in a letter which is to be read at the next meeting of the Liberal League.

This will mean his complete and formal severance from the party with which he has been associated throughout his political career. He has had this step in consideration for some time and he came to the decision before his recently issued manifesto on the budget, which was intended to be the first hint of his approaching defection.

Strenuous efforts are being made to make him change his mind and induce him to still keep up an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward the old party.

GOVERNOR BULYEA HAD AN ADVENTURE

Edmonton, July 5.—Lieut.-Governor Bulyea, Hon. Charles Murphy, and Dr. McIntyre, M.P., figured in a mix-up which might have been serious, but for the horsemanship and pluck of the Lieutenant-Governor. His honor was driving the Secretary of State and Dr. McIntyre about the grounds, when a plank, run over by one wheel, upended, rasing one side of the carriage and throwing the Lieutenant-Governor to the ground. He pluckily clung to the reins, and brought the spirited team to a standstill after being dragged some distance.

Make Haste Slowly.

London, July 5.—Heartily as the proposals for state-owned cables or wireless telegraphs across the Atlantic are supported, The Economist does not imagine that there is much likelihood of the British Government attempting, for some time, at any rate, any further experiments, commercial or telegraphic. Its past experience has not been altogether profitable, and it would be fair to neither taxpayer nor shareholder to start on any hasty, unconsidered scheme of inter-Imperial cables.

PROBABILITIES.

Fine to-day unsettled and local showers by Tuesday night.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Rev. Michael Lynch died at Peterboro', aged 82.

Fourth of July carnage in the United States were heavy.

C. W. Hayes, an employe of the T. Eaton Company, was drowned at Winnipeg.

Edward Rourke dropped dead at London, Ont., while painting at one of the fire halls.

The projected railway from Winnipeg to the Gulf of Mexico has been abandoned owing to lack of money.

In the heart of Detroit a woman aeronaut lodged on a mass of live wires and had her body terribly scorched.

A British sea captain from Nova Scotia was interviewed by the police at Stamford, Conn., and forced to haul down his flag.

Bill Brown, a former employe of Buffalo Bill's show, stole a horse at St. Thomas and drove furiously to Aylmer. He was pursued by officers in an automobile and captured.

DROWNED HERSELF IN THE CISTERN

London, July 5.—While in a despondent state, as the result of an illness extending over six months, Miss Jennie Guest, 484 Queen's avenue, committed suicide yesterday morning by drowning herself in a cistern in the rear of the Guest residence.

Early in the morning her sister heard her moving about in her room, and asked if she would like company. She answered that she wished to be alone. At 7 o'clock the sister awoke and found that Jennie was missing. Dressing hurriedly she aroused neighbors and a search was made. The body of the unfortunate girl was found in the cistern, which was filled as a result of recent rains.

POLICE AFTER AN INHUMAN FATHER

London, Ont., July 5.—The police are looking for George Hriskos on the charge of inhumanly treating his 13-year-old daughter. Hriskos left the city suddenly Saturday night, it is believed for Hamilton or Toronto, and took the child with him. He is said to have pulled her hair out in handfuls and to have beaten and kicked her unmercifully. He took the girl away from her mother in Greece against her will and against the wishes of the mother. The police are making every effort to locate him, and if caught he will be most severely dealt with.

A SETTLER IS MURDERED

Winnipeg, Man., July 5.—A cold-blooded murder was committed at Margo, Sask., 23 miles from Wadena and near Invermay.

Alf. D. Fraser, a settler, was plowing in his field Thursday morning when he was shot dead from behind.

The Mounted Police organized a posse and started a search, coming upon S. Hainer, carrying a loaded rifle. He pulled it on the police and retreated to his house. He fought off the posse all night, but his capture was finally effected Saturday when the party surrounded his place.

Leper in Baggage Car.

Washington, July 5.—John R. Early, the alleged leper, who has been quarantined in a camp near this city since last August and whose case has attracted widespread interest because of the sharp controversies into which noted specialists have been drawn over the nature of his ailment, left Washington at 10.45 o'clock last night, locked in a baggage car attached to the regular Pennsylvania railroad train. Early will enter the skin and cancer hospital of New York for treatment

WEEDS SHOULD NOT BE SPARED

Several Spots in the City Tha Should be Attended to

Some one should get out and swing a scythe for a few hours on some lots in the city where burdocks and other weeds are growing in abundance. Ashburnham has several spots that need attention in this respect and Edinborough street near George has also a choice collection of verdant "plants." They are unsightly and it will be worse next year if the weeds are allowed to go to seed. Many citizens are complaining about existing conditions.

AAlice Day, a little Winnipeg girl, on her way to see a circus parade, was run over by a street car.

DEAD BANDIT IS IDENTIFIED

Vancouver, July 5.—The [illegible] and fireman of the C.P.R. train which was held up two weeks ago at Ducks, B. C., have identified the body of the man shot by Constable Decker on Monday night at Ashcroft as that of the leader of the train robbers.

The dead man is one who held up the engineer after crawling over the tender. It is admitted that Constable Decker's murderer, the second train robber, must have escaped from that part of the country. Tired posses have returned to Ashcroft and Kamloops after several days of fruitless search.

Lady Grey Has Scarlet Fever.

Ottawa, July 5.—Her Excellency Lady Grey and Captain Newton, A.D.C., are ill with scarlet fever at Government House.

Both patients are making favorable progress.

The disease was contracted during Lady Grey's visit to Toronto attending the International Women's Council, on which she was accompanied by Capt. Newton.

It developed on the return journey on Thursday.

Looks Good for Canada.

London, July 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Financier says that after the speeches of Earl Grey, Lord Strathcona, Hon. Mr. Fielding, Hon. Mr. Oliver and R. L. Borden on Dominion Day, the British investor can entertain no doubt about the Dominion's brilliant future. Surveying the list of Canadian visitors, it thinks Canada is likely to boom in 1909 as never before.

COLLIDED IN A FOG

British Steamer is Run Down by French Liner Near Dover.

Dover, Eng., July 5.—The British steamer Whakatane, running to New Zealand, was towed here yesterday in a sinking condition and beached. The Whakatane was in collision off Dungeness in a fog with the French steamer Circe. The latter was damaged, but was able to proceed on her voyage to Rotterdam. No lives were lost.

The Whakatane had 300 persons aboard. She also carried a large number of valuable horses.

It was an exceedingly narrow escape from a terrible disaster. Immediately after the vessels struck, the Circe, with the help of another steamer, took the Whakatane in tow, but the hawsers broke. The Circe then steamed to Dover for assistance.

Several tugs put out and proceeded at top speed to the sinking steamer. When the liner arrived here she presented an extraordinary appearance, with her stern lying deep in the water. All the crew were mustered forward. Six salvage tugs and other vessels were lending assistance in the difficult operation of towing the sinking steamer to the beach.

The Circe had crashed into her amidships, making a great rent in her side.

SUFFERERS FROM COBALT FIRE WELL LOOKED AFTER

Authorities Report That no More Supplies Will be Needed for the Homeless With Exception of Mattresses—Tents Springing Up.

Cobalt, July 5.—The town was crowded yesterday with sightseers from the three other cities of silverdom, crowding into the silver hub to view the fire ruins.

Tents are springing up all over the ruins and enterprising Syrians would have already started building on a more pretentious scale if the Nipissing Company had not forbidden it until the ground has been properly laid out. Lots will be surveyed to get a proper alignment of the streets and town will probably impose building restrictions which will prevent further construction of the matchbox order.

The street through the Nipissing property will be widened by ten feet. The Nipissing were never desirous of allowing a town to grow up on their land, but they could not prevent the natural trend of growth towards the north. Now it is probable they will take advantage of the opportunity and do a considerable amount of exploration work, and in any case building will be delayed for some time.

Hundreds are going out of town and there is a land boom at North Cobalt and all places within a reasonable distance of Cobalt.

In the meantime the homeless people are sleeping in tents which have been laid out in military lines by Capt. Leckie and Major Holland.

The only lack is of experienced workers to raise the tents, as supplies from Toronto and the Militia Department are ample.

No more food is needed or supplies with the exception of mattresses. The city is now feeding and housing about 1,500 people in the tented city and the various public buildings of the town.

There is a good humor and resignation everywhere and the people have shown astonishing self-reliance.

The total loss is placed at $300,000, with about $40,000 insurance.

Subscriptions to the relief funds include $1,000 from Coleman Township, $250 from the Salvation Army, Toronto; $250 from the Nipissing Central Railway; Geo. McKay, $100; P. J. Finlan, $100; and many other subscriptions from $1 to $25.

Bush fires on both sides of the Montreal River on Thursday afternoon destroyed four houses and three shacks at Elk Lake. No insurance. Estimated loss $3,000. The principal losers are Alex. Perault, G. Phelps and W. Wilson.

PRIZE LISTS FOR THE 1909 FAIR HAVE BEEN PRINTED

Prospective Exhibitors Should Secure a Copy from the Secretary, Mr. F. J. A. Hall—Better and More Prizes Than in Any Former Year.

The prize lists for the 1909 Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are now ready for distribution and every one who has intentions of being an exhibitor should have a copy. And right here it may be said that the prizes for this year's fair are larger and more numerous than ever before. More money has been provided for premiums in practically every class and those fortunate enough to win prizes will be well repaid for exhibiting. The special prizes are also many and valuable and alone should prove a strong attraction to exhibitors. The 1909 prize list contains over seventy pages and was issued from the Review job department. Copies can be secured from the secretary of the exhibition, Mr. F. J. A. Hall, and every prospective exhibitor should send or call for one.

This year's exhibition is being held on September 16th, 17th and 18th, and it promises to be better than any previously held.

REFRIGERATOR THIEVES ARE AT WORK IN THE CITY

Refrigerator thieves are at work in the city and the public is warned to keep the "ice boxes" locked and save expense. A citizen on Park street, near Hunter street, who keeps his refrigerator on the verandah, has had it broken into and robbed three times. The thieves paid their latest call last night and got away with a considerble quantity of produce. Another gentleman who lives in the same vicinity had his refrigerator robbbed a few nights ago.

The moral is to keep the refrigerator locked.

THE COAL MINERS WILL GO ON STRIKE TO-MORROW

Special to the Review.

Halifax, N.S., July 5.—The long-threatened strike of United Mine Workers in the employ of the Dominion Coal Company has been ordered at last. It will commence to-morrow, and 7,000 men will be involved. The Dominion Coal Company failed to respond to the request of the U.M.W. to send a representative to a conference to discuss the question at issue, and the calling of the strike is the result. The Dominion Coal Company declares it is determined not to recognize the U.M.W. in any way.

DYNAMITED ERIE RAILWAY TRACK

Mount Morris, N.Y., July 5.—Some one dynamited the Erie tracks in three different places at Dalton, a village about a mile south of Nunda Saturday morning at an early hour either in a "Fourth of July" spirit or for the purpose of wrecking the fast train which passed through Dalton west-bound at about 5.30 a.m.

Three charges of the explosive were placed only a few rods apart just west and east of the depot.

The fast train for Buffalo was the last to pass over the dynamited track and while it passed over it without wrecking the cars or injuring any of the passengers, three large pieces of rail were broken entirely out and the track was torn up. The missing rail was discovered by the crew of the extra train going east soon after.

NEW TRiAL FOR THE NIGHT RIDERS

Jackson, Tenn., July 5.—Justice Craft of Memphis, Tenn., has overruled the conviction of the eight night riders, six of whom were sentenced to death for murder, and granted a new trial. He holds that the grand jury which found the indictments was not selected in a proper manner and that the state did not allow the defendants a sufficient number of challenges.

That it will be very difficult to secure a jury to again hear the cases is conceded.

STRIKE OF DOMINION COAL MINERS IS NOW CERTAIN

General Manager Duggan Refuses to Meet the Men in a Last Attempt to Settle the Trouble—Special Police are Sworn in.

Halifax, July 5.—A strike of the miners affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America and employed by the Dominion Coal Co. is expected on Tuesday.

General Manager Duggan has refused positively to confer with a commitee representing the union.

The trouble is due to a quarrel between the U.M.W. with headquarters in the United States, and the P.W.A., a local organization.

Meanwhile, the Dominion Coal Co. have sworn in about 250 special police, have erected stout fences and have electric wired the barricades.

In a statement last night Mr. Duggan denied the assertion that the fences had been filled with live wires for the express purpose of keeping striking workmen from committing possible damage to property. The wires, he said, were fitted with electric bulbs for giving better lighting facilities. The wires were eight feet from the ground and were out of all danger — unless some person should endeavor to trespass on the property.

To-day he will issue a proclamation stating that as the company now has an agreement with its workmen through the P.W.A. to continue rates and conditions of employment until Dec. 31, 1909, it will continue to mine and ship coal with the aid of P.W.A. men, who are loyal to their undertaking. The company agrees to extend all protection in their power to the persons and families of men who continue to work, and give notice that any man who does not report for work Tuesday morning is liable to be regarded as a striker.

The company have erected a large number of houses inside the colliery fences for workmen who may wish to occupy these until the strike is over.

It is expected that to-night the full force of 600 special police enrolled by the municipality will be on duty.

The Dominion Coal Co. officials do not look for a long drawn out strike, and it is the general opinion that the trouble will be all over inside of a couple of weeks.

The company is in communication with coal corporations in England, Scotland and Wales, any of which will, on receipt of a cable, send all the men asked for to Cape Breton.

This medium, however, will not be availed of only as a last resort, as the company are anxious to employ home labor exclusively if possible. The coal company are at present paying the best wages of any firm in Canada, under their long term contract with the P.W.A., and they intend to fulfil their obligations in this respect.

Practically all the summer contracts have been filled and between 100,000 and 160,000 tons of coal are banked.

Two thousand tents have arrived at Glace Bay for the U.M.W., and it is understood these will be erected near the collieries, in which the pickets and the scouts of the strikers may live, so as to be in close proximity to the strike.

It has been reported about Glace Bay that the different railroad comporations in the colliery districts will go out on strike in sympathy with the U.M.W. There is said to be not the slightest foundation for such a rumor, as the railroad men, under their constitution, cannot interfere in any labor dispute outside of their own organization.

THE MONTREAL STAR AND THE "SAW-OFF"

The editorial republished in our issue of Saturday of the Montreal Star, headed "The Saw-off Once More" shows very clearly, as that journal observes, how the saw-off aims a fatal blow at the basis of all our civilization. That the leaders of parties can shut their eyes to it is obviously a compromise with conscience and with those of their following who insist on practising that form of child's play. MR. BORDEN HAS EXPRESSED HIMSELF AS UTTERLY OPPOSED TO ALL FORMS OF SAW-OFF. His position, if he is asked, will be found to be unequivocal in that regard. This we know. But a leader feels that he is not the whole party and that it is quite impossible for him to court-martial those of his followers who violate his wishes in this respect. The demand, however, is general that he shall make it a sine qua non of his leadership, as in the case of any other form of chicanery, that saw-offs shall cease. Every journal that we have seen regards saw-offs as one of the sources of graft. The "people" are being made puppets of by them. The same duty rests upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier as upon Mr. Borden, and so long as he continues to take and make use of the benefit to be derived from crookedness, who can truly say that he is above reproach? The next issue, at least the next immediate issue, in Canada, will be the making of saw-offs illegal. When with other primitive forms of crookedness they will betake themselves to the limbo of shady things and shady people. Even the extreme case where a man may lose on a technicality and then lose his seat in a bye-election is in point and open to objection for the reason that if he should have continued to sit as member against the will of the constituency he is a poor tool and devoid of the pride of those who fight that they may honourably conquer. But in the case of those who saw-off through "fear" what can be said? What is that "fear?" It is the fear of the court, the fear of the cell, the fear of the heavy fine, the fear of exposure, and the fear of the utter ruin of all connected. "The people" will not condone the disgrace of that exposure whatever others may wish or do. La Patrie, the Spectator, the Montreal Star, etc., have all declared against it. The Press as a whole has declared against it. What is more, the People are against it and it must go. That which for so long has hidden in its folds every form of abomination and trafficking and has been looked forward to as the last saving hope of the man "who MUST have it settled," will, as civilization advances, be thrown into the pit of iniquity. Any instrument that can serve and can only serve for the bringing about of that which cannot be exposed to the light of day and public scrutiny is an instrument of political assassination. It is the weapon of political Black Hand. Those who follow in the wake of the chief transgressor, who, as the cynic says, are most moved by a lively sense of the favours that are to come their way, may safely be left to Public Opinion. They are not worth stigmatising. The Red Indians were accustomed to leave prisoners of no reputation to the children to play with. They were not worthy of even being tolerated. It is not of these weaklings that we speak. It is of those who have turn- of the temple. We all need lessons ed their strength to the pulling down in the gospel of manliness. Whatever our other failings, a sense of manliness is a saving grace that will help us through. President Taft's latest utterance on this point is worthy of being pondered over.

DEEP WATERWAYS

The following from the Montreal Gazette, one of the best commercial papers on the continent, in connection with the subject of waterway of a greater depth than 8 or 9 feet is of interest:

"The report of the Board of Engineers appointed by President Taft when he was secretary of war, to investigate and report upon the practicability and utility of the fourteen-foot waterway from the Great Lakes to the mouth of the Mississippi has disturbed that dream. Three of the members of the board were military men, members of the Corps of Engineers, and the remaining two civilians. The report was unanimous in the finding that the fourteen-foot waterway would be enormously expensive to construct and maintain, and that, when completed, it would furnish no advantage to commerce at all commensurate with the cost. Naturally the report has not been warmly received by promoters of the plan, and some of them went so far as to declare that the report condemned the project simply because the members of the board wanted the money for the construction of military defence works. The weakness of this charge lies in the fact that two members were civilians not in the least interested in expenditure along the lines stated, and that they agreed with the military members. The cost of the waterway was placed by the board at approximately $160,000,000, with an additional expense charge of about $7,000,000, equivalent to an interest charge upon over $200,000,000 more. The great argument in favor of the scheme was the success obtained in Europe in the development of inland waterways. The commission threw this argument aside by pointing out that the Mississippi was already a greater inland waterway than any in Europe, and, further, that for the purposes of inland navigation as contemplated by the advocates of the 14-foot waterway, one of 8 or 9 feet was quite as favorable. The engineers do not touch upon the reasons for the decadence of the waterborne traffic on the Mississippi, which fell from 12,492,535 tons in 1889 to 4,384,288 tons in 1906, a loss of two-thirds, but contents itself with pointing out that there is no reason for believing that a fourteen foot waterway would restore former conditions, citing some facts which are not easily set aside. Whatever the reason for this remarkable decline may be it is not so easy to lay it to the antagonism of the railways because elsewhere on the continent the railways have shown themselves willing to avail themselves of the assistance of the water routes in the movement of traffic when an economy can thereby be effected. The railways in the region covered by the Mississippi and its tributaries would certainly have followed this example had they found any economy in doing so. Competition among the different lines would have forced this. In view of this fact the possible solution of the problem is that in this particular instance waterborne traffic possesses no advantage from the cost point of view that the railways cannot approximate. We have probably heard the last for some time to come of the 14-foot project which was to wipe the export trade of the northern half of the continent out of existence. It was a dream."—The Montreal Gazette.

EDITORIAL NOTES

That the Kaiser should have given up his yachting tour until the "present panic in Great Britain is over" is significant.

"On dit that the military headquarters for Eastern Ontario may be removed from Kingston to Ottawa. Well, if it improved the management of the militia department in any wise no one should object. Something is needed."—Kingston Whig (Liberal.)

"1. Under Section 288 of the Dominion Elections' Act, no answer of a witness shall be used in criminal proceedings against him, except for perjury in the giving of such evidence, if the presiding judges on the trial of the election petition give a certificate of exemption. The presiding judges cannot withhold such certificate if the witness makes full and true answers."

The following reference to Rev. Jonathan Goforth, lately in Peterborough, will be of interest:

To the Editor of the British Weekly:—

"Dear Sir,—Many of your readers were interested in the recent visit of the Rev. J. Goforth to this country, and in the description which he gave of the outpouring of God's Holy spirit in China.

"Last week a cablegram was received from Toronto informing us that the Canadian Presbyterian church do not see their way clear to consent to the return of Mr. Goforth to this country. We presume that his services are required in connection with his own church.

Yours faithfully,
(Signed) WALTER S. SLOAN,
Ass't Director.

The bodies of Archie Bird, Ed. McGuire and Robert Cruickshanks were found on the shore of Kenesas Lake. They had evidently been drowned while en route to a camp, thirty miles north of Haliburton.

VETERAN LAW-MAKERS

FEW OF CANADA'S ORIGINAL LEGISLATORS SURVIVE.

Eight Who Dined Recently at Ottawa Are Nearly All Who Are Able to Go About—Story of the First Federal Election — Assassination of George Brown—He Was One of the Hardest Workers for Confederation

Of the score or so of men who sat in the first Parliament of the Dominion of Canada and who have not yet passed over to the great majority, eight sat down to dinner not long ago in the restaurant of the House of Commons as guests of the Canadian Club of Ottawa. Among the other guests were the Prime Minister, the Leader of the Opposition, and several other members from both Houses. Five of the eight veterans are members of the present, the eleventh Parliament of Canada, so that they dined with political associates of forty years ago and those of to-day. Among the surviving veterans are several of the most prominent members of that first Parliament, which, as Earl Grey aptly said, rocked the cradle in which reposed the Confederation baby. Several of them sat down that day to dinner, others were absent, in all probability destined never to meet again. Two who were missed were Sir Charles Tupper and the Hon. Edward Blake. For many years they were conspicuous figures in the political arena, but their battles are over and their armor laid aside.

In the list of names of surviving members of that first Parliament published in one of the newspapers, strange to say, the name of Sir Charles was omitted, a remarkable omission to make, when every history of Confederation mentions the fact that Sir Charles (Dr. Tupper then) was the only supporter of the new order of things elected in Nova Scotia. Cumberland stood firm against the anti-Confederation tide, electing Dr. Tupper by the rather narrow majority of 87. Perhaps the error occurred by not remembering that although he was not taken into the Cabinet at its formation, he was in the House from the first. A portfolio was offered Dr. Tupper when Sir John Macdonald was choosing his Ministers, but with great unselfishness it was refused in order that it might be given to a representative of another element of the population.

The elections that returned the members of that first Federal Parliament were held during the late summer and early autumn of 1867. Those elections brought many surprises. One was the defeat in North Ontario of the Hon. George Brown, one of the Fathers of the then infant Confederation, the leader of the Clear Grits, and a man who during the preceding twenty years had had so much to do with the making and unmaking of Ministries as any man living. It was Brown's last election campaign, and like his first, it ended in defeat. The first was fought in Haldimand, and the memorable feature of it is the fact that the Grit leader was defeated by the penitent and pardoned rebel leader, William Lyon Mackenzie. "The contest was an exciting one," writes Mr. Charles Lindsay in his Life of William Lyon Mackenzie, "and created widespread interest on account of the political prominence of the candidates, both of whom belonged to the Reform party, which, at that time, was composed of groups or sections not fully in accord on some of the questions of the day. The result of this election caused a certain amount of estrangement between Brown and Mackenzie, which was never wholly removed, on account of Mackenzie's independence in the Assembly and otherwise."

It has just turned twenty-nine years since George Brown's life came to a close. His end was tragic, for he was the victim of an assassin's revolver. Bennett, the man who killed George Brown, had been employed in the engine-room of The Globe printing house, but had been discharged for intemperance. On the afternoon of March 25, 1880, Bennett entered the private office of Mr. Brown, presented a paper for the latter to sign, stating that Bennett had been in the employ of The Globe for five years. Bennett was told to go to the head of the department in which he had been employed, but Bennett replied that the head of the department had refused to give the certificate. He was then told to apply to the treasurer of the company, but he kept insisting that Mr. Brown should sign the paper, and finally he began to fumble in his pistol-pocket, whereupon it occurred to Mr. Brown, to use his own words, "that the little wretch might be meaning to shoot me." Bennett got out his pistol but Mr. Brown seized the man's wrist and turned his hand downward. One shot was fired in the struggle, the bullet passing through the outer side of Mr. Brown's left thigh.

The report of the pistol and Mr. Brown's cries for help instantly brought assistance from the editorial rooms. Among the first to arrive were Mr. Avern Pardoe, now librarian of the Ontario Legislature; Mr. Archibald Blue, head of the Census Bureau at Ottawa; and Mr. John A. Ewan, now leader writer on The Globe.

The wound was not considered to be mortal, and for a number of days, but against the advice of his physicians, Mr. Brown transacted business in his room; but as April wore away the case began to look serious. Periods of delirium occurred, and then the wounded man became unconscious. Early on Sunday, May 10, George Brown passed away. Almost a third of a century has flown since then, and most of the men who worked with George Brown in public life or who fought against him are no more; but his name is not forgotten, nor will his career ever cease to be a matter of interesting study to those who would understand the long struggle in Canada for responsible government and the arduous and delicate task of those who laid the foundations of our Dominion.

A seizure of otter and beaver skins has been made in the Hudson Bay Company's warehouse at North Bay.

Couldn't you guess what the taylor made ?

It's soap that is made by Taylor !

This coupon with 5 cents will get you a regular 5 cent cake of Taylor's Borax Soap and also a full 10 cent cake of Infants' Delight Soap. You receive two cakes worth 15 cents for only 5 cents. One coupon only to each family and it must be presented to your dealer this week.

Taylor's Infants' Delight

Toilet soap should do just two things—remove the dirt and nourish the skin. Let us then show you how we have blended both qualities into a single cake.

For in 43 years we have learned the secret of perfect soap—one that leaves the skin as soft and pink as an infant's. So we call it Infants' Delight.

The olive oil in this soap comes from the gardens of France. There we pay the highest prices—often double what we might pay. But our oil is pure enough to use on your table.

Then we bring cocoanut oil over 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. This oil has for centuries kept the Egyptian's skin soft and beautiful in spite of the tropical sun.

The oils are then filtered and boiled twice. After this they go through our own special milling process from which they flutter like flakes of snow into enormous bins.

These flakes are then crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture. Then they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons.

'The soap is then dried eight times and goes through an ageing process equal to standing six months in your pantry. So you don't need to age this soap. It comes to you clear and firm—it is simply perfect soap.

Please use a single cake—then let the results decide for the future.

See for yourself how it lathers into a rich creamy foam. Note how it wears as thin as a wafer—how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Besides this it is the lovliest soap for the baby's skin. And if it is best for the sensitive pink skin of an infant, it surely is best for your own.

You will like the dainty perfume, too. We pay over $100 a pound for pure Otto of Roses, but it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce. The fragrance is simply exquisite for it is only the delicate scent of roses—the breath of a million flowers.

Taylor's Borax Soap

Here again is a soap different in every way from the ordinary—it contains borax. Where other soaps merely cleanse this goes further—it whitens and purifies. The effect of the borax is almost magical—it is the most wonderful soap ever made for the laundry.

In this soap we use only the finest grade of cocoanut oil, for it lathers with greatest abundance. Then we mix in the borax which softens the water and also softens the hands.

Soft water is pure, but hard water contains mineral matters which prevent the soap from lathering. Borax makes the hardest water as soft as rain water, so you require only half the amount of soap.

With this soap you save most of the rubbing—it dissolves the dirt instantly and leaves the clothes with snowy whiteness.

It cleans the daintiest of laces as well as the heaviest of woolens—and it prevents shrinkage of both. Every odor is removed and the cloth is pure and sweet. This soap also prevents starch from sticking and adds greatly to the stiffness.

Glassware it cleanses in half the time, and leaves a lustre that fairly sparkles with brilliance. But it does even more; it sterilizes and destroys every germ so as to avoid any possibility of contagion. Send a bar with the laundry and protect the health of your family.

This powerful cleanser is utterly harmless to the hands—it leaves them whiter and softer than before.

Think then how harmless it must be to cloth. For if it benefits the skin, certainly it could not injure the fabric. This is the purest of soap. During the boiling process we run through the soap thousands of gallons of clean water which carries away every impurity.

It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed. Yet this wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. Simply because we make every year millions of cakes—we can buy at the lowest prices and give you the highest quality. Try one bar and learn the facts yourself.

Get the Free Soap This Week

We ask you to do us a favor—we want you to learn for your own interests the difference between these soaps and the ordinary. You have been using some soaps in the past and you naturally consider them good. But now we ask that you compare them with these—try them both and note how vastly they differ. We gladly invite the comparison because we have made it ourselves and we know just what must be the result. But it would be unfair to ask you to bear the expense of the test so we have made you this generous offer. We only ask that you buy one soap and we'll buy the other. Cut out the circular coupon on this page and take it to your dealer this week. Pay him only 5 cents and you will then receive both cakes worth 15 cents.

STONEY LAKE THE HOME OF A MOST MODERN SUMMER RESORT

The New Viamede Will Compare Favorably With the Best in the Dominion—Has Frontage of 162 Feet and Nothing Has Been Spared to Provide for the Comfort of Guests---Some Information of Interest.

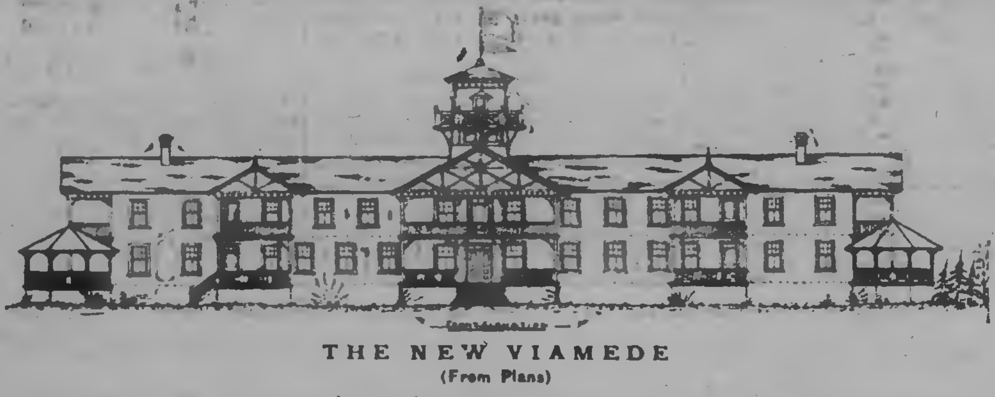
Year by year Stony Lake as a summer resort has grown in beauty and variety of view and prospect. The hundreds of islands have been always there, but not nearly so attractive as when now topped and crowned by the many gaily colored and inviting cottages and residences. While there is an absence of that luxurious plentitude of money spent that one sees on the St. Lawrence, there is on the whole a better average of convenience and comfort. The old time shack, or shelter, that took the place of the tent, has disappeared, and in its stead is the cosy, neat and highly painted summer home. All over the lake these are springing up, and the shores of Clear Lake to the south, are fast being dotted with summer homes. When the improvement in communication comes, and may it be soon, the shores of the lake will take on fresh activity, and offer facilities now lacking. If the lake region were as close to a large city as it is to Peterborough the district would be thronged, instead of settled in a desultory way.

Fairy Lake—"New Viamede"

When the visitor reaches on the boat, the store wharf at Juniper Island, and looks about he is attracted by the rather imposing building across the lake, to the east of Mr. Julian, the walls and roof of the structure glistening in the morning sun. It is the New Viamede, now without exception the premier summer resort building of the Kawartha lakes district. In its coat of cream trimmed with green, its many verandahs and balconies, its tower that is lifted nearly a hundred feet above the waters of the lake, the handsome pavilion and the cottages that form the annex to Viamede, the visitor is impressed with the enterprise that has had the confidence and assurance to plan and expend and the intelligence and experience that has devised so complete a structure for the purpose in view—to afford a summer home to the summer-home seeker, who comes from the crowded city in search of fresh air, good food, and and comfortable accommodation. All these are at hand in and about Viamede. The enterprise is the result of years of steady growth and of thoughtful anticipation of the wants and needs of the tourist public.

Viamede stands on the shore of the lake a little to the east of Mr. Julian. The buildings of a year ago comprised the main structure and accompanying cottages. One morning in the fall of 1908, word was phoned in to the proprietress, Mrs. W. M. Graham, of Lakefield, that fire had swept over the property leaving only "the Graham Gem" and Pavilion. The result of years of industry and labor had gone up in smoke. The destruction was complete, and included all the furniture and equipment. The patronage and good will of Viamede, and some insurance was all that remained. Now these are very tangible assets, so far as a summer resort is concerned. The good will means public recognition of certain qualities and attributes, and public preferences, to be gained and held as the result of real painstaking effort. It was not to be thought of that all this should be idle and disappear, so Mrs. Graham set about providing a new Viamede for the season of 1909.

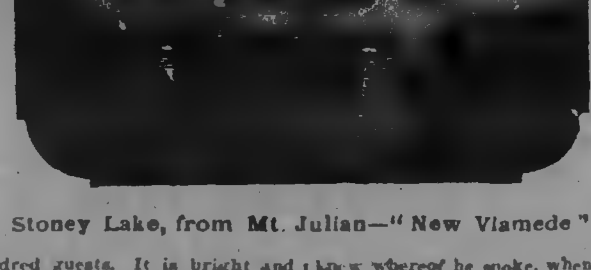
The site was ideal, overlooking the most beautiful part of the lake, and affording a wide view to the east, west and south. Plans were prepared by a competent architect, skilled in devising and planning summer resort public places, and with the years of experience that Mrs. Graham has had a very complete structure was laid out, of fine appearance, imposing in its extent, airy and convenient, and those modern conveniences, that add so much to comfort, and which are valued just to the extent to which one does not expect to find them were provided.



THE NEW VIAMEDE

(From Plans)

The new building has a frontage of 162 feet on the lake front of two full stories and roomy attic. The central tower, with balcony, forms a splendid lookout station and is crowned with a high flag staff. Roomy pavilions or wings stand at either end of the main building, and between these are the main entrance, with its wide verandah and balcony and in addition the front is broken with large projections constituting verandahs and balconies and affording access to the main floors at several points. From the balconies at either end outside staircases communicate with grounds. The whole is painted a rich cream with trimmings of white and green. The entrance rotunda, or lobby, is a spacious room charmingly finished and furnished. The dining room, occupies nearly one-half of the main floor and can seat over one hundred guests. It is bright and cheery, handsomely furnished in imitation oak, the arched trusses to sustain the floors above, breaking up the ceiling into several panels. The floors throughout are stained a rich green and many handsome rugs scattered make bright spots of color to relieve the floor space. A charming feature of the furnishing scheme is that having to procure everything new, the fittings and furniture could all be selected to fall into the general color scheme making a harmonious and agreeable whole.



Stoney Lake, from Mt. Julian—"New Viamede"

Next to good food, plenty of it, the most essential thing to the visitor is a good, sound, refreshing sleep. So far as carrying out every detail in anticipation, such has been done. The sleeping rooms are wholly admirable as the size, and spotless cleanliness and furnishings. Everything is absolutely new. Not even a suspicion of dust lingers. Enamelled iron bedsteads, convenient dressing cases, and fresh bed linen are most inviting accessories to sound and refreshing sleep. Ample ventilating facilities are provided. The lower floor provides for ten rooms, and the second floor for thirty. A wide hall runs the entire length of the building, while at intervals are provided pleasant rest rooms and lounging places. As provided, a party of friends may remain at Viamede, and if they so desire, be as private as if in their own homes.

A very desirable feature of the establishment—one that is often neglected—is the very thorough provision made in the way of sanitary conveniences. Several closets and bath rooms are arranged for on each floor, beautifully fitted with ample supply and drainage. In this respect the care has been most thorough. A very complete acetylene gas system is piped to reach room and throughout the buildings and grounds generally, and the verandahs and balconies have been provided with ample light. When illuminated at night Viamede forms a very attractive picture as seen against the dark wooded mass of Mt. Julian, and the northern sky, and in the evening the illumination rivals that of many of the St. Lawrence summer resorts.

Life at a summer resort would be nothing if it lacked getting out on the water. Not every one can bring his boat out but that want has been provided for. At Viamede are kept a very complete equipment of canoes, skiffs and craft all available, at a reasonable hire, for the fisherman or man of acquatic proclivities. At a store on the grounds, fishing tackle, rods and a general assortment of goods and things needed by tourists can be had. Ample wharves platforms and landing places are a part of the general plan. Telephone connection is had with all neighboring points and big long distance phone to outside centres. Mail every day, and in the height of the season twice each day. While the lake about Viamede is attractive, many other points are within easy reach. Burleigh Falls, the Mecca of many fishermen, is only three miles away to the west. Boschink Narrows, only a short distance to the east, and further east the broadening of the lake into what is esteemed as one of the best parts of the Kawartha Lakes. On the islands and shores many beautiful residences are being put up, and at Crowe's Landing, on the Dummer shore, quite a community has sprung up.

Across the lake, from Viamede is McCracken Landing, quite an objective point, and between the two points lies Juniper Island, with the pavilion, store and general headquarters of the lake district.

In this general review of the new Viamede a word is due to the charming personality of the proprietress, Mrs. Graham. In her services and influence Viamede gains what so many other places lack, the kindly, thoughtful hostess, who anticipates the wants of the visitor before the visitor has had time to express in words his wishes. And the dweller at Viamede may well repeat the words of Dr. Samuel Johnson, who knew whereof he spoke, when he said, "There is nothing which has yet been contrived by man, by which so much happiness is produced as by a good tavern or inn."

To tell of Viamede and not tell how to reach it would leave something lacking. By rail to Peterborough, thence by G.T.R. to Lakefield, the foot of lake navigation. From Lakefield one of the several steamers leaving during the day will land the visitor right at the hospitable doors of Viamede. The post office address is Mt. Julian, Stoney Lake, and if any wish to know more of detail a communication addressed to Mrs. Graham, as above, will bring ample and full particulars.

Although only opened for the season a few days ago, Viamede is already filling up. Tourists and visitors from American points do not get away from their duties until after July 4th. Having got the national celebration off their hands, they seem free to go about their several diversions. Early last week, the register at Viamede, which had turned over a new leaf, as becomes a new institution, was inscribed with the names following;—Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Raisbeck, W. S. Forman, Geo. W. Johnston, H. M. Webb, C. S. Shutt and Geo. N. Crosby, all of Rochester, N.Y.; F. W. Sprague, and wife, Belleville; Chris. Lord, Apsley; Charles C. Nixon, Peterborough; C. F. Hurley, Peterborough; C. E. Vincent and wife, Rochester, N.Y.; John Skuce, Clifton Springs, N.Y.; Thos. G. Skuce, Rochester, N.Y.; Geo. W. Bussard and wife, E. J. Vincent, Geo. H. Vincent, of Rochester, N.Y.; A. W. Allen, Toronto.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

A Word Wanting

To the Editor of The Review:

Sir,—Rev. Mr. Howard in his letter on the historic episcopate says that Christ did not tell the 500 to whom he appeared after his resurrection to go and preach the Gospel, but reserved that for the Apostles, who were not only told to do that but were told that their successors should do so as well. There is no mention of Apostolic succession at all, and Mr. Howard only drags it in to suit his argument.

It must be remembered that Christ expected the end of the world shortly. At any rate there is no specific statement about successors and if they had been intended they would likely have been mentioned.

INQUIRER.

A Suggestion

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I notice the grass at Nicholls Oval has a burnt appearance on account of the lack of moisture. Could not something be done to have the park watered by artificial means, when the rainfall is not sufficient to keep the grass green?

This is the first shipment the local company ever made to Norway although they have made sales in several other European countries, the British Isles especially.

HAS SUCCESS IN FIGHTING THE GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

Dr. Pelkey's Discovery is Having Remarkable Results—Went to Mexico to Study the Disease—Is Now in Peterborough.

To a Review representative Dr. Pelkey, who is at present in the city demonstrating the remarkable qualities of his discovery for the cure of consumption, gave an interesting talk on his varied experiences while engaged in the study, and perfection of his remedy. Believing he was on the right track, he went to Mexico, where consumption is very prevalent, and spent many years there, his practice being followed by such splendid results that the Mexican government bought the right for the use of his patents, and will continue their use among the victims of the white plague.

The doctor is a Canadian by birth having been born in Broome County, Quebec. He studied in both Mexico and the United States and took a post graduate course in the Belmont Medical School, where he remained for four years. He then returned to Baltimore and passed his examinations in surgery and chemistry at the John Hopkins College.

In 1901 he returned to the city of Mexico, where he served as physician in the army for seven years. He returned to Canada in 1906 and in 1907 he made the first discovery of the great specific cure for tuberculosis.

Patients suffering from tuberculosis are given an inhaler, invented by Dr. Pelkey. The invention was completed a year ago last February.

Dr. Pelkey is exhibiting the invention, which is called the Peltier Inhaler, throughout the country. He has government certificates from Mexico, Brazil, New Mexico and Canada and many Latin-American republics, testifying to cures wrought by him with the inhaler. One certificate states that nearly half a troop of Mexican soldiers and American soldiers and American soldiers and government officials of Montreal were cured under his treatment. Another is signed by President Diaz, of Mexico, himself, whom Dr. Pelkey cured.

This morning the doctor told of a telegraph call to Tweed yesterday, where he found a patient almost at the last stage of consumption, and scarcely able to breathe. The inhaler was set up and used with immediate and wonderful effect, and relief given the sufferer at once. The doctor states that he will continue this relief, and is quite confident of an ultimate cure. The Great Specific Remedies and Inhaler will be kept in stock by J. D. Tully, druggist, corner of George and Hunter streets, but for a few days the doctor can be seen at 389 Queen street.

DEATH OF DR. ALFRED DAVIES ON SATURDAY

It was with profound regret that it was learned Saturday afternoon that Mr. Alfred Davies, doctor of music, had passed away at his residence, 106 McDonnel street. The deceased had been ailing for the past two years, but his condition was not considered serious. On Friday, however, he took a turn for the worse, sinking rapidly, and death came peacefully shortly after two o'clock Saturday afternoon. His death was due to locomotor ataxia.

The late Dr. Davies was born in Manchester, England, 54 years ago, and came to Canada in 1893. He first settled in Norwood, but soon came to Peterborough, and has resided here for the past 15 years, for seven years of which he was organist in St. Luke's church. He was a natural born musician, and devoted his whole time to the teaching of his large classes, many graduates of which are a credit to him. He was identified with the musical interests of the city, and always was prominent in the profession. He had a wide circle of friends and admirers, and was respected by all. He was a member of the Church of England and of the United Workmen.

He is survived by a widow and one daughter, Miss Helen Davies, and to them is extended the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community.

One of the saddest features of Dr Davies' death is that his only child, Miss Helen, is now on the Atlantic on her way to visit relatives in England, she having sailed only after the physicians assured her that there was no reason to believe that her father would be any worse for some time to come.

The funeral took place this afternoon at three o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

THERE IS GREAT FISHING AT KAWARTHA LAKES THIS YEAR

The guides and anglers state that the fishing at Stoney Lake is exceptionally good. The bass and 'lunge are biting freely and some big ones of both varieties have been landed. The bass are particularly plentiful and the 'lunge are also being caught in large numbers.

Some of the black bass taken out of the water almost made the five pound mark at the weighing in, and the 'lunge have been caught as high as seventeen pounds. Mr F. D. Cobb, of Fairport, a guest at the Park Hotel, Burleigh, looked a fifteen pound 'lunge the other day, and Mr. Wm. Cameron, who is staying at Boschink, caught a black bass that tipped the beam at 4 1-2 pounds.

No record catches of 'lunge have been made yet.

CANOE UPSET AND YOUNG MAN HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Yesterday afternoon about 4.45 three young men, Harold Warmington, Harold Morrow and Harold Hill, had an unpleasant experience while out canoeing about a quarter of a mile below the street car wharf. The party were out in the middle of the river and Hill started to rock the canoe with the result that it was overturned and all three landed in the water. Hill could not swim and was assisted by young Morrow, until his strength gave out. Fortunately the mishap was noticed by two canoeists, Wm. Coons and Dod Emroy, who were about twenty yards away and who quickly paddled to the assistance of the young men in the water. Coons grabbed Hill by the hair as he was about to go under for the third time and after some hard work managed to get him into the boat and afterwards ashore.

Warmington and Morrow had in the meantime managed to get into another boat.

That the upsetting of the canoe did not end in a fatality is due to the timely assistance of the two young men. Coons and Emroy and no doubt if the same party have any occasion to go out in a canoe again there will be no more rocking.

Sixty moving picture show proprietors were fined $10 and costs each in Montreal for keeping open Sunday.

CITY LEAGUE TEAMS PUT UP GOOD EXHIBITIONS

P. A. C. Defeated Strathconas in the Ninth and T. A. S. Made a Whirlwind Finish Over the West Ends—The Scores Were 10-9 and 11-4.

The Four City League teams met for the second time at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon and the winners in the first round came out ahead again. Park St. defeated the Strathconas 10—9, and the T. A. S. won from the West Ends by 11—4. The first game proved to be the best yet played in the league. There was lots of batting and the fielding at times was equal to any ever witnessed at Riverside Park, and there has been some good games played at that place. Kendry at third for the Straths was the star performer of the day, and his fielding stunts took well with the fans. Dusty, in the box for the Park St. team, also pulled off a pretty play when he grabbed a hot one straight for his face, from Hesslip's bat, which resulted in a double play, retiring the side. Both teams put up a hot fight for honors, and it was anybody's game up to the eighth, when the Straths showed their weakness, their fatal weakness of "blowing up" and five men crossed the plate for Park St. and, although in their last innings, by some good batting, they managed to make six runs, which put them one to the good, it was not to be for the Northenders scored twice in their half, and came out victorious. Gorham and Dusty were the opposing twirlers, and both pitched in fine form. Hickey replaced Gorham in the ninth, but mostly on account of some ragged fielding on the part of the Straths, was unable to stop the Park St. nine from taking the game.

FIRST GAME.

Neither team scored in the first time at bat, but in their half of the second Park St. put one man across the plate, but the Straths evened matters in their half of the fourth.

Park St. went ahead again in the fifth, but the Straths came right back and scored twice, getting a lead of one run.

Park St. tied the score again in the sixth.

Both teams went out one, two, three in the seventh.

In the eighth Park St. scored five times and the Straths were blanked. In their last time at bat the Strathconas counted six times, which put them one to the good, but Park St. came right back with two and won the game.

SECOND GAME.

The T.A.S., in the second game, secured three runs in their first innings, and kept the lead up to the eighth, when they secured six runs, which practically gave them the game, as it took all the heart out of the West Enders.

Quinlan, as usual, pitched good ball, and received good support from his team, although they had very little to do. McFadden and O'Brien had 22 of the 27 put outs, and the remaining five went to Quinlan, Corkery and Callaghan. The outfielders had nothing to do but watch the game from their respective positions, but each did well with the bat, Doherty getting two hits and one run, and O'Brien and Conroy a hit and a run apiece.

revised for corrections

The West Ends had an off day, on the field and at bat, which, of course did not give them any license to win. Rose was not very effective, twelve hits being secured off his delivery. Dobson caught a splendid game, and Geale and Kirn played well at short and first respectively.

The game by innings—

First innings, T. A. S.—Callaghan bunted safe, M. O'Brien was safe on a fielder's choice, and Derocher made first on an error, and Callaghan scored. Quinlan flew out to Gibson, Corkery struck out. McFadden hit to left, scoring O'Brien and Derocher. Doherty went out, Geale to Kirn. 3 runs.

The West Ends went out in order in their half.

Second innings.—The T. A. S. were shut out.

Dobson, first up for West Ends, was safe on Corkery's error, and stole second. Rose made first on a fielder's choice, and Dobson was caught between second and third. Rose stole second and scored on Halpin's single. Geale struck out and Dickie ended the inning by grounding out to Quinlan. One run.

Third innings—Derocher flew out to Geale, Quinlan fanned, Corkery hit safely and stole second. McFadden was safe at first and Corkery scored on Gibson's error. Doherty's hit scored McFadden. O'Brien flew out to Dickie. Two runs.

Fourth innings.—The T. A. S. went out, one, two, three.

Dobson started with a double and stole third. Halpin was safe on a fielder's choice, and Dobson beat out Corkery's throw to third. Geale flew out to Corkery, who doubled Halpin at third. One run.

Neither team scored in the fifth, but in their half of the sixth the West Ends put two men across the plate. Gibson was safe on Derocher's error, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Dobson's hit. Dobson stole second. Rose fanned. M. O'Brien juggled Halpin's grounder, Dobson scoring. Dickie struck out. Two runs.

Eighth innings — Corkery opened with a single to left. McFadden was safe on Gibson's error. Doherty doubled, scoring both runners. O'Brien hit safely, scoring Doherty, stole second and scored on Conroy's single to left. Callaghan struck out. M. O'Brien flew out to left, Conroy beating in the throw. Derocher made first stole second and third, and came in on a passed ball. Quinlan walked, but Corkery ended the inning by striking out. Six runs.

The West Ends, who had been blanked in the seventh, and eighth, were also shut out in their last time at bat.

San Francisco, July 3.—Stanley Ketchell and Billy Papke, who will box 20 rounds for the world's middleweight championship at Coffroth's Mission st. arena, in San Mateo County, Monday afternoon, have practically ended their training. ## CHEMONG INDIAN SHOWS HIS CLASS ON THE ROAD

According to Jack Jacobs, of the Chemong Indian village, there will likely be some doings in the athletic line among the members of the reserve this year. Jacobs says there are several good men getting into trim for running in the fall and there is a proposal to organize a club to encourage the sport at the village.

Yesterday afternoon a Review man, who was back at Stoney Lake met Jacobs about a mile or so from Burleigh, where he is engaged on some work on the road. Jacobs had come the shortest route from Chemong Indian village to Burleigh and made the 20 miles of the course in two and three-quarter hours. This is travelling at a remarkably good clip especially when it is considered that Jacobs had to carry his coat all the way and he was dressed only in ordinary clothes. He ran fifteen miles of the distance and walked five.

Jacobs defeated Smoke on Saturday in a one mile race at the reserve and stated that he thought seriously of going in for the running game on a large scale.

ACTIVITY OF SUMMER SEASON HAS COMMENCED AT LAKES

Large Number of Cottagers and Resort Visitors—Those Who Are at the Cottages and Hotels—Fishing Never Was Better.

The activity of the summer season at the Kawartha Lakes has commenced, and the visitors this year promise to be particularly numerous. Already there is a good representation of pleasure seekers at the cottages, camp and summer hotels. The good fishing is an incentive, especially to the American visitors who are loud in their praise of the excellent fishing grounds of the Kawartha region, which are even more prolific to anglers than they usually are. There fortunately have been no boating accidents this season at all and not a single upset has been recorded.

Yesterday was the one day in the year for the American guests—the glorious fourth. No big demonstrations were held, however, partly on account of the fact that it was Sunday, and partly on account of the necessary noise making paraphernalia being rather difficult to get. However, firecrackers, squibs, and in some places fireworks, were in order, for the day had to be recognized by the patriotic ones from across the line even if the demonstrations were not very noisy.

The wind has been very high on the lake for the past couple of days. It has been welcome in the respect that it very considerably discourages the mosquito campaign.

The first dance of the season was held at McJulian Pavilion on Saturday night. The function was a small one.

People are just beginning to come to the various resorts in goodly numbers. The cottagers are also coming and a great many of the cottages are occupied.

The traffic on the lake boats has been heavy and is increasing steadily. A large number of week-end callers visited the lakes on Saturday.

Mr. Jack Sullivan, of the Quaker Oats Co., is spending a two weeks' vacation at South Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Fowler returned to-day after a visit to South Beach.

Miss Morse, of "The [illegible] Dairyman" is spending a vacation at South Beach.

Mrs. W. H. Meldrum, Miss Meldrum and Mr. Harold Meldrum are at their cottage, "Cairndow."

Messrs. Harold Vincent, E. J. Vincent and C. Vincent, of Rochester, are guests at Viamede.

Mr. Picken, the new proprietor of the "Victoria House," McCracken's Landing, is looking forward to a busy season. The guests at this popular resort have for the most part been transient so far this season. The fishing in the vicinity of the landing is good and some excellent catches of lunge and bass have been made.

The first Sunday services of the season were conducted yesterday at Juniper Island and Burleigh. Rev. A. B. Reed, M.A., of Toronto, officiated at Juniper Island, and there was over a hundred in the congregation. Miss Ida P. Sanderson, of Peterborough, sang a solo most acceptably.

Rev. Mr. Lord, of Apsley, conducted the services at Burleigh, and there was also a very large attendance there.

This morning for the first time the dining-room staff of the "Empress" were engaged in their duties on the boat in their important capacity. Meals were not served to passengers, however, but the usual excellent service will be available for the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. H. A. Epstein and sons, Rochester; Mr. R. B. Hall and wife, Toronto; Mrs. Charles Westkamp and wife, Cincinnati are guests at "Park Hotel," Burleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Barber, of Peterborough, have returned to the city after a short visit at Burleigh, where they were guests at the "Park Hotel."

WHEN THE LANDMARK GOES.

The landscape looks so strange
When an old-time landmark goes;
The eyes perplexed, do range
Where once its outlines rose,
It always leaves a gap—
A hole in a well-known map;
The world doth meet mishap
When an old landmark goes.

Was it a tree—a pine—
Or a shanty on a hill?
Was it a castle fine,
Or only an old grist mill?
It matters not; I pause
To mourn for it, because
The world's not what it was
When an old-time landmark goes.

Or was it a good old man,
To all the country dear,
Who, when our land began
Her great career, came here?
No more we'll see his face,
Last of a noble race,
And none shall take his place
When the old-time landmark goes.

Or was't an ancient Faith
That shored up human souls?
It stood, so hist'ry saith,
Where yon dark mist-cloud rolls.
In vain it battled sneers
And the encroaching years;
No wonder men shed tears
When an old-time landmark goes.

Or was't a pennant scrolled
With many a splendid name,
That heavenward did unfold
A meteor flag of flame?
Another takes its place—
Flag of an alien race!
The partiot hides his face
When the old-time landmark goes.

My son, good counsel take:
A landmark thou mayst be,
For lo, our God may make
A semaphore of thee!
So well your vigil keep,
That when you fall asleep
They'll miss you, and will weep
When the old-time landmark goes!

THE KHAN.

THE LUMBER KING.

Story of a Visit to J. R. Booth, Ottawa's Multi-Millionaire.

At the age of eighty-three John R. Booth, the Ottawa millionaire, is still attending to business and pushing along his large enterprises. In a very interesting sketch of Mr. Booth in The Canadian Collier's, Paul E. Bilkey writes: "One day there arrived at the little red brick Booth office, at the Chaudiere, two visitors. One was a financial agent of Ottawa and the other was Sir Robert W. Perks, of London, England. Sir Robert had with him a Georgian Bay canal charter and an armful of Mexican franchises. He was arrayed as he would be arrayed for a Threadneedle street conference, a topper, a morning coat, gloves, cane, shiny shoes, all befitting a man with a million or two behind him. He made his way into the red brick building and announced that he was there to see Mr. J. R. Booth. Mr. J. R. Booth was out. Sir Robert said he would wait. After he had waited a while there appeared in the office a man who clearly had no business to be butting into the sanctum sanctorum where a couple of capitalists were about to talk millions to one another. He had on a long whitish duster and a pair of builder's mitts and there was red dust all over him. It was with difficulty that Sir Robert Perks, of London, finally admitted to himself the possibility that this old man, who, unless all tokens lied, had been laying bricks, was J. R. Booth, lumber king and reputed possessor of forty million dollars. It was Booth all right, and the London magnate found himself being overhauled by the keen blue eye of the man in the duster. When he began to talk high finance the man who had been laying bricks met him on his own ground. Sir Robert went back to the club and released a crisp appreciation of the Booth capacity.

A Canadian in the U. S.

Among the many Canadians prominent in business and professional life in the United States is Mr. Clive T. Jaffray, formerly of Galt, Ont., and brother of the proprietors of The Reporter of that town. He is vice-president of the First National Bank of Minneapolis, the largest bank in the Northwestern States, and a director of the Wisconsin Central Railway, whose line will be operated as the Chicago division of the Soo road controlled by the Canadian Pacific Railway. With the assistance of two other prominent bankers, one from New York and one from Chicago, he has just finished the work of organizing the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Co., in which British capitalists have invested $5,000,000 and American capitalists a like sum. Mr. Jaffray started his banking career with the Merchants Bank in Toronto in 1884. Later, he published The British-American of Chicago.

A Tiny Traveler.

Annie Brown, a five-year-old girl, has just reached Calgary after a journey of more than 5,000 miles made absolutely alone from the start to finish, says The Calgary News. During the trip she was well cared for by passengers on boats and trains who became interested in her artless story of how she was going to Canada to meet her daddy, who preceded her eighteen months. Annie's father, James Brown, is living on a homestead five miles south of Calgary and could not spare the time to cross the ocean to act as escort for his little girl. Consequently he decided to have her make the long journey alone.

Wanted a Rebate.

These are the days when city folk endeavor to find suitable and cheap summer board for the women and children, and when father looks forward to a summer of lonesomeness or of liberty as the case may be.

A farmer living near Toronto had enquiries made of him and named his rates. He got a reply from the Toronto family saying that the prices he quoted were not unreasonable. "But," continued the communication, "our little boy does not eat butter, and for that reason we think you should let us have a rebate."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed for ever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Coffee Beans and Arithmetic.

That the efforts of teachers to do well by their scholars are often misunderstood by parents is illustrated by an amusing incident which occurred in one of the schools. A little girl who had just been promoted to the second grade was having great difficulty with the simple sums in arithmetic which her teacher gave her. The latter took the girl aside and tried to explain to her how addition, subtraction, etc., should be done. She showed the girl how to do the sum by taking some little objects and making the actual physical changes indicated, so securing the desired result. Then she said, "Tell your mother to give you twenty coffee beans and take them each evening when you sit down to do your lessons." The next day the little girl came to school and at once sought out her teacher. "Mamma wants to know whether I am to take the coffee beans mixed with water or to swallow them whole," she said. A visit and personal explanation to the mother were needed before the matter was finally straightened out, and now the little girl is improved greatly in her arithmetic without any internal aid of coffee beans.

HIS ALARMING PART.

After It Was Explained He Assumed a New Role.

By M. M. SMITH.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

"Listen, Alice! He is at it again!" cried Tillie.

"Well, it's no concern of ours," replied her sister, idly fingering the piano keys.

"Oh, Alice, as if any woman deserved such treatment! We ought to inform the landlady!"

"And have her tell us to mind our business or move," urged the wiser elder sister.

"Just hear him browbeat her—the brute!" exclaimed Tillie, making a vehement exit.

Rushing downstairs two steps at a time, she bolted into the apartment directly underneath the one occupied by herself and sister. At the farther end of the room stood a tall, finely formed man, coatless and with hair awry. He looked up, dazed and astonished at the unexpected entrance.

"Where is she?" gasped Tillie, visibly embarrassed.

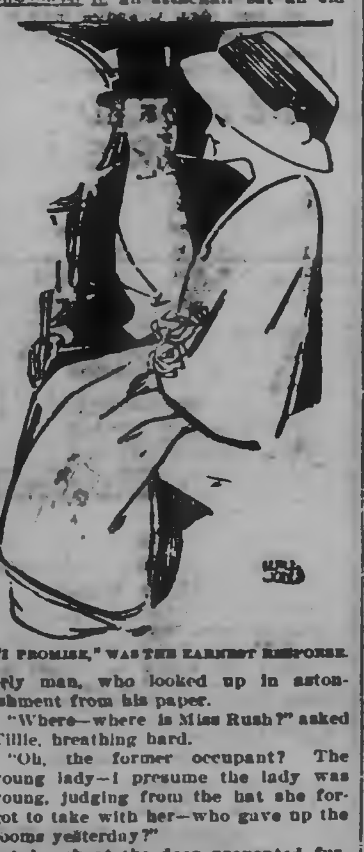
"Who is it you wish to see?" he asked.

"You wife," was the faint reply.

"My wife? Alas, I am not the fortunate possessor! But you are perhaps in trouble and need the counsel of a woman. Wait a moment."

Tillie stood aghast as he left the room in haste. She heard him talking in the hall below to one of the gossip fed women. Their voices drew nearer. Evidently he was bringing assistance. Desperately she flew to the room opposite and opened the door, which she bolted after her entrance.

It proved to be another case of the frying pan and the fire. Comfortably ensconced in an armchair sat an elderly man, who looked up in astonishment from his paper.



"I PROMISE," WAS THE EARNEST RESPONSE.

"Where—where is Miss Rush?" asked Tillie, breathing hard.

"Oh, the former occupant? The young lady—I presume the lady was young, judging from the hat she forgot to take with her—who gave up the rooms yesterday?"

A knock at the door prevented further explanations. The man went to open the door, and Tillie retreated behind the screen. To her delight, she heard Miss Rush's voice.

"Oh, Eleanor," she exclaimed, emerging from retirement, "how did you come to move yesterday? I thought tomorrow was your day to move, and I bolted right in here to this stranger's apartment."

"Poor Tillie!" laughed her friend. "Please"—turning to the astonished man—"I forgot my hat—one of my hats."

While he was getting the hat from the next room Tillie whispered her troubles to Miss Rush. She promptly removed her veil and long coat and gave them to Tillie, who donned them for disguise in case of an encounter with the man who had gone to summon "assistance" for her.

The girls reached Tillie's apartments without any mishaps.

"Well," asked Alice, looking up in amusement, "did you rescue the abused wife, or were you ordered out?"

"Oh, Alice," was the hysterical laugh, "he hasn't any wife!"

"Whose wife was he beating?" demanded the indignant sister.

"He must have killed her or hidden her. I could see no one, and he thought I was in trouble and went to summon aid. He was bringing that glib tongued Mrs. Hunt as first aid to the injured when I ducked and ran into Eleanor's room, or the room she vacated yesterday and which is now occupied by an elderly man who evidently thinks I have escaped from an asylum."

"The plot thickens! Maybe you will learn to have no ears after you have lived in apartments awhile longer."

"I must go," said Eleanor, "and I would thank you for my coat, Tillie. I really think you should keep the veil. You will need it in your detective work."

"I am afraid one of those men or that awful Mrs. Hunt will find you," sighed Alice.

"Move! Tomorrow," urged Eleanor. "The flat next to mine is empty, and it is a much more desirable place than this—better location, and the rent is cheaper too."

Early the next morning a moving van carried away their effects to another part of the city, and Tillie breathed more freely.

One morning a few weeks later she was invited to join a box party at one of the theaters. When the party entered the play had begun. A continued applause caused Tillie to direct her attention to the stage before taking her seat.

There was the man whose apartment she had entered in defense of his wife!

For a full minute she stood gazing into his eyes. The audience noticed his attention to the party, but construed it a rebuke for their late entrance.

At the end of the act a note was handed to one of the men in the party, who immediately withdrew for a moment. When he returned he invited everybody to join him at a supper after the play. His casual remark that he had invited the young actor Reginald Montague to join them gave a thrill of mixed delight and apprehension to Tillie.

"I shall have to explain, and what can I say?" she thought.

She was the last to meet the popular young actor, who said, with a whimsical look: "Miss Monroe and I don't need an introduction. We have met before."

So it naturally happened that Tillie was left to his charge en route to the supper.

"Miss Monroe," he began the dreaded interview, "will you not tell me why you appealed to me for aid and then vanished in so mysterious a manner? I have haunted the halls of the apartment since that night for one more glimpse of you, and I have looked my audiences over every night, hoping to see you. I brought one of the lodgers up to my room, but you were gone. We looked everywhere, and I believe she thinks the incident a delusion of my senses."

"I—well, you see, I lived there then. I had the apartment over yours."

"And you have been so near all these weeks?"

"Oh, no! We moved the next day. Alice was so ashamed of my actions!"

"But where did you vanish that time, and why?"

"I—went into another room—without knocking, as I did at your room—only I thought it was a friend's room—or had been, and there was another strange man"—

He looked bewildered.

"Oh," he said, after a moment, "you mistook my room for some one else's? I remember you asked for my wife."

"Oh," groaned Tillie, "I might as well make a clean breast of it. For two nights I had heard you talking so loud and in such an angry voice, and then I heard sounds—well, to be honest, Sister Alice and I thought you were abusing your wife, and I couldn't stand it. I flew to her aid—and, well—I will never do it again!"

His mirth was unrestrained.

"I was rehearsing my part. I must have made more of a hit than I intended. But I think it was sweet of you to dare a rescue. But why didn't you explain?"

"You went for that awful woman, and so we moved early the next morning. Oh, if I had only known who you were I should have so enjoyed listening to the rehearsals!"

"I have a new play," he said, "not a tragic part like that one, but the part of a lover. May I come and rehearse to you?"

"Our walls are very thin," said Tillie ruefully.

"But my part calls for a low, soft tone. May I?"

"If you will never tell of my mistake."

"I promise," was the earnest response.

Not a Success.

The experiment was not a success. Frequently she had complained that he was not as he used to be, that his love seemed to have grown cold and that he was too prosaic and matter of fact. So when he found one of his old love letters to her he took it with him the next time he was called away from the city, made a copy of it and mailed it to her.

"John Henry," she exclaimed when he returned, "you're the biggest fool that ever lived. I believe you have softening of the brain. What did you mean by sending me that trash?"

"Trash, my dear!" he expostulated.

"Yes, trash—just sickly, sentimental nonsense."

"That isn't how you described it when I first wrote it and sent it to you," he protested. "You said then it was the dearest, sweetest letter ever written, and you insist now that I have changed and you haven't. I thought I would try to"—

"Well, you didn't succeed," she interrupted, and she was mad for two days.

The Penalty of Folly.

Methuselah, Jarah, Lamech and the others had gone to the old settlers' reunion near Ararat. It was Methuselah's nine hundredth birthday, and he capered around like a kitten, throwing balls of ophir wood at the rag dolls, taking chances in the grab bag conducted by the Canaan church and acting a perfect hog about the pink lemonade barrel and the candied popcorn stand.

"Better be careful, Meth," Lamech warned him. "You'll overdo yourself, old man."

But the ancient cutup paid no heed and proceeded to ride on the merry-go-round with a woman of the Tubalites.

DROWSINESS.

As a Rule It Indicates Something Wrong In Habits or Health.

Sleepiness is a normal and healthy condition when it occurs at the usual bedtime and when not extreme and overpowering, but it is not always associated with sleep. Some persons in perfect health and excellent sleepers hardly know the meaning of drowsiness. They are active mentally and physically until they are in bed. Then sleep comes at once, and when it leaves them in the morning they are again in full mental awakeness.

There are less fortunate persons who never have a complete and satisfactory night's rest who are yet almost constantly drowsy. They are always nodding, but when the head touches the pillow sleep recedes and the night is a succession of drowsy lapses to sleep with the instant return of semi-consciousness.

In general, with the exception noted at the beginning of this article, drowsiness is abnormal and indicates something wrong either with the body of the sufferer or in his habits. Those who habitually cut off their hours of sleep, the "night owls" and the burners of the midnight oil, pay for their bad habit by attacks of sleepiness in the afternoon and early evening. Later, unfortunately, after the influence of digestion wears off, the drowsiness disappears, and then, relieved of his burden, the person "sits up to all hours" again, thinking in that way to make up for the hours lost by the drowsiness. If he would abandon his owlish habit, go to bed betimes and get the seven or eight hours of continuous sleep that he needs his daytime and evening drowsiness would disappear, he could do more and better work and find life much more enjoyable.

A slight drowsiness is often noticed after a hearty meal, because digestion draws a greater volume of blood to the stomach, so that the brain is relatively poorly supplied. In some southern countries this tendency is favored, and the siesta after the noon meal is a national custom. With us the after dinner cup of black coffee often drives away the impulse to sleep—whether for good or ill may be left to the physiologists to determine.

Sometimes we hear of attacks of sleepiness occurring suddenly at certain periods of the day at irregular intervals. These are altogether abnormal, and in such cases there is almost always some poison at work in the nervous centres, usually a self-manufactured poison, which, because it is made in too great quantity or because constipation or kidney disease prevents its rapid elimination, accumulates in the system.

An essential in the treatment of such cases is dieting. Meat should be given up for a time at least, and the only beverage allowable is water or milk.

"An Honor to Germany."

"I am going to make Munich such an honor to Germany," declared Ludwig I., "that nobody will know Germany who has not seen Munich."

This prophecy has not only been fulfilled, but fulfilled in such a natural, spontaneous way that the city is a running commentary on the character of its citizens. The capital of northern Germany is less an expression of its people than an embodiment of the character of its ruling family, but the southern capital is an open book wherein even the stranger may read the popular love of beauty and of bohemian ways, the untranslatable Gemutlichkeit, the dislike of trade, the piety, the simple, reposeful breadth, the loyalty to superstition and romance and the score of other qualities that go to make up the true Munchener.—Robert Haven Schauffler in Century.

REV J. H. TENEY AT ST. PHILIPS

Rev. J. H. Teney, the new rector of St. Philip's Anglican church, corner St. Patrick street and Spadina avenue, preached two scholarly sermons at the services yesterday. His coming to St. Philip's has added interest to the Anglicans in Toronto in that Bishop Sweeny was rector of the church when elected to the highest office in the diocese. Rev. Mr. Teney is an earnest speaker, and in his first sermon to his new congregation gave a very favorable impression of his pulpit power. The new rector was also present at the Sunday school in the afternoon. Rev. Mr. Teney came to Toronto from Omemee, where his congregation last week bade him farewell and fittingly recognized his services as rector there. His induction and institution at St. Philip's takes place this evening. Bishop Sweeny will conduct the service and Canon Dixon will preach.

CHANDLER—ELSEY

Miss Florence Elsey, of Beccles, Suffolk, England, arrived in the city at 5.30 a.m. on Sunday morning from Montreal, having landed from R.M.S. Virginian on Saturday. Miss Elsey was met by Mrs. R. J. Devey, from whose home she drove to St. John's church to be married to Mr. George Chandler, one of St. John's choristers, at 8 a.m. The Rev. Canon Davidson performed the ceremony. Some of the choir boys were present and sang the choral parts of the service, the wedding marches being played by Mr. R. J. Devey. The bride wore a cream dress and orange blossoms, and was given away by Mr. Nat Greenhalgh.

The bridal party were entertained to luncheon by Mrs. R. J. Devey, afterwards leaving the city for a trip by the 4.38 p.m. train.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler will reside on John street on their return to the city.

TOOK PARIS GREEN AND DIED

Hastings Woman Suicides-Temporarily Insane

Hastings, July 3.—Mrs. Jas. Stevenson, of this town, died this morning as a result of taking Paris green yesterday morning. After she had taken the poison she crossed the road to the house of her daughter and told her what she had done. Medical aid was at once summoned, and every possible effort made to save her, but without success, and she died early this morning. She was a woman of about sixty-nine years of age, and her health had been poor for some time. It is supposed that she took the poison in a fit of temporary insanity.

AT ST. ANDREW'S

At St. Andrew's church yesterday morning, Rev. J. G. Potter delivered a patriotic sermon in which he referred to the fact that at the time over 84,000,000 people in the United States and Canada were looking over the progress they have made during the past year. These two nations have been drawn closely together through commerce and education. They are both endeavoring to enlighten the world and more recently they have been interested in the laymen's missionary movement. He referred to the great interest Canadians are talking along lines of moral advancement, and in the government of the people.

The evening service was for young men in which he appealed to them to take the many opportunities afforded them in the summer season to improve the moral and intellectual faculties.

FARMERS PREPARE FOR HAY HARVEST

Crop a Good One on the Whole—Rain is Badly Needed

Peterborough county farmers are preparing for "haying," which will commence in some localities next week. On the whole, it is stated, the crop will be a good one, although rain is badly needed. A few heavy showers during the next few days would do a lot towards improving the crop.

Haying will be general in the county by July 15th.

A BELGIAN CANAL WILL HAVE THREE LIFT LOCKS

Constructed on Same Principle as Local One — Begian Officials Here to Inspect the Trent Canal Went to Kirkfield To-day.

The Belgian officials mentioned in Saturday's Review, arrived in the city on Saturday night to inspect the lift lock and to make a study of the Trent Canal. They came from Ottawa on the 4.38 C.P.R. and were shown the lock by Mr. J. H. McClelland, the superintendent of the Trent Canal. Their visit to the lock was of particular interest and value to them as three lift locks of a similar character will be built on a Belgian canal. The structure and mechanism of the locks will be like that of the Peterborough lock but they will not have such a high lift. The party before coming here visited the Erie canal, the Cornwall, the Rideau and the Soulanges. From here they will go to Welland to see the Welland Canal and before they return home they will inspect the important American canals. The party consists of Messrs. Hector Genard, Inspector General of Bridges and Highways; Leon Van Watter, engineer of Bridges and Highways; Kroft de la Saule, Chief Engineer of Buildings and Secretary of the Belgiam Government, and John Cockerill, of Searing.

To-day they are going over the Trent Canal, which it will take them about two days to see. They left this morning on the Bessie Butler accompanied by Mr McClellan and will inspect the Kirkfield lock.

On the Belgian canals the water supply is not so great as it is in Canada and the canals are somewhat smaller. And the boats that ply on the canals have to be built according to the specifications of the Government and must not be over a given length and width.

Held Firecracker In Teeth.

Lockport, N.Y., July 6.—John Mulvey, a porter in Sharkey's saloon, yesterday took a dare that he could not hold a big firecracker in his mouth. The explosion blew out his teeth, and lacerated the membrane of his mouth and throat. He was hurried to the hospital, where surgeons put fifteen stitches in his tongue and mouth. Tetanus is feared.

Fatalities at Wilkes-Barre.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 6.—An overcharged cannon exploded Sunday night in North Wilkes-Barre and four boys were so badly injured that two of them may not recover. Michael McNulty's left hand was blown off. Thomas Callahan lost an eye and Jas. Dougherty and Anthony Poerkowitz were perhaps fatally burned.

Exploding firecrackers set fire to the dress of ten-year-old Resa Lituake and she was fatally burned.

Fated to Lose His Life.

Madison, Ill., July 6.—Frank Dixon, 14 years old, son of George Dixon of St. Louis, was drowned in Horse Shoe Lake, near Madison. ## CAVAN TOWNSHIP WANTS A GRANT FROM THE CITY

To Assist in Opening Road From Mount Pleasant to Peterborough, Which Will Reduce the Distance by Four Miles.

Cavan township has again drawn the attention of the city to the fact that Peterborough promised a grant towards the construction of the Cavan drain and road. One thousand dollars is the amount that Cavan expects to receive from the city of Peterborough. As a result of the digging of the drain it was possible to open a road between the thirteenth and fourteenth concessions from Mount Pleasant to Peterborough. This road reduced the distance to the city by four miles, and it is claimed will result in a large increase in the trade to Peterborough from Emily, Manvers and that district.

A deputation from Cavan waited on the City Council in committee of the whole last night, and presented the claims of that township for a grant. The deputation consisted of Messrs. C. McNeil, ex-Warden of Northumberland and Durham; A. Kelly, Reeve of Cavan; G. Berry, Deputy Reeve; R. Hooten, Ex-Reeve, and R. Vance.

Mr McNeil said that a deputation from the Cavan Council had waited on the Peterborough Council about six years ago and asked for assistance. This was before the work was started. Mr. Roger, who was then Mayor, had promised them assistance. They asked for the same assistance as the city had given South Monaghan when the Bensfort bridge was built. This was $1,000. Mr. McNeil stated that the work would not have been started had not outside help been promised. The opening of the road from Mount Pleasant through Cavan would, when it was finished, be a great benefit to Peterborough.

Mr. Kelly, Mr. Hooten, Mr. Berry and Mr. Vance endorsed what Mr. McNeil had stated, and added some further information.

Although the drain has been completed, the road has not been completed, and it will require a good deal of money to make it fit for travel.

Mayor Rush said the city had no money to make a grant this year but the matter would be referred to the Finance Committee. This was done on motion of Ald. Metheral and Gillespie.

TO EXTIRPATE WHITE SLAVERY

Toronto, July 6.—A new campaign for the extripation of the white slave traffic in Canada will be launched at a conference here next week. This was decided upon by the executive of the Dominion Council of Moral and Social Reforms yesterday afternoon.

The executive met at the Confederation Life Building. Rev. Dr. Carman, president, was chairman. Rev. In considering the report of the committee upon criminal code amendments it was considered advisable to commence a public campaign immediately.

RUSH FOR LAND IN THE WEST

Many Camped at Lethbridge Office for Nearly a Week

Lethbridge, Alta., July 6.—Not since the opening of the pre-emption land last September has there been such a rush at the land office as there was yesterday morning, when about twelve sections, near Bow Island and Burdette, and two townships in Bad Water Lake district were opened for entry.

From last Wednesday men have been camping on steps of the office. At midnight Sunday there were sixty or seventy packed into the passage from the street to the door.

About 3 o'clock in the morning there was wild scenes. A gang of a dozen half-breeds and others not any too gentle, either in looks or action, drove up and undertook to clean out the place and secure first positions. They made an attack on the congested mass in the passageway, but were repulsed.

By the time the office opened there was a crowd of 200 or more waiting. Acting Agent J. A. Reid turned the key and then 200 men and women made a rush for the narrow opening. The structure strained and nearly broke. The human barricade was nearly carried away, but finally the mass came to a stand, and a man got through, the first to file on what is as good as $3,000 or $4,000, at a cost of $10 and a night's sleep. One by one they were let in and passed up the staffs handling over 250, and cleaning the bunch up in one day. All Bow Island land and practically all the Bad Water Land was taken up by 11.15.

FIGHT TO FINISH IN COAL STRIKE

Struggle is Now on in Colleries — Number Six is Closed Down and Others are Expected to Follow Soon—Company Evicts Strikers From Houses and Tented City Has Been Put Up.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 6.—The strike of the United Mine Workers of America members, so long threatened, is now on in earnest.

The opening gun in the strike was fired yesterday, and as a result Dominion No. 6 Colliery, famous for its connection with the steel-coal litigation, was closed down. This mine employed some 320 men. At this colliery the large majority of the employes have been known for some time to be in sympathy with the U.M.W.A. Notwithstanding the company's intention to operate that colliery yesterday, nearly all of the men failed to turn up and the result is that it shut down.

As the Dominion Coal Co. is not at present anxious for an output from this colliery no efforts were made to keep it in operation, so it may be regarded as permanently closed for the balance of the struggle. At the Hub and the International there are a considerable number of men who left their places yesterday, but at all the other collieries the situation remains unchanged.

The leaders of the U.M.W. were yesterday engaged in active preparations for the commencement of hostilities to-day. They intend, it is understood, to make their greatest demonstration of strength at Dominion No. 2 and they expect to turn out a picket force of 700 men to prevent the successful operation of the colliery. Dominion No. 2 is the largest and best-equipped colliery in the works and employes in its two seams over 2,000 men.

Whatever strength the P.W.A. possess lies at this point and it is expected that the struggle for supremacy will revolve about this centre. Should the U.M.W. be successful in closing down No. 2, they will have gone a long way towards establishing their claim that the great majority of the miners are enrolled and will fight under their colors.

On the other hand, the members of the P.W.A. are taking a philosophic view of the situation. They express their intention to be at their places right along and they anticipate no resistance on the part of their fellow-workmen.

As stated in the proclamation, issued by the company yesterday, all the men who quit work last night had to leave the company's houses immediately. This meant that every U.M.W. supporter in the bituminous district was without a roof over his head last night. To meet this contingency upward of two thousand canvas tents were received from international headquarters and a white spotted city grew up amid the black surrounding adjacent to the collieries.

The streets yesterday and last night were crowded with thousands of excited men and meetings are being held in all the colliery districts where U.M.W. locals are organized and the strike order is being promulgated by heads of the order.

Independent opinion leads to the view that the larger proportion of men will go out eventually, and that at most the Coal Company will not be able to operate more than two of their collieries and even these will be short-handed. Reserve and Dominion No. 1 are said to be the strongest P.W.A. centres, but even at these places it is thought a goodly proportion of the men will not work.

The force of constables appointed at the last session of the county council have been armed with rifles and revolvers, and those who are willing to act were being sworn in yesterday. Some of these men have refused to act as constables and consequently are not being sworn. The management of The Gazette newspaper of this place, which has been strongly opposed to the U.M.W. movement, have, it is said, put in a supply of firearms and also put a crowd of men in at night to watch the buildings.

The Coal Company will likely secure the services of an ex-Northwest mounted policeman who went through the South African war to lead its force of special officers at this place.

The town council will take steps to-night to close all liquor stores in the town as a precautionary measure, which step, it is understood, has the approval of the U.M.W. executive.

A man in town last night received a wire from a contractor in Moncton, N.B., asking for 500 men and guaranteeing these men steady work at fair pay. It is likely that he will get some of the men asked for.

Neither side to the dispute is doing any talking for publication, but all expect it will be a fight to the finish.

WILL WAIT ON PREMIER AS TO SEPTIC TANK TROUBLE

The following is a copy of a letter from Mr. Willis Chipman, of Toronto, in reference to the Cameron Septic Tank Company, which has made a claim against the city for using their patents. Several municipalities are in the same boat with Peterborough and these met in Toronto recently to discuss the claims. The following letter explains the results of the conference.

Mayor,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—The second meeting of the representatives of the municipalities interested in the claims of the Cameron Septic Tank Co. will be held in this city on June 24th.

After a lengthy discussion, a resolution was moved by Mr. T. G. Meredith, of Toronto, seconded by Mr. Wegenard, of Brampton, a copy of which I herewith enclose. After this meeting the chairman secured an appointment with the Premier of the Province, Sir James Whitney, for an interview, and he agreed to receive a deputation from the municipalities at noon on Wednesday, July 7th.

You are, therefore, requested to attend an important meeting which is to be held at the Engineers' Club Rooms, 36 King St., West, Toronto, at 10.30 a.m., on Wednesday, July 7th. At the conclusion of this meeting the delegates will go in a body and wait on the Premier. It is most important that every municipality at all interested in this matter should have representatives at this meeting and then you will advise me at once if your municipality will be represented.

WILLIS CHIPMAN,
Secretary.

BIG EXCURSION TO STONEY LAKE

The annual excursion of the Murray St. Baptist Sunday school was held this morning to Stoney Lake from the Wolfe street wharf over the lift lock. There was a very large attendance, the boat being thronged with the excursionists.

NIAGARA FALLS VISITED BY FIRE

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 6.—Fire destroyed the $10,000 plant of the Brooks Gasoline Engine Co., at Falls View, last night. The plant is a total loss and there was no insurance. There is no water supply in the township and the fire-fighting appliances are ancient and inadequate.

"Owing to these reasons," said Mr. Brooks, president of the company, "the insurance companies would not accept any risks, and I was unable to take any precautions against fire loss. All my money was invested in the plant, and I am now penniless."

The cause of the fire is attributed to electric wires.

BARTENDER WAS HEAVILY FINED

Chatham, July 6.—Emma Fraubert, charged with stealing $9 from John Ophee while the two were out on a good time, was sentenced to two years in the Mercer Reformatory. Fred Cook, found guilty of stealing a gold watch and other jewelry from the home of Thomas Slater, was sentenced to six months in Central Prison. Augustus Newman, bartender for John Dunlop of the Merrill House, was convicted of selling beer to a nine-year-old boy, who had presented a forged order. He was fined $50 and costs.

USED ONTARIO TEXT BOOKS

Ottawa, July 6.—Because Brother Philadelphus introduced into La Salle Academy, of which he was principal, the text books of the Ontario Education Department, so that pupils could try the regular departmental examinations, he has been recalled.

This academy is a private institution for boys, taught by the Christian Brothers, the studies ranging from junior classes to a course equal to the departmental matriculation. Brother Philadelphus altered the course of study and the text books in order that the boys might be enabled to qualify for the Ontario Educational Department certificates, but he was too progressive for his superiors, who all hail from France.

They said it was the entering of the thin edge of the wedge, which would result in trouble and misery, as it had in France, where an effort had been made to conform with the requirements of the state.

KINGSTON CHINKS MAKE A PROTEST

Kingston, July 6.—Local Chinamen have held a meeting protesting against the tax of $50 proposed by the City Council on laundries. An interpreter from Toronto discussed the situation with them, and they will wait on the Council and request reconsideration. They claim the tax is harsh and unfair, and quote Hamilton and Toronto, where $2 and $5 respectively are paid. They say that when $500 is paid to enter the country there should be no further tax.

Allowed Himself to Be a Target.

New York, July 6.—So certain was Andrew Hershi that a 22 calibre rifle would not carry 200 yards, that he offered himself as a living proof of his theory yesterday afternoon. Last night he was taken to a Jamaica, L.I., hospital with a 22-calibre bullet in the outer wall of his heart, dying. The police have the name of the man who fired the shot, but no arrest was made.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The new street railway at Calgary was opened for business yesterday.

John Snider was struck by a winch at St. John, N.B., and instantly killed.

The Belleville Ontario newspaper office was damaged by fire to the extent of $2,000.

A. Silinoski, a Winnipeg workman, fell forty feet off a building and escaped with minor injuries.

George Peake has been sent to the Pasteur Institute at New York from Stratford, having been bitten by a dog some weeks ago.

Esau Noah, Indian long distance runner of Highgate, was struck by a train and killed while going home from the circus at Chatham Saturday night.

Hon. J. M. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor, formally took over the new Children's home at Belleville, given by the city to the Children's Aid Society.

DEPUTY CHIEF ON VACATION

Will Visit the Large Cities and Inspect Fire Fighting Appliances

Deputy Chief George Grange, of the Fire Department, leaves on his annual two weeks' vacation to-day. He will endeavor to make his holidays profitable, and with this object in view will visit Toronto, Hamilton, Buffalo and several other large cities and inspect the fire fighting appliances at each place. During his absence, Fireman Arch. McBride will act as deputy chief.

FRANK MALONE LOSES HIS LIFE IN COBALT SHAFT

Two Men are Caught at 200-Foot Level and Several Rescuers are Overcome by Gas While Attempting to Carry Them Out.

Cobalt, July 6.—Frank Malone, aged 24, of Almonte, Ont., was asphyxiated early Sunday morning while working at the 200 foot level of the Crown Reserve mine. A companion and seven other men who went to the rescue were overcome by gas fumes, several having narrow escapes from death by suffocation, prompt action by fellow workmen and a corps of medical men.

Soon after Frank Malone and Fred Dyer had descended to the 200-foot level of No. 2 shaft of the Crown Reserve, George Leggett, who had stayed up at the 100-foot level, heard a scream. He notified the men at the shaft head and rescuers descending found Malone and Dyer unconscious, badly "gassed."

Reginald Harding and Leggett fought the effects of the gas till the two unconscious men were in the bucket and well on their way up the shaft, but after that they succumbed in climbing up the ladder leading from the 200 to the 100 foot level, and had to be sought for themselves. Keefe and McDonald, two other miners who helped get out Dyer and Malone, went down to get the first two rescuers up, and when they reached the surface were all in bad shape. All recovered but Malone, who died one and a half hours after he had been rescued. It was ascertained that he had suffered from lung trouble and, therefore, did not respond to the artificial respiration that was tried. He is a native of Almonte and a noted lacrosse player in the Ottawa League.

This fall in September full inspection of the regiment will take place. It will be the first fall inspection to be held for some time.

No Sign of Rust.

Winnipeg, July 6.—Reports of the condition of growing crops continue favorable. In view of the great heat following the heavy showers last week and of the stories of rust in North Dakota, some anxiety was felt as to that pest making its appearance in Southern Manitoba, but so far no reports to that effect have been received, and spring wheat on light lands appears to have picked up remarkably during the past fortnight.

Practiced Shooting for Six Months.

London, July 6.—A verdict of wilful murder has been rendered against the East Indian student who shot Lt.-Col. Wyllie. Records found in the student's room showed that he had been practicing steadily with a pistol since last January. The notebook gave the results of his shots at varying distances.

Child Poisoned by Whisky.

Tonawanda, N.Y., July 6.—Paul Gebhardt, the three-year-old son of Martin Gebhardt, found a whisky flask and drank nearly a pint of the liquor. He died yesterday evening.

Two Attempts at Suicide.

St. Catharines, July 6.—Mrs. William Robertson, of Decew Falls, twice attempted to commit suicide on Saturday and Sunday respectively. The first time she failed by the carbolic acid route, and Sunday she jumped into the cistern, which happened to contain too little water to cause death.

Killed In Machinery.

Georgetown, July 6.—A Scotchman, Robert Bremner, was instantly killed near here yesterday afternoon. He was employed by the Terra Cotta Brick Works and got tangled in the heavy machinery. His body was terribly mangled. He was 27 years of age and leaves a young wife.

PROBABILITIES.

CHILD-SUICIDE IN GERMANY

Child-suicide in Germany has increased to alarming proportions. Last year 63 school children took their lives. A thorough-going German analysis of the difficulty traces it unhesitatingly to that spirit of defiance and rebellion in children sometimes called high spirit, or independence, which has become the bane of home-life in Germany and elsewhere. Sparingly the rod has been carried to such an excess that there is no home discipline to speak of. Children have tasted liberty and they demand license. In a frenzy of passion or disappointment whenever it takes place, they kill themselves. The tendency to "smash" things is increasing. Unless as Goethe said, a wholesome chastisement with the rod is made use of to curb their self-will and wild, undisciplined human nature the result becomes serious. Without discipline the child becomes a savage. There may be a few exceptions but the general tendency is in that direction. At any rate the Germans have found that Solomon knew a thing or two and that our modern faddists are destroying child life rather than building it up. It is unwise to treat children as if their minds and dispositions were matured. The child is a child and it is absurd for its elders to wantonly abdicate their right and privilege of firm guidance and adequate control.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Anyone taking an interest in good, clean, healthy, invigorating recreation, formerly known as amateur sport, has felt of late under a necessity of eschewing the name "sport" as most likely to bring it under the evil reputation which Sport has acquired during the last few years in Canada.

Lacrosse in Eastern Canada became merely a game of ill-tempered slashing. Baseball for a time consisted largely of ragging the umpire. Cricket alone maintained its ancient respectability, although as a game it has been played in the callowest way possible, with few exceptions. Rowing is suffering an eclipse. Marathons have run mad but seem to be on the mend. Horse racing has become largely a school for betting. It is therefore with great satisfaction that we read the following extract regarding the Minto Cup games at New Westminster, B.C. Both victors and vanquished acted and talked like champions and not like babies.

The Minto Cup has served a noble purpose, and it is gratifying to find that we have not degenerated after all so much as we had feared. When things are "going bad" in anything there is always someone to "save the day" with us and to give the world impression that we are really fit to associate with "grown ups" in other countries. The representative Canadian, whether in sport or otherwise, usually does his country credit. It is only the third-raters who disgrace us.

"At the end of eighty minutes of what old-timers declare to have been the greatest lacrosse match ever played in British Columbia, the Westminster lacrosse club went off the field at Queen's Park yesterday with the Minto cup safe for another year and their proud title of Champions of the World secure as ever. Yesteray's score was 6 to 5, and with the lead of two established in Saturay's game, gave the Royals the series with three goals to the good. They clearly demonstrated their superiority, and proved that the western style of eternal rushing and running passing on the home is more effective than the typical eastern style affected by the Tecumsehs, whose home circled about, working in as possible, but always with the objective point of getting a man inside unchecked. In the mere matter of stick handling and general lacrosse knowledge an experience, it is safe to say that Westminsters are not a whit better than the Tecumsehs. As a matter of fact the Westminsters' defence is not a bit better than the Tecumsehs. But in the field the Royals showed great superiority. It was the speed and smashing tactics of the field and home that won the day and will probably continue to win for the Westminsters until they are beaten at the same game by men just as fast or a little faster.

Yesterday's game was a much harder affair than Saturday's. The challengers appeared in better shape and went the whole eighty minutes with never a sign of faltering. It was simply nip and tuck all the way, with neither team getting very much the best of the play at any time. The Westminster home did the most shooting, but that is their style, shooting at every opportunity, and Kinsman probably never had a more strenuous day in his career. This boy is a marvellous goalkeeper, and but for his work the champions would have piled up a big score.

The Tecumsehs themselves, from Charlie Querrie down were the first to congratulate the Royals at the end of the game and Querrie proved himself a gentleman and a thorough sport by his manly acknowledgement that he had been fairly and squarely beaten and that he had no complaint to make, either as to officials or as to treatment in Westminster.—Vancouver World.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The conduct of La Presse, the greatest of the French-Canadian journals in stigmatising the English-speaking citizens of Montreal as "aliens" and demanding the ignoring of them in the selection of the mayor of Montreal, has produced a profound impression. It looks like an attempt to renew the race-war of one hundred and fifty years ago, and as if La Presse intended to throw down the gage of battle.

A pack of Portland cement is a useful thing to have for making quick repairs. A hole in a drain pipe can be stopped in a few minutes with a little cement, mixed with water as thick as putty. A crack in a barrel can be stopped in this way. Hardwood floors may be patched and nail holes filled so that they will not leak. A waterproof floor can be laid over an old floor in a short time. Sweep the old loose boards. Cover with a layer of heavy wire netting, tacking it down occasionally. Over this lay a layer of concrete of one part Portland cement, three parts clean sand, mixed with water to a thin paste. Smooth thoroughly, but if it is to be used by stock, brush with an old broom to make it rough. Then let it dry thoroughly before using the floor. Gutters may be put in where necessary. Holes in an old shingled roof can be quickly stopped by forcing a little cement putty through the shingle where the leak appears.—Trade Review.

SUMMARY OF LATEST FRUIT CROP REPORT

Eastern Canada Will Have Large Crop of Winter Apples—Small Fruits Promise Well

Weather conditions in Canada have been favorable during the month of June for fruit crop development.

APPLES

Eastern Canada will have a large crop of winter apples from present indications. Early and fall varieties will not yield as heavily.

The apple prospects in British Columbia will hardly reach the average.

PEARS

PLUMS

Plums are estimated somewhat lower, generally, since the heavy bloom, but are showing for an average crop, in British Columbia, where the crop will be light.

PEACHES

Early peaches are reported medium to full crop; late peaches medium. "Curl leaf" is very prevalent, affecting Elbertas particularly.

GRAPES

Cherries will be a good average crop.

Tomatoes promise a good crop.

Small fruits promise well everywhere. Strawberries in Southern Ontario are a very large crop.

Insect and fungus diseases are fairly prevalent, but comparatively little damage is reported yet, except from the cankerworm in Nova Scotia.

Great Britain and Continental Europe.—The prospects are for not more than an average crop of fruit.

Maybee sold 16 heifers, 1070 lbs. each, at $5.75 also. There were no picked lots, as drovers were waiting for Tuesday; but prime picked steers and heifers are worth $5.75 to $6, the same as export heifers. Loads of good butchers' sold at from $5.40 to $5.60, medium, $5.15 to $5.35; common, $4 to $4.85; cows, good quality, $4.25 to $4.75; common cows, $3 to $4.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 5.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 3 were 375 cattle, 550 sheep and lambs, 1925 hogs and 1550 calves. The supply for local consumption this morning consisted of 1300 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 1050 hogs and 500 calves.

The offerings of cattle were 300 head larger than a week ago; but, notwithstanding this fact, the undertone to the market for good to choice was stronger, and prices for such advanced 1¼c per lb., as supplies of this class were limited, while the lower grades were plentiful and showed no improvement. The attendance of buyers was large, and, as the weather was much cooler, they showed a disposition to operate more freely, consequently a fairly active trade was done. The demand was principally for the top grades, while the common stock only met with a fair sale. Owing to the continued strong cable advices coming forward from all the leading foreign markets, which netted a further advance in prices of ¼c to ½c per pound, there is a steady demand from exporters for all suitable shipping stock, and this fact no doubt tended to strengthen the market for top grades to some extent. Choice steers sold at 6c to 6¼c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c; medium at 4½c to 4¾c; common at 3½c to 4¼c, and inferior at 2½c to 3¼c per pound.

The market for hogs was steady at the decline in prices noted on Wednesday, on account of the fact that supplies were smaller, for which the demand was good from packers, and sales of a few lots of selected were made at $8.60, but the bulk of trading was done at $8.50 per hundred pounds, weighed off cars. Cable advices from London last week noted an advance in prices for Canadian bacon of 2s to 3s per cwt., on account of light supplies, but those from Liverpool and Bristol were easier, with prices 1s to 2s lower than a week ago.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for small meats, prices for all lines being about steady, as the supplies coming forward are not in excess of the requirements. The demand for sheep was fair, at 3½c per pound, for local consumption, and as soon as they reach 3¾c there will be some demand for export account. Lambs met with a good sale at prices ranging from $3 to $6 each, and calves sold at from $3 to $8 each, as to quality.

At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts for the week ending July 3 were 323 cattle and 175 sheep for export account, and 1250 cattle, 355 sheep and lambs, 872 hogs and 1653 calves for local consumption. The supply on the market this morning consisted of 350 steers, 125 cows, 25 bulls, 150 sheep, 50 lambs, 50 hogs and 300 calves.

There were no new developments in this market for cattle, owing to the fact that the supply was in excess of the requirements, and trade on the whole was slow. Choice steers sold at 6c; good at 5¾c to 5¾c; fair at 4¾c to 5¼c, good cows at 3¾c; fair at 3c to 3¼c, and common at 2½c to 2¾c, and bulls at from 2¾c to 4c per pound.

The demand for small meats was good, and a fairly active trade was done in all lines at steady prices. Sheep sold at 3¾c per lb.; lambs at 8c per lb., and calves at from $1 to $8 each, as to quality. Hogs were a fair sale at $8.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Hogs—Receipts, 8800 head; active and 10c to 15c higher; heavy, $8.60 to $8.70; mixed, $8.50 to $8.60; yorkers, $8 to $8.50; pigs, $7.50 to $7.75; roughs, $7.15 to $7.40; stags, $5.75 to $6.50; dairies, $7.90 to $8.25.

BRILLIANT BASEBALL.

A Brainy Sequence of Plays by the Chicago Cubs.

Generalship by the manager is not all. A good team needs the fewest orders, and what perhaps was the most brilliant half inning ever played in a ball game, from the standpoint of headwork and perfect execution, was one in which the managers had small part. That inning was the last half of the fourth inning of the game between Detroit and Chicago on Oct. 13, the game that practically decided the world's championship series. Chicago had made two runs in the third inning and, with Brown pitching, appeared to be winning easily until O'Leary and Crawford opened Detroit's half of the fourth inning with fine singles to left, putting runners on first and second bases with none out and Cobb, the best batter in the American league, at bat. O'Leary is fast, Cobb is extremely fast, and Cobb is a natural and almost perfect bunter. Every one knew that Cobb intended to bunt the ball and that failure to retire either him or one of the other runners probably meant victory for Detroit. Jennings, Detroit's manager, sent Cobb to bat, with instructions to bunt toward third base. They knew that Brown intended to make the play to third base to force O'Leary, and the coachers were signaled to make O'Leary take as much lead toward third base as possible and to start running as the ball was pitched.

Brown, a past master in field generalship as well as execution, walked over to Steinfeldt at third base and said: "Anchor yourself to that bag. The ball is coming there." Kling signaled for a fast ball close to the batter at his waist. It was his plan to have Cobb miss the ball on his first attempt to bunt and then, by a quick throw to Tinker on second, to catch O'Leary off the base. Brown shook his head and signaled Kling his intention to pitch a curve ball low and at the outside corner of the plate. Cobb was hoping that Brown would pitch precisely that kind of a ball, and Brown knew that Cobb was hoping for it, and it was Brown's plan to force Cobb to do exactly what he was most anxious to do—to make a perfect bunt and toward third base. Brown pitched perfectly, and Cobb bunted perfectly, thirty feet toward third base and about five feet inside the foul line. As Brown pitched he went forward at top speed, "following the ball through," and he was in front of the ball when it bounded along. Still running, he scooped the sphere and, whirling, made a terrific throw straight to Steinfeldt, and O'Leary was forced out by fifteen feet on a seemingly impossible play, executed chiefly because Brown knew exactly what Cobb would do.

Chance's magnificent machine was not through. Knowing that the failure of that play would "rattle" the Tigers, they instantly seized the psychological situation. Kling gave a quick signal for a fast inshoot across Rossman's shoulders, and Brown, without waiting for Detroit to rally and plan a play, drove the ball fast and high. Rossman struck at the ball and missed it. Like a flash Kling hurled the sphere toward second base. Tinker met it at top speed, touched Crawford three feet from the base and, standing still, and Detroit was beaten in a panic. An instant later, as Rossman struck out, Kling threw to second, and Evers, leaping, stuck up one hand, dragged down the ball and while descending touched Cobb as he slid. The big crowd, frenzied over the brilliant series of plays and only half understanding them, cheered for five minutes.—Hugh S. Fullerton in American Magazine.

An Expedition That Failed.

With a courage equal to that of Columbus, two seven-year-old lads set sail from Boston the other day to join Roosevelt in Africa. They had built a raft of railroad ties and provisioned it for the long voyage. Besides several cans of tomatoes and condensed milk, three loaves of bread, a pound of bologna sausage and a lot of crackers, they had two fishing rods, a lantern and an oil stove. They expected to catch all the fish they could eat, no matter how long they might be on the water, for do not fish grow in the sea? Not the least important article in their equipment was a log book, in which they planned to write a record of their adventurous voyage. Of course they were picked up by fishermen before they got to the mouth of the harbor, but this interference with their plans did not lessen the audacity of their undertaking.—Youth's Companion.

Pte. Cartwright, of Moffat, encamped with the 1st Brigade Field Artillery at Guelph, died from heart failure after the firing exercise.

CHAPTER I.

TWO incidents, widely different in character yet bound together by results, marked the night of Jan. 23. On that night the blackest fog within a four years' memory fell upon certain portions of London and also on that night came the first announcement of the border risings against the Persian government in the province of Khorassan—the announcement that, speculated upon, even smiled at, at the time, assumed such significance in the light of after events.

At 8 o'clock the news spread through the house of commons, but at 9 men in at the sudden isolation, his second a thrill of nervous apprehension at the oblivion that had allowed him to be so entrapped. The second feeling outweighed the first. He moved forward, then paused again, uncertain of himself. Finally, with the consciousness that inaction was unbearable, he moved on once more, his eyes wide open, one hand thrust out as a protection and guide.

The fog had closed in behind him as heavily as in front, shutting off all possibility of retreat. All about him in the darkness was a confusion of voices—cheerful, dubious, alarmed or angry. Now and then a sleeve brushed his or a hand touched him tentatively. It was a strange moment, a moment of possibilities, to which the crunching wheels, the oaths and laughter from the blocked traffic of the roadway, made a continuous accompaniment.

Keeping well to the left Chilcote still beat on. There was a persistence in his movements that almost amounted to fear—a fear born of solitude filled with innumerable sounds. For a space he groped about him without result, then his fingers touched the cold surface of a shuttered shop front and a thrill of reassurance passed through him. With renewed haste and clinging to his landmark as a blind man might, he started forward with fresh impetus.

For a dozen paces he moved rapidly and unevenly, then the natural result occurred. He collided with a man coming in the opposite direction.

The shock was abrupt. Both men swore simultaneously, then both laughed. The whole thing was casual, but Chilcote was in that state of mind when even the commonplace becomes abnormal. The other man's exclamation, the other man's laugh, struck on his nerves. Coming out of the darkness, they sounded like a repetition of his own.

Nine out of every ten men in London, given the same social position and the same education, might reasonably be expected to express annoyance or amusement in the same manner, possibly in the same tone of voice, and Chilcote remembered this almost at the moment of his nervous jar.

"Beastly fog!" he said aloud. "I'm trying to find Grosvenor square, but the chances seem rather small."

The other laughed again, and again the laugh upset Chilcote. He wondered uncomfortably if he was becoming a prey to illusions. But the stranger spoke before the question had solved itself.

"I'm afraid they are small," he said. "It would be almost hard to find one's way to the devil on a night like this."

Chilcote made a murmur of amusement and drew back against the shop.

"Yes. We can see now where the blind man scores in the matter of salvation. This is almost a repetition of the fog of six years ago. Were you out in that?" It was a habit of his to jump from one sentence to another a habit that had grown of late.

"No." The stranger had also groped his way to the shop front. "No, I was out of England six years ago."

"You were lucky." Chilcote turned up the collar of his coat. "It was an atrocious fog, as black as this, but more universal. I remember it well. It was the night Lexington made his great sugar speech. Some of us were found on Lambeth bridge at 3 in the morning, having left the house at 12."

Chilcote seldom indulged in reminiscences, but this conversation with an unseen companion was more like a soliloquy than a dialogue. He was almost surprised into an exclamation when the other caught up his words.

"Ah! The sugar speech!" he said. "Odd that I should have been looking it up only yesterday. What a magnificent dressing up of a dry subject it was! What a career Lexington promised in those days!"

Chilcote changed his position.

"You are interested in the muddle down at Westminster?" he asked sarcastically.

"I?" It was the turn of the stranger to draw back a step. "Oh, I read my newspaper with the other 5,000,000, that is all. I am an outsider." His voice sounded curt. The warmth that admiration had brought into it a moment before had frozen abruptly.

"An outsider!" Chilcote repeated. "What an enviable word!"

"Possibly, to those who are well inside the ring. But let us go back to Lexington. What a pinnacle the man reached, and what a drop he had! It has always seemed to me an extraordinary instance of the human leaven running through us all. What was the real cause of his collapse?" he asked suddenly. "Was it drugs or drink? I have often wished to get at the truth."

Again Chilcote changed his attitude.

"Is truth ever worth getting at?" he asked irrelevantly.

"In the case of a public man—yes. He exchanges his privacy for the interest of the masses. If he gives the masses the details of his success, why not the details of his failure? But was it drink that sucked him under?"

"No." Chilcote's response came after a pause.

"Drugs?"

Again Chilcote hesitated. And at the moment of his indecision a woman the inner lobbies were gossiping, not so much upon how far Russia, while ostensibly upholding the shah, had pulled the strings by which the insurgents danced, as upon the manner in which the St. George's Gazette, the Tory evening newspaper, had seized upon the incident and shaken it in the faces of the government.

More than once before Lakely, the owner and editor of the St. George's, had stepped outside the decorous circle of tradition and taken a plunge into modern journalism, but tonight he essayed deeper waters than before and under an almost sensational heading declared that in this apparently innocent border rising we had less an outcome of mere racial antagonism than a first faint index of a long cherished Russian scheme, growing to a gradual maturity under the "drift" policy of the present British government.

The effect produced by this pronouncement, if strong, was varied. Members of the opposition saw, or thought they saw, a reflection of it in the smiling unconcern on the ministerial benches, and the government had an uneasy sense that behind the newly kindled interest on the other side of the house lay some mysterious scenting of battle from afar off. But though these impressions ran like electricity through the atmosphere, nothing tangible marked their passage, and the ordinary business of the house proceeded until half past 11, when an adjournment was moved.

The first man to hurry from his place was John Chilcote, member for East Wark. He passed out of the house quickly, with the half furtive quickness that marks a self absorbed man, and as he passed the policeman standing stolidly under the arched doorway of the big courtyard he swerved a little, as if startled out of his thoughts. He realized his swerve almost before it was accomplished and pulled himself together with nervous irritability.

"Foggy night, constable," he said, with elaborate carelessness.

"Foggy night, sir, and thickening up west," responded the man.

"Ah, indeed!" Chilcote's answer was absent. The constable's cheery voice jarred on him, and for the second time he was conscious of senseless irritation. Without a further glance at the man, he slipped out into the courtyard and turned toward the main gate.

At the gateway two cab lamps showed through the mist of shifting fog like the eyes of a great cat, and the familiar "Hansom, sir?" came to him indistinctly.

He paused by force of custom and, stepping forward, had almost touched the open door when a new impulse caused him to draw back.

"No," he said hurriedly; "no. I'll walk."

The cabman muttered, lashed his horse and, with a clatter of hoofs and harness, wheeled away, while Chilcote, still with uncertain hastiness, crossed the road in the direction of Whitehall.

About the abbey the fog had partially lifted, and in the railed garden that faces the houses of parliament the statues were visible in a spectral way. But Chilcote's glance was unstable and indifferent. He skirted the railings heedlessly and, crossing the road with the speed of long familiarity, gained Whitehall on the left hand side.

There the fog had dropped, and, looking upward toward Trafalgar square, it seemed that the chain of lamps extended little farther than the Horse guards and that beyond lay nothing.

Unconscious of this capricious alternation between darkness and light, Chilcote continued his course. To a close observer the manner of his going had both interest and suggestion, for though he walked on, apparently self engrossed, yet at every dozen steps he started at some sound or some touch, like a man whose nervous system is painfully overstrung.

Maintaining his haste, he went deliberately forward, oblivious of the fact that at each step the curtain of darkness about him became closer, damper, more tangible; that at each second the passersby jostled each other with greater frequency. Then, abruptly, with a sudden realization of what had happened, he stood quite still. Without anticipation or preparation he had walked full into the thickness of the fog—a thickness so dense that, as by an enchanter's wand, the figures of a moment before melted, the street lamps were sucked up into the night.

His first feeling was a sense of panic brushed past him laughing boisterously. The sound jarred him.

"Was it drugs?" the stranger went on easily. "I have always had a theory that it was."

"Yes. It was morphia." The answer came before Chilcote had realized it. The woman's laugh at the stranger's quiet persistence had contrived to draw it from him. Instantly he had spoken he looked about him quickly, like one who has for a moment forgotten a necessary vigilance.

There was silence while the stranger thought over the information just given him. Then he spoke again, with a new touch of vehemence.

"So I imagined," he said, "though, on my soul, I never really credited it. To have gained so much and to have thrown it away for a common vice!" He made an exclamation of disgust.

Chilcote gave an unsteady laugh. "You judge hardly," he said.

The other repeated his sound of contempt. "Justly so. No man has the right to squander what another would give his soul for. It lessens the general respect for power."

"You are a believer in power?" The tone was sarcastic, but the sarcasm sounded thin.

"Yes. All power is the outcome of individuality, either past or present. I find no sentiment for the man who plays with it."

The quiet contempt of the tone stung Chilcote.

"Do you imagine that Lexington made no fight?" he asked impulsively. "Can't you picture the man's struggle while the vice that had been slave gradually became master?" He stopped to take breath, and in the cold pause that followed it seemed to him that the other made a murmur of incredulity.

"Perhaps you think of morphia as a pleasure?" he added. "Think of it, instead, as a tyrant that tortures the mind if held to and the body if cast off." Urged by the darkness and the silence of his companion, the rein of his speech had loosened. In that moment he was not Chilcote, the member for East Wark, whose moods and silences were proverbial, but Chilcote the man whose mind craved the relief of speech.

"You talk as the world talks—out of ignorance and self righteousness," he went on. "Before you condemn Lexington you should put yourself in his place"—

"As you do?" the other laughed.

Unsuspecting and inoffensive as the laugh was it startled Chilcote. With a sudden alarm he pulled himself up.

"I?" He tried to echo the laugh, but the attempt fell flat. "Oh, I merely speak from—from De Quincey. But I believe this fog is shifting—I really believe it is shifting. Can you oblige me with a light? I had almost forgotten that a man may still smoke though he has been deprived of sight." He spoke fast and disjointedly. He was overwhelmed by the idea that he had let himself go and possessed by the wish to obliterate the consequences. As he talked he fumbled for his cigarette case.

His head was bent as he searched for it nervously. Without looking up he was conscious that the cloud of fog that held him prisoner was lifting, rolling away, closing back again, preparatory to final disappearance. Having found the case, he put a cigarette between his lips and raised his hand at the moment that the stranger drew a match across his box.

For a second each stared blankly at the other's face, suddenly made visible by the lifting of the fog. The match in the stranger's hand burned down till it scorched his fingers, and, feeling the pain, he laughed and let it drop.

"Of all odd things!" he said. Then he broke off. The circumstance was too novel for ordinary remark.

By one of those rare occurrences, those chances that seem too wild for real life and yet belong to no other sphere, the two faces so strangely hidden and strangely revealed were identical, feature for feature. It seemed to each man that he looked not at the face of another, but at his own face reflected in a flawless looking glass.

Of the two the stranger was the first to regain self possession. Seeing Chilcote's bewilderment, he came to his rescue with brusque tactfulness.

"The position is decidedly odd," he said. "But, after all, why should we be so surprised? Nature can't be eternally original. She must dry up sometimes, and when she gets a good model why shouldn't she use it twice?" He drew back, surveying Chilcote whimsically. "But, pardon me, you are still waiting for that light!"

Chilcote still held the cigarette between his lips. The paper had become dry, and he moistened it as he leaned toward his companion.

"Don't mind me," he said. "I'm rather—rather unstrung tonight, and this thing gave me a jar. To be candid, my imagination took head in the fog, and I got to fancying I was talking to myself"—

"And pulled up to find the fancy in some way real?"

"Yes, something like that."

Both were silent for a moment. Chilcote pulled hard at his cigarette, then, remembering his obligations, he turned quickly to the other.

"Won't you smoke?" he asked.

The stranger accepted a cigarette from the case held out to him, and as he did so the extraordinary likeness to himself struck Chilcote with added force. Involuntarily he put out his hand and touched the other's arm.

"It's my nerves!" he said in explanation. "They make me want to feel that you are substantial. Nerves play such beastly tricks!" He laughed awkwardly.

The other glanced up. His expression on the moment was slightly surprised, slightly contemptuous, but he changed it instantly to conventional interest. "I am afraid I am not an authority on nerves," he said.

But Chilcote was preoccupied. His thoughts had turned into another channel.

"How old are you?" he asked suddenly.

The other did not answer immediately. "My age?" he said at last slowly. "Oh, I believe I shall be thirty-six tomorrow, to be quite accurate."

Chilcote lifted his head quickly.

"Why do you use that tone?" he asked. "I am six months older than you, and I only wish it was six years. Six year nearer oblivion"—

Again a slight incredulous contempt crossed the other's eyes. "Oblivion?" he said. "Where are your ambitions?"

"They don't exist."

"Don't exist? Yet you voice your country? I concluded that much in the fog."

Chilcote laughed sarcastically.

"When one has voiced one's country for six years one gets hoarse. It's a natural consequence."

The other smiled. "Ah, discontent!" he said. "The modern canker. But we must both be getting under way. Good night. Shall we shake hands—to prove that we are genuinely material?"

Chilcote had been standing unusually still, following the stranger's words, caught by his self reliance and impressed by his personality. Now, as he ceased to speak, he moved quickly forward, impelled by a nervous curiosity.

"Why should we just hail each other and pass—like the proverbial ships?" he said impulsively. "If nature was careless enough to let the reproduction meet the original she must abide the consequences."

The other laughed, but his laugh was short. "Oh, I don't know. Our roads lie differently. You would get nothing out of me, and I"— He stopped and again laughed shortly. "No," he said. "I'd be content to pass if I were you. The unsuccessful man is seldom a profitable study. Shall we say good night?"

He took Chilcote's hand for an instant, then, crossing the footpath, he passed into the roadway toward the Strand.

It was done in a moment, but with his going a sense of loss fell upon Chilcote. He stood for a space, newly conscious of unfamiliar faces and unfamiliar voices in the stream of passersby. Then, suddenly mastered by an impulse, he wheeled rapidly and darted after the tall, lean figure so ridiculously like his own.

Halfway across Trafalgar square he overtook the stranger. He had paused on one of the small stone islands that break the current of traffic and was waiting for an opportunity to cross the street. In the glare of light from the lamp above his head Chilcote saw for the first time that, under a remarkable neatness of appearance, his clothes were well worn—almost shabby. The discovery struck him with something stronger than surprise. The idea of poverty seemed incongruous in connection with the reliance, the reserve, the personality of the man. With a certain embarrassed haste he stepped forward and touched his arm.

"Look here," he said as the other turned quietly. "I have followed you to exchange cards. It can't injure either of us, and I—I wish to know my other self." He laughed nervously as he drew out his cardcase.

The stranger watched him in silence. There was the same faint contempt, but also there was a reluctant interest in his glance as it passed from the fingers fumbling with the case to the pale face with the square jaw, straight mouth and level eyebrows drawn low over the gray eyes. When at last the card was held out to him he took it without remark and slipped it into his pocket.

Chilcote looked at him eagerly. "Now the exchange?" he said.

For a second the stranger did not respond. Then, almost unexpectedly, he smiled.

"After all, if it amuses you"— he said; and, searching in his waistcoat pocket, he drew out the required card.

"It will leave you quite unenlightened," he added. "The name of a failure never spells anything." With another smile, partly amused, partly ironical, he stepped from the little island and disappeared into the throng of traffic.

Chilcote stood for an instant gazing at the point where he had vanished; then, turning to the lamp, he lifted the card and read the name it bore, "Mr. John Loder, 13 Clifford's Inn."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed for ever: nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness —caused by catarrh— that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WEDDING BELLS

LEACH—TIVEY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Luke's church last evening at 7 o'clock when Miss Alice Tivey, 137 Stanley ave., Ashburnham, was united in marriage to Dr. G. C. Leach, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson in the absence of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt. The contracting parties were unattended and only their immediate friends were present. At the conclusion of the ceremony a dainty luncheon was partaken of at the residence of the bride's parents, and Dr. and Mrs. Leach left on the nine o'clock train for a trip to Toronto, Niagara, Buffalo and Detroit and on their return will reside at 224 Hunter street.

MACHINERY FOR DRILLING

For Natural Gas Now on the way to Peterborough—Another Extension

Mr. R. H. Leary asked the City Council last night for a further extension in the franchise for gas-drilling granted to Mr. C. E. Dettman, of Waynesburg, Pa. Mr. Leary said the delay in getting started was due to the contractors not forwarding the drilling machinery. He had two telegrams stating that the machinery was now on the way to Peterborough. Gillespie, an extension of one month was granted.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Is a Success In Guelph Says Former Peterboro Boy

Mr. Frank Sawers, ledger keeper of the Bank of Montreal, Guelph, is in the city on a week's visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sawers, Brock street.

Mr Sawers says that municipal ownership, which has been so frequently discussed here, in the western town is meeting with popular approval and is proving quite a success. The rate of taxation in the Royal City is 13 mills on the dollar and it is expected that in two years it will be reduced to 11 mills.

Lake Huron and Lake Superior

A magnificent summer trip is enjoyed by taking this "fresh water sea voyage" from Sarnia, Ontario, to Fort William, Ontario, through these great inland seas. This year new steamers have been added to the Northern Navigation Co.'s fleet, and the finest and fastest vessels on the Great Lakes will fly the house flag of this popular company. The steamers run in connection with the Grand Trunk Railway System, and all particulars, rates and descriptive literature, etc., can be had for the asking by applying to J. D. McDonald, district passenger agent, Toronto, Ont.

SAWDUST PILES CONSIDERED NUISANCE BY THE CITY

On Account of the Fires Breaking Out There—Hydraulic Company Will be Notified to This Effect.

Outside of the weather, the sawdust pile fire has been the most talked of matter among the members of the Fire, Water and Light Committee during the past few days. The question came up at the meeting of the City Council last night, when Ald. Butler pointed out that it took some 1800 feet of hose to reach the fire, and this meant that the fire brigade was almost completely crippled if a fire broke out in another part of the city at the same time.

Mr. J. H. Larmouth, who was present, stated that the fires in the sawdust piles were largely caused by boys throwing away lighted matches and cigarettes on the property. There was never trouble except during a prolonged period of drought.

Ald. Morgan said the fires were a nuisance to persons living in a certain part of Ashburnham. If the Peterborough Hydraulic Co. was responsible for the nuisance they should be compelled to look after it.

Mr. Larmouth said the company was entitled to fire protection on their property. If they were compelled to fight the fires without assistance they would see that persons were not allowed to cross over the dam as they are permitted to do now.

Chief Howard expressed the opinion that the fire would burn all summer. He considered it a nuisance.

Mr. Larmouth said if a three-inch pipe was placed across the river and a hydrant put in the sawdust piles without the use of a very extensive length of hose.

Chief Howard said this was a good suggestion.

Mr. Larmouth said it would require about 500 feet of hose.

There was considerable discussion on the matter and Ald. Morrow and Ald. Morgan moved that the Hydraulic Co. be written to and notified that the sawdust piles were a nuisance on account of the fires that started there and that they should be attended to.

In the meantime it was decided to authorize the chairman of the Fire Water and Light Committee to engage men to fight the fires, when necessary, the Hydraulic Company to pay half of the expense.

OLD RESIDENT TALKS OF EARLY DAYS IN PETERBORO'

Mr. William Hetherington, of Fenelon Falls, Lived Here When There Was Only One Brick House—Peterboro' Has Made a Wonderful Growth.

The Review had an interesting caller yesterday afternoon in the person of Mr. William Hetherington, of Fenelon Falls, who took the opportunity afforded by the excursion from that place to visit friends and acquaintances here. Mr. Hetherington formerly was a resident of Peterborough, in fact one of the early settlers. He came out from England in the year 1852, and at that time there was only one brick house here, it being situated down near the market and occupied by a shoemaker named Tom Leonard. In speaking of the post office at that time Mr. Hetherington referred to the structure in a rather sarcastic manner, stating that you could carry it away on your shoulders.

The young fellows of the town were very wild, and as the police force only amounted to one man he generally had a busy time. The only railroad coming in to Peterborough was the old Cobourg line across Rice Lake, the station being situated in Ashburnham. Mr. Hetherington well remembers the visit of the Prince of Wales, now King Edward, in 1860, he being one of a committee who had charge of the arrangements in the entertaining of the visitors.

"You have now a beautiful city," said the visitor, "and it is hard to realize such a change from the days when I first came to Peterborough and the present time."

BELMONT CLUB HELD ENJOYABLE MOONLIGHT

The Belmont Club held a most enjoyable and successful moonlight excursion down the river last evening. The steamer Stoney Lake came down from Lakefield especially for the affair and there were nearly two hundred on board when the wharf was left shortly after eight o'clock. The 57th Band furnished excellent music, and as the evening was a particularly pleasant one for such an occasion, the large number of young people thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The sail down to Hales' Bridge and return was made in good time and it is hoped that the Belmont Club will arrange for several other evening outings of this nature during the season.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN W. KINDRED.

At "Wellbeck," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Breckenridge, Westwood, Ont., their daughter, Annie W., passed to her rest at the early age of 36 years. She was married to Mr. John W. Kindred, of Otonabee, about thirteen and a half years ago, and leaves her husband and three children to mourn her death. Mrs. Kindred had been in failing health for some time previous to her death, and removed to "Wellbeck" with the hope that a change would help her. She, however, grew gradually weaker until, on the 22nd ult., she passed quietly away. During her illness she manifested much patience and Christian resignation. Her end was peace. She was well known and highly respected, and the bereaved husband and family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends. The remains were taken from her late residence to Little Lake cemetery on the 24th ult. The service was conducted by the Rev. W. Harrison and the Rev. D. D. McDonald, of Keene.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE DR. DAVIES

The funeral of the late Dr. Alfred Davies took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, 106 McDonnel street, and many friends and acquaintances took the opportunity of paying their last respects to one who had been held in high esteem by them. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's church, of which the deceased had been a member. The floral tributes were many and beautiful and the pall-bearers were Messrs. Robt. Fair, John I. Lundy, R. W. Grubbe, T. C. Elliott, John Crane, W. H. Robinson.

TRAIN SERVICE FOR JULY 12th

A good train service has been secured to carry those who wish to take in the celebration at Port Hope on July 12th. A train will leave Lakefield at 10 a.m. and will stop at Nassau and Auburn Mills, arriving in Peterborough at 10.40. Stops will be made at the various stations along the route to Port Hope, at which place the train will arrive at 11.50, returning at 6.30 p.m. Tickets are good until the following day. A similar service will be given from other points on the Grand Trunk railway, and there is every indication that Port Hope will have a big crowd of visitors on the day of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

ENTERS CLAIM AGAINST CITY

Man Who Was Quarantined Puts in a Bill to the Council

James Williamson, 83 Aylmer street, has written the city council, claiming from the city a sufficient sum of money to pay for the keep of himself and family from June 12th to June 26th, during which time they were quarantined by the medical health officer. The letter states that there are eight in the family and that all were kept at home.

The letter has been referred to the Legal Committee.

SOME TALK ABOUT THE BAND CONCERTS

Band concert talk was to the fore for a few minutes at the Council meeting last night.

It was stated by Ald. Bradburn that one of the officers of All Saints' church requested that the band concert next Friday night be discontinued on account of the laying of the corner stone of their church.

Moved by Ald. Hicks and Ald. Duncan that the band be requested to play near All Saints' church on Friday night instead of in the Victoria Park.

Moved by Aldermen Turner and Bradburn, that the band concert be not interfered with.

This was carried by a vote of 6 to 5.

Ald. Duncan said the Master Painters would be here for three days, July 27, 28 and 29, and he would like to have the band play on Wednesday night as a part of the entertainment for the visitors.

It was pointed out that the band did not play last Friday night.

The matter was left in the hands of the Property Committee.

The mayor will read an address of welcome to the painters.

WILL BE KEPT BUSY TILL SNOW FLIES

If Hamilton Man is Going to Rid His Property of all the Weeds He's Notified of

There's no getting away from the laws of this blessed land. They follow a fellow wherever he goes, and demand that certain things be settled up or the axe of justice will fall good and hard. A man who has left the limits of some other burg and is peacefully pursuing his lucrative avocation five hundred miles away, is brought up with a round turn, and prodded with his sins of omission, and told to pay up and stand from under.

Yesterday a Hamilton man living in this city, and who owns a piece of property which the tax collector hasn't had time to absorb, received a post card, notifying him to take the train and hustle and do things. The card was appaling in the immensity of the duties it insisted on being done. Within ten days, under a penalty of $20, he is required to cut down a quantity of ox-eye daisies, wild oats, rag weed, burdock, wild clover, marshmallow, milk weed, dandelion, narrow dock, golden rod, mullen and thistles of all kinds. It is safe to conclude that the hay crop will be both thin, short and light if all these weeds abound.

WANT ROLL RETURNED AT ONCE

Council Instructs Tax Collector to This Effect--Discount Given Till Close of August

City Tax Collector Green has the 1908 roll almost ready to be returned. There were, Mr. Green informed the Council last night, three cases pending settlement and he asked for permission to have the roll a few days longer so that they could be disposed of.

On motion the collector was instructed to close the roll at once and return it. The 1909 roll will be given the collector as soon as the 1908 one is returned.

On account of August 1st coming on a Sunday, the discount of three per cent will be given on all taxes paid before the close of Monday, August 2nd.

THE BY-LAW

The Smith street bridge is to be of concrete and to cost $32,500 all told. It is gratifying to find that a way out of the great expense of the concrete bridge outlined before, has at last been found. Unlike a steel bridge, a concrete bridge needs no repairs, no keeping up and it will be better and stronger at the end of fifty years than it is when built. While the width and general character of the proposed bridge is suitable for all traffic except that of the street railway, it is not so spacious as at first planned, yet it is spacious enough to meet all requirements. The city cannot afford to let its highways and bridges get out of repair. If that is to be the policy there is no good in discussing any plan for the development of the city. It would not even be maintaining the city at its hitherto level of efficiency. To ignore the necessity of a bridge at Smith street is to say that the city has gone back in the needs of traffic, and that while we bonus a Cavan road we decline to adopt the most obvious measures for keeping the trade already ours of those parts of townships lying within reach of Lakefield, Warsaw, Norwood, etc., which might otherwise have continued to come to Peterborough. The 29th of July will no doubt see the carrying of this by-law, and that for street extension as well. It would not only be detrimental to our city's welfare and prosperity to ignore them it would speedily mean a decrease in assessment, at least in the northern part of the city.

COMPLAINS ABOUT MARKET ARCADE

Citizen Writes to Council and Says it is in Filthy Condition

The following letter was read at the meeting of the city council last night:—

Peterborough, June 24th, 1909.
To His Worship the Mayor, and Aldermen of the City:

Dear Sir,—I desire to call your attention to the filthy condition of the market arcade and suggest that some permanent arrangements be made for having it flushed at least once a week, and also to be kept well swept every day during the warm weather and as often as is necessary throughout the year. In its present condition, and which has prevailed during seven months, it is certainly a bad bed for propagating diseases, and at this period when contagious diseases are prevalent it appears to the man up a tree that it would be economy to clean out such nuisances rather than allow them to exist.

Trusting that you will give this you attention at once.

Yours respectfully,
W. H. ROSS,
One of the Sufferers.

The letter was referred to the Property Committee.

LOCAL TEAM WILL BE STRONG FOR GAME WITH BARRIE NINE

Fans Are Assured of a Classy Exhibition at Riverside Park Wednesday Afternoon.

Local lovers of the baseball game are assured of a good exhibition at Riverside Park on Wednesday afternoon when a picked team from the City League will meet the fast Barrie nine, the contest starting at two o'clock, so as to allow the visitors to have plenty of time to make their train which leaves shortly after five o'clock. Quinlan, of the T.A.S., and Kirn, of the West Ends, will do the heaving for local team, while the receiving end will be well looked after by Doc McFadden. M. O'Brien, who has won a name for himself by his clever work, this season, will scoop them up at the initial bag, while Yeb Flaherty will do a likewise duty around second base. Kendrey and Craig of the Strathconas will work at short and third respectively and the infield will be hard to beat. The outfield will be composed of Bill Shaw at left, Jimmie Callaghan at centre and either O'Brien of the P.A.C., or Curtis, at right.

The visitors will have a strong team their battery being one of the fastest in the province. Nearly eight hundred supporters will accompany the team and be right on the job with the big noise.

The fans in this city now have the chance to patronize a team composed of strictly home brews and there should be a large crowd on hand Wednesday afternoon.

KETCHELL AGAIN WORSTS PAPKE IN GREAT FIGHT

San Francisco, July 5.—Stanley Ketchell, of Michigan, is still the world's middleweight champion. In a desperate gruelling battle, during which the champion was constantly on the aggressive, he was awarded the decision over Billy Papke, of Illinois, at the end of the twentieth round, the scheduled number. Ketchell claimed to have broken his right hand in the sixth round and this assertion subsequently was verified. His left thumb was also dislocated. The decision of the referee was greeted with a mixture of cheers.

Referee Roach, after the contest, made the following statement: "Ketchell was the aggressor at all times. Furthermore, he landed the cleaner and harder punches and scored the only knock down in the tenth round, although nearly everybody seems to think that Papke slipped to the floor. There is absolutely no question but Ketchell earned a clean cut decision.

Both men weighed in at 11 o'clock and easily made their required weight, 158 pounds.

There was brisk betting at the ringside. Many wagers were made at 10 to 5 with Ketchell the favorite. Even money was laid that Ketchell would win inside twelve rounds.

The receipts were estimated at $27,000.

Ketchell forced the fighting from the tap of the initial gong and with the exception of the third enjoyed a clear lead in the first half of the battle. In the eleventh Ketchell landed time and again with ponderous lefts, but try as he would he could not find a vital place. Both men were bleeding freely at this stage of the battle, Papke in particular spitting blood from his mouth and nose, until the entire ring resembled a shambles. The feature of the fight was the extreme viciousness with which both men fought, and the apparent hatred that lurked behind every punch.

When seen in his dressing room Ketchell gave out this statement: "I broke my right hand in the sixth round and later on, in the eighth round, I believe, I dislocated my thumb on my left. But for these mishaps I would have made short work of Papke. I will be only too glad to give Papke another chance."

The defeated pugilist said he would fight Ketchell at any time. Willus Britt said that unless Ketchell's hand improved the champion would not be able to fight Jim Flynn in Los Angeles on July 14.

LINES ON SPORT

Dicky Gray and Bill Cinnoman, of Lindsay, were the battery for Stouffville against Markham on Saturday. Hickey, of Toronto, twirled for Markham, but the former won the game by 9—0.

Bobby Kerr will now return home minus the championship which he won last year.

Tom Longboat has purchased his own contract from Pat Powers for $1,000 and Sol Mintz will handle him in the future.

The Eel, owned by Frank Wentieken, of Tavistock, broke all Canadian records for a half mile track on Saturday at Stratford, when this famous horse paced a mile in 2.05 1-2. The best previous record for the distance was 2.07 3-4 held by Dan Patch.

Alf. Shrubb defeated Nebrick, the middle distance runner, last night in Buffalo in a ten mile race. Shrubb gave his opponent a handicap of a quarter of a mile, but won by 300 yards in 52.10.

Toronto won both games yesterday from Rochester. Pfeffer won the morning game, 9—5, and Rudolph scored a strike-out in the afternoon contest, 5—0.

Fred Falconburg won a game for Cleveland against Walsh of Chicago yesterday. Score 4—3.

Pat Dinean won a Marathon in Burlington yesterday, doing the distance in three hours. Johnny Hayes was second, a half a mile behind, with Ted Crooks third, and Black Hawk fourth.

Still Bill Papke is not satisfied that Ketchell is his master. They have fought four times, including yesterday's 20 round go. On June 4, 1908, they clashed for the first time in a ten-round bout in Milwaukee, Ketchell getting the decision after winning all the way.

NEW LEAGUE MAY BE FORMED

Baseball for Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and London

Ottawa, July 3.—Those agitating the formation of an all-Canadian baseball league have been at work in Ottawa the past two days sizing up the possibilities of the Capital as an organized ball town.

Acting on orders from Montreal and Hamilton parties a gentleman interviewed Dr. Dan Baird and Mr. A. N. Payne on the situation, and for the time being Mr. Payne will look into the situation in Ottawa.

"The proposition is," said Mr. Payne, "to form a five-club league, made up of Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, London and Ottawa. It would be affiliated with the national commission. No attempt will be made to organize this season, but I think next year you will see Ottawa represented in a first-class league with a first-class team."

It has been intimated the Ottawa Electric Railway may aid in backing the local club and all games will be played at the company's new park in Holland avenue.

Mr. Payne states the league would probably work on the same principle as the Eastern, that of pooling all gates, so that no one town would be a heavy loser. Mr. Wm. Foran is interested in the project, and it is said Messrs. Chas. Irvin, D. B. Mulligan and L. N. Bate may be associated with it.

WOULD A WALK PAY IN PETERBORO'?

Tom Andrews, the sporting editor of the Milwaukee Wisconsin, and compiler of, with A. Mennier, of the well-known sporting year book, has written to know how a six-day walk would pay in Peterborough this fall. The right reply has been sent to Andrews, and it's an easy matter to guess the answer.

THE EEL AGAIN BROKE RECORD

Stratford, July 3.—The Eel, owned by Frank W. Entricken, of Tavistock, broke all his records for a half mile track when this famous horse ran a mile in 2.05 1-2 at the Athletic Park here this afternoon. The previous record for the half mile track was 2.07 3-4, held by Dan Patch. The first quarter was gone in 30 1-2, the half in 1.02 and the three-quarters in 1.33 1-2. The conditions were not the most favorable, as the weather was cold and a high wind prevailed. The exhibition was given for the benefit of the General hospital building fund, and a large crowd was present.

HOUSE AT LANG BURNED TO GROUND SUNDAY AFTERNOON

James Nelson Suffers Heavy Loss—Miss Nelson Had Narrow Escape From Being Trapped in Burning Structure.

Keene, July 5.—The house occupied by Mr. Jas. Nelson, Lang, was burned to the ground Sunday afternoon. The cause of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have been due to a defective chimney. Mr. Nelson had only left the house a couple of minutes when the fire broke out and his daughter was upstairs. Neighbors who saw the blaze gave the alarm, and Miss Nelson was only able to get out in time to save herself. Most of the doors and windows were open, which no doubt caused the fire, which apparently started in the kitchen, to spread so rapidly. Although there were a great many houses quite near, and the neighbors all responded promptly and willingly to the alarm, the fire spread so rapidly over the house, which was a clapboard building, that they could only enter one room—the parlor—and from that were only able to remove the organ and a couple of chairs. A buggy, which had been in the woodshed, was run out, and by that time the whole building was in flames, and nothing more could be saved. All else was burned, even the family's personal effects and a sum of money which Mr. Nelson had left in the house.

The energies of the men were next directed towards Mr. David Hastie's stable, which was in close proximity to the house, and with difficulty it was saved. Had it caught fire, it would have been difficult to have saved the dwelling houses occupied by Messrs. Witham and David Hastie, and Mr. David Hastie's planing mill, sheds and paint shop, which were all close together. Indeed it was fortunate that the wind was in the west, for had it been in any other direction it would have been difficult to prevent the fire spreading. As it was, Mr. Robt. Humphries' barns, which was in the course of the flying sparks, were in some danger, and fire broke out in more than a dozen places in the barn yard, but was in each case extinguished. Of course everything was so dry that, had the fire got a fair start anywhere it would have been utterly impossible to put it out.

It was with considerable difficulty that it was prevented from running through the grass into Mr. Humphries' fence, some distance away from the burning house.

The house, which was the property of Mr. Robt. Humphries, was uninsured, but Mr. Nelson had $100 insurance on his household effects, but his loss will be considerable.

It must have been gratifying to the sufferers from the fire and to those whose buildings were in danger, to note the energy and spirit of the residents of the village, every man of did his utmost to prevent the fire from spreading.

TWENTY DIVINES WERE HERE FOR FUNERAL OF LATE FATHER LYNCH

Solemn Requiem Mass Sung by Right Rev. Monseigneur McCann—Father O'Sullivan of Port Hope preached Eulogestic Sermon. A Solemn Occasion in the History of the Diocese.

This morning at nine o'clock St. Peter's Cathedral witnessed the last rites of the church administered over the remains of one of its oldest and most esteemed pastors, the late Father Lynch, who died on Saturday morning. As is generally known, Father Lynch was a parish priest here for fifteen years and was universally respected. There was a large number of citizens of all denominations present at the cathedral.

Twenty visiting priests were in town for the ceremony and the list of out-of-town divines was as follows: Rt. Reverend Monseigneur McCann, of St. Mary's church, Toronto; Very Reverend Vicar General Corbett, of Cornwall; Father M. Spratt, Belleville; Father T. Spratt, Wolfe Island; Father Hartigan, Deseronto; Father Hogan, Perth; Father Scanlon, Grafton; Father Murray, Cobourg; Father O'Sullivan, Port Hope; Father M. McGuire, Wooler; Father P. McGuire, Downeyville; Father T. B. O'Connell, Warkworth; Father Whibbs, Campbellford; Father Conway, Norwood; Father Fitzpatrick, Ennismore; Father Phelan, Young's Point; Father W. B. Collins, Gananoque; Father Walsh, the Gore of Toronto; Father Roach, St. Michael's College, Toronto; Father Galvin, Galway.

Solemn Requiem Mass was sung by Right Reverend Monseigneur McCann. The celebrant was assisted by Rev. T. Spratt, of Wolfe Island as sub-deacon, and Father Hartigan, of Deseronto, as deacon; Father Kelly, of the Cathedral staff, was master of ceremonies, and the other members of the cathedral staff and His Lordship Bishop O'Connor were present at the mass, and at the end of the mass His Lordship performed the absolution.

Father O'Sullivan, of Port Hope, the successor of Father Lynch at that parish, which was the last one of the deceased priest, preached a very eloquent and pathetic sermon dealing with the life of Father Lynch, especially in Peterborough diocese. During his term as parish priest he had been most active in the interests spiritual and material of his parishioners, and had the honor of baptising fifteen priests of the diocese.

Last night at 7.30 o'clock the remains were removed from the late residence at the corner of Rubidge and Charlotte streets, to the cathedral, and were followed by a procession of the men of the parish. At the cathedral they remained in state until mass this morning. Last night the members of St. Peter's T.A.S. relieved each other in keeping watch over the body. As the remains lay in state a large number of members of the congregation viewed the remains.

The funeral was an especially large one, bespeaking the high regard held for Father Lynch. The priests went to the cemetery with the funeral procession and were at the graveside when the remains were interred. The last prayers of the church were offered up by Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

GARDEN PARTY AT MARK STREET

Epworth League Held Pleasant Affair Last Evening

The Epworth League of Mark St. Methodist church held an enjoyable garden party on the grounds of the parsonage last night, and a large number of young people gathered and spent a pleasant time together.

Strawberries and cream and other delicacies were obtainable from the various booths, and a splendid programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered. Those taking part were a male quartette from Charlotte St. church, Mr. Simmons, cornet selections, Mr. Myland and Miss Downsby, vocal solos. A large gramaphone enlivened the proceedings considerably with numerous selections.

Bad Spelling

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—While passing the Brock street entrance to Victoria Park today, my eye was attracted towards a large sign, conspicuously placed on a tree in the park notifying everybody to keep off the grass and away [illegible]. Now there will be a large number of visitors in the city to-morrow, and I sincerely hope that someone who has thoroughly mastered the art of spelling will undertake to see that the sign is taken down and treated to a coat of paint, after which each word will be spelled correctly and not as it is at the present time, be a disgrace to the educational institutions of this city.

FRUIT—THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

Wonderful Medicinal Value of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

How many people realize what remarkable curative principles are contained in fruit juices. There are two—the bitter and the sweet. There is about ten times as much of the sweet as of the bitter, though the bitter principle is the one which has the curative effect on disease. Apples, oranges, figs and prunes contain the highest percentage of bitter principle and thus are the most healthful.

It was a theory of a physician in Ottawa, that if the amount of bitter principle in fruit juice could be doubled, the curative property would be increased, not twice but many times.

After many tests, this physician succeeded in forcing into the combined fruit juices an additional atom of bitter principle, and in doing so formed an entirely new compound. To the combined juices were added valuable tonics and antiseptics and the whole made into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives"—the only remedy known to science that is made of fruit. The wonderful cures in cases of Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, Constipation, Rheumatism, Chronic Headaches and Neuralgia; Kidney, Liver and Skin Diseases are due solely to the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" contain the medicinal properties of fruit. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A CANADIAN JOURNALIST.

James Creelman, the War Correspondent, Hails From Montreal.

Few of those who have read the articles of James Creelman, one of the most noted war correspondents and magazine writers in America, are aware that he is a Canadian by birth. Such is the fact, however, and his life has been of the most venturesome description. He was born in Montreal in the year 1858, the son of Matthew Creelman, at that time a prominent insurance man of that city.

His adventures began at the age of twelve—that is to say in 1870, when he ran away from home with the intention of walking to New York. He did walk most of the way, stealing an occasional ride on a railway train. He worked as office boy for a religious journal, became a printer, and, like so many of the old-time printers before the days of the linotype, drifted into journalism. Having a religious tendency his next move was to take a course in theology, rather for the culture of the thing than with any fixed intention of becoming a preacher. Theology did not hold him long, however, and over twenty years ago he went back to reporting and got a position on The New York Herald.

Twenty years ago he returned to his native city of Montreal to accompany Prof. Grimley in the first ascension of Page's iron airship, a now forgotten experiment in aerial navigation. Several aeronauts lost their lives therein, for the ship burst and dragged its occupants many miles before they could be rescued. Old Canadian newspaper men remember the episode well. Creelman was lucky enough to escape with a broken arm and a few bruises, and again he had good copy to write. His next big assignment was to investigate the death of General Custer and interview Sitting Bull and his lieutenants, a feat which he successfully accomplished. Later, he again entered fighting territory by writing up the Hatfield-McCoy feud then at its height and the embers of which still smoulder in Kentucky. He was compelled to seek refuge in the woods from the Hatfields who frequently tried to wing him. All through the eighties he was on sensational assignments until at the age of thirty-one he assumed the managing editorship of the London edition of The New York Herald, an enterprise subsequently abandoned. After this he took charge of The Herald's Paris edition for a few years, and then went into the business of getting exclusive interviews on matters of great public import, visiting all the countries of Europe at various times. Among those who yielded to his tact were the late Pope Leo XIII., Henry M. Stanley, Louis Kossuth and Count Tolstoi. He left the service of James Gordon Bennett in 1893 to become British editor of The Cosmopolitan Magazine but did not succeed in getting on with John Brisbane Walker for very long.

In the Japanese-Chinese war of 1894 he was in the service of The New York World and is alleged to have been the only correspondent who succeeded in getting to the front, although this is disputed by some of the other fellows. He was at one time taken prisoner by the Japs when his British citizenship served him in good stead for he was released by the intervention of English officials. The Turko-Grecian war and the Cuban insurrection also were the scenes of his enterprise. The Spanish-American war, in fact all the conflicts of the twelve years of carnage following 1894, have found him on the spot, and when next the dogs of war are let loose, no matter in what part of the world, it is probable that we shall again hear from this adventurous and middle-aged Canadian.

Reputation Was Safe.

When Prof. Milne was in Canada attending a meeting of the British Association, he was invited to give a lecture, says a writer in T. P.'s Weekly. The clock struck eight as he started, and he went on all right. At a quarter past everything was going splendidly, and he talked till he got to the last sentence. He then looked at the clock, and saw that it was pointing to twenty past eight. He was horrified, and, looking at the serried ranks in front of him, he determined that they should not think that a man who had come from England had said all he had to say in twenty minutes. He saw that Lord Kelvin was looking a bit puzzled, but he went on with the yarn, till some one hit him on the back, and muttered in his ear. "Shut up, Milne! You have been talking an hour and a half; the clock has stopped."

French Trawlers on Banks.

According to information received in Halifax, about thirty-five steam trawlers have left France, several of which will call at North Sydney and others at St. Pierre before proceeding to Grand Banks. The report that such a large fleet of trawlers will operate this season has caused considerable uneasiness in fishing circles at St. Pierre, as their method of catching fish, in the opinion of some, will hasten the depletion of the fishing ground.

New Grand Trunk Steamers.

The engines and machinery for two Grand Trunk Pacific steamers to ply on the Pacific coast have been ordered from the Polson Iron Works, Toronto. For the same railway twenty-five Mogul engines are being built at the Kingston works of the Canadian Locomotive Co. The railway has ordered 22,000 tons of 80-pound rails from the Lake Superior Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario.

DOROTHY'S MISSION.

By EMILY S. WINDSOR.

Cyril Moore, lawyer, was not noted for the suavity of his manner nor the mildness of his glance. Both were unusually severe this morning, and he was not inclined to deal gently with his disturber. He had been interrupted in the consideration of an important matter, but Dorothy Dale's brown eyes never flinched before his deep set gray ones.

"Please, may I talk to you a few minutes?" she asked in her soft little voice.

"I am very busy," he returned, "and gave orders that I was not to be disturbed."

"The elevator boy showed me your office, and there was no one in the other room, and so I came in," said Dorothy.

The lawyer made an impatient movement, mentally resolving upon the censure which Wilson should receive for leaving the entrance to the office unguarded.

Two little red spots had crept into Dorothy's face, but she went on bravely.

"You see," she began, "I"—

The lawyer again moved impatiently and frowned, but his small visitor persisted.

"It is so important, you see." There was a keen note of anxiety in her voice, but the brown eyes never wavered. And what was there in their depths which brought to the lawyer's mind a vague memory and made him look at his visitor with a stirring of interest, then hesitate and finally push aside the papers over which he had been absorbed and say shortly:

"What is it? I can give you a few minutes."

"Oh, thank you," said Dorothy politely. "It is about that position in the Hilton school."

Cyril stared in surprise. What could this little, old fashioned girl have to say about that? It would be interesting to know. He pushed his papers farther away and leaned back in his seat.

"Sit down," he said, pointing to a chair. Dorothy obeyed with a grave "Thank you," settling herself comfortably in the chair, which was so high that her feet were quite a distance from the ground. Her blue felt sailor hat was pushed back on her head, and several soft brown rings of her hair had found their way to her forehead. She lifted her clear eyes to the lawyer, and again their depths vaguely stirred his heart.

"You see, auntie lost all her money in Boston, and so we had to come here to live. Auntie owns a little house here, and she says that is better than nothing. And yesterday Mrs. Pruden told her they wanted a teacher in that school and that auntie must try to get it right away."

"Oh, indeed," ejaculated Cyril.

"You see," she went on in a confidential tone, "auntie knows a lot of things. She belonged to ever so many clubs in Boston. Every one says that she is so clever."

Dorothy paused to see if the lawyer was properly impressed with the importance of her aunt's acquirements.

"Yes," said Cyril politely.

"Mrs. Pruden told auntie that you could let her teach that school, but last evening a letter came from Mr. White in Boston to say auntie must come to see him right off. You see, he attends to all of her business. So she had to go on the early train this morning." Here Dorothy stopped, out of breath.

Cyril uttered an interrogative "Yes?"

Dorothy smiled up at him. "And I was afraid she might be too late when she came back, and then it will be such a nice surprise for her when she does come back for me to tell her I came to see you about it."

"Then she doesn't know what you are doing?" queried Cyril.

"Oh, no. I waited till she was gone."

"Where do you live?" questioned Cyril.

"Over on Rose Crescent."

The lawyer did not recognize the locality, but there had been many changes in the old town during those years in which he had been absent from it.

"Auntie will be a splendid teacher. You see, she's so sweet. Won't you please try her?"

In her eagerness Dorothy arose and stood beside Cyril, placing her hand in its woolen mitten on his arm.

The little action thrilled him. A sudden realization of the loneliness of his life smote him, and again the child's brown eyes awoke that memory.

"Please, won't you?" urged Dorothy, with an unconscious pressure of his arm.

Cyril looked down into the eager face with an expression in his own that few had seen there during later years.

"I'll see what I can do. I must know more of her qualifications. I mean," he explained kindly, "if she knows all the things that the person who teaches in that school must know I'll do my best."

"Oh, thank you. I'll go now." Dorothy slipped off the mitten and gravely tendered her hand to the lawyer. He rose and bowed over it with more ceremony than he had for many years shown any other member of her sex.

Dorothy flashed a confiding smile at him and tripped jauntily away through the outer office, much to the surprise of Wilson, who was now at his post. Wilson was still more surprised that afternoon when on going into the lawyer's private room he found him putting his desk in order and was waved away with: "Don't bother me with that now. It's such a fine afternoon I think I'll take a walk and look at that Dorren property."

Wilson went back to his desk. He furtively watched the lawyer as the latter put on overcoat, hat and gloves. It was the first time within his knowledge that Cyril had set aside an important matter. What had happened?

The lawyer walked on with rapid stride. There was in the air a suggestion of the spring which was not yet near.

On the corner an organ grinder was playing popular airs. A little farther on a flower vender was offering bouquets of violets for sale. The scent of the flowers floated up to him, and the memories awakened earlier in the day by a pair of childish eyes were again stirred. Cyril bought one of the fragrant purple clusters, fastening it in the lapel of his coat with a smile. When had he done such a thing?

As he walked along his glance fell upon a lamppost bearing the name "Rose Crescent."

A sudden remembrance came to him of his little visitor of the morning: That was where she had said she lived. He recalled his promise to do what he could for her aunt. Why not call upon her and find out her fitness for the position? He paused to glance up and down the street.

But the child had not told him her aunt's name or their number. Then it was useless to consider it further. Still he would like to please that child.

He was walking on when he heard a flying of small feet behind him and his name called. He turned around to see his little visitor of the morning.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "I was at the window and saw you passing. I thought perhaps you were coming to see us."

"Well," said Cyril, smiling, "you did not tell me your number."

"I forgot," she laughed. "It's in here." They had been walking back, and now she stopped in front of a modest house standing back from the street.

"Come in," she said. "Auntie's just got home. I didn't tell her about it yet."

Cyril followed her up the garden path and into the house. She led him into a room opening off a small hall. A lady seated before an open fire rose at his entrance. She was not very young, but she was very sweet looking, with great brown eyes.

"Madam," began Cyril, "I"—

He broke off abruptly, looked bewildered, then ejaculated, "Rebecca Powers—you!"

"Cyril! Why"—

"You see, auntie, I went to see Mr. Moore about that school. I was afraid you'd be too late, and"— began Dorothy.

But neither her aunt nor the lawyer seemed to hear her. The latter was saying, "She has eyes like yours."

"You see, auntie," began Dorothy once more, but stopped as Cyril spoke again. "To find you here!" His face was flushed, and his eyes were shining. There was a bright color in the cheeks of Dorothy's aunt too. Dorothy was looking at her in surprise. Why, she knew Mr. Moore. Then she would surely get that school.

"Are you still Rebecca Powers? When I saw you last I thought that you were going to marry"—

Miss Powers interrupted him quietly.

"You were mistaken, but I remember you had a bad habit in those days of jumping at conclusions."

"That one has cost me dear—all these lonely years," he said.

He took the bunch of violets from his coat. "I remember you were always fond of violets, Rebecca. Are you still?" He held the fragrant blossoms toward her, and Miss Powers, after a glance into his face, took them from his hand. She held them to her lips a moment, then fastened them carefully in her bosom.

Dorothy was becoming impatient, but to her great amazement just then Cyril stooped down and kissed her aunt.

Then he turned to Dorothy. "I am going to ask your aunt to take charge of one pupil," he said—"one who needs her very much."

"One pupil!" exclaimed Dorothy. "Why, I"—

But again neither her aunt nor the lawyer seemed to hear her.

Several of the crew of the Government steamer, Lady Laurier, were injured by the exploding of a carbide buoy off Yarmouth, N.S.

The Caddie Had the Ball.

A very curious incident occurred in a golf tournament at Shinnecock hills. I was playing the final with Jerome D. Travers. Going to the eighteenth hole his tee shot was slightly pulled a few yards off the fairway. The ball was headed directly for one of the Shinnecock Indian caddies, who was slowly walking away uphill. In its descent it was plainly seen by the gallery to strike the caddie, who perceptibly winced, but continued walking.

Arriving at the spot, comparatively open, a careful and prolonged search was made, but no ball.

Finally some one suggested that the caddie be brought. He stoutly denied that he has seen a ball or had been struck by one.

Passing his hands over him, John M. Ward at length felt something in the Indian's hip pocket, and, lo and behold, there was the ball! And the boy didn't even know it was there. Of that I'm convinced.—Walter J. Travis in American Golfer.

CHIEF HOWARD PRESENTED HIS HALF YEARLY REPORT

To Members of City Council Last Night — Harmonious Relations Among all Connected With the Fire Department—81 Alarms in Past Six Months.

At last night's meeting of the City Council Chief Howard's report of the past six months, which is an encouraging one in every respect, was read. The report is as follows;

Peterborough, July 1, 1909.

To his Worship the Mayor, and Aldermen of the City of Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to submit herewith my half-yearly report of the fire department. During the last six months the department responded to eighty-one (81) alarms of fire, six more than the preceding half year.

We have had some very serious fires to handle during the last six months, and no doubt some of them would have been attended with enormous property loss, were it not for the fact that the employment of permanent firemen permits the department to respond more quickly than a volunteer fire brigade could. And it will be gratifying to you to learn that the total damage by fire amounted to $5,518.70, $1,300 of the above amount was occasioned by a fire at Auburn, where there was no fire hydrant available. Although the damage is some two thousand dollars in excess of the previous six months, I consider we have been very fortunate in preventing disasterous conflagrations.

We have not met with any serious accidents or loss of life. The excellent sanitary conditions at the fire station have no doubt assisted very materially, in the good health of your firemen, something very essential to an efficient fire department.

After several months of friction at the beginning of the new department, I am pleased to be able to inform you that the department is down to a good working basis. I attribute this to the determined effort of Alderman William Buller, Chairman of your Fire Committee, who has been eminently successful in banishing political or other interference, on the part of persons ill disposed. This had the effect of strengthening my hand, and allowing me to maintain the proper discipline, without outside interference.

We still continue the regular fire drill, which is of great benefit to the firemen in the performance of their duties. You will observe the necessity of this from the fact that fires occur at irregular intervals, thus leaving weeks at a time with very little practice for the men.

The present conditions have been reported to the Canadian Board of Fire Underwriters, and the gentlemen of that Board assured me on my recent visit to Toronto that they are highly pleased with what has been done in the way of establishing and maintaining an efficient fire department. Within a month or six weeks circulars will be sent out notifying the insurance agents of a reduction in the key-rate of insurance for Peterborough, and if the reduction promised by the underwriters is as substantial as I anticipate, your fire department will undoubtedly be a profitable public utility, in addition to giving first class protection to life and property.

In conclusion I desire to express my sincere thanks to his Worship the Mayor, and aldermen of the Council for a continuance of their courteously and kindness extended to the firemen and myself and also to the public press for the many kind references to the efficient work of the fire department.

The Chief of Police and his staff of constables have rendered very valuable assistance on many occasions, and have at all times shown a disposition to be friendly and give a helping hand.

You will please find attached a summary of the workings of the department.

All of which is respectfully submitted, I have the honor to be, sirs,

Your obedient servant,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Department.

VOTE ON TWO BY-LAWS ON JULY 29TH

Smith St. Bridge and Street Extension Measures to go Before Ratepayers Again

Peterborough ratepayers will on July 29th, vote on two by-laws, the Smith Street Bridge by-law, and the Street Extension By-law, both of which were defeated at the municipal elections last January. The ratepayers did not have sufficient information regarding the measures at that time, but it is expected that they will have a better fate this time. The present Smith street bridge by-law is for $32,500, and the street extension proposition is for $21,500

The two by-laws were given their first and second readings by the City Council last night.

HEATING CONTRACT WAS SECURED

The Smart Mfg. Co., Brockville Secure Orders for Furnaces at St. Thomas

The Jas. Smart Manufacturing Co., Limited, Brockville, Ont., have secured the contract for heating and ventilating the Wellington St. school, St. Thomas, Ont., with four No. 30 Kelsey Warm Air Generators. This is the result of the good work accomplished in heating and ventilating the Balaclava St. school, four No. 30 Kelseys having been installed therein during the season of 1909

The following letter was received from the secretary some few months ago:—

St. Thomas Ont., March 2, '09.

The Jas. Smart M'f'g Co., Limited,
Brockville, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—By direction of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education, I have pleasure in enclosing you herewith check for ———, being payment in full of account for, four No 30 Kelsey Generators, installed in the Balaclava St. school.

I may say in this connection the furnaces have given good satisfaction, comfortably warming this large twelve-room school in all parts, and what we consider perhaps quite as important is that the system of ventilation appears to be thorough and complete. I am, gentlemen,

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) H. W. TALLMAN,
Sec'y-Treas., St. Thomas Board of Education

The makers claim that the efficiency of the Kelsey Warm Air Generator is due mainly to the long, hollow, seamless heat tubes or sections with zig-zag sides through which most of the air passes in being heated. There are from 8 to 16 tubes in each generator, according to the size and capacity, and they are placed upright on end in the generator, around and on the "ash deck" and just above the grate surface. Being wider at the back than at the front, they form, when in position, the fire cylinder and combustion chamber, and the old-style fire-pot is done away with. The face or straight lower parts of the tubes forming the fire cylinders 4 1-2 in. wide, 12 in. long, and 1 1-8 in. thick. Each tube has an average inside measurement, at the lower end of 28 sq. in., and at the upper end, where the heated air is discharged, of 43 sq. in. The average length of all tubes is 36 in., and the average weight, is about 70 lbs., and each tube has about 8 sq. ft. of heating surface. The zig-zag corrugations increase the heating surface of the Kelsey Warm Air Generator and the rays of heat impinge upon them much more readily and effectively than they would on a smooth surface, or one with perpendicular corrugations.

Anyone contemplating the installation of a heating system would do well to enquire into the merits of the Kelsey.

SOME OBJECTIONS.

There were some objections to the report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, which was presented by Ald. Buller.

Ald. Metheral objected to the fire chief and Ald. Buller attending the convention and moved that clause two of the report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee be struck out. Clause two read as follows;

"That the Chairman of this committee and the Chief of the Fire Department be appointed to attend the International Convention of Fire Chiefs at Grand Rapids, Mich., on August 16 to 20, and that their expenses be paid to the extent of $50 each, and if the chairman cannot attend that he appoint some one in his place."

Ald. Metheral said that the hundred dollars could be spent to better advantage and Ald. Duncan agreed with him. Ald. Duncan seconded the amendment of Ald. Metheral.

Yeas and Nays were called for and the amendment was defeated on the following vote;

Yeas—Ald. Metheral, Bradburn, Duncan, Duffus and Morgan—5.

Nays—Ald. Phelan, Morrow, McIntyre, Turner, Gillespie, Buller and Hicks—7.

Ald. Metheral also objected to the eighth clause of the report, which read as follows;

"That the Chief of the Fire Brigade be authorized to engage a man at the first year's rate of pay to supply at the fire hall while the four firemen of the brigade who are entitled to holidays are on their holidays, and that the City Treasurer pay the supply on the certificate of the Chief."

Ald. Metheral said there were only three men at the fire hall entitled to holidays, instead of four.

Someone mentioned that the fourth man was the Chief. Ald. Buller said he would look into the matter.

The motion to adopt the report then carried.

The report of the Board of Works was presented by Ald. Phelan and the Property Committee by Ald. Bradburn.

TO TRIM TREES.

Ald. Turner said that trees needed trimming in several parts of the city and moved that the Board of Works look after the matter.

Ald. Hicks said the Board of Works had no money for the work and no further action was taken.

Ald. Morgan said the watering trough in Ashburnham had been connected with the sewer, but the way it had been done was an abomination. A team could not be watered at the trough without blocking the street. He moved that the trough be connected with the sewer in such a way as to permit the water to run all year. At present the trough is of no service in the winter.

Ald. Turner seconded the motion and it carried after some discussion.

HOLD FESTIVAL OF PEACE THE CHAMPLAIN TERCENTARY

British Ambassador at Fort Ticonderoga Hopes That Lake Champlain Will Never See Any More Hostilities--- President Tait Pays High Compliment to the French-Canadians.

Bluff Point, N.Y., July 7.—With the arrival of President Taft, of Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain; of Ambassador Jusserand of France; Secretary of War Dickinson and Vice-Admiral Uriu of Japan, the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain, which had been confined during the past two days to the States of New York and Vermont, yesterday took on an international scope and a world-wide interest.

For Ambassadors Bryce and Jusserand and President Taft, all committed their respective countries to policies of peace, and, in the shadow of an old fortress which had witnessed some of the bloodiest battles in all history, they expressed the hope that never again would the peace among the great nations of the world be interrupted by a war.

Ambassador Jusserand in his speech was most felicitous in his expression of peace and good-will toward America, toward Great Britain and toward all the world. He referred with much feeling to the fact that France and Great Britain soon are to celebrate the completion of 100 years of peace.

Ambassador Bryce took up the theme and declared that although he was surrounded by martial scenes and men of arms, he himself was a man of peace.

"Not until I visited the old fort yonder to-day," said Mr. Bryce, "did I realize how many memories cluster around its ruins, but I cannot but believe its creator meant this beautiful spot for something else than fighting, and I trust that it never will see fighting again."

Ambassador Bryce declared that the English and French, in the fighting about Ticonderoga, found each other worthy antagonists. While he admired them, he said, for their courage in the cause they went forth to fight for, he hoped they would never, never do it again.

Champlain was a man whom all nations can honor," said President Taft. He is not a man with respect to whose history you have to pass over something in silence.

"All his life could bear the closest examination and he brings out in the strongest way those wonderful qualities shown in the 15th, 16th and 17th centuries by Spaniards, Englishmen, Frenchmen and Portuguese, who braved those dreadful terrors of the seas, circumnavigated the globe in little cockleshells and carried the standard of the then civilization into the farther forests and into the dangers of the most distant tropics.

"There were Montcalm and Wolfe, two great Christians, back to whom you trace the whole history of Lower Canada. It is true Wolfe conquered Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham, but there is still in all the region of Lower Canada a population purely French, a population of industrious, God-fearing and loyal to the flag people, under whose Government they live. That fact is a compliment not only to the far-seeing statesmanship of the English colonial statesman who frames the government under which they live, but it is a compliment to the present industrial domestic virtues of the French nation."

Off For the Celebration.

Montreal, July 7.—There was an animated scene last evening at Bonaventure Station, as the Canadian dignitaries were leaving for the Champlain celebration.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux explained that he would represent the Canadian Government alone, since Ambassador Bryce was present and would represent the Government of his Britannic Majesty. There were the Postmaster-General and Madame Lemieux; Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister of Quebec; Sir A. H. Pelletier, Lieutenant Governor of the province of Quebec, with Col. Hatch and Major Crossette, the military representative of the governor of the State of New York, who could not come here, but who will meet the Canadians on American territory this morning. U. S. Consul-Gen. Bradley was also of the party.

ANOTHER GOWGANDA MAN OPTIMISTIC ABOUT CAMP

Mr. A. B. D'Hawinty, of Gowganda, is in the city to-day on business. Mr. D'Hawinty has a considerable amount of property in the Gowganda district. He arrived in the city last night, and is staying with a friend, Mr. S. H. Clarkson, Stewart street. He was seen by the Review to-day, and said he did not care to discuss the prospects of the camp in detail, and would only prefer to say that they are excellent, as all reports have stated, and there is nothing new outside of what has been already said.

Mr. D'Hawinty has several samples of ore with him.

BIGGEST LUNGE OF YEAR; WILL HAVE IT MOUNTED

Mr. C. Smallie last night caught what is probably the largest linge that has been landed in the Otonabee this season, when he captured one about five miles down the Otonabee. The fish weighed 23 pounds and the peculiar feature of the affair was that it was after dark, about a quarter to nine o'clock when the fish took hold of the hook. Lunge sometimes bite after the sun has gone down, but this is not usual.

Mr. Smallie is naturally very much elated over his capture and has left the fish with Mr. Edwin Elcome to be mounted.

Pittsburg, July 7.—A mission worker has been sent to the city home to be held as a witness against a Chinese pupil. The newspapers here suppress the girl's name. Another young woman says she will give up teaching Chinese after she gets a bracelet promised her by one of her pupils.

Firty-Six Killed In Celebration.

Chicago, July 7.—The Record Herald's summaries yesterday of the casualties in the United States of three days' celebration of the fourth of July, gives 46 dead and 1,575 injured. The deaths due to tetanus thus far are 18. Fire losses are $446,500.

$200,000 For Roads.

Brockville, July 7.—The Counties Council of Leeds and Grenville is to proceed with the improvement of its leading highways under the good roads system as provided by the Ontario Government, involving an outlay of $200,000, which will be raised by debentures. This will give the counties a Government bonus of $100,000.

The program just now is to construct upwards of 250 miles of roadway within the next five years. Passing the bylaw to make the scheme effective was deferred until the fall session.

Pittsburg, July 7.—The "clean city" day, during which inhabitants of Greater Pittsburg were to prim up their backyards and front sidewalks, has been so overdone that the mayor had to give orders to call the game off.

Eggs Spread Consumption.

El Paso, Texas, July 7.—That consumption can be spread by eggs, which many consumptives devour raw as a cure, is the declaration of Dr. J. B. Howell of Tularosa, N.M. an expert.

He declares a dozen hens were carefully isolated and quarantined and well fed, with the exception that tubercular sputum was thrown in to them daily.

The eggs were daily tested. At the end of 60 days 10 per cent. of the eggs showed tubercular bacilli.

TRAGEDY ENDED THIS BOAT RACE

Brockville, July 7.—A fatal accident on the St. Lawrence, near Clayton, N.Y., Monday night in the heart of the Thousand Islands, was the climax of a steam yacht race.

The steam yachts, owned by Geo. Boldt, proprietor of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York, and owner of Hart Island, the finest home on the St. Lawrence, and A. R. Peacocks were having a race, and both crafts were being rushed to the limit with the highest steam pressure being carried, a steam pipe on the Boldt yacht burst, terribly scalding Engineer Porter and fatally scalding Fireman Guy Vallee. Porter will lose his eyesight.

JAPS BOYCOTTED BY THE CHINESE

Tokio, July 7.—Japanese trade and navigation are suffering heavily by the South China boycott, which is persisting.

The Asahi estimates the annual loss to the country at many millions. It declares that the boycott forced Japan to yield in the Patas Island dispute. China, it goes on, is not yet satisfied and demands the withdrawal of the claim for $200,000 for the Tatsu Maru seizure.

Consul Segawa, at Hong Kong, who recently returned, urges that Japan yield. He submitted a startling table showing the decline of trade in all lines.

ALLEGATIONS OF GRAFTING

Judge Cannon Says it is the Usual Thing in Municipal Circles at Montreal

Montreal, July 7.—So many sensational stories of position broking in the city fire department and other departments were told before the royal commission yesterday that when a defence lawyer objected to one statement, Judge Cannon replied that it was becoming notorious that this was the usual thing in Montreal. Details of all sorts of big and small graft were brought out through the day.

Dr. Charles Lafleur swore that he had given Alderman Nault $300 for an appointment as statistician, putting the money into a conveniently open safe in the alderman's store. He did not get the job, and got his money back from the same safe drawer. Ald. Nault was called, and said he did not remember this episode, and that he had had no $300 transaction with Lafleur.

Joseph Desaulters, who had been paid $300 by a man named Metayer for a job as fireman, had used the money to keep a home, the house being heated with wood taken, he said, by Sub-Chief Martin from the corporation wood yard. This story was partly corroborated by Desaulters' wife, while Metayer swore he had paid the $300, and then been suspended from the force because he wanted it back; but on threatening to expose the principals in the deal, had been reinstated. All this was excitedly denied by Sub-Chief Martin.

THE ONTARIO COUNCIL AND HYDRO-ELECTRIC QUESTION

Obstacles are Now Surmounted, Declares Sir James Whitney, and the Commission Hopes to Complete Transmission Lines Before Expiration of Allotted Time.

Toronto, July 7.—Hydro-electric power was the chief topic of discussion at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. Hon. Adam Back and his colleagues on the commission were closeted for some time with the Cabinet.

On the conclusion of the meeting Sir James Whitney stated that the whole question had been discussed at length.

"The situation," said Sir James, "is very satisfactory. From now on the work of constructing the transmission line will proceed with the greatest expedition, and there is no doubt that it will be completed before the time allotted in the contract."

Hon. Col. J. S. Hendrie and W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., the other members of the commission, in conversation afterwards commented pointedly upon the reports which had been circulated, that no progress was being made on construction and the entire undertaking was a muddle.

"It is a fact," said Col. Hendrie, "that we have gone about the work slowly, but that has been to the great advantage of the whole scheme. For instance, we started out to transmit power at a potential of 60,000 volts, but we later found that it could be transmitted at 110,000 volts, with the proportionate the loss of power reduced one-half."

"Further," said Col. Hendrie, "we have been able to make great improvements in the transformer design."

"As far as we can see," he continued, "with the progress we have already made, the work will be completed well within the stipulated time."

Referring to the trip which E. H. Sothman, chief engineer of the hydro-electric power commission, is taking through Europe, Mr. McNaught said: "Mr. Sothman is making no waste of time on this trip. He will obtain the latest information from Germany regarding power unions and power commissions and, incidentally, gather prices for insulators, lamps and other equipment. While we can obtain our equipment in America, there is reason to believe that we can save money by purchasing part in Europe.

The contract for the Dundas and Niagara transformer stations will be let on Thursday.

Next week the commission will advertise for tenders for the stations at Toronto, Preston, Guelph, Berlin, Stratford, St. Mary's Woodstock, St Thomas and London, and it is hoped to award these contracts by Aug. 1.

PUPILS HAVE MADE A SPLENDID SHOWING

Peterborough may feel justly proud of the educational institutions of the city and the pupils who are being educated in them. The examinations of the Public schools and Collegiate Institute, and the entrance examinations are over, and the number of pupils who have been successful is indeed large. In one case the entire number of pupils of one class were successful in passing their exams, which makes a record probably without precedure. That the pupils are being instructed by an efficient staff of teachers is clearly demonstrated, and much credit is due the members of the Board of Education, who are, to use a well-known expression, "the men behind the guns."

PROMISES TO TAKE CHILDREN

Pittsburg, Pa., July 7.—Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Roberts, known upon the stage as Bramsby and Williams, who were supposed to have deserted their three children, Ruth, aged 6, Bluebell, 4, and Lily, 2, in this city some time ago, have been located by the police of Toronto, and Mrs. Roberts has promised to return to Pittsburg for the three children.

The babies were left in a boarding-house here last February when the parents went on the road. For several weeks the father sent weekly remittances, but about two months ago the money letters ceased.

Then the woman in whose house the children had been left refused to take care of them and committed them to the day nursery. Recently the juvenile court heard of the case and located the parents. Roberts writes that he has been ill, has left the stage and gone back to his trade.

NEW JUDGE APPOINTED

Mr. E. C. S. Huycke K.C. of Cobourg Will be the Successor of Late Judge Weller.

VISITOR MADE GOOD IMPRESSION

Was Drunk Yesterday But Had an Excellent Excuse This Morning

Henry Long was drunk yesterday and appeared before Magistrate Dumble, but was discharged.

Accused stated that he was a publisher and had come to the city from Toronto, where he had recently been confined in a hospital through sickness. A small dose of whiskey had a bad effect on his system on this account— so he said. His plea to be allowed off found favor with his worship, and Henry left the court vowing that he would never touch liquor any more.

CASE ENLARGED UNTIL TUESDAY

Howard Innes is one of the party of young men who are accused of stealing a gold watch and five dollars from John Landry on June 9th.

He appeared before the Magistrate this morning, and although admitting he was in the house on the day named, stated that it was not either himself or any of the other boys who took the watch or money.

The case was enlarged until Tuesday morning, July 13th, and the accused was allowed his freedom on his promise to appear on that day.

The United States Senate Monday adopted the bill establishing a customs court, which is intended to supersede the United States Circuit Courts in customs matters.

THIS FLAG WAS TOO BIG FOR THE BUILDING

Pittsburg, Pa., July 7.—A flag, said to be the largest in the world, unfurled here on Monday, pulled thousands of pounds of tile roofing from the Court House yesterday. Many persons had miraculous escapes from injury when the tile crashed into Grant street. The district about the Court House and Frick Building has been roped off and police will guard the place until a score of city employes remove the great banner. It will take the best part of the day to lower the flag.

The national emblem, 80 feet wide and 160 feet long and weighing over 3,000 pounds with its fastenings, was unfurled Monday with appropriate ceremonies. It was stretched between the 18th floor of the Frick Building and the Court House roof. A strong wind wafted the big flag toward the Diamond street side of the Court House yesterday and it caught in the lightning rod of a capstone. The next moment the stone and tile roofing were pulled loose.

CANADA IS INCLUDED IN TARIFF LIST

Washington, July 7.—Among the amendments to the tariff agreed to yesterday was one exempting labor organizations, fraternal beneficiary societies and organizations exclusively for charitable and educational purposes, from the operations of the corporation tax provisions.

Amendments were adopted specifying Canada and the West Indies among contiguous countries included in the discriminating duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem on imports not manufactured in those countries and introduced into the United States, and also extending from two to six months in any one year the period during which domestic built foreign vessels may engage in the coastwise trade. Another amendment relieves the United States from all reciprocal objections toward foreign nations in the matter of tonnage dues.

ON THE TRAIL OF LEON LING

New York, July 7.—In the hope of capturing Leon Ling, the accused slayer of Elsie Sigel, the police have just cabled to several cities on the Mediterranean coast and to points through the Suez Canal and Indian Ocean to hold up the German steamship Helene Rickners and search it for the fugitive.

Information is almost conclusive, the police say, that Ling shipped from Philadelphia between June 10 and 12. The murder was committed on June 9

In looking up the records, detectives found that the Helene Rickners left Philadelphia on June 12 bound for Itosaki, Japan, and that before sailing, her commander had shipped several Chinamen as part of the crew. Among these Chinamen who were engaged only a short time before sailing, was one well-dressed man, who spoke good English and who professed to be an efficient cook. Leon Ling wore good clothes, spoke English fluently and was a master cook.

The accused is confined in the county jail here and will be taken down to Norwood to-morrow.

STRIKE IS IN FULL SWING BUT MANY REMAIN AT WORK

Company and Men Disagree Radically on Result of Day's Work --- The Trouble Thus Far is Comparatively Free From Violence.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 7.—The first day in the big strike between the United Mine Workers of America and the Dominion Coal Co. ends with both sides expressing themselves as satisfied.

At 6 o'clock last evening the strike situation was a little better defined, but any attempt at reaching exact figures is attended with embarrassment. The coal company claims to have 50 per cent of its regular force at work, a statement which is strenuously denied by the officials of the U.M.W., who claimed that only about 1,000 of the 5,200 regular men employed were on the job to-day.

President James Ross was at No. 2 Colliery all day. This mine was idle without a doubt. There was nothing doing at the banking station either, and it is said that an attempt was made yesterday afternoon to bring in men from Louisburg to start that work. This report cannot be confirmed.

At Dominion No. 1 the coal company say that not more men are absent from work than is customary after a pay-day. This mine employs about 750, and the U.M.W. claim that 250 men is well within the mark of the number that turned out yesterday, and of those 136 are Italian laborers and not coal miners. There is practically no skilled labor at this mine.

A number of men who were at work yesterday will not turn up to-day. The women folk around this town appear to be strongly in favor of the U.M.W., and turned out in large number yesterday to encourage the non-workers and to try to prevent others from going to work.

The women were most severe in condemnation of the men who turned out to work. Cries of "scab" and other uncomplimentary epithets were hurled to and fro, and one man said he could not stand the ridicule and contempt of the women, and had decided to throw in his lot with the strikers.

The men, except in one or two instances, were remarkably orderly and only on one occasion was an attempt at violence noted. From 3 to 6 o'clock they kept lined up at the main entrance of the colliery, and the workmen as they left the plant were compelled to pass through a long lane of strike sympathizers, three and four deep, who launched taunting cries of "scab," "scab" at the outcoming men. On one occasion a workman who retaliated was rather badly jostled and roughly handled.

President Ross of the coal company, said: "As is well known this is a quarrel between the men themselves. Some of the men are deliberately attacking law and order. They appealed to the Government under the Conciliation Act, and the verdict was against them. And such a conditions as now exists where men working under an agreement are trying to interfere with others who are honestly endeavoring to carry out a parallel in the history of industrial disputes.

"I do not look forward to a protracted strike, but on the contrary I anticipate the production of an output sufficient for all our purposes in a very short time."

Glace Bay is practically a creation of the Dominion Coal Co. It is situated on the Sydney & Louisburg Railway, which is owned by the company, and in the town itself the company has erected upwards of 1,500 substantially built houses, which are rented to the workmen. The population is about 12,000.

Duggan Is Pleased.

Montreal, July 7.—F. L. Wanklyn, vice-president of the Dominion Coal Co., gave out the following telegram from G. H. Duggan, manager of the mines:

"Conditions this morning better than I expected. No. six pit only idle. Will get to-day practically full output from No 1 Reserve and Victoria, and about half from other mines, including international, which last night was regarded as doubtful. Strikers have very large number of pickets since midnight, but crowd reasonably orderly."

Then she fell from a ladder by which she had ascended, spraining her ankle. Her condition is critical.

THE ATTACK ON "WOMAN"

The alleged decadence of the British race is bringing to the front a number of those who both admit it to be true and charge the crime to the modern system of interfering with Nature's way of preserving the fittest. In a word, what is meant is that the systems of preserving, rescuing, etc., is essentially for the weak, and is at the expense of the strong who, therefore, are engaging in the process of committing suicide, or to put it in another way, the practice of the ethical teachings of Christianity, and, for that matter, of Confucianism also, are found to be in opposition to the dictates of Nature.

"If English racing men adopted our Government system, is it not certain that English race-horses would be beaten everywhere by horses bred by selection!"

As a consequence, the race is said to be "going down"—levelling down to a lower average. If this be true the elimination, not the preservation of the weak, is as with the order of Nature, the need of the race. But if it be true it means the denial of Providence. We must choose apparently, therefore, between the absolute savagery of Nature and the disregard of human kindness on the one hand, and the "love of God" for man and of man to God on the other. Several of the leaders in the new discussion aver that the stern law of decadence is the warning now being used by Nature as always, to impress upon the race the harmfulness of its conduct. It is a "curious" condition of public opinion and reads more like a fit of hysteria than anything else. These are the days of getting down to the rock bottom of questions. Science has stripped off the wrappings, and insists on discussing things as they are materially. It is demanding the overthrow of the kingdom of ideas or idealism in favor of the republic of materialism. The suffrage question has given rise to similar treatment. Zanquil took up the cudgels for "woman" in gallant fashion, and he is answered by an American writer in the following. There is a brutality, a brutal frankness, in all these discussions that indicates the changing times, and that "a change is coming over the spirit of the world."

"Here is the case against woman suffrage, which is from an American magazine called Moods, which describes itself as "the magazine of personality," and as 'dedicated to the development of sincerity, individuality, and nobility in American literature and life.'"

It must be noted that the same issue contains some articles equally strong in favor of woman suffrage as this one is against it.

The writer, Alexander Harvey, entitles his article "The Essential Immorality of Women Suffrage":—

"Woman suffrage is the negation of Christ's teaching," he says. "It is a departure from the ideal perceived by the moral sense, and, therefore, speaking in terms of theology, a sin.

"The fundamental characteristic of Christ's teaching is his assumption of the moral inequality of the sexes. Christ's ideal was essentially the perfect man. He never taught the perfect woman. He sedulously addressed himself to men as such. He carefully indicated, in all that he taught, his own belief that woman, as woman, is incapable of morality, incapable of any course of conduct corresponding to the ideal set forth in the Sermon on the Mount. The 'maleness' of moral conduct is the central ethical idea of Jesus everywhere.

"To favor woman suffrage is to be an -Christ in the sense intended by Jesus when he warned his hearers against false teachers, who would be ready to lead astray even the elect.

"Woman seeks to feminise man. She has feminised the teachings of Jesus by inducing the institutional Church to place her on a level with man morally. She is seeking to feminise democracy by inducing the lawmakers to place her on a level with man politically. Having taken the virility out of the church, woman is eager to take the virility out of democracy.

* * * * *

"The great peril to society is feminisation. The agitation for woman suffrage is the contemporary form of the peril. It means the womanisation of democracy. The teachings of Jesus have been womanised out of the church. What the church has become in consequence, we know too well. Luckily, the constitution of the United States gives no recognition to woman, or the republic would long since have fallen unless it based itself more firmly and more broadly upon the masculine ethics of Jesus. For woman suffrage, in the light of what has preceded, is a sin, and 'the soul that sinneth, it shall die.'"

THE "SAW OFF" QUESTION

(From the Examiner.)

"The Toronto News, the Montreal Star and a few of the journalistic small fry are discussing or at least writing about the "saw-off," or mutual withdrawal of election petitions denouncing this action as politically immoral and destructive of political purity. So far as a saw-off is really intended to suppress the exposure of all the political corruption in an election contest, it is gravely reprehensible. The primary object of an election petition is to deprive a member-elect of a seat to which he is held to be not justly entitled and to give it to a candidate held to be unjustly deprived of it. Thus, a protest entered to void a seat on behalf of a defeated candidate who does not claim the seat, argued a feeling of the corrupt nature of his own contest or the contest waged on his behalf of such extensively questionable character as not to justify the claim to a seat. It may well be asked how an honest desire to purify politics can be expressed by a protest which does not involve a claim to the seat thus attacked. Will the investigation of alleged improper methods on one side serve a purifying purpose when investigation is evaded of the improper methods of the other, self-possessed by the failure to claim the seat from dread of the consequences of an investigation which would not justify such a claim. Scores of petitions and counter petitions are the aftermath of every Dominion and Provincial election. Many of these petitions, if not most of them, are entered as speculative or precautionary measures, their being proceeded with being dependent upon future developments that would justify their prosecution or withdrawal, as proof is found available or wanting. They involve no effort or desire to purify political methods; they simply represent, on both sides, party tactics—a desire of one party not to be placed at a disadvantage by the other. They were entered for party and tactical reasons and are withdrawn by mutual arrangement, for similar reasons. They were never, except under conditions of subsequent development, seriously intended to be brought to trial, and as the entering of these petitions and counter petitions involved no idea of service to the interests of political purity, so their withdrawal is not to be regarded as involving political immorality. There is another class or instance which is nearly allied to the above—in which a candidate to mollify the sting of defeat, or indulge a spirit of spite, enters a petition, with a sense of guilt of the crooked conduct of his own campaign, which leads to prudently refraining from claiming the seat on the head of the purity of his own election methods. To insist on the prosecution of a protest under this class, reveals no desire for the promotion of the interests of purity of political methods; nothing higher than the gratification of an obstinate spirit of revenge. Another class of protest is that in which a defeated candidate honestly feels that he has been unjustly and improperly deprived of the seat, and confident in the purity of his own political campaign enters his protest and claims the seat. A saw-off of bona-fide petitions like this would be foul injustice to the petitioner and subversive of the interests of political morality.

"There is a difference between a protest entered in bona fide, and one suggested by a spirit of spite, vindictiveness and revenge."

It is neither good manners nor good law to discuss a protest or any other form of legal action that is still sub judice. But the insinuation made in the above article that a petitioner who does not claim the seat is therefore in such a position that the respondent or defendant cannot get at him and show him up, is pure unadulterated bluff. A respondent can, if he wishes to, go right back at the petitioner without let or hindrance, whether the petitioner claims the seat or not, and to try to make it appear that such a petitioner has taken an unfair position in not claiming the seat in order to protect himself from investigation and punishment, is worthy of the people who make it. No amount of such writing or assumed superiority in the knowledge of ethics or law will "go down" with those who know that no petitioner can "evade" the consequences of his conduct if the other party has the charges which would in any sense give him right to a hearing. There has been no evasion as hinted. If there has been any it must be looked for elsewhere. But the Examiner's editorial makes it doubly necessary that no step shall be omitted to prove that the petition referred to was not undertaken in a mere fit of spite or revenge. That a candidate should not claim everything in sight seems unnecessarily modest, no doubt, to the Examiner.

THE GLOBE UNMASKED

The Montreal Star has an easy and attractive way of getting at the real facts of a case that is at once refreshing and effective. The Globe has a way especially during the last few years, of putting the same thing in such diverse ways that if one does not meet with public favor the other will. In the end this duplex style of discussion was bound to come down hard and it will probably be agreed that while the Globe has provided the occasion the Star has compelled it also to provide the corpse.

From the Montreal Star.

"The Toronto Globe is greatly pained with the Ottawa Free Press—the Liberal organ at the Capital—because it imagines that there has been a change of attitude between the time when the Globe was clamoring for Canadian Dreadnoughts to help Britain face the "German peril" and the present time when it has dropped the magic name and wants Canada to build its own navy. Most people, however, will think that the Ottawa Free Press is to be excused. There may have been saving clauses in the Globe's Dreadnought articles. The Globe will never be lost for lack of saving clauses. When it suggested to Mr. Pugsley that his resignation would not overwhelm the party with despair, it fairly revelled in saving clauses. And now, when Pugsley shows no signs of resigning its saving clauses are all it has to cling to. It has never neglected a saving clause since it inadvertently forgot to put one in when it called upon somebody to treat "the barnacles" of the Ross Administration "with an iron hand." That was a sad lesson, and took many double-leaded articles on the front page to wipe its memory from the minds of the "shell fish."

But the Globe in this present case could probably bring the Free Press to repentance more speedily if it would explain how it proposed to contribute Dreadnoughts to the British defence against the "German peril"—a peril which reaches its climax in three years—by the process of building up a Canadian navy. Suppose the Government had accepted the Globe's advice. What must it have done? Certainly it must have had them built by British workmen. Certainly it must have had them manned by British officers, British sailors and British gunners. And certainly it must have left them under the command of the British Admiralty. They could not have served to strengthen the British line of fence against the "German peril" in the North Sea if they had been brought out here for our Ministers to command and our unlicensed victualers of the "Arctic" to load to the water line with supplies — at Marine department prices.

"Yet if this were done, what part would Canada play in the making and management of these Dreadnoughts? Precisely the part which the Star now proposes it should play—it would have paid the interest on the money they cost. And it would have done nothing more. If this is building up a Canadian navy we heartily agree with that policy. But this is not the way in which it is understood by the people who are clamoring for the adoption of this programme. They want us to contribute such ships as we can build in Canada. They want these they want them controlled by the pointees of Canadian politicians. And they want them controlled by the Canadian Government. This programme might be efficient or it might not. We fear it would not. But in any case it is surely a different programme from that which must have been followed had the Canadian Government decided to build Dreadnoughts in the near future as our contribution to Imperial defence.

"It is to be feared that in this the Globe's ever-present saving clauses will not save."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The entrance examinations are over and local education appears to be in a healthy state. Under the new headmaster, Mr. William O'Brien, St. Peter's has greatly improved its standing. The genial principal is a man of resource and energy, and it is evident that he has imbued his pupils with much of his own estimable personality.

---

The Cavan deputation so far persuaded the City Council that it was in the city's interests to listen to their plea that they ultimately persuaded themselves that it was the city's interests they were appearing in behalf of. This had the effect of making the city council appear as a sort of cold, hard, silent opponent of the city's interests.

---

It is said that vagrancy amongst the young has broken out with renewed vigour. Notwithstanding the enforcement of strict railway rules and the great number of serious accidents to tramps, young men of 16 to 22 are casting off more and more the restraints of home and society, and are "hitting the road," i.e., the railroad. The looseness of the present day has slipped from its former bonds. The next thing will be a re-action.

CHAPTER II.

ON the morning following the night of fog Chilcote woke at 9. He woke at the moment that his man Allsopp tiptoed across the room and laid the salver with his early cup of tea on the table beside the bed.

For several seconds he lay with his eyes shut. The effort of opening them on a fresh day—the intimate certainty of what he would see on opening them—seemed to weight his lids. The heavy, half closed curtains, the blinds severely drawn, the great room with its splendid furniture, its sober coloring, its scent of damp London winter—above all, Allsopp, silent, respectful and respectable—were the things to dread.

A full minute passed while he still feigned sleep. He heard Allsopp stir discreetly, then the inevitable information broke the silence:

"Nine o'clock, sir."

He opened his eyes, murmured something and closed them again.

The man moved to the window, quietly pulled back the curtains and half drew the blind.

"Better night, sir, I hope?" he ventured softly.

Chilcote had drawn the bedclothes over his face to screen himself from the daylight, murky though it was.

"Yes," he responded. "Those beastly nightmares didn't trouble me for once." He shivered a little as at some recollection. "But don't talk—don't remind me of them. I hate a man who has no originality." He spoke sharply. At times he showed an almost childish irritation over trivial things.

Allsopp took the remark in silence. Crossing the wide room, he began to lay out his master's clothes. The action affected Chilcote to fresh annoyance.

"Confound it!" he said. "I'm sick of that routine! I can see you laying out my winding sheet the day of my burial. Leave those things. Come back in half an hour."

Allsopp allowed himself one glance at his master's figure huddled in the great bed; then, laying aside the coat he was holding, he moved to the door. With his fingers on the handle, he paused.

"Will you breakfast in your own room, sir, or downstairs?"

Chilcote drew the clothes more tightly round his shoulders. "Oh, anywhere—nowhere!" he said. "I don't care."

Allsopp softly withdrew.

Left to himself, Chilcote sat up in bed and lifted the salver to his knees. The sudden movement jarred him physically. He drew a handkerchief from under the pillow and wiped his forehead. Then he held his hand to the light and studied it. The hand looked sallow and unsteady. With a nervous gesture he thrust the salver back upon the table and slid out of bed.

Moving hastily across the room, he stopped before one of the tall wardrobes and swung the door open; then, after a furtive glance around the room, he thrust his hand into the recesses of a shelf and fumbled there. The thing he sought was evidently not hard to find, for almost at once he withdrew his hand and moved from the wardrobe to a table beside the fireplace, carrying a small glass tube filled with tabloids.

On the table were a decanter, a siphon and a water jug. Mixing some whisky, he uncorked the tube. Again he glanced apprehensively toward the door, then with a very nervous hand dropped two tabloids into the glass.

While they dissolved he stood with his hand on the table and his eyes fixed on the floor, evidently restraining his impatience. Instantly they had disappeared he seized the glass and drained it at a draft, replaced the bottle in the wardrobe and, shivering slightly in the raw air, slipped back into bed.

When Allsopp returned he was sitting up, a cigarette between his lips, the teacup standing empty on the salver. The nervous irritability had gone from his manner. He no longer moved jerkily; his eyes looked brighter, his pale skin more healthy.

"Ah, Allsopp," he said, "there are some moments in life, after all. It isn't all blank wall."

"I ordered breakfast in the small morning room, sir," said Allsopp, without a change of expression.

Chilcote breakfasted at 10. His appetite, always fickle, was particularly uncertain in the early hours. He helped himself to some fish, but sent away his plate untouched; then, having drunk two cups of tea, he pushed back his chair, lighted a fresh cigarette and shook out the morning's newspaper.

Twice he shook it out and twice turned it, but the reluctance to fix his mind upon it made him dally. The effect of the morphia tabloids was still apparent in the greater steadiness of his hand and eye, the regained quiet of his susceptibilities, but the respite was temporary and lethargic. The early days—the days of six years ago, when these tabloids meant an even sweep of thought, lucidity of brain, a balance of judgment in thought and effort—were days of the past. As he had said of Lexington and his vice, the slave had become master.

As he folded the paper in a last attempt at interest the door opened, and his secretary came a step or two into the room.

"Good morning, sir," he said. "Forgive me for being so untimely."

He was a fresh mannered, bright eyed boy of twenty-three. His breezy alertness, his deference, as to a man who had attained what he aspired to, amused and depressed Chilcote by turns.

"Good morning, Blessington. What is it now?" He sighed through habit and, putting up his hand, warded off a ray of sun that had forced itself through the misty atmosphere as if by mistake.

The boy smiled. "It's that business of the Wark timber contract, sir," he said. "You promised you'd look into it today. You know you've shelved it for a week already, and Craig-Burnage are rather clamoring for an answer." He moved forward and laid the papers he was carrying on the table beside Chilcote. "I'm sorry to be such a nuisance," he added. "I hope your nerves aren't worrying you today?"

Chilcote was toying with the papers. At the word nerves he glanced up suspiciously. But Blessington's ingenuous face satisfied him.

"No," he said. "I settled my nerves last night with—with a bromide. I knew that fog would upset me unless I took precautions."

"I'm glad of that, sir, though I'd avoid bromides. Bad habit to set up. But this Wark business—I'd like to get it under way if you have no objection."

Chilcote passed his fingers over the papers. "Were you out in that fog last night, Blessington?"

"No, sir. I supped with some people at the Savoy, and we just missed it. It was very partial, I believe."

"So I believe."

Blessington put his hand to his neat tie and pulled it. He was extremely polite, but he had an inordinate sense of duty.

"Forgive me, sir," he said, "but about that contract? I know I'm a frightful bore."

"Oh, the contract!" Chilcote looked about him abruptly. "By the way, did you see anything of my wife yesterday? What did she do last night?"

"Mrs. Chilcote gave me tea yesterday afternoon. She told me she was dining at Lady Sabinet's and looking in at one or two places later." He eyed his papers in Chilcote's listless hand.

Chilcote smiled satirically. "Eve is very true to society," he said; "I couldn't dine at the Sabinets' if it was to make me premier. They have a butler who is an institution—a sort of heirloom in the family. He is fat and breathes audibly. Last time I lunched there he haunted me for a whole night."

Blessington laughed gayly. "Mrs. Chilcote doesn't see ghosts, sir," he said; "but if I may suggest"—

Chilcote tapped his fingers on the table.

"No. Eve doesn't see ghosts. We rather miss sympathy there."

Blessington governed his impatience. He stood still for some seconds, then glanced down at his pointed boot.

"If you will be lenient to my persistency, sir, I would like to remind you"—

Chilcote lifted his head with a flash of irritability.

"Confound it, Blessington!" he exclaimed. "Am I never to be left in peace? Am I never to sit down to a meal without having work thrust upon me? Work—work—perpetually work! I have heard no other word in the last six years. I declare there are times"—he rose suddenly from his seat and turned to the window—"there are times when I feel that for sixpence I'd chuck it all—the whole beastly round"—

"I feel that for sixpence I'd chuck it all."

Startled by his vehemence, Blessington wheeled toward him.

"Not your political career, sir?"

There was a moment in which Chilcote hesitated, a moment in which the desire that had filled his mind for months rose to his lips and hung there. Then the question, the incredulity in Blessington's face, chilled it and it fell back into silence.

"I—I didn't say that," he murmured. "You young men jump to conclusions, Blessington."

"Forgive me, sir. I never meant to imply retirement. Why, Rickshaw, Vale, Cressham and the whole Wark crowd would be about your ears like flies if such a thing were even breathed—now more than ever since these Persian rumors. By the way, is there anything real in this border business? The St. George's came out rather strong last night."

Chilcote had moved back to the table. His face was pale from his outburst, and his fingers toyed restlessly with the open newspaper.

"I haven't seen the St. George's," he said hastily. "Lakely is always ready to shake the red rag where Russia is concerned. Whether we are to enter the arena is another matter. But what about Craig-Burnage? I think you mentioned something of a contract."

"Oh, don't worry about that, sir." Blessington had caught the twitching at the corners of Chilcote's mouth, the nervous sharpness of his voice. "I can put Craig-Burnage off. If they have an answer by Thursday it will be time enough." He began to collect his papers, but Chilcote stopped him.

"Wait," he said, veering suddenly. "Wait. I'll see to it now. I'll feel more myself when I've done something. I'll come with you to the study."

He walked hastily across the room; then, with his hand on the door, he paused.

"You go first, Blessington," he said. "I'll—I'll follow you in ten minutes. I must glance through the newspapers first."

Blessington looked uncertain. "You won't forget, sir?"

"Forget? Of course not."

Still doubtful, Blessington left the room and closed the door.

Once alone Chilcote walked slowly back to the table, drew up his chair and sat down with his eyes on the white cloth, the paper lying unheeded beside him.

Time passed. A servant came into the room to remove the breakfast. Chilcote moved slightly when necessary, but otherwise retained his attitude. The servant, having finished his task, replenished the fire and left the room. Chilcote still sat on.

At last, feeling numbed, he rose and crossed to the fireplace. The clock on the mantelpiece stared him in the face. He looked at it, started slightly, then drew out his watch. Watch and clock corresponded. Each marked 12 o'clock. With a nervous motion he leaned forward and pressed the electric bell long and hard.

Instantly a servant answered.

"Is Mr. Blessington in the study?" Chilcote asked.

"He was there, sir, five minutes back."

Chilcote looked relieved.

"All right. Tell him I have gone out—had to go out. Something important. You understand?"

"I understand, sir."

But before the words had been properly spoken Chilcote had passed the man and walked into the hall.

CHAPTER III.

LEAVING his house, Chilcote walked forward quickly and aimlessly. With the sting of the outer air the recollection of last night's adventure came back upon him. Since the hour of his waking it had hung about with vague persistence, but now in the clear light of day it seemed to stand out with a fuller peculiarity.

The thing was preposterous, nevertheless it was genuine. He was wearing the overcoat he had worn the night before, and, acting on impulse, he thrust his hand into the pocket and drew out the stranger's card.

"Mr. John Loder!" He read the name over as he walked along, and it mechanically repeated itself in his brain, falling into measure with his steps. Who was John Loder? What was he? The questions tantalized him till his pace unconsciously increased. The thought that two men so absurdly alike could inhabit the same city and remain unknown to each other faced him as a problem. It tangled with his personal worries and aggravated them. There seemed to be almost a danger in such an extraordinary likeness. He began to regret his impetuosity in thrusting his card upon the man. Then, again, how he had let himself go on the subject of Lexington! How narrowly he had escaped compromise! He turned hot and cold at the recollection of what he had said and what he might have said. Then for the first time he paused in his walk and looked about him.

On leaving Grosvenor square he had turned westward, moving rapidly till the Marble arch was reached. There, still oblivious to his surroundings, he had crossed the roadway to the Edgware road, passing along it to the labyrinth of shabby streets that lie behind Paddington. Now, as he glanced about him, he saw with some surprise how far he had come.

The damp remnants of the fog still hung about the housetops in a filmy veil. There were no glimpses of green to break the monotony of tone. All was quiet, dingy, neglected. But to Chilcote the shabbiness was restful, the subdued atmosphere a satisfaction. Among these sad houses, these passers-by, each filled with his own concerns, he experienced a sense of respite and relief. In the fashionable streets that bounded his own horizon if a man paused in his walk to work out an idea he instantly drew a crowd of inquisitive or contemptuous eyes. Here if a man halted for half an hour it was nobody's business but his own.

Enjoying this thought, he wandered on for close upon an hour, moving from one street to another with steps that were listless or rapid, as inclination prompted. Then, still acting with vagrant aimlessness, he stopped in his wanderings and entered a small eating house.

The place was low ceiled and dirty, the air hot and steaming with the smell of food, but Chilcote passed through the door and moved to one of the tables with no expression of disgust and with far less furtive watchfulness than he used in his own house. By a curious mental twist he felt greater freedom, larger opportunities in drab surroundings such as these than in the broad issues and weighty responsibilities of his own life. Choosing a corner seat, he called for coffee; and there, protected by shadow and wrapped in cigarette smoke, he set about imagining himself some vagrant unit who had slipped his moorings and was blissfully adrift.

The imagination was pleasant while it lasted, but with him nothing was permanent. Of late the greater part of his sufferings had been comprised in the irritable fickleness of all his aims—the distaste for and impossibility of sustained effort in any direction. He had barely lighted a second cigarette when the old restlessness fell upon him. He stirred nervously in his seat, and the cigarette was scarcely burned out when he rose, paid his small bill and left the shop.

Outside on the pavement he halted, pulled out his watch and saw that two hours stretched in front before any appointment claimed his attention. He wondered vaguely where he might go to, what he might do, in those two hours. In the last few minutes a distaste for solitude had risen in his mind, giving the close street a loneliness that had escaped him before.

As he stood wavering a cab passed slowly down the street. The sight of a well dressed man roused the cabman. Flicking his whip, he passed Chilcote close, feigning to pull up.

The cab suggested civilization. Chilcote's mind veered suddenly, and he raised his hand. The vehicle stopped, and he climbed in.

"Where, sir?" The cabman peered down through the roof door.

Chilcote raised his head. "Oh, anywhere near Pall Mall," he said. Then, as the horse started forward, he put up his hand and shook the trapdoor. "Wait!" he called. "I've changed my mind. Drive to Cadogan gardens, No. 33."

The distance to Cadogan Gardens was covered quickly. Chilcote had hardly realized that his destination was reached when the cab pulled up. Jumping out, he paid the fare and walked quickly to the hall door of No. 33.

"Is Lady Astrupp at home?" he asked sharply as the door swung back in answer to his knock.

The servant drew back deferentially. "Her ladyship has almost finished lunch, sir," he said.

For answer Chilcote stepped through the doorway and walked halfway across the hall.

"All right," he said. "But don't disturb her on my account. I'll wait in the white room till she has finished." And, without taking further notice of the servant, he began to mount the stairs.

In the room where he had chosen to wait a pleasant wood fire brightened the dull January afternoon and softened the thick white curtains, the gilt furniture and the venetian vases filled with white roses. Moving straight forward, Chilcote paused by the grate and stretched his hands to the blaze; then, with his usual instability, he turned and passed to a couch that stood a yard or two away.

On the couch, tucked away between a novel and a crystal gazing ball, was a white Persian kitten, fast asleep. Chilcote picked up the ball and held it between his eyes and the fire, then he laughed superciliously, tossed it back into its place and caught the kitten's tail. The little animal stirred, stretched itself and began to pur. At the same moment the door of the room opened.

Chilcote turned around. "I particularly said you were not to be disturbed," he began. "Have I merited displeasure?" He spoke fast, with the uneasy tone that so often underran his words.

Lady Astrupp took his hand with a confiding gesture and smiled.

"Never displeasure," she said lingeringly, and again she smiled. The smile might have struck a close observer as faintly artificial. But what man in Chilcote's frame of mind has time to be observant where women are concerned? The manner of the smile was very sweet and almost caressing, and that sufficed.

"What have you been doing?" she asked after a moment. "I thought I was quite forgotten." She moved across to the couch, picked up the kitten and kissed it. "Isn't this sweet?" she added.

She looked very graceful as she turned, holding the little animal up. She was a woman of twenty-seven, but she looked a girl. The outline of her face was pure, the pale gold of her hair almost ethereal, and her tall, slight figure still suggested the suppleness, the possibility of future development, that belong to youth. She wore a lace colored gown that harmonized with the room and with the delicacy of her skin.

"Now sit down and rest or walk about the room. I shan't mind which." She nestled into the couch and picked up the crystal ball.

"What is the toy for?" Chilcote looked at her from the mantelpiece, against which he was resting. He had never defined the precise attraction that Lillian Astrupp held for him. Her shallowness soothed him; her inconsequent egotism helped him to forget himself. She never asked him how he was, she never expected impossibilities. She let him come and go and act as he pleased, never demanding reasons. Like the kitten, she was charming and graceful and easily amused. It was possible that, also like the kitten, she could scratch and be spiteful on occasion, but that did not weigh with him. He sometimes expressed a vague envy of the late Lord Astrupp, but even had circumstances permitted it is doubtful whether he would have chosen to be his successor. Lillian as a friend was delightful, but Lillian as a wife would have been a different consideration.

$1 a Cake Could Buy No Better Soap

If you were to offer us $1 for a single cake of soap, we could make no better than our Infants' Delight.

For we have put our very best into this cake. We go to the gardens of France for pure vegetable oil. There we pay often double what we might pay. We bring cocoanut oil more than 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. Then we mix these oils and boil them doubly long.

After this we send them through our own special milling process — one that we have perfected only in our 43 years of experience.

From here they fall like flakes of snow into huge bins and are then crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture.

Then they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons, after which they are dried eight times. The result is the most perfect and delightful soap.

It is so pure and clean that it leaves the skin fair as an infant's. So we call this soap Infants' Delight.

Order one cake today and see for yourself how different it is. Note the rich, creamy lather and see how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Note the dainty perfume — it comes from Bulgaria and costs us $100 a pound. But it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce of this Otto of Roses. The fragrance is simply exquisite. Please try it and see.

How to Manicure

File your nails to the desired length. Then soak them in warm water with a thick lather of Infants' Delight. Remove your fingers from the water and push back the cuticle at the base of the nails until the white crescent appears. After this, trim and polish the nails as usual.

Friendly Rivalry.

By choosing the Canadian route to Great Britain, the Australian delegates to the Imperial Conference have emphasized the homogenous character of the British Empire. Canada and Australia have recently been indulging in a good deal of rivalry, as both want emigrants of the same class, but that does not prevent their remaining the best of friends. The program of the Canadian tour has included a visit to the great irrigation scheme of the Canadian Pacific at Calgary, by which 3,000,000 acres of ranch land are being brought under cultivation. Irrigation has played such an important part in agricultural development at the Antipodes that the Australian delegates were especially anxious to see how Canada was solving problems like her own.

Quetigo Reserve.

A provincial order in council sets aside one million acres of land in the Rainy Lake region of Ontario as a timber, fish, and game preserve. It is called the Quetigo Forest Reserve, and for sixty miles along the international boundary line it abuts upon a similar reserve on the American side.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed for ever: nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

To enliven things at Riverside Park during the Barrie-Peterborough ball game, a detachment of the 57th band was engaged, and marched over to the grounds playing a lively piece. # OVER 75 ATTENDING THE SUMMER SCHOOL AT CHEMONG

Pleasure and Profit in the Week Spent at the Park—Many Excellent Speakers and Teachers.

Special to Review.

Chemong Park, July 4.—The third annual session of the Kawartha Lakes Summer School opened on Monday evening, July 5th.

The delegates were met at Peterborough by a reception committee who conducted them to the lovely Y.W.C.A. building, where they remained until later, when they were conveyed by means of cabs to Chemong Park. After a pleasant drive through a beautiful country they reached the park in time for the mid-day meal.

The session on Monday evening was opened by singing "Through out the life time." Rev. W. G. Clarke, B.D., of Port Hope, occupied the chair.

At the close of the opening exercises Mr. Clarke, in his usual pleasing manner, welcomed the delegates to the Summer School, and spoke of the pleasure and profit derived from this meeting together.

Prof. [illegible], B.A., B.D., of Albert College, gave an address on "Outline of the course to be taken in the missionary study class." He also spoke of the pleasure and influence in connection with the school and said that by way of advice he hoped every one would bear in mind this thought, that they would not only take in but give out.

He spoke to some length on our duties to the strangers within our gates, and concluded a very interesting address by telling us that we are awakening to our possibilities. Some vision of our work may come to us in our Summer School.

An address on "Outline of the course to be taken in the Bible study" was given by Prof. McLaughlin, Toronto. He spoke of the great responsibilities, aims and purposes, and calling that come to us at the Summer School. A good book is a good friend. The Bible is the best book, therefore the best friend. Nothing impresses us more than Paul's journeys and letters. The study of Paul's journeys and letters promises to be most instructive and interesting as conducted by Prof. McLaughlin.

After some announcements made by Rev. Mr. Rogers, B.A., Millbrook, the session was closed by prayer.

Today's and tomorrow's programme are as follows:

On Friday evening Rev. Mr. Hassard, of Toronto, secretary of the Bible Society, will give the schools a limelight view exhibition. Mr. Hassard is a brother of Mr. Hassard, secretary of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

Over seventy five are already in attendance, and more are coming. It is expected the attendance will be in the neighborhood of one hundred.

THREE BLACKLISTERS WERE FINED THIS MORNING

Were Found Under the Influence of Liquor Yesterday—The Evidence in the Cases.

Three blacklisters appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning as a result of having been arrested yesterday while under the influence of liquor. Three charges were preferred against Michael Murphy, one for supplying liquor to George Martin, and two others for being drunk on the fifth and sixth days of June. He pleaded not guilty to the first charge and guilty to the other two. A fine of $10 was imposed on him the same to be paid forthwith.

George Martin pleaded not guilty to a charge of being found drunk, but the evidence was against him and as it was his second offence he was fined $20, to be paid forthwith and in default thirty days in jail.

Fred Irwin pleaded guilty to being drunk yesterday and he was fined $10 to be paid in ten days.

THE EVIDENCE.

Martin's case was proceeded with first.

P. C. Newhall in his evidence stated he found Martin asleep in a back room of his store on George street on July 6th. He was very drunk and his breath smelled strongly of whiskey. Martin was so drunk that he was unable to stand on his feet and when asked where the rest of the liquor was, he said, "I have none, nor is there any in the shop." The room was then searched and two whiskey flasks were found. That was about five o'clock.

After he had been taken to the cells and was placed with Murphy, who had previously been arrested, he had seen Martin get a drink of whiskey from Murphy.

Chief Rossel, the next witness, stated that he saw Martin in the back room on the sixth and he was very drunk. There was no doubt that the bottles picked up by P. C. Newhall had contained whiskey.

George Martin, the accused, admitted being served with the black-list notice.

Where did you get the flask? asked the chief.

I did not know it was in the shop until P. C. Newhall showed it to me.

Who was the man in the shop a short time before?

I do not know.

Was you drunk yesterday?

No, I had no liquor to drink yesterday. I was only sleeping in the back room.

Do you know William West?

No.

Do you know William Wyatt?

Yes he was in the shop in the afternoon.

What time. Was it long before Newhall came?

I couldn't tell. He has been in the shop several times.

Did he buy that flask in the shop?

Not as I know of.

Have you ever given him money to buy liquor?

No. I gave him money to buy tobacco yesterday and he brought it in just before I laid down.

How much did you give him?

Ten cents.

Did Wyatt know that you were blacklisted?

Yes.

Does Murphy know?

Yes.

Who brought the whiskey to the shop?

I don't know.

The Magistrate held that the charge of being drunk had been proven and he imposed the above fine.

Murphy's case was next dealt with.

Where did you get the liquor? asked the Chief.

It came from Toronto.

Who brought it?

I don't know who the man was.

How many bottles?

Two flasks. They were given free of charge.

When did you get them?

Yesterday afternoon at the C.P.R. station.

Did he know you?

Yes, but I don't know his name.

What train was it?

The one from the east at 4.38.

Who was with you at the time?

Nobody.

This concluded the evidence.

The other man when asked where he got his liquor, said that he came from Toronto on the morning of the day he was arrested and brought the whiskey with him. He met Murphy on George street, but did not get any of the liquor from him.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION CONCLUDED SUMMER MEETINGS

Necessary Repairs Will be Made to Schools During the Holidays—Reports were Read and Adopted

The members of the Board of Education met last night to make their last reports for the summer months, and transact necessary business. Those present were Chairman L. M. Hayes, K.C., R. F. Morrow, W. H. Hill, Robt. Fair, John Crane, Dr. Morrison, B. F. Ackerman, D. W. Dumble, K.C., E. F. Mason, and W. F. Nelson.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. A large number of communications were read and assigned to the different committees.

Mr. Nelson, in reading the report of the Property Committee, mentioned a number of repairs which should be made to the schools during the holidays. A few seats are needed at the King Edward school, repairs are necessary at the East City school, and several of the other schools need painting and kalsomining. It was decided that the report of Mr. Nelson be carried out. The question of how the work would be done was discussed, and the majority were in favor of getting all the work done by contract.

Mr. Robt. Fair, chairman of the Finance Committee, after reading his report, suggested that the appropriations of the committee be readjusted. They had paid out $1,500 in the domestic science and manual training departments, and of this amount the government paid $900, but as this money is not forthcoming until five years, the question of making an overdraft arose. The chairman was instructed to thoroughly look into the matter of finances and report at the next meeting.

The sanitary conditions of King Edward school were again the subject of a discussion. Mr. Fair wanted to know why nothing had been done by the City Council in regard to this matter. Mr. Dumble made a motion to the effect that the secretary of the Board be instructed to write to the Council, urging upon them the necessity of immediate action.—Carried.

The reports of the committees were as follows:

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report as follows—

1. Your committee advertised for two teachers for the Collegiate Institute staff to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Miss B. T. Bauer and Mr. J. H. Adams, and received twenty applications, and after careful consideration, recommend that Miss Ethel Alford, of St. Catharines, be appointed as teacher of Art, Physical Culture and Junior English at the minimum salary of $1,100. # DOG FRIENDLY TO THE TAILOR

But Citizen Objected to Attack by Collie This Morning

An indignant citizen protested to The Review this morning against vicious dogs being allowed to run at large. His trouser leg was badly torn as the result of an attack of a hungry collie on Stewart street this morning as he was passing the door.

A stone was on the sidewalk and he kicked it off on to the road. The dog resented his action and made the attack.

"KICKER" BILL CINNAMON IS STILL IN THE GAME

They may talk of Mooney Gibson, Bowerman and a dozen other idols of the big leagues, but none has cut a bigger figure among their associates than has William G. Cinnamon—"Bill" Cinnamon—in the Midland League. True, "Bill" is not in the same class as a ball player, nor is the Midland League an organization with a world-wide reputation, but nevertheless everybody in this little circuit who has played the game or followed the players, knows of "Bill."

Like Madame Patti, Cinnamon has announced his retirement a dozen different times and a dozen times he comes back for just one more game and one more "last appearance." Last Saturday he donned a uniform and mit, and without a single practise caught a remarkably fine game for Stouffville against Markham. True, he was not at his best and Hickey, who pitched for Markham, caught him cold off second, but Mr. Hickey, ex-Eastern Leaguer, would not do it if "Bill" had a few practises under his cap.

Cinnamon came to Lindsay from Oshawa and has played ball for this town for years. He took up the catching game here, but has also pitched creditably, and is a fairly good all-round player. A year or so ago he went out to Dauphin and played a season with the pro team there.

Talk as they will, but "Kicker" Cinnamon knows just as much about baseball as anybody in Lindsay or Peterborough either—and just a little more.—Lindsay Warder.

LINES ON SPORT

Edward Payson Weston, the veteran walker, has a rival in John Schumann, a Baltimorean, who on a bet of $1,000 walked from New York to Chicago in 315 actual walking hours. On the return trip Schumann made the journey in 256 hours. Schumann pushed a wheelbarrow which, with all utensils, weighed 160 pounds.

Marengo, Ill., July 6.—With Carl Lundgren in the box, the Marengo Athletics defeated the fast Belvidere team here by a score of 1 to 0. Only twenty-nine men faced Lundgren, who struck out eleven, allowing only one clean hit.

Walter Miller, once America's champion jockey, has just received a license from the English Jockey Club. He will ride on the British turf as a free lance.

What will probably be the biggest automobile fixture ever held in Canada will take place on July 9th and the 10th at Montreal, when the Automobile Club of Canada holds its second annual track meet. Blue Bonnets course will be the scene of some lively racing by a number of the fastest cars in America and Canada.

---

"Lightning Bug Noah," the Moravian town Indian running wonder, who refused to be enticed off the reserve, to enter upon races, was killed on the Wabash Railway tracks near Thamesville Saturday night. He had been at St. Thomas at the circus, and was returning to his home at Highgate, running, as usual, along the tracks. Noah was credited with ten miles in 50.50, and five in 25.48. Noah's death recalls that of Ben Howard, the Sunderland Indian, who was killed the same way last summer, near this city.

Toronto lost to Rochester yesterday. Kellogg had one bad inning and this did the trick. Score, 5—3.

Bill O'Hara's error lost the game for New York against Philadelphia yesterday. The score was 3—1.

SOME SPLENDID SCORES MADE AT THE GUN CLUB'S SHOOT

JIM JEFFRIES FOR TORONTO

The management of Hanlan's Point has pulled off another great coup in the way of an amusement enterprise. Negotiations were concluded last night for the appearance there of Jas. C. Jeffries, ex-champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, and his sparring partner, Sam Berger. The engagement is for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday only. They will give exhibitions of boxing and bag punching both afternoon and evening on these days. As is well known to all followers of this sport Jeffries has challenged Jack Johnson, which should add greatly to the interest in his appearance here.

GOLF

Why is it Peterborough doesn't send some men to the golf championship? Messrs. S. Ray, R. Neill, C. Hall and others are excellent players and might furnish a world beater like the St. Catharines man, Mr. Robson, who beat Travis for the gold medal. There is nothing like trying and our golfers will never reach a high standard by playing the ceaseless round of a ten acre field.

Below is the draw for the Stratton Trophy, fourth round, to be played on or before Friday, 9th July:—

Alan Campbell 15, vs. Dr. Gowan, 8.

S. Anderson 15, vs. W. G. Morrow, 15.

A. H. Stratton 4, vs. J. N. Barber, 12.

D. Mowatt 8, vs. T. Wilmott, 20.

SOME LATE NEWS FROM CHEMONG PARK

Special to the Review.

Chemong Park, July 7.—With the closing of the schools and the children free for the summer holidays, many families have opened their cottages at the park. The result is that the summer season is now in full swing at this popular resort, and an air of liveliness prevails. There are still vacant cottages, but the probabilities are that these will have occupants ere many days have passed. The present week is a particularly active one on account of the summer school. The influx of students has resulted in the Chemong Park Hotel having a full quota of guests. The major portion of those attending the school are staying at Mr. Brown's popular hostelry, but a few are staying with Bridgenorth people.

There is the usual large number of Americans at the Park. Many of them are tourists who are staying at the hotel. They have come over to enjoy the fishing and are having rare sport, for lunge and bass in Chemong Lake are biting in a manner to bring joy to even the most pronounced pessimist. Many fine catches have been made, and of course the "big ones" is going around, both on the land and in the lake. Mr. M. Konold, and Mr. Charles B. Bechtold, of Rochester, were among the lucky ones with spoon and line. When they returned home a day or two ago they took back with them their full allowance of lunge. Mr. R. McGill Hood and Mr. F. Seymour, of Peterborough, had great sport one day this week, getting four lunge in two hours. The four fish totalled thirty pounds.

A party of seven from Rochester are at the park for a few days' fishing. They are staying at the hotel and have been attended with good luck in their piscatorial operations. The party consists of Dr. and Mrs. A. Killop, and son and daughter, Mr. C. E. Strachen, Mr. Frank Cassard, Mr. B. L. Gardiner.

Last night there was some excitement around the hotel when an auto belonging to a Peterborough gentleman took a wrong turn in starting and bumped into the fence with considerable force. Fortunately there was no damage.

Lady Snaggs, of London, Eng., and Herr Quarterfied Stockle, of Friedburg, Germany, are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Poole, at their summer cottage here. Lady Snaggs and Herr Stockle are on a tour of the world and will leave in a few days for Vancouver, from where they will proceed to Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ely and daughter, of Tarrytown-on-Hudson, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Keadrey, were recent visitors to Chemong.

Among the members of the Summer school registered at the Chemong Park hotel are the following:—W. P. Rogers Millbrook; A. H. Foster and wife, Castleton; Mrs. W. J. Harper, Odd Heights; Lulu Mullett, Castleton; Annie Grace Albury; Coral Ireland, Carman; Libbie Moore, Morganstown; Florence Cole, Norham; Estella Newman, Castleton; Mrs. Walter Glover, Morganston; Myrtle Henderson, Cobourg; Marie L'Esperance, Cobourg; Alice Mutton, Penryn; Grace Winn, Castleton; Lucilla Gould, Colborne; Margaret Hinds, Colborne; Mrs. J. Other registrations at the hotel are:—J. M. Denyes, Newburgh; M. M. Moment, Orono; Fred R. Foley, Bowmanville; A. A. Wackens, Des Moines, Iowa; J. T. Allen and family, New York, and Mrs. A. M. Hoyt, Pittsfield.

EXCELLENT BAND CONCERT; BRIGADIER ADBY SANG

One of the most interesting programmes of the season was given last night at Victoria Park by the Salvation Army band under the direction of Bandmaster Green. All the selections were given in splendid style and were received with great approval by the large crowd that listened to them. A feature of the concert was the excellent singing of a sacred solo by Brigadier Adby, of Toronto, the singing evangelist of the Salvation Army.

BASEBALL

Norwood, July 7.—An interesting game of baseball was played at the ball grounds on Monday night when the Catholics and Baptists clashed with the Methodist aggregation. The Catholics were the first to bat and made things lively by scoring four runs, the Methodists going out 1, 2, 3 style. The second innings added another, but the Methodists by a good batting rally tied the score. The third innings resulted in two runs each, the score being tied, 7—7. The fourth and fifth innings each side retired without a run. A couple of double plays and good pitching kept the score down. The captains decided to play the game off on Wednesday afternoon, our half holiday. The standing of the Church League is as follows:

| | W. | L. | To Pl'y |
|---|---|---|---|
| Methodist | 1 | 0 | 3 |
| Presbyterian & English | 1 | 1 | 2 |
| Catholic & Baptist | 0 | 1 | 3 |

The Kaffeeklatsch.

The difference between the 5 o'clock tea and a German kaffeeklatsch is enormous. The tea is a pleasant go-as-you-please meeting, where we balance our teacups in hands perilously handicapped by our multitudinous possessions, augmented by the frail saucer, on which a top heavy piece of cake finds an insecure resting place. We may enjoy a variety of creature comforts, augmented by ices and cups on festive occasions. Not so the German kaffeeklatsch. That is a ponderous affair, which you take sitting at tables. Coffee and savories mark the beginning of the meal, followed by numberless cakes, which the Germans know so well how to make. This is followed by some creamy preparation or a beautiful device made in ice. This, again, is succeeded by the choicest fruits. The kaffeekanne is meanwhile still busily plying its trade. There is a well known German song which ends with the refrain, freely translated: "Thank you, thank you, hostess mine. I never drink more cups than nine."

The Sorrowful Tree.

There is a tree in Persia to which the name "the sorrowful tree" is given, perhaps because it blooms only in the evening. When the first star appears in the heavens, the first bud of the sorrowful tree opens, and as the shades of night advance and the stars thickly stud the sky the buds continue gradually opening until the whole tree looks like one immense white flower. On the approach of dawn, when the brilliancy of the stars gradually fades in the light of day, the sorrowful tree closes its flowers, and ere the sun is fully risen not a single blossom is visible. A sheet of flower dust as white as snow covers the ground around the foot of the tree, which seems blighted and withered during the day, while, however, it is actively preparing for the next nocturnal festival. The fragrance of the blossoms is like that of the evening primrose. If the tree is cut down close to the roots a new plant shoots up and attains maturity in an incredibly short time. In the vicinity of this singular tree there usually grows another, which is almost an exact counterpart of the sorrowful tree, but less beautiful, and strange to say, it blooms only in the daytime.

Polar Nights Delight Eskimos.

The polar Eskimo, the most northerly dwelling people in the world, are said to exist only by the exercise of great ingenuity and the practice of social virtue. The cheeriness, kindliness and practical socialism of the Eskimo from eastern Greenland to Alaska may be regarded as much due to their environment as is the necessity of eating large quantities of fat. The Eskimo hail the first dark evenings with the same glee as the first daylight after the polar night. When a whole summer through the eyes have been bathed in light, day and night, they long to see the land vanish into darkness again. And with the idea of a change they associate all the good things the winter will bring—the frozen sea and the hunting on the ice, the swift sledge drives, far from the sweltering houses, after bears.

Monuments to Potatoes.

"When I was in Germany," said a man who travels, "I saw some people who like potatoes even better than I do. At any rate, they erect statues to them. Offenberg was the first city to erect a monument of this kind. The upper part consists of a statue of Sir Francis Drake, who introduced the plant into Europe. This as well as the pedestal is draped with garlands of the potato vine with full grown tubers. On the pedestal on one side is Sir Francis Drake's name, the second side explains what a blessing the potato has been to mankind, the third records that the statue is the gift of a certain Andrew Frederick of Strassburg, and the fourth contains the names of the erectors. A statue similar to this is in the town of Murg, and I have been told that there are other copies in many small towns."

DRUDGERY OF MUSIC.

Joachim Practiced One Composition For Over Sixty Years.

When an interviewer, who had put to Kubelik a question as to the number of hours a day he practiced, was answered, "Practically all my waking hours," it is probable that the interrogator, as well as others who heard the reply, thought the response a bit of artistic exaggeration. Yet there is much evidence to sustain Kubelik's assertion.

Paganini, the greatest of all violinists, was compelled by an avaricious father to practice twelve or fourteen hours each day. So wearied did Paganini become of his drudgery that for several years he actually laid aside the instrument over which he had such consummate control and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits. This period of musical disgust soon passed, however, and the violinist again turned to his hard work, and to such good purpose that there was nothing written for the violin, no matter what its technical difficulties might be, that he was not able to play. Late in his life Paganini gave over his practicing, for the reason, it is said, that he then played only his own compositions.

A saying of Rubinstein's indicates concisely the importance of unwearying practice. "Should I not practice for a day I know it, should I miss two days my friends know it, and should I miss three days even the public knows it."

Joachim, another violinist, during his student days was an inmate of the house of his master, and it was largely due to the inexorable demands to practice that the teacher laid on him that Joachim was enabled to attain his proud position. The room wherein the pupil practiced was without any window, but had a glass panel in the door. If the sound of Joachim's violin ceased for a moment during the hours set apart for practice, then could be seen the scowling face of the instructor peering through the panel. Joachim practiced one composition—the difficult Beethoven concerto—for over sixty years.

Mendelssohn has left an interesting observation touching his arduous hours of practice. Speaking of certain recitals he was giving on the organ, he said: "I became so interested in my work that whole days passed like hours. I practiced pedal passages to such an extent that the act of walking along the street actually transformed itself into a fugue, so automatic had my movements become."

All There.

A philanthropic citizen of a small city, moved by sympathy for his unfortunate townspeople, who were suffering from want during an exceedingly cold winter, arranged a public entertainment in their behalf. No admission fee was charged, but it was announced that a collection would be taken. The evening came, and the hall was well filled. The entertainment, consisting of recitations, music and amateur sleight of hand performances, was generously applauded, and with much satisfaction the philanthropic citizen, assisted by the performers, proceeded to take up the contributions.

They amounted to 5s. 6d.

"Well," he said to the audience after he had counted the money, "this collection, as you understand, is for the benefit of the poor—and they seem to be all here."

Coats of Arms.

The origin of the term "coats of arms" is thus explained: In the days of chivalry the knights, of course, wore coats of linked steel or some kind of armor to protect them in battle or tourney. These coats would soon become useless on account of the rusting caused by exposure to drenching rains, and in the sunlight they were exceedingly hot and dazzling. So the knights put on a silken surcoat over these coats of mail, and as, with helmets on and visors closed, there was no way of distinguishing one from another the armorial bearings of each knight were emblazoned on his silken surcoat, which thus became a "coat of arms." The practice was then extended to the trappings of the horse and afterward to the articles of the household, as the linen and plate.

Mme. Modjeska's "Spoof."

There are some good stories told about Mme. Modjeska, the famous Polish actress, who has just died. Perhaps the most amusing, however, is that which relates how she spoofed a private audience who had been beseeching her to recite something in her native language. Demurring at first, the famous actress at last gave way, and the audience sat spellbound as she dramatically uttered unintelligible words. Great applause was the reward for the effort; but what the feelings of the people must have been when they learned that she had merely recited the numbers from one to a hundred in Polish, it is scarcely possible to describe.

A Grand Memory.

A Highland girl who had been in service in Dundee and had gone to a place farther south called upon her old mistress on her way north to visit her friends.

She was invited to take dinner with the family, and her master asked a blessing on the meal as usual, when the girl said:

"My maister, ye maun ha'e a gran' memory. That's the grace ye said when I was here sax years syne."—London Telegraph.

Giving Him a Hint.

Papa—Are you writing to that sweetheart of yours again, Edith? Why, you seem to have been doing so for years. How do you sign your letters?

Edith—O, I always say, "I remain ever your loving Edith Jones."

Papa—Oh, well, strike out that "I remain" and the "ever" and put three scores under the "Jones." It's time that young man was coming to the point.

THE FAMILY PEACE.

A Practical Theory of Child Training Up to Date.

The modern theory of child training is to shift the responsibility of wrongdoing to a child's own shoulders. It is early taught to weigh right and wrong and count the cost.

Mothers who are in despair over the behavior of their children should try making them free agents. Show them plainly how unpopular they are making themselves by their horrid behavior. Appeal to the reason. Teach them to form their own decisions and abide by the results.

A child so trained usually acquires self control when other children are having parental control punished into them.

This method of training is not feasible, however, unless parents have the good judgment to keep in such close touch with their little ones that they can act as counselor, as a last court of appeals and as presiding judge, whose decisions are final.

A mother of a large and interesting family said, "If I had a dozen children I would have to evolve a different way to train each one according to its idiosyncrasies."

Instead of mourning over a child's misconduct, study to make it good in spite of itself. Keep it so well that a happy disposition comes natural. Teach Mary or John self government, but at the same time let it be thoroughly understood that you are governor in chief in disputed points.

One mother who had ideas on self rule for her children allowed those children to be terrors to the neighborhood. Even in church she would sit placidly by while they crawled under the pews to pinch the worshipers in front or slyly run pins into the next person.

A mother who does not know the difference between self control and lack of control had better abide by Solomonic precepts of child training. Applied judiciously, the method of making a boy or girl a free agent has been found to work well in the interest of family peace.

Mexican Politeness.

Mexicans have a nice, delicate way of saying even unpleasant things. A young Mexican lady, talking with a prisoner in the penitentiary, politely asked, "How long do you expect to be away from home?"

A lawyer in Mexico writes politely of a certain senor: "I have written to Senor —— about the documents, and I am awaiting his reply. He has not answered, although there has been plenty of time. I hear he is in jail, and that, of course, handicaps him to some extent."

More Than She Expected.

A little girl well expressed the mingling of hope and doubt which anticipation holds for many people.

When she received her first "very own" doll after a succession of treasures inherited from her older sisters she turned to her mother a face full of rapture.

"I expected I'd have a doll some day," she said breathlessly, "but I didn't expect I should ever have my expect!"

His Interest in His Health.

An Alameda man's young hopeful was very ill, and Willie and the other little boys in the surrounding blocks had been asked not to make any noise when they played in the streets, says the San Francisco Call. The neighbor's doorbell rang one day, and she opened it to find Willie standing bashfully on her front steps. "How is he today?" he inquired in a shy whisper. "He is better, thank you, dear, and what a thoughtful child you are to come and ask." Willie stood a moment on one foot and then shifted to the other and then, the eulogy giving him fresh courage, he burst forth again. "I'm orful sorry Jimmy's sick." The mother was profoundly touched by the apparent tenderness of the child's heart. She could find no further words to say, but simply kissed him. Made still bolder by the caress, Willie began to back down the steps, repeating at intervals his sorrow for his playmate's illness. At the bottom step he halted and looked up. "If Jimmy should die," he asked, "kin I have his drum?"

Dock For Brazilian Dreadnoughts.

The government of Brazil has called for bids for the construction of a great floating drydock to accommodate war and merchant vessels, and especially the new battleships of the Dreadnought type now being constructed in England for the Brazilian navy. The dock, which is to be built at Rio de Janeiro, is to have a length of 543 feet and a width of 83 feet.—Philadelphia Press.

CHINESE DWARFS.

Their Ancestry Dates Back to the Building of the Great Wall.

Pygmy human beings who live like animals and seem lower in the scale than African baboons were discovered in the mountain solitudes of northern China by Dr. W. E. Gell, an American explorer and writer, who has just returned to this country. The discovery was made in the course of a caravan journey along the entire extent of the great wall of China, 1,800 miles, and it confirmed the legend that far in the interior dwelt a race of hairy dwarfs, the kind of beings described by Marco Polo and Baron Munchausen with damage to their reputations for veracity. But the dwarfs exist, and ancient inscriptions on the Great wall, deciphered for Dr. Gell by Chinese scholars, profess to explain their origin. Back in 210 B. C. the Emperor Chin decided that his country needed protection from the fierce Tartar tribes on the west and north, and he ordered the building of a horseshoe shaped barrier thousands of miles in length to inclose the empire from sea to sea. A work more monumental than the erection of all the Egyptian pyramids and temples was begun. Millions of Chinese toiled at the Great wall, cutting and laying granite blocks for the first courses and making brick for the superstructure. The towers were built first, and they served as military blockhouses while the connecting walls were put up.

Kept at their job by strict compulsion, the millions of laborers were inspired by the fear of an unusual penalty for error or rebellion. The workman who made a mistake or listened to agitators was promptly incorporated in the wall as so much building material. Burying alive proved to be good discipline with a majority of the laborers, obviating strikes and discontent, but some of them ran away to the remote forests on the Tibetan border. They took their wives and children with them. So affected were they by their terrible experience that some of them went crazy, and the rest had such a hard fight for existence that they deteriorated physically, transmitting dwarfishness to their present day descendants. The Chinese legend to this effect may not be entirely astray, since it is likely that deserters from the army of labor fled to the forests and that the hardships of a wild, isolated life should have had effect on them after many generations. The dwarfs have long nails, terrible faces and resemble apes. Dr. Gell believes that the Great wall has never been entirely explored in modern times previous to his expedition last year. He found a stretch of 200 miles that had not been mapped. At places the great wall climbed to a height of two miles above sea level. There were evidences of monumental barriers antedating Emperor Chin's celebrated inclosure.—New York Tribune.

Dainty Cooking of France.

"In Paris I am sure one gets the daintiest and most palatable food in the world, but I never enjoyed any good eating there that was not very expensive," said a banker who has been abroad.

"At any of the very superior and noted restaurants of the French capital the tariff is as high as in New York's best establishments or even higher. One thing I always kicked about, but in vain, over there was the item 'couvfere' always included in your bill. It meant the charge for the dishes, linen and perhaps the dish of olives and is a franc, or 20 cents, for each person. That is a petty graft not yet adopted in this country. But don't worry; it will come in time, for we have imitated old world practices so rapidly in other ways of doing the public that this particular device will not long be delayed." — Baltimore American.

Berlin's Railway Porters.

The Berlin railway station porters, well known to travelers by their white tunics, have formed themselves for mutual protection into a limited liability company, which bears the proud title of Bahnamtlich Zugelassene Berliner Gepackbeforderungsgenossenschaft mit Beschrankter Haftung. Should the call for an official of the society not trip readily off the tongue nervous travelers will be relieved to hear that the Berliners themselves find the name rather cumbersome and that the organization is popularly known as the B. Z. B. G.

A Traveling Kitchen.

A Paris caterer has bought a mule and a small van, to which is fitted a kitchen range with several hot dishes all ready, and sends them out along the streets in charge of a cook. A horn announces the presence of the van to the people, who come out and are handed on hot plates a portion of roast meat or other dish, with vegetables, cheese and dessert. The scheme is a great success, and the caterer is doing a large business.

GOVERNMENT FOR FARMERS.

Legislation In Australia Makes the Dairy Business Profitable.

It may interest American farmers to know that in Australia the government has come to the aid of agriculture in a satisfactory manner. This is particularly true of dairy farming. The provincial government maintains at Calgary the largest and finest dairy station and cold storage plant in all the west. A few years ago the farmers of southern Alberta became dissatisfied with the private creameries then in operation and asked the government to take charge of the business. The government is especially solicitous for the prosperity of farmers, and the public policy has no purpose that precedes their best interest. Therefore the request was taken up, and government creameries took the place of the old private concerns.

These creameries are equipped upon the most modern plans, and, being conducted with no thought of profit, but solely in the interests of the farmers, their operation has been of enormous benefit. They are called "co-operative" and really are just exactly that. A chain of them has been established through the country sufficient and efficient to serve the whole farming community. They are subject to the control of their patrons, through boards of directors, and under government management.

Most of the patrons separate their milk at home by means of hand separators and take their cream to the government stations, say three or four times a week. There it is carefully tested, weighed and credited up. At the end of each month each patron gets credit for the equivalent of his cream in butter and receives a cash advance equal to 10 cents a pound. Thirty or sixty days later a check for the balance is sent him from the department of agriculture direct—that is to say, the government actually takes his cream, makes his butter and pays him the market rate in cash and a government check. This is neither paternalism nor socialism. It is a farmers' government, doing business with and for the farmers. In other words, it is simply business, and good business at that, for all concerned. "The average price paid at government creameries in 1908 was 25.43 cents.

Of course these creameries have to be maintained, and this is accomplished by making a charge of 4 cents a pound. One cent of this goes to a fund for the purchase of buildings and machinery, of which the farmers become part owners to the extent of their contributions.

All this would mean little if it did not secure the best market advantages for everybody concerned, but it does mean that and in a fuller sense than could be secured through any other process. The government has consolidated the market and conducts the sales, all in behalf of the producers. The butter is sold through government agencies, principally heretofore in British Columbia and the Yukon district, but of late in growing quantities to Japan. A large export trade in butter from southern Alberta has sprung up in the Japanese market.

Profit In Geese.

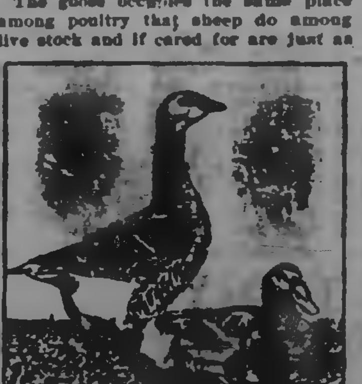
There is no fowl that will respond to treatment or furnish better results than the waterfowl. It will mature just as rapidly away from streams as near them. A generous supply of drinking water is all that is required. There are many places on a farm that are worthless for cultivation that could be utilized with excellent results for goose raising. Many farmers are profiting by this and adding to their incomes annually. The care and attention necessary for raising geese are very small when compared with the returns, and the cost of food is also proportionately small in comparison with the cost of food used for other birds bred for market. A goose on range will gather the largest portion of its food, consisting of grasses, insects and other animal and vegetable matter to be found in the fields and brooks.

The goose occupies the same place among poultry that sheep do among live stock and if cared for are just as profitable in proportion. It is just as necessary to pluck the feathers from the goose as it is to shear the wool from the sheep, and the product has a great demand.



A PAIR OF TOULOUSE GEESE.

The Toulouse is one of the largest breeds of geese and is very profitable, as it attains an enormous size and when fattened brings a high price in the market. It is a fairly good layer, averaging about forty eggs in a season. Some persons labor under the delusion that geese do not lay until they are two years old or if they do their eggs are not fertile. The eggs from Toulouse and White Chinese geese hatch almost as readily as do eggs from older geese. As long as geese have plenty of grass they will need very little, if any, feed, except during the laying season, when they should be fed liberally on some mash food. Geese prefer bulky food.

JUNE'S WEATHER LORE

MIDSUMMER MONTH IS A DAMP TIME AFTER ALL.

Most of the Proverbs In the Old Almanacks Have It That It Is Rainy Month and Many a Good Omen Is Seen In Wet Weather on Certain Days — Several Contradictions Are Found In Work of Prophets.

To most of us June stands for summer, and, as we associate summer with brightness, with sunlight and sun-warmth, we have got the impression that these things alone make up the weather of June. And so it comes to us as a surprise when the June blueness melts into grey, and the grey into rain; and we feel that the sixth month has wronged us—that it has betrayed our trust. And we are indignant in consequence.

If we go to the weather authorities, however — the old weather prophets, who made fearless statements not for a month only, but for a year ahead—we find that there is precedent for June rain, and but little for June sunshine. For it is a rather alarming fact that there are ever so many days on which rain is expected to fall, and ever so many days, also, when rain is supposed to be better for the world than sunshine.

Looking over the rhymes and proverbs of the old almanac-makers concerning June, one finds that the very first one runs:

> A good leak in June
> Sets all in tune.

Although, to be just, one must place over against this another, which runs:

> June, if sunny, brings harvests early.

And yet another one, which seems a direct contradiction of the first—namely:

> Calm weather in June
> Sets corn in tune.

And a quotation from that solemn-minded volume, "The Book of Knowledge," seems to upset the first argument entirely, for it runs:

Thunder in June signifieth that same year that woods shall be overthrown with winds, and great raging shall be with lions and wolves, and so like of any other harmful beasts.

But that is thunder, not rain, although the one usually goes with the other.

Against that ponderous statement it would seem folly to protest; but, if we leave the general weather lore of June, and go to that of particular days, we find different assertions, and of an interesting nature. June 8th is the day of St. Medard, a saint with a European reputation as a weather prophet, and almost all the proverbs associated with him relate to rain. A German one runs, rather vaguely:

> On St. Medard's day it rains six > weeks before or six weeks after.

But an old English one is clearer, and it runs:

> If on the 8th of June it rain
> It foretells a wet harvest, men sain.

While a Bohemian prophet, punning vilely clinches the whole matter when he says:

> St. Medard's drops drop for forty > days.

June 9th, the day of St. Faustus, has a somewhat similar reputation, and from Belgium there comes a quaint bit of folk lore, which runs that, in a conversation with St. Medard, Faustus said to him. "Barnabas and Vitus are my neighbors, and together we will give the country folk a good washing, till Frederick the Hollander — July 18th — comes and closes the doors of heaven." And it is said that the saint rarely fails in his promise.

To balance this, however, it is but fair to give a proverb which belongs to St. Barnabas' Day, the 11th, and which runs:

> Barnaby bright,
> The longest day and the shortest > night.

The balance is certainly necessary, for the next day of importance, so far as the weather is concerned, is the 15th—the day of Saints Vitus and Grey. One rhymster states cheerfully:

> If St. Vitus' day be rainy weather
> It will rain for thirty days together.

The 23rd is the Eve of St. John the Baptist, and there is a widespread belief that on that day rain comes without fail; while concerning the next day—that of St. John—there is a proverb which runs:

> As many days as the cuckoo sings
> after St. John, so many warm days > will there be after Michaelmas.

A comforting proverb, indeed, after those which have come before!

On a Liner.

A captain on a liner says he is invariably asked the following nine questions on each voyage:

Have you ever been shipwrecked?

Are there any whales in this latitude?

What tips are given usually, and to whom?

How many times have you crossed the Atlantic?

What's the best remedy for seasickness?

Why are they always painting the ship?

Will you let me come up on the bridge some day?

Do you remember my cousin who crossed over with you in '96?

I suppose the passengers ask you a great many stupid questions?

No Case.

Man (to lawyer)—I've been badly bitten by a dog. Can I get damages from its master?

Lawyer—Did you do anything to irritate the dog?

Man—No; I did not.

Lawyer—Were you on the owner's premises?

Man—Er—yes.

Lawyer—In what capacity? As a friend or—

Man—Of course this is strictly confidential.

Lawyer—Certainly.

NEIGHBORLY LOVE.

I love my neighbors as myself,
There's no mistake,
For I have loaned them when they came
With vows that they'd return the same
My garden spade,
My sickle blade;
Also my garden rake.

And unto others we are told
That we should do
As we'd be done by. That command
I have observed to beat the band.
For others hold,
If it's not sold,
My barrow new.

My lawn mower is three blocks away.
My razor hone,
My oil can and my paint brush, too,
I've loaned, and they were good as new
By this—ahem—
My love for them
Is plainly shown.

Guides For Aeronauts.

Major von Frankenberg, president of the German Aero club, advises that huge signboards be placed on the roofs of church towers and high buildings, with a certain code of signals, visible from airships aloft, inscribed upon them. He also suggests that the frontiers of the different European countries shall be marked by the same method and that at night the signs shall be illuminated in such a way as to make them visible. Aeronauts would carry a signal code book, enabling them to decipher the meaning of the signals.

ANNUAL OUTING CHARLOTTE ST. METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

The steamer Stoney Lake had a full complement yesterday in connection with the annual excursion of the Sunday school of the Charlotte St. Methodist church, to Sandy Point.

The day was ideal in every respect, and the children, parents and friends made the most of it. It was a happy, joyous crowd from beginning to end of the trip, and all seemed to thoroughly enjoy th outing.

Capt. Young and his able crew were most courteous and obliging, and their efforts to accommodate and please the excursionists were most most marked and consequently highly appreciated.

An ice cream and confectionery booth was ably handled by a committee of expert saleladies, assisted by a number of young men. The result was most gratifying, financially and otherwise.

The committee on sports presented a most delightful programme, which was carried out expeditiously and satisfactorily. A number of the events were quite novel, and caused much merriment among the spectators. The main event of the day was a tug-of-war between some eighteen of the stalwart men of the party. They did their best to stretch the ship's hawser, but finally Conductor Jobbitt brought his party to the winning mark, and the ice cream as a reward.

On the return journey the following prizes were presented to the successful contestants in the various events—

GYPSIES HELPED THEMSELVES TO OTONABEE FARMER'S HAY

Special to the Review.

Keene, July 7.—The Mexican gypsies, or at least a good sized contingent of them, passed through Otonabee last week camping at Plunkett's corner on Friday night. Two waggon loads passed through Keene and a good many people turned out to see them. They called at all the stores in the village but their purpose seemed rather to beg, or steal if possible, than buy. A farmer who had a field of hay near their camping ground, had to use all his powers of persuasion and some force to convince the gipsy women that the hay was not cut just on purpose for their use. Saturday morning they packed up and proceeded eastward.

WEST PETERBORO' ELECTION PROTEST

Special Despatch to the Globe.

"Peterborough, July 6.—Proceedings in the election petition filed by Mr. J. H. Burnham against Hon. J. R. Stratton, West Peterborough, took a new turn this afternoon. Mr. Burnham declining to submit to further examination for discovery on the ground that the examination could not take place in the long vacation. Mr. Burnham was examined for discovery on June 29. Owing to his failure to produce certain documents, called for by the subpoena, the examination could not be satisfactorily proceeded with. Mr. Moore, Mr. Burnham's solicitor, suggested an adjournment till after the long vacation. Mr. Hall, for Mr. Stratton, objected, on the ground that the trial of the petition was set for September 7th, and the examination was adjourned until to-day without objection by Mr. Burnham or his solicitor. Mr. Hall contended to-day that the controverted elections act provided for examination at any time, and that the judicature act had no application.

"Mr. Johnston, the examiner, ruled that Mr. Burnham's examination should continue.

"A motion will accordingly be made to the High Court at Osgoode Hall to compel Mr. Burnham to attend for examination at his own expense and produce the books and documents he failed to produce at the first examination."

Men Beaten in Homes--Riot Act Was Read--General Manager Dugan Was Attacked by Five Men.

Special to the Review.

Glace Bay, July 7.—The strike situation is much worse to-day. Many men were beaten in their homes until they promised not to work. A thousand strikers gathered at number two mine to-day and turned back all men. The Riot Act was read, and twelve strikers were arrested.

General Manager Dugan, in making an arrest, was attacked by five men. The manager of number three was severely wounded. The strikers broke into this colliery and had to be driven back by drawn revolvers.

The worst feature of the situation was the refusal of Mayor Douglas to take measures to protect the lives and property of the citizens.

BIG SUMMER PARK MAY BE OPENED

By Street Railway Company Next Year Between Here and Lakefield — Crawford's Grove Abandoned--- Arrangements Could Not be Made.

The idea of having a summer park at Crawford's Grove this season has been given up by the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. No arrangements mutually satisfactory to the company and the Otonabee Navigation Co could be arrived at, and although it was understood there was some thought of building a temporary road from the end of the street car line to the grove, the idea was abandoned as the season was getting too late.

The Street Railway Company have under consideration a proposition which, if carried through, will be a welcome enterprise to the pleasure-lovers of Peterborough. The citizens getting too metropolitan in their pleasure tastes to be satisfied with entertainment on a small scale, and it is the intention of the Railway Company to build their road to Lakefield next year and purchase a property of some thirty acres, about mid way, on which to build a summer park, equipped with chute-the-chutes, vaudeville, and other features of a big amusement park.

LARGE DEPUTATION INCLUDING MAYOR RUSH SEE WHITNEY

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 7.—Mayor Rush, of Peterborough, and thirty other representatives of Ontario towns and cities, including Toronto, London, St. Thomas, Woodstock, Berlin, North Bay, Barrie and Orillia, appeared before Premier Whitney at noon to-day to ask that the Ontario Government engage a patent attorney and a scientific expert to determine whether the septic tank systems in use in these places are infringements of the Cameron septic tank system.

Sir James received the deputation very favorably, and declared that their request was not unreasonable, and he would give his reply to Mr. Willis Chipman, after the Cabinet meeting on Thursday afternoon

City Solicitor Meredith, of London, declared that if the Government report was that there was no infringement, the municipalities would unite to fight the company's suits.

200 LIVES SAVED TO-DAY BY AN UNKNOWN TRAMP

Special to the Review.

Canon City, Colo., July 7.—The lives of more than 200 passengers on the westbound Rio Grande train leaving here to-day were saved by an unknown tramp. The train had just passed Wallows, a little station two miles east of Canon City and was going at a forty mile an hour gait when it was flagged by the tramp, who called the engineer's attention to a serious undermining of the tracks just below. The roadbed was found to be in a dangerous condition for two miles. The passengers walked along for that distance while the train felt its way along and got past the danger spot. In the excitement the hero was forgotten.

FIRST TIME IN FIVE YEARS THAT HE WENT FISHING

Mr. Dan Wheatung, sr., of Chemong, was in the city this morning and says he can honestly recommend Chemong Lake this year to the ambitious fisherman. Mr. Wheatung says both the 'lunge and the bass are biting with avidity, and nearly everybody fishing is meeting with great luck.

He states that no exceptionally big ones have been caught, but the number being caught is large.

Mr. Wheatung was allured on the lake yesterday by the good prospects and, despite the fact that he lives right in the centre of fishing activity, it was the first time he had been fishing for five years. He had splendid success, and Mr. Wheatung is an Indian at that.

SOLDIERS ORDERED OUT TO STOP THE GLACE BAY RIOTS

Disorderly Scenes Are Enacted at the Dominion Coal Co.'s Collieries and Riot Act is Twice Read—Police Charge Strikers and Seven Men and One Woman Are Arrested.

Halifax, July 8.—Col. Humphrey, who is commanding the troops here, in the absence of Gen. Drury, received a requisition last night from Judge Finlayson for troops to proceed to the scene of the strike in Cape Breton. A special train was at once made up, and provisions and tents placed on board. About five hundred men from the Royal Artillery and Royal Canadian Regiment embarked as quickly as they could be got ready, and the train was on the way to Glace Bay before daylight this morning. Col. Wadmore went in command.

Rioting at Mines.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 8.—There is very little change in the condition of the Dominion Coal Co. strike, excepting that a much larger number of men are idle at all the collieries, with the possible exception of Dominion No. 1, Nos. 2, 3, 6, 7 and 9 are entirely closed down. These mines would employ over 3,000 men ordinarily. At Caledonia the pit is practically closed, not more than 65 people being out to work. At Reserve, about one-fifth less men are working than on Tuesday, and the number of strikers is increased by about 100 men.

There have been some little scrimmages going on, but nothing of a serious nature, although the company demanded that the militia be called out. The worst that happened yesterday was that men were jeered at and called "scabs." Rotten eggs were fired around, women and children helped in the disorders, and a number of people carried sticks.

There was no real harm done, although the Riot Act was read yesterday morning at Dominion No. 2 by Stipendiary Magistrate Macdonald. A number of people who were present say that there was no necessity for this step. Others, favoring the coal company, say that it was necessary.

The trouble was precipitated by the coal company police charging upon a crowd of the pickets. This was resented by the men, and whatever trouble occurred was from that cause. No one was seriously hurt, though Manager Duggan was struck by a man in the ranks, the latter being arrested.

Altogether seven men and one woman were taken to jail. All were bailed out and the trial was set for Monday night.

At Caledonia Sheriff Ingraham read the Riot Act yesterday afternoon, and the coal company police arrested some eight or nine men. These latter were released on bail and their trial was also set for Monday.

At Dominion No. 3 the strike leaders offered some obstruction to those who were going to work. The assembled crowd refused to disperse and the police found it necessary to draw their revolvers before the crowd obeyed. The colliery is operating, however, with about the same number of men as were on hand yesterday.

At Reserve the best of order was maintained. The men went to work without any molestation.

The situation at Dominion No. 1 remains unchanged. Good order prevailed, and there were no efforts at interference with anybody. The management report that more men are at work here than the day before.

The report from Bridgeport is to the effect that as the men were going to work they were met by the strikers and a slight disturbance took place. About the same number of men as were at work Tuesday are at work.

The trains on the Sydney & Louisburg Railway are all running and the piers are in operation. Seven schooners and one steamer were loaded at the International Pier on Tuesday and Tuesday night.

Mayor Douglass was requested yesterday by General Manager Duggan to send a requisition to the authorities at Ottawa to call out the militia. This Mayor Douglas refused to do, claiming that the civil authorities were quite capable of coping with the situation.

It is understood that Mr. Duggan objects most strongly to the appointment of special constables from the ranks of the striking U.M.W., and says that it is only a ruse on the part of the strikers to obtain legal authority in order to intimidate the non-strikers.

Tuesday the saloons were closed tight, but yesterday they were wide open and liquor flowed freely. As a result the passions of the men are highly inflamed.

TO CONTROL CABLE IN TIME OF WAR

London, July 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—According to a Melbourne despatch yesterday, as a result of communications with the imperial authorities, the Commonwealth Government will shortly introduce a bill enabling the Commonwealth to seize control in time of war or emergency of the shore ends of the ocean cables touching Australia.

Another despatch from Melbourne yesterday says that official returns show a most marked improvement in musketry efficiency in the Australian militia and volunteers. The percentage of marksmen in the trained soldiers' course has risen in two years from 25 to 30, and the percentage in the recruits' course from 58 to 65.

WINTER FAIR PRIZE LISTS

Guelph, July 8.—The Ontario provincial fair board yesterday decided that the prize list this year should total $10,000. The horse show prize list, which comes to the board as a recommendation from the Ontario Horse Breeders' Association, will be along the same lines as that of last year's horse show, held at the stock yards in Toronto. The amount for horse prizes is about $3,000.

The feature of the poultry prize list this year will be the department of twenty classes or more in pigeons, to include the birds of 1909, which have been excluded heretofore. Realizing that the showing of fat stock has been in the past the only weakness of the show, the board have greatly increased the prizes for that class.

THIS WOMAN HAS VERSATILITY

Mrs. George Cornwallis-West Launches Play in London

London, July 8.—Mrs. George Cornwallis-West added another to her claims to be considered one of the most versatile women in London by launching her first play at the Hicks' Theatre. The play is a society comedy, entitled "His Borrowed Plumes."

Mrs. Cornwallis-West had the advantage of the finest possible acting and mounting, which made the most of her play. The gowns were gorgeous, and the hats marvel affairs. Mrs. Pat Campbell took the principal role, that of a literary woman whose husband, also with literary ambitions, loved another woman of the adventuress type. The borrowed plumes" was a play which the husband cribbed from his wife's manuscript of a novel which the adventuress, unknown to him, had stolen. The story centres about this incident, and in the heroine's efforts to win back her husband's love were cleverly portrayed by Mrs. Campbell. The critics, however, say the action of the piece is slow.

Mrs. Cornwallis-West declares that if this effort succeeded she would write a political drama.

MUST REDUCE THE TARIFF IS JUDGE MAYBEE'S RULING

Chairman of Dominion Railway Board in Scathing Terms Denounces Unauthorized Rise From 30 to 40 Cents Per Hundred on Fruit From Queenston to Toronto.

Ottawa, July 8.—The appeal of the fruit growers of Queenston district against the raising of the express rates on fruit shipped to Toronto proved a most interesting case yesterday before the Dominion Railway Board. Justice Mabee, chairman, took several opportunities during the argument to express contempt for the action of the Canadian Express Co. in particular.

His summing up was as severe as it could be made, and his judgment was entirely against the company.

In brief, it was claimed that the Canadian Express Co., finding itself in the field without competition, had raised its rates from 30 cents per 100 pounds to 40 cents, despite having given an undertaking that the tariff would not be altered so long as the matter was before the board.

Judge Mabee, in scathing terms, disallowed the change of rate.

Incidentally, the decision of the board was a great victory for W. H. Buting, who, in a quiet yet effective way, stated the case for the fruit growers. There were a number of prominent fruit growers in the court.

Mr. Mabee announcing judgment, that the cancellation was disallowed, said he was doing it not on the ground that 40 cents was too high or 30 cents too low. It might be that 30 cents was too low, he said. He would not stop to inquire, but some time ago an understanding had been given that the rates then in effect should be maintained while the matter was before the board, and all he could do was to make an order, disallowing the cancellation.

Town Under Water.

Kansas City, Mo., July 8.—Pattonsburg, Mo., a town of 1,500 inhabitants, 60 miles north of here, is ten feet under water, and Chief of Police Snow of Kansas City yesterday received a telegram appealing for boats to rescue the marooned citizens, many of whom had been driven to the roofs of their houses. Yesterday morning a special train, carrying 50 rowboats, in charge of a detachment of officers, was sent to the rescue.

Towers for Transmission Line.

Walkerville, July 8.—More than 1,000 steel towers for the transmission line of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission have been completed at the plant of the Canadian Bridge Co. Shipments have begun and will continue at the rate of 300 a month until the full order of 3,000 has been filled.

DEPUTATION SEES PREMIER REGARDING SEPTIC TANKS

Government Asked to Aid—Toronto Has Paid its Penalty—Sir James Promises Consideration.

Toronto, July 7.—A dozen Ontario municipaliteis have installed septic tanks during the past half dozen years because the Provincial Health Department bade them take care of their sewage and recommended this method of treatment. Now they are being served with notices that their tanks infringe the patents of the Cameron Septic Tank Company, a United States concern, which has its tanks patented in Canada. Today representatives of nine municipalities waited upon Premier Whitney and asked that he get an opinion as to the liability of the municipalities from Dr. Amyot and some patent authority.

TORONTO IS SAFE.

The places represented were Guelph, Berlin, Waterloo, Preston, Woodstock, St. Thomas, Barrie, London and Peterborough. Mr. Willis Chipman, of Toronto, is secretary of the defence forces but Toronto itself is not among the cities affected, the city having paid for the septic tank at Balmy Beach. London has built a $15,000 tank, but has not used it pending the threatened litigation.

Septic tanks breed anerobes.

"I'm ready to hear about the creatures" said Premier Whitney, "for they are said to be of such an amiable disposition that they walk into a place prepared for them and sit down and die."

However he heard no discussion of septic tank methods. What he did hear was a plea that he find out whether the septic tanks may still be used.

Mayor Stevely and City Solicitor Meredith of London, spoke; then Dr. Mearns who pointed out to the Premier that the municipalities had no paid advocates.

"Nothing to prevent you from getting them is there?" queried Sir James, who was waiting for another appointment.

"We thought we'd get your ear better without them."

"A compliment to us, but hardly to the advocates," commented the Premier.

GOVERNMENT IN SAME HOLE.

"You may be served with a notice yourself about the septic tank," said Dr. Mearns.

"What! Are we using them?"

"Yes, in one of your institutions which I won't name."

"Your request does not seem unreasonable," admitted Sir James. "I cannot promise to do what you want, but will talk it over with the doctors, and let you know."

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT ENCOURAGES EDUCATION

Teachers Will Receive Additional Training at the North Bay Normal School—Summer School to be Established.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 8.—To encourage education in Northern Ontario, the Department of Education has just issued a circular setting forth a unique scheme, whereby the new Normal school at North Bay will be made attractive for teachers in training from all parts of the province. The Government offers to pay $1.50 per week toward board and lodging to all living twenty miles or more from North Bay, also the railway fare of all residing one hundred miles or more distant. To further insure an attendance, the certificates of third-class and district teachers are extended until 1910, and until 1914 for passing examinations for admission to model schools and model school examinations.

Five summer schools are also to be established for district and third-class teachers at Sault Ste. Marie, Gore Bay, Port Arthur, North Bay and Bracebridge.

NEW STATION FOR GUELPH

Guelph, July 8.—A copy was received by City Solicitor Guthrie yesterday of the finding of the Dominion Railway Commission with respect to a new G.T.R. passenger station for Guelph. The finding, which meets with the approval of the city, calls for a new station to be completed by Sept. 1, 1910, and specifies that the Grand Trunk, who are to be given Jubilee Park as a site, must provide a 40 feet subway at Gordon street, an eight-foot one at Huskison street, and leaves the question of Neeve street subway, about which there is a doubt, to be settled later.

GIVES MILLIONS TO EDUCATION

Chicago, July 8.—Daniel K. Pearsons, the "Sage of Hinsdale," already famous for benefactions totaling $4,000,000 to the small colleges of this country, has announced that he would devote the remainder of this, his ninetieth year, to distributing among the various educational and philanthropic institutions of this city his last million dollars.

This will round out the sum that he had always intended Chicago to have and leave him relatively a poor man when he celebrates his 90th birthday on the 20th of next April.

NAVVIES GO ON RAMPAGE

Woodstock, July 8.—Fifty [illegible] navvies who are engaged in track-laying went on strike yesterday afternoon, demanding a raise of ten cents a day from the contractor.

A bunch working at the G.T.R. struck simultaneously. At the G.T.R. the navvies got fighting and stones were thrown. One man got hit in the face. The striking men refuse to leave the cars and trouble is looked for if an effort is made to eject them. The police were kept busy yesterday afternoon.

Death Sentence and $200,000 Fine.

BACK TO COBOURG FOR THOMAS

Has No Means of Supporting Himself and Must Remove From the City

Thomas McDonald was charged with being a vagrant at the police court this morning. He pleaded not guilty. Chief Roszel suggested that he be sent back to Cobourg, his former home, and to this His Worship assented.

LONG SOUGHT SUDBURY MAN ARRESTED AT HAILEYBURY

Former Justice of the Peace is Taken in by Police Chief and Detective Mackie is Sent to Take Him to Toronto—Must Face Charge of Accepting Bribe in Mining Case.

Toronto, June 8.—Charged with accepting a bribe or other corrupt consideration amounting to $25,000, to abstain from giving evidence in an action which the Provincial Attorney-General was attacking the claim of the Temiskaming & Hudson Bay Mining Co., to a mining property in the Cobalt district, John Piche, 50 years of age, a French-Canadian half breed, who was formerly a justice of the peace at Sudbury, Ont., was arrested yesterday by Chief Calbeck of Cobalt at Haileybury, Ont., and is held at Cobalt for Detective Mackie, who left last night to bring him back to the city.

With the arrest of Piche there closes a chase which for sheer romance and adventure rivals the most thrilling tales of early Canadian history. The warrant was sworn out by Inspector of Detectives Walter Duncan, April 12, 1907. Since then he has been pursued for thousands of miles through the wildernesses of the Northwest and driven into the frozen fields of the far north.

From the busy streets of Toronto, he fled when the crime was discovered, and the next heard of him was from the Northwest Mounted Police at Battleford, Sask. This was April 16, 1907. From there a sergeant and two men set out in pursuit. For more than 200 miles they tracked him through the pathless wildernesses to the north. He was hard to come upon, for in his early days he had roamed that country as an Indian huntsman. The unknown ways were as an open book to him, and it was a harrowing race he led the officers. Time after time they thought him within their grasp, only to find that he had evaded them through some hidden way, of which they did not learn until too late. At last they closed in on a valley in the mountains where they were convinced he must be bottled tight. Carefully they drew together, confident that they had left open no way of escape. At last they came out into the open. He had vanished as if the earth had swallowed him and those officers are waiting to learn how it was done. Wearily they made their way back, encountering many hardships. Then they arrived at the post. Letters were received here constantly from various branches of the R.N.W.M.P. One day he was east, next he was west. Will o' the wisp, himself, was not more elusive than he. Finally he was lost over the southern border into the United States and while a month ago some whisper of his whereabouts was heard by the police, until yesterday no definite word of him was had.

Much rejoicing over his capture is felt in police circles, as for more than two years his capture has been a triumph much longed for.

The action out of which the trouble arose was one in which Mr. Pinkerton of Pinkerton & Chute was suing for the Attorney-General to destroy the title of the Temiskaming & Hudson Bay Mining Co. to certain valuable mining properties in the Cobalt district. It was alleged that the company was not entitled to hold the claim and Piche, as one of the original discoverers of the claim, was believed to be possessed of valuable information. It is alleged that he was paid a sum of $25,000 to disappear.

THE N.T.R. MUST CROSS TRACKS

Ottawa, July 8.—Yesterday morning counsel for the National Transcontinental Railway Commission appeared before the Railway Commission and declared that Tuesday's decision of the Commission, refusing to sanction the plan of crossing the Canadian Northern and Canadian Pacific at St. Boniface, Winnipeg, was nothing short of a calamity to the National Transcontinental. The situation now is that the parties will have until July 26 to come to an agreement, and if this has not been accomplished by that date there will be a rehearing of the case on its merits.

STOPPED BUSSES AT BORDER LINE

St. Catharines, July 8.—A lot of people here were disappointed in an outing yesterday. The Daughters of Rebecca arranged a picnic to Queenston Heights for the day, and hired automobile busses to carry the crowds. Some of the busses had to be hired in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and yesterday morning when they tried to cross the border they were stopped by the Canadian customs officers at the bridge, and sent back. Accordingly, the limited number of busses could not carry all who wanted to go to the picnic.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Three men have been arrested at Montreal on a charge of faking accident claims against railways.

Pierre Collins, a Montreal grocer, was robbed of $500 by two men who pretended to be sanitary inspectors.

A sensation was created in the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, when its proprietor ordered the playing of the "Star-spangled Banner" to cease.

A decision of moment to temperance workers was handed down in Detroit when a woman, the wife of a drunkard, was given heavy damages against a saloonkeeper.

The results of the examinations at Macdonald Institute in Guelph show a large number of young lady graduates in housekeeping, home-making and as teachers of domestic science.

A Liberal victory in the first district of Queen's, P.E.I., gives the Government a majority of three, and probably saves them from defeat at least until the end of the Parliamentary term.

J. Bruce Walker, Commissioner of Immigration, is already impressed with the need of men to handle the western harvest. He says applications are pouring in and cannot be filled. He thinks twenty thousand men will be required.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Bread Problem at Galt.

Galt, July 8.—The bakers' bread question is setting this town by the ears, as 16, 20 and 24 oz. loaves, baked in different shops, are all sold at the same prices, five cents. The police yesterday seized patches in shops of D. Smith and J. Hall of 20 oz. bread, short by two to four ounces. The defendants pleaded a mistake, and the magistrate accepted the plea in imposing a fine of $1 and costs. He ordered the short weight bread confiscated.

English Capital for Railway.

Chatham, July 8.—A deputation of English millionaires arrived yesterday morning, and in company with John Piggott and other directors are making an inspection of the Windsor, Essex and Lake Shore Railroad.

If the Englishmen can be induced to put up the capital they talk of doing the road will immediately be extended to Chatham, and later it is the intention to build it on to London.

Flood of Burning Oil.

New York, July 8.—One hundred men who were at work on a pier of the Standard Oil Co. in Williamsburg section of Brooklyn jumped into the East River yesterday to escape a shower of blazing oil when an oil tank on the pier exploded. The clothing of many of the men was on fire as they jumped. One man was badly burned. The workmen were quickly rescued by lighters. The loss was said to be $200,000.

Woman Shoots at Priest.

Burlington, Vt., July 8.—An attempt to assassinate Rev. Joseph F. Gillis, a priest, connected with St. Mary's Cathedral, was made as the priest was on his way to celebrate mass at St. Mary's Academy. The police arrested Miss Beatrice Thompson, an artist, aged 40, charging her with assault with intent to kill.

Victim of X-Rays.

Montreal, July 8.—The funeral took place yesterday morning of Miss Edna Bole, younger daughter of D. W. Bole, ex-M.P., president of the National Drug & Chemical Co.

While horseback riding close on two years ago Miss Bole sustained an injury to her hip and an operation was successful. X-ray photos were taken of the injured member for medical research purposes, but unfortunately some burns resulted from X-rays which it was found impossible to heal.

Revolution in Colombia.

Colon, July 8.—A revolution has broken out in the Republic of Colombia, apparently against the Government of Rafael Reyes, the President of the republic, who is now in London.

The trouble began Sunday morning at Barranquilla. There was little resistence, and the rebels were entirely successful. Two hundred men armed with rifles then marched down to Savanilla and took that port without firing a single shot.

Want Protection in Lumber.

Vancouver, B.C., July 8.—A resolution was passed by the Board of Trade asking the Boards of Trade of the Northwest to use their influence with the Dominion Government to secure the establishment of a duty of two dollars on rough lumber and thirty cents on shingles imported into Canada. This was passed in view of the fact that last year's importations of lumber into Canada from the State of Washington amounted to over four million dollars.

GOING BACKWARD

A commission has gone to Denmark to learn why we are not holding our own in the British bacon market. The reason is plain. We are ceasing to produce. Why are we ceasing to produce in the face of a strong and advancing market, and with general conditions apparently so favorable? That question cannot be answered in Denmark. The answer can be given only by the Ontario farmer. If a commission is needed at all it would seem as if its enquiry should have begun in Ontario, if, indeed, the scope of its investigation should not have been confined to this Province. —Weekly Sun.

Our last Canadian loan floated in London has been, according to the recent cable advices to the Toronto Globe, the worst yet. At no time within the last twenty-five years has Canada had to pay so high a price for her money, or, in other words, received so low a tender for her request for, a loan. We have borrowed of late a great deal. The Grit politician tells us that this is an evidence of expansion and prosperity. The British lender tells in words much plainer if less satisfactory, that our national business is not being well done, that our seeming prosperity is founded on borrowed money, and that if enthusiastic Liberal "statesmen" do not know enough to call in their bombast about "progress and phenomenal advancement, etc." they will have to be taught. They are being taught. Instead of being at the apex of national success our credit in the British market shows that at no time in 25 years have we been in deeper financial water. It is useless to throw money about with a view to blinding the Canadian taxpayer to the real state of affairs. Extravagance and waste may appear to the careless or the gay evidences of progress and prosperity, but the solid men of the country read the signs of the market and they are depressing.

For a moment let us look at the condition of the country. There is no unnatural depression. The world at large has recovered its equilibrium. But the Canadian trade is going back. Bacon, cheese, butter, etc., have shrunk considerably. This last year, Ontario alone has decreased the number of its porcine hogs by 586,000. Now, pork has not slumped. The decay of the bacon trade is due to the subtle conditions which steal upon a people, as upon a man who has sapped his vitality by what appeared at the time "to be doing him no harm."

That cheese and butter should have "gone back", and only to have been discovered when the governmental returns came in, is a severe indictment of those in authority, who, it would appear, have no better knowledge of how things are going than a man on the back line. The increase in population has not been altogether of the right sort. The "Come all ye" invitation of an unsophisticated and, in many cases, unscrupulous system of officials has been answered in kind. As a people, we have gone back also. And when a department of government has been found to conduct its affairs, as found by a friendly commission, with "a lack of conscience," and the Minister of Justice can perpetrate a Newmarket canal, the ultimate cause of our retrogression does not need even a G. T. P. to explain it.

WHAT THE "SUN" SAYS

A cable to the Globe says the Bank of Montreal has become responsible for the floating of a Dominion loan of $6,500,000 in London. The loan is being floated at 98 1-2, and draws interest at 3 1-2 per cent.

From 1885 to 1897 the rate at which Canada borrowed money in London showed an almost constantly downward tendency. In 1885 we borrowed nearly six and one-half millions pounds, on which the rate of interest actually paid was a shade over four per cent.; in 1888, 4,000,000 pounds was borrowed, on which the interest figures out at 3.27; in 1892 the sum of £2,250,000 was borrowed, at 3.48; in 1894 the same amount was obtained at a cost of 3.16 per annum, and in 1897 a loan of 2,000,000 pounds was obtained, on which the annual interest figures out at 2.86.

On this latest loan we will pay the excess over 3 1-2 per cent. that is represented by the difference between an issue price of 98 1-2 per cent. and par. What is the explanation? What explanation can there be that we have been spending too much and borrowing too much, and must now suffer the penalty?—Weekly Sun, July 7th, 1909.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Six Laurier Cabinet Ministers are now travelling abroad at Canada's expense. But what do they care so long as they don't pay?

Mr. E. C. S. Huycke, K.C., of Cobourg, is the newly-appointed Judge of the County of Peterborough. The announcement was made yesterday. He is an excellent choice and will meet with the warm approval of both profession and people.

In Canada, as in the U.S., it is necessary for magistrates to know something of foreign languages. Mrs Kingsford finds it very useful in Toronto. We hope to see (not necessarily to hear) our own august interpreters of summary law practise ing Scandinavian, Italian, Erse, Russian, etc., before long. In the late "gypsy" embroglio a knowledge of Mexican greaser on the part of Mr. Edmison, K.C., would have helped matters—more or less. At any rate the police ought to be required to pass an examination in Italian and Chinese, and the sooner it is done the better.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever: nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness —caused by catarrh— that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Cables Firm—Hogs Lower at East Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, July 7.—London cables for cattle are firm, at 14c to 14½c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11¼c per pound.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 7.—(Special.)—A feature of the local export live stock trade of late has been the continued good demand from Canadian shippers for ocean freight space for this month's shipment and the bulk of it has been engaged. Liverpool has been let at 25s to 30s, London at 22½s to 25s, Glasgow at 27s 6d per 30s, and Manchester at 25s to 27s 6d per head. The undertone to the market is now stronger and for any little lots left to any of above ports agents are asking 30s. At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning the offerings were 500 steers, 250 cows, 50 bulls, 75 milch cows, 400 sheep, 110 lambs, 800 hogs and 1000 calves. The weather was fine and the attendance of buyers was large, who all wanted some stock, but notwithstanding this fact the tone of the market for cattle was weak, and prices scored a decline of 40c to 75c per 100 lbs., which was attributed chiefly to the large increase in the receipts of late and especially so of the commoner grades, which have naturally had a depressing influence on the better grades, altho supplies of such were not in excess of the requirements. The demand for good choice stock in the early part of the morning was brisk and quite an active trade was done in these grades until the supply was exhausted, and then the market became somewhat quieter as buyers were not disposed to operate in the common stock so freely, but on the whole a good clearance was made. Choice steers sold at $5.40 to $5.60; good at $5 and $5.30; fair at $4.50 to $4.75; good cows at $3.50 to $4.20, common at $2.50 to $3.25; and bulls at $2.50 to $3 per hundred lbs. The trade in milch cows was slow on account of the fact that buyers generally are well supplied at present, but a few sales were made at prices ranging from $30 to $60 each as to quality. There was active demand for sheep and lambs, and as the offerings were not excessive the undertone to the market was steady, and sales of sheep were made at 3¾c and lambs at 8c per lb. Supplies of calves continue to come forward freely in spite of the lateness of the season, for which the demand is good at prices ranging from $1 to $8 each as to size and quality. The market for live hogs was firm on account of the limited supply, and the good demand for the same and sales of selected lots were made at $8.50 per 100 lbs. weighed off cars. At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, there were 200 cattle, 25 sheep and lambs, 275 hogs, and 1082 calves offered for sale, all of which met with a good demand at much the same prices as quoted above.

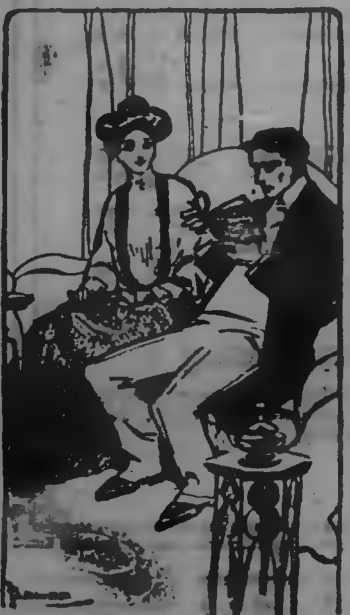
"What is the toy for?" he asked again.

She looked up slowly. "How cruel of you, Jack! It is my very latest hobby."

It was part of her attraction that she was never without a craze. Each new one was as fleeting as the last, but to each she brought the same delightfully insincere enthusiasm, the same picturesque devotion. Each was a pose, but she posed so sweetly that nobody lost patience.

"You mustn't laugh!" she protested, letting the kitten slip to the ground. "I've had lessons at 5 guineas each from the most fascinating person—a professional—and I'm becoming quite an adept. Of course I haven't been much beyond the milky appearance yet, but the milky appearance is everything, you know. The rest will come. I am trying to persuade Blanche to let me have a pavilion at her party in March and gaze for all you dull political people." And she smiled.



"'Other Men's Shoes,'" he read.

Chilcote smiled as well. "How is it done?" he asked, momentarily amused.

"Oh, the doing is quite delicious. You sit at a table with the ball in front of you. Then you take the subject's hands, spread them out on the table and stroke them very softly while you gaze into the crystal. That gets up the sympathy, you know." She looked up innocently. "Shall I show you?"

Chilcote moved a small table nearer to the couch and spread his hands upon it, palms downward. "Like this, eh?" he said. Then a ridiculousness seized him, and he moved away. "Some other day," he said quickly. "You can show me some other day. I'm not very fit this afternoon."

If Lillian felt any disappointment she showed none. "Poor old thing!" she said softly. "Try to sit here by me and we won't bother about anything." She made a place for him beside her, and as he dropped into it she took his hand and patted it sympathetically.

The touch was soothing, and he bore it patiently enough. After a moment she lifted the hand with a little exclamation of reproof.

"You degenerate person! You have ceased to manicure. What has become of my excellent training?"

Chilcote laughed. "Run to seed," he said lightly. Then his expression and tone changed. "When a man gets to my age," he added, "little social luxuries don't seem worth while. The social necessities are irksome enough. Personally I envy the beggar in the street—exempt from shaving, exempt from washing"—

Lillian raised her delicate eyebrows. The sentiment was beyond her perception.

"But manicuring," she said reproachfully, "when you have such nice hands. It was your hands and your eyes, you know, that first appealed to me." She sighed gently, with a touch of sentimental remembrance. "And I thought it so strong of you not to wear rings. It must be such a temptation." She looked down at her own fingers, glittering with jewels.

But the momentary pleasure of her touch was gone. Chilcote drew away his hand and picked up the book that lay between them.

"'Other Men's Shoes,'" he read. "A novel, of course?"

She smiled. "Of course. Such a fantastic story—two men changing identities!"

Chilcote rose and walked back to the mantelpiece.

"Changing identities," he said, with a touch of interest.

"Yes. One man is an artist, the other a millionaire. One wants to know what fame is like, the other wants to know how it feels to be really sinfully rich. So they exchange experiences for a month." She laughed.

Chilcote laughed as well. "But how?" he asked.

"Oh, I told you the idea was absurd. Fancy two people so much alike that neither their friends nor their servants see any difference! Such a thing couldn't be, could it?"

Chilcote looked down at the fire. "No," he said doubtfully. "No. I suppose not."

"Of course not. There are likenesses, but not freak likenesses like that."

Chilcote's head was bent as he spoke, but at the last words he lifted it.

"By Jove! I don't know about that!" he said. "Not so very long ago I saw two men so much alike that I—I"—He stopped.

Lillian smiled.

He colored quickly. "You doubt me?" he asked.

"My dear Jack!" Her voice was delicately reproachful.

"Then you think that my—my imagination has been playing me tricks?"

"My dear boy! Nothing of the kind. Come back to your place and tell me the whole tale?" She smiled again, and patted the couch invitingly.

But Chilcote's balance had been upset. For the first time he saw Lillian as one of the watchful, suspecting crowd before which he was constantly on guard. Acting on the sensation, he moved suddenly toward the door.

"I—I have an appointment at the house," he said quickly. "I'll look in another day when—when I'm better company. I know I'm a bear today. My nerves, you know." He came back to the couch and took her hand. Then he touched her cheek for an instant with his fingers.

"Goodby," he said. "Take care of yourself—and the kitten," he added with forced gayety, as he crossed the room.

That afternoon Chilcote's nervous condition reached its height. All day he had avoided the climax, but no evasion can be eternal, and this he realized as he sat in his place on the opposition benches during the half hour of wintry twilight that precedes the turning on of the lights. He realized it in that half hour, but the application of the knowledge followed later, when the time came for him to question the government on some point relating to the proposed additional dry dock at Talkley, the naval base. Then for the first time he knew that the sufferings of the past months could have a visible as well as a hidden side—could disorganize his daily routine as they had already demoralized his will and character.

The thing came upon him with extraordinary lack of preparation. He sat through the twilight with tolerable calm, his nervousness showing only in the occasional lifting of his hand to his collar and the frequent changing of his position, but when the lights were turned on and he leaned back in his seat with closed eyes he became conscious of a curious impression—a disturbing idea that through his closed lids he could see the faces on the opposite side of the house, see the rows of eyes, sleepy, interested or vigilant. Never before had the sensation presented itself, but once set up it ran through all his susceptibilities. By an absurd freak of fancy those varying eyes seemed to pierce through his lids, almost through his eyeballs. The cold perspiration that was his daily horror broke out on his forehead, and at the same moment Fraide, his leader, turned, leaned over the back of his seat and touched his knee.

Chilcote started and opened his eyes. "I—I believe I was dozing," he said confusedly.

Fraide smiled his dry, kindly smile. "A fatal admission for a member of the opposition," he said. "But I was looking for you earlier in the day, Chilcote. There is something behind this Persian affair. I believe it to be a mere first move on Russia's part. You big trading people will find it worth watching."

Chilcote shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, I don't know," he said. "I scarcely believe in it. Lakely put a match to the powder in the St. George's, but 'twill only be a noise and a puff of smoke."

But Fraide did not smile. "What is the feeling down at Wark?" he asked. "Has it awakened any interest?"

"At Wark? Oh, I—I don't quite know. I have been a little out of touch with Wark in the last few weeks. A man has so many private affairs to look to"— He was uneasy under his chief's scrutiny.

Fraide's lips parted as if to make reply, but with a certain dignified reticence he closed them again and turned away.

Chilcote leaned back in his place and furtively passed his hand over his forehead. His mind was possessed by one consideration—the consideration of himself. He glanced down the crowded, lighted house to the big glass doors; he glanced about him at his colleagues, indifferent or interested; then surreptitiously his fingers strayed to his waistcoat pocket.

Usually he carried his morphia tabloids with him, but today by a lapse of memory he had left them at home. He knew this, nevertheless he continued to search, while the need of the drug rushed through him with a sense of physical sickness. He lost hold on the business of the house; unconsciously he half rose from his seat.

The man next him looked up. "Hold your ground, Chilcote," he said. "Rayforth is drying up."

With a wave of relief Chilcote dropped back into his place. Whatever the confusion in his mind it was evidently not obvious in his face.

Rayforth resumed his seat, there was the usual slight stir and pause; then Salett, the member for Salchester, rose.

With Salett's first words Chilcote's hand again sought his pocket, and again his eyes strayed toward the doors, but Fraide's erect head and stiff back just in front of him held him quiet. With an effort he pulled out his notes and smoothed them nervously; but, though his gaze was fixed on the pages, not a line of Blessington's clear writing reached his mind. He glanced at the face of the speaker, then at the faces on the treasury bench, then once more he leaned back in his seat.

The man beside him saw the movement. "Funking the dry dock?" he whispered jestingly.

"No"—Chilcote turned to him suddenly—"but I feel beastly—have felt beastly for weeks."

The other looked at him more closely. "Anything wrong?" he asked. It was a novel experience to be confided in by Chilcote.

"Oh, it's the grind—the infernal grind." As he said it it seemed to him suddenly that his strength gave way. He forgot his companion, his position, everything except the urgent instinct that filled mind and body. Scarcely knowing what he did he rose and leaned forward to whisper in Fraide's ear.

Fraide was seen to turn, his thin face interested and concerned, then he was seen to nod once or twice in acquiescence, and a moment later Chilcote stepped quietly out of his place.

One or two men spoke to him as he hurried from the house, but he shook them off almost uncivilly, and, making for the nearest exit, hailed a cab.

The drive to Grosvenor square was a misery. Time after time he changed from one corner of the cab to the other, his acute internal pains prolonged by every delay and increased by every motion. At last, weak in all his limbs, he stepped from the vehicle at his own door.

Entering the house, he instantly mounted the stairs and passed to his own rooms. Opening the bedroom door, he peered in cautiously, then pushed the door wide. The light had been switched on, but the room was empty. With a nervous excitement scarcely to be kept in check, he entered, shut and locked the door, then moved to the wardrobe and, opening it, drew the tube of tabloids from the shelf.

His hand shook violently as he carried the tube to the table. The strain of the day, the anxiety of the past hours, with their final failure, had found sudden expression. Mixing a larger dose than any he had before allowed himself, he swallowed it hastily and, walking across the room, threw himself, fully dressed, upon the bed.

CHAPTER IV.

To those whose sphere lies in the west of London, Fleet street is little more than a name and Clifford's inn a mere dead letter. Yet Clifford's inn lies as safely stowed away in the shadow of the law courts as any grave under a country church wall. It is as green of grass, as gray of stone, as irresponsive to the passing footstep.

Facing the railed in grass plot of its little court stood the house in which John Loder had his rooms. Taken at a first glance the house had the deserted air of an office, inhabited only in the early hours, but as night fell lights would be seen to show out, first on one floor, then on another—faint, human beacons unconsciously signaling each other. The rooms Loder inhabited were on the highest floor, and from their windows one might gaze philosophically on the treetops, forgetting the uneven pavement and the worn railing that hemmed them around. In the landing outside the rooms his name appeared above his door, but the paint had been soiled by time and the letters for the most part reduced to shadows, so that, taken in conjunction with the gaunt staircase and bare walls, the place had a cheerless look.

Inside, however, the effect was somewhat mitigated. The room on the right hand as one entered the small passage that served as hall was of fair size, though low ceiled. The paint of the wall paneling, like the name above the outer door, had long ago been worn to a dirty and nondescript hue, and the floor was innocent of carpet. Yet in the middle of the room stood a fine old Cromwell table, and on the plain deal bookshelves and along the mantelpiece were some valuable books—political and historical. There were no curtains on the windows and a common reading lamp with a green shade stood on a desk. It was the room of a man with few hobbies and no pleasures, who existed because he was alive and worked because he must.

Three nights after the great fog John Loder sat by his desk in the light of the green shaded lamp. The remains of a very frugal supper stood on the center table, and in the grate a small and economical looking fire was burning.

Having written for close on two hours, he pushed back his chair and stretched his cramped fingers. Then he yawned, rose and slowly walked across the room. Reaching the mantelpiece he took a pipe from the pipe rack and some tobacco from the jar that stood behind the books. His face looked tired and a little worn, as is common with men who have worked long at an uncongenial task. Shredding the tobacco between his hands he slowly filled the pipe, then lighted it from the fire with a spill of twisted paper.

Almost at the moment that he applied the light the sound of steps mounting the uncarpeted stairs outside caught his attention and he raised his head to listen.

Presently the steps halted and he heard a match struck. The stranger was evidently uncertain of his whereabouts. Then the steps moved forward again and paused.

An expression of surprise crossed Loder's face and he laid down his pipe. As the visitor knocked he walked quietly across the room and opened the door.

A PERPETUAL CLOCK.

The Way Its Curious Mechanism Disappeared In China.

In the eighteenth century an ingenious jeweler named James Cox of Shoe lane, London, constructed a clock which was rendered perpetual by a cleverly contrived attachment which utilized the rise and fall of the barometer to supply the necessary energy.

The movement of the mercury actuated a cogwheel in such a manner that whether the mercury rose or fell the wheel always revolved in the same direction and kept the weights that supplied the movement of the clock always wound up. The barometer bulb dipped into a mercury cistern. The cistern hung attached to the extremities of two rockers, to the left end of one and the right end of the other.

The bulb was similarly attached to the other extremities of the rockers, which are thus moved every time there is a change in the amount of mercury in bulb and cistern respectively. The rockers actuated a vertical ratchet, and the teeth were so arranged that the wheel they controlled could only move in one direction, whether the ratchet ascended or descended.

The clock itself was an ordinary one, but of very strong and superior workmanship and was jeweled with diamonds at every bearing, the whole being inclosed in a glass case, which, while it excluded dust, displayed the entire mechanism. The fate of Cox's clock was brought to light in a work called "Travels of China," published in 1804 and written by John Barrow.

In this book it is stated that in the list of presents carried by "the late Dutch ambassador" were "two grand pieces of machinery that were part of the curious museum of Cox." One of these apparently was this perpetual clock, and it was taken by the Dutch embassy to China, where in the journey from Canton to Pekin both the instruments suffered some slight damage. Efforts were made to repair them at Pekin, but on leaving the capital it was discovered that the Chinese Prime Minister, He Tchangtong, had substituted two other clocks of very inferior workmanship and had reserved Cox's mechanism for himself.—London Times.

A Grease Spot Suit.

A man whose wife found much fault with him—probably with justice—on account of his untidiness, went to a tailor to order a suit of clothes.

"What kind of goods do you want?" asked the tailor.

"All wool and exactly of this color," replied the customer, presenting a sample.

"It is hard to tell just what color this is," rejoined the other, inspecting it. "Where did you get it?"

"I cut it from my last suit."

"It doesn't seem to have any figure."

"No. This is where some grease got on it. I cut out the entire spot. I want something a grease spot won't show on. See?"

After a lengthy explanation the tailor succeeded in convincing him that there was no cloth of that kind in the market.

Improving the Opportunity.

The small boy was ready to start on a long promised week's visit to his grandfather's in the country. There was an exasperating delay in the appearance of the carriage to take them to the station. The young man worked off his impatience in various annoying ways for half an hour. Then suddenly he was seen to kneel beside a chair in the corner and bury his face in his hands. After a few minutes his mother said:

"Why, Kenneth, what are you doing?"

"Just getting my prayers said up for while I'm going to be out at grandpa's. There's nothing to do here, and I spect to be pretty busy while I'm there."

The World's Forests.

There is a forest in the Labrador and Hudson Bay district of the Dominion, which extends, at the least, 1,000 miles wide and 1,700 miles long. South America has one in the basin of the Amazon which is 2,100 by 1,300 miles; Central Africa has a forest region 3,000 miles north and south, and of unknown width east and west. Perhaps, however, all these are cast into the shade by the Siberian "urmans" or "targas," which are vast woods of pine, larch, and cedar at least 3,000 miles from east to west, and 1,000 miles from north to south. They are so thick and gloomy that the natives call them "places where the mind is lost."

A Chance For Shelter.

Mr. Mooney disapproved of duelling as set forth and explained by his neighbor, Mr. Baumgarten. "'Tis a haythenish, barbarious way o' conductin' a quarr'l," said Mr. Mooney, with firmness.

"It is mooch like war," said his ponderous friend, "only in war dere is more beoples dake part. It is no great difference, my frent."

"Sure there is, a big difference," said Mr. Mooney. "In war ye can lie in wait or get behind something, man!"

A Wonderful Musician.

Kussewitzky, the king of contrabass players, was recently heard in concert in Berlin. The left-hand agility and accuracy of this renowned Russian virtuoso are said to be simply astounding; his hand flies up and down the huge, unwieldly instrument with a speed and certainty that baffle description. The artist's manipulation of the bow also shows great strength and flexibility.

Turned Down.

"May I ask how you earned your first salary?" inquired a reporter who was interviewing a celebrated statesman.

"I earned it, sir," said the great man, "by doing just what you are doing now. I was deputed to interview a man, and it may interest you to know that I got a good deal more information out of him than you're likely to get out of me!"

J. W. GARVIN VS. EDMISOM ET AL

Regretting that he cannot find the plaintiff entitled to any legal remedy for the "ungracious and discreditable manner" in which one of the defendants has treated him, Mr. Justice Teetzel has given judgment dismissing without costs the action brought by J. W. Garvin, financial agent and promoter, of Toronto, against E. S. Edmondson, general manager, Toronto; Charles Holt, solicitor, of London, England; John Kirkes-Meyers, gentlemen, London, Eng., and the Interurban Electric Co., Limited, Toronto, claiming that certain lands and assets registered to the Stark Telephone, Light & Power System, Limited, were held by Holt as trustee for his co-defendants and the plaintiff; that the lands and assets should be sold and the joint speculation in the matter wound up, accounts adjusted, and moneys distributed, and that defendanst should be ordered to execute all acts for those purposes and meantime be restrained from making a partition sale or conveyance, or parting with the same; in alternative, claiming damages for alleged breach of agreement. The defendants became incorporators of the Erindale Power Co., Limited, and plaintiff alleged that they had wrongfully excluded him from being a member of it. He claimed a fifth interest in the Stark property which Holt had acquired.

The case was tried at Toronto without a jury on June 22. Mr. Justice Teetzel held that the agreements and understandings between the plaintiff and the defendants, Edmondson and Holt, were substantially as set forth by the plaintiff in this draft letter of May 10, but reserved judgment to determine whether plaintiff had any legal remedy against the defendants, or any of them.

He finds that the plaintiff and his two associates were not competent to make any of the agreements referred to in respect of what should or should not be done either by the company which had not come into existence, or by Kirkes-Meyers and the Interurban Company. If plaintiff himself had done just what he complains of Holt and Edmondson doing, they would have been without remedy, and this absence of mutuality, his Lordship holds, is a complete answer to plaintiff's action for damages. He finds no ground for declaring that Holt held the lands under a constructive trust as to any interest therein for the plaintiff. "Holt certainly," he says, "took advantage of the information and assistance furnished by the plaintiff, and while, in casting the plaintiff out and excluding him from all benefits which may be derived from the purchase, he treated the plaintiff in a most ungracious and discreditable manner, I regret that I am unable to find that the plaintiff has any legal remedy." He, however, orders defendant Holt to pay the costs of his co-defendants.—The Globe.

YOUNG GIRLS ON THE STREET

A Regrettable Matter—A Letter That Offers Food for Thought

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The letter of "Common Decency" in your issue of Saturday last, condemning the street loiterers, has brought to my mind another prevailing evil, and that is girls walking the streets.

There is far too much familiarity between girls and boys, young men and women, on the streets, and one is tempted to often wonder what sort of homes they have that some of our young people seem to see so little of them. Noon, afternoon and night—but principally the latter—they are parading up and down, and it need scarcely be said that their boldness does not seem to lessen as their promenade increases.

What sort of housekeepers these girls will make one shudders to even imagine. They certainly never can have time to be learning anything of that sort, and if the truth were told some mother is slaving away, content to do the work rather than take the daughter's impudence.

The worst feature of this street walking and desertion of the home is the effect it has upon both sexes of the young. Listen to the interchange of repartee as they meet, and you have no difficulty in arriving at a true conception of the cause of so many distressing cases, some of which reach the courts, but more often are quietly settled rather than incur the disgrace.

Besides, this street walking is leading to respectable girls being insulted. The one leads to the other. Encouragement too often leads to license and then comes punishment. The fact of the matter is that parents must watch their children closer—especially the girls. They do not know their danger at first, and later they are too bold to realize it. Street walking at all hours is not right, and parents surely know it. If they do not, or will not, then let the authorities step in and emphasize the lesson before it is too late.

Yours, etc.,

A MOTHER

TUESDAY'S SESSIONS OF CHEMONG SUMMER SCHOOL

Special to the Review.

Chemong Park, July 7. — Tuesday morning's session of the Summer school was opened by prayer service. Rev. W. C. Clarke, B.A., of Port Hope, presiding.

Rev. Prof. McLaughlin continued the Bible study, beginning at the close of Paul's second missionary journey and discussing in a most interesting and instructive manner, Paul's first Epistle to the Thessalonians.

This address was followed by one given by Rev. J. S. Stewart, B.A., B.D, West China. The question comes, "What are we aiming at?" What do we mean when we say we are trying to christianize the country?"

We are trying to save every individual. Making a life is better than making a living.

At the close of Mr. Stewart's instructive address, Rev. S. T. Tucker, B.A., B.D., conducted a Christian Endeavor department conference. In the course of the interesting discussion, Mr. Locke's said that we fail in our work if we fail to make our work the work of those whom we are trying to interest.

At the close of the conference, Rev. W. R. Rogers, B.A., Millbrook, organized mission study classes, with Miss May C. Dobson, Whitby College, and Prof E. R. Doxsee, B.A., B.D, Albert College, as teachers of the text book, "The Strangers within our gates," and Rev. J. L. Stewart, West China, as teacher of "Uplift of China."

In the evening a prayer and praise service was held in the grove for a few moments before the regular session.

Rev. Mr. Clarke, on behalf of the Summer school, welcomed the Bridgenorth friends to the sessions—thanking them for the kindness manifested by them during the former annual sessions.

Rev. C. H. Coon, Peterborough, Vice-President, of the school, gave a most interesting address. Mr. Coon pleaded that not less interest should be manifested in Foreign, but more in the Home missions. The world must be conquered for Christ and we must be willing to go where Christ leads us.

Following this was an address on the "Bible" given by Rev. G. W. Henderson, Peterborough. In this magnificent and timely address Mr. Henderson drew attention to the harmony of the Bible and its adaptation. Sixty-six books of the Bible are sixty-six fragments brought from different people and these fit perfectly, showing that one mind must have planned it all and that a divine mind, God made the whole.

At the close of Rev. Mr. Henderson's address Miss May C. Dobson favored us with a solo, "O Happy Day, that Fixed My Choice," rendered in a most pleasing manner. After the collection had been taken the session was closed by singing the Doxology.

Mr. E. S. C. Huycke has been appointed County Judge of Peterborough.

YOUNG MAN THE VICTIM OF PAINFUL ACCIDENT

Cyril Sullivan Had the Misfortune to Have Four Fingers of Right Hand Cut off at First Joint This Morning.

Cyril Sullivan, son of Mr. John Sullivan, residing at 11 Park street, was the victim of a painful accident this morning shortly before noon, when he had the four fingers of his right hand cut off at the first joint, while operating a punch press at the Lock Mfg. Co. The young man was hurriedly taken to Dr. Greer's office by several of his fellow employees, but unfortunately the doctor was out at the time. After considerable telephoning Dr. Amys was found, and he arrived and attended to the preliminary dressing of the injured hand. The Dan Spence ambulance was in the meantime called for, and the young man accompanied by Dr. Amys was taken to the Nicholls Hospital, where he received the proper attention. This is the second time young Sullivan has had the same hand injured, as the top of the middle finger was taken off in a similar manner this spring.

MADE SOME SPLENDID FINDS OF MICA AND IRON ORE IN HALIBURTON COUNTY

Mr. Robert Tamblin, 86 Victoria Avenue, returned yesterday from Haliburton, where he has been prospecting for the past two weeks in the vicinity of Gooderham.

Mr. Tamblin says he has met with splendid success and made some very encouraging finds of mica and iron, and also gold and copper to some extent.

The properties are owned by a syndicate, which has employed Mr. Tamblin to supervise the mining of the ore.

THE LUNGE AND BASS ARE BITING SOME AT "ISLANDA"

The Biggest Black Bass of the Season Landed There by Mr. Harry Reed, of New York—Twenty-two Pound Lunge Surprised Bass Fisherman and Gave Him an Hour's Duel—Excellent Catches.

Some big catches of both 'lunge and bass are reported form "Islanda", the popular resort of upper Buckhorn Lake. There is a large registration of New York and Pittsburg fishermen at "Islanda", and they are getting their limit of fish every day.

Mr. Harry Reed, of New York, ed a nineteen pound 'lunge yesterday and also a black bass, which was one of the largest caught in the Kawartha district for a long time. It balanced the beam at a shade over 5 1-2 pounds.

Mr. Wm. Moore, of New York, had an exciting time wtih a 22 pound 'lunge the other day, and it took him over an hour to land it. Mr. Moore was bass fishing with an 8 oz. steel rod when the 'lunge made connections and it was only after a very trying struggle that the big one was overcome and hauled into the boat. The fish measured 46 inches.

Other excellent catches have been made. Mr. Reed's capture probably holds the Kawartha Lakes record for really sensational angling.

BELGIAN OFFICIALS HAVE COMPLETED CANAL TRIP

Mr. J. H. McCullan, superintendent of the Trent Canal, has returned to the city after a couple of days' absence during which he was with the Belgian officials on their trip over the Trent waterway.

The distinguished visitors arrived in Peterborough on Monday afternoon, where they were met by Mr. McClellan. After spending some time at the Peterborough lift-lock they proceeded on board the Bessie Butler and started up the lakes.

They made a close examination all the way, arriving at Fenelon Falls late on Monday night. They remained at that village for the night and were joined by Messrs. Thos. Stewart and R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., of Lindsay. At 8 o'clock on Tuesday morning they proceeded up the lakes, spending some time at Rosedale where construction work is going on. They also spent about three hours at the Kirkfield liftlock before proceeding to Orillia, which town they succeeded in reaching about eight o'clock on Tuesday evening. The party of visitors left this morning for the Welland canal.

Before leaving the gentlemen expressed their admiration for the magnificent water facilities and water stretches of the Trent Valley Canal. They also expressed their high appreciation of Mr. McClellan's thoughtfulness and courtesy.

THESE MUST BE THE GYPSIES WHO VISITED PETERBOROUGH

The Kingston Standard says: — A band of Gypsies who came down from near Napanee, were chased out of town to-day about one o'clock. There were ten waggons loaded with men, women and children, and it is estimated that there were about 70 in the crowd. A number were rounded up on Brock street near Bagot, and they were escorted by P.C's Arniel, Timmerman and Taylor to Lowery's blacksmith shop, where repairs were being made to one of the waggons. They were sent across Barriefield bridge and warned against returning to the city.

THINKS KAWARTHA LAKES CANNOT BE EXCELLED

Herr Kraft De La Saule, chief engineer of bridges and highways for Belgium and one of the officials of the party which has just completed a trip of inspection over the Trent Waterway was very much impressed with the beauties of the Kawartha lakes. From what he has seen of Canada he regards it as the most picturesque country in the world and was especially interested in the Kawartha lakes. He stated that they might praise the lakes of Ireland and Scotland but they couldn't compare with our own back lakes.

Herr De La Saule expressed the opinion that Canada was unrivalled in its summer beauty and its resorts would become world famed in a few years.

STRIKERS ARMED WITH RIFLES SHOOT UP THE COLLIERY

Special to Review.

Glace Bay, N. S., July 8.— Colliery at No. 6 was in a state of siege all night. Strikers armed with rifles were shooting at the colliery buildings, one of which was burned to the ground. Riots of a lesser character were reported at No. 1 and at Bridgeport, where the riots not was read. Many men were beaten, but no one so far reported fatally hurt. The working forces at the mines are much relieved to-day, as many men are intimidated owing to lack of police protection.

BADGES FOR THE FIREMEN

Arrived This Morning From New York—Have Similar Purpose to Police Badge

The firemen of the local fire department are decorated with badges today for the first time. Chief Howard sent to Cairns Bro. Co., York, for the badges, and got them out of the Customs house this morning.

In case the men are off duty the badge will give the fireman wearing it the privilege of entering a burning building, or of having access to any place where there is a fire. In this respect it serves the same purpose as a police badge.

The men pay for the badges themselves.

THIS VISITOR WAS IN WRONG

Became Mixed as to the Localty of the Two Stations and Nearly Missed His Train

An elderly gentleman who came to the city yesterday on the Peel County Sunday School excursion, came very near missing his train on the return trip. He was having a conversation with one of the Grand Trunk gatemen yesterday afternoon, thinking he was near the C.P.R. station all the time. Fortunately two stations were mentioned during the conversation and he awakened to the fact that he was in wrong. By pulling off a Longboat stunt he arrived at his station just in time to catch the last car.

LOCALS LOST TO BARRIE IN ELEVEN INNINGS

Score Was a Tie at the End of the Ninth, but the Visitors Got Two in the Eleventh—Both Twirlers Were in Fine Form.

It took eleven innings to decide the winner in the game at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon, between a picked team from the City League and the Barrie team, the score at the ninth standing one all, and at the finish of the contest 3—1 in favor of the visitors.

The exhibition throughout was an exciting one, in which it was hard to pick the winners, as both nines were well matched, and played canny ball. The large crowd of spectators appeared to enjoy the struggle and handed out liberal applause when the players of either teams contributed any particularly good fielding stunts.

A detachment of the 57th band was on hand, and the music rendered was of an appropriate, and therefore pleasing nature.

THE TWIRLERS

had it on the batters at all stages of the game. Doc Burton and Yebbe Flaherty opposed each other, and their performance in the box was of the big league style. Thirteen batsmen of each team smote the air, and the small number of hits secured off each heaver were pretty well scattered. Burton had a splendid assortment of shoots, all of which were effective on account of almost perfect control, and the visitor was there with the smile all through the game. He fielded his position in clever style, and earned his victory fairly. He was well supported by Scott behind the bat, who, by the way, scored two of the three runs secured by the team.

Yebbe Flaherty treated the local fans to a pleasant surprise when he took his position in the box to twirl for the home team, and his work, especially at critical points, was brilliant. He deserved to win, but misplays on the part of the men behind him were responsible for the loss of the game. Doc McFadden was all to the good at the receiving end, playing a handy game at all times.

THE FIELDERS

had an easy day, but what they were were called upon to do was done well. On account of the light hitting none of the players had a chance to show what they really could do, and this was particularly so with the visitors. They looked and played like good ball tossers, and would probably have given a good account of themselves if they had been called upon to do a lot of work.

Dan McCabe gave good satisfaction to both teams by his impartial decisions.

THE GAME.

First innings, Barrie—Cruise, first up, was out on a high fly to Kendrey. Scott struck out, and Rowe went out on a grounder, Kendrey to O'Brien. No runs.

Peterborough—Callaghan flew out to McNab. Shaw and Craig biffed the air for three. No runs.

Second innings—Meeking was safe on a grounder to Kendrey, who tumbled. Coffery singled. Tyre sacrificed. Flaherty to O'Brien. Todd fanned and Burton performed a similar stunt. No runs.

M. O'Brien out on a grounder to Burton. H. O'Brien beat out a slow one to short, and stole second. Kendrey drove a pretty one between third and short, making first. Flaherty walked, filling the bases. Curtis fanned and McFadden hit a short fly to the pitcher. No runs.

Third innings—McNab grounded to Flaherty. Cruise fanned and Scott was out, Callaghan to O'Brien. No runs.

Callaghan grounded to short. Shaw fanned. Craig beat out a bunt over third base, and stole second. M. O'Brien grounded to Burton. No runs.

Fourth innings—Rowe led off with a drive over O'Brien's head, making three bases. Meeking fanned. Coffery hit to Craig, who threw to the plate, getting Rowe. Tyre was safe on M. O'Brien's drop of a throw, and Todd struck out. No runs.

H. O'Brien and Kendrey fanned. Flaherty walked. Curtis grounded out to Burton. No runs.

Fifth innings—M. O'Brien got Burton's high fly. McNab fanned. Cruise flew out to Shaw. No runs.

McFadden went out, Meeking to Rowe. Callaghan and Shaw missed three. No runs.

Sixth innings—Scott singled. Rowe sent a liner to Craig and was out at first. A wild throw in an attempted double advanced Scott to third. Meeking singled and Scott scored the first run of the game. McFadden took care of Coffery's fly and Tyre grounded out to Kendrey. One run.

Craig walked and stole second. M. O'Brien fanned, and H. O'Brien fouled out to Tyre. McNab dropped Kendrey's fly to left, and Craig scored on the play. Kendrey was out stealing third. One run.

Seventh innings—Todd, Burton and McNab struck out. No runs.

Flaherty grounded to Burton. Curtis fanned. McFadden doubled, but it was wasted, as Callaghan fouled out to Tyre. No runs.

Eighth innings—Cruise grounded to Kendrey. Scott popped a high one, which Flaherty handled, and Shaw got under Rowe's fly. No runs.

Shaw flew out to Meeking. Craig bunted, beat it out, and stole second. M. O'Brien fouled out to Scott. H. O'Brien fanned. No runs.

Ninth innings—Meeking singled and stole second. Coffery sacrificed him to third. Tyre was out on a fly to Callaghan, and Warren, batting for Todd, fanned. No runs.

Kendrey grounded to short and was out. Flaherty out on a bouncer to Meeking. Curtis fanned. No runs.

Tenth innings—Burton out, Kendrey to O'Brien. McNab and Cruise struck out. No runs.

McFadden was hit and was out stealing second. Callaghan fanned. Shaw out on a grounder to Burton. No runs.

Eleventh innings—Scott hit to left which dropped between Craig and Shaw. Flaherty missed Rowe's grounder and he was safe. Meeking singled and the bases were filled with none out. Coffery struck out. Scott scored on a steal home, Rowe going to third and scoring on a passed ball. Tyre was out on a high foul to McFadden and Meeking was caught stealing. Two runs.

Craig was out on a grounder to third. M. O'Brien out, Meeking to Rowe, and Harry O'Brien brought the contest to a close by dying by the same route.

PROTEST LAID OVER UNTIL FINISH OF SCHEDULE

The four City League teams were represented at the meeting held last night to consider the protest of the West Ends against the Strathconas. In the last game between these two teams the Straths were short several men which necessitated the playing of unsigned men, and this made the number of players in excess of the fifteen allowed by the league rules. It transpired at the meeting that the Park St. team had also played more than fifteen men, but the Executive were in favor of not dealing with the two cases until the finish of the schedule, and there will be no change in the games billed to be played at Riverside on Saturday.
